THORNTON J. HAINS IS ACQUITTED; HELD NOT ACCESSORY TO CRIME

Jury Decides Author Was Not Accessory to Killing.

Defendant Charged With Preventing Interference While Brother Shot.

Restless Night Were Spent by Lawyers and Defendant.

THORNTON JENKINS HAINS.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Thornton Jenkins Hains author and clubman, was this aeternoon acquitted of the charge of having been an accessary to the killing of William E. Annis by his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., at the Bayside Yacht club last summer.

The shooting of Annis was due to the belief, on the part of the army officer, that while he had been absent in the Philippines, Annis had betrayed his wife, Mrs. Hains.

While the captain was shooting Annis, it was charged that Thornton Hains, revolver in hand, kept the yacht club members from interfering.

Shortly after 3 this morning, the jury sent word that they desired to have the maps and diagrams of the Bayside Yacht club house float, which was sent them by Justice Crane. No intimation came from the jury room during the night as to the progress made toward a verdict. The twelve men went to breakfast this morning at a hotel across from the courthouse, at 7:30.

Justice Crane waited in his chamber all night, ready to receive a verdict, and Dr. Hicks also was in constant attendance, ready to minister to John Walsh, the injured juryman, whose heart action the physician states, has been affected by shock of the accident and the excitement of the case. WOMAN KILLED READING BIBLE

Matilda Ecklund is Shot to Death Through a Window.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 15.—While reading her Bible Matilda Ecklund, 47 years old, living just outside the city limits of Sandy, was shot and instantly killed shortly before midnight last night by Axel Carlson, 30 years old.

Carlson fired through a window. The first bullet missed its mark, but shattered a lamp on a table. He then went to another window and fired two more shots, both of which took effect. The murderer entered the house and fired another bullet into his victim's temple.

Carlson then went to a nearby saloon and after drinking a quantity of whisky, told of his deed. He was arrested and made a rambling statement, the purport of which was that he had been "wronged by the railroads" and "hounded by union men," until some one had to die.

The appropriations are for the entertainment of certain international commissions and congresses which have been invited to Washington. Among other items, $50,000 is asked for the suitable participation of the United States in the eighth international prison congress, to be held in Washington in 1910, and a like amount for the participation of the government in the twelfth international congress of hygiene and demography, to be held here in 1910.

THOUSANDS ON STRIKE

Hatmakers Quit Work Because Union Labels Are Stopped.

Seventy-Five Eastern Factories Affected by Action.

New York, Jan. 15.—Several thousand eastern union hatmakers went on strike today with a likelihood that the number will soon reach 30,000. The reason given by the men is that the Associated Hat Manufacturers' association has decreed that union labels shall no more be put in the hats. Seventy-five factories are affected.

In Orange, N. J., 400 men went out, and in Brooklyn, 500 men employed by Samuel Mundheim & Co. went on strike.

Mundheim is president of the Hat Manufacturers' association. He said today that the vote to discontinue the use of the label was unanimous. He said the reason for this action is that the union of employes has failed to keep a working agreement made with the Geyer Hat company of Philadelphia. Under this agreement, he said, the men were to continue work until a settlement of pending questions were reached, but the men quit work in that factory three weeks ago and have since refused to return, although the manufacturers have been trying to induce them to do so.

Out at South Norwalk.

South Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 15.—Seven hundred employes of the Crofut & Knapp company, makers of hats, walked out today on refusal of the firm to permit the use of union labels in its product

COURT REVERSES SELF ON RULING

Modifies Former Order in Case Against Minnesota Railway Co.

St. Paul Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today reversed itself when it modified its former order in the case brought against the Minnesota & International railway by the state, to collect gross earnings taxes.

In a per curiam decision, it holds that the gross receipts from labor and work train service and material furnished in maintaining, laying, surfacing, extending and taking up spur tracks was not properly included under the term "gross earnings."

"There was no intention to make any profit out of such transactions, and this class of service is distinguishable from the rental of equipment or work trains," says the court.

The decision in a case in which Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis acted as counsel for the plaintiff in the lower court and was defeated, was today affirmed by the supreme court. The case itself is of little consequence, involving the winding up of the estate of Viola M. Dunn. The appeal was argued in the supreme court for the plaintiff by C. H. Slack of Minneapolis. This was necessary because Hart had been disbarred for six months for criticising the supreme court.

TELL POLLUTION OF GREAT LAKES

The Committeemen Bring Matter to Attention of President Roosevelt.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The serious pollution of the waters of the Great Lakes, especially of Lake Erie, was taken up today at the White House by a committee of the Niagara frontier pure water conference, an organization of the cities of Buffalo, Lockport, Tonawanda, North Tonawanda and Niagara Falls. President Roosevelt told his visitors that he fully realized the serious nature of the situation and referred them to Clifford Pinchot of the national conservation commission. Mr. Pinchot is in Mexico, but on his return the matter will be laid before him.

EMMA GOLDMAN ARRESTED AGAIN

She and Ben Rietman Lodged in San Francisco Jail.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 15.—Emma Goldman, the notorious anarchist and Ben Rietman, who was widely known as the "King of Hobos" were arrested late last night as they attempted to hold one of their eight meetings they previously announced. They were lodged in the county jail on eight counts of conspiracy to riot.

"Riot" is defined by the statutes as the assembling of two or more persons at a meeting where measures are advocated, which if actually carried out would lead to riot. Ball was fixed at $1,000 each or $2,000 bond on each count.

FIVE LIVES SNUFFED OUT

Mother and Four Children Perish in Burning of Shanty Home.

Tragedy in Lumber Camp Twenty Miles South of Ashland.

Ashland Wis., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Nathan Sherrard and four children, aged 1, 2, 4 and 6 years, were burned to death at Echlins' lumber camp, twenty miles south of Ashland, this morning.

Nate Sherrard, the camp cook, arose at 4 o'clock and began getting breakfast for the hundred men who composed the camp, leaving his wife and children asleep. An hour later, the board shanty in which they slept, burst into flames. The lumberjacks many of them half dressed, rushed to the shanty, but there was nothing to fight the fire with except snow.

Sherrard rushed into the burning building, determined to throw his life away, but was dragged out, frightfully burned, and is in a critical condition at an Ashland hospital. The entire camp of lumberjacks will escort the burned bodies to Odanah.

MAY REORGANIZE NAVY DEPARTMENT

Men of Wide Experience in That Connection Confer.

Washington, Jan 15.—An important conference on the administration of naval matters by the navy department, which may result in the reorganization of the system at present in vogue in that department, is being held today. Criticism of the naval administration under the present bureau system resulted in the bringing together of ten men of wide experience in navy matters.

Those at the meeting, in the office of the secretary of the navy, are Supreme Court Justice William H. Moody and Paul Morton of New York, ex-secretaries of the navy; United States Judge A. G. Dayton, of West Virginia, ex-chairman of the house committee on naval affairs; Herbert L. Satterlee, assistant secretary of the navy; Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, retired; Rear Admiral Alfred T. Mahan, retired; Stephen B. Luce, retired, both on special duty at the naval war college, Newport, R. I.; Rear Admiral William M. Folger, retired, former naval chief of ordnance; Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles chief of the bureau of equipment, and Commander William F. Fullam, head of the naval training station at Newport, R. I., who acts as recorder.

RINEHART IS HELD GUILTY

Jury Convicts Former Cashier in $2,000,000 Failure Case.

Judge Sentences Him to Fifteen Years in Penitentiary.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 15.—J. B. F. Rinehart was today found guilty of embezzlement in connection with the failure for $2,000,000, two years ago, of the Farmers' & Drovers' National bank of Waynesburg, Pa., of which institution he was formerly cashier and vice president. The verdict convicts Rinehart on all the counts in the indictment.

He was at once sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

George W. Worley, brother-in-law of Rinehart and James L. Smith have been arrested by United States secret service men, on charge of attempting to bribe one of the jurors.

The trial of Rinehart came to a tearful close. He cried piteously as Attorney Anderson pleaded with the jury to consider his intent, which the attorney urged, was to serve the best interests of the bank, in the commission of the acts upon which the charges are based.

Tears trickled down the cheeks of the attorney as he spoke and there was weeping throughout the crowded courtroom as reference was made to the banker's wife and little boy, who were in the court.

"The saddest moment of my life was last evening, when I learned of the arrest of my brother-in-law, George W. Worley, and my friend, James L. Smith, charged with jury tampering," said Rinehart today. "Why, Worley is little more than a boy, an innocent boy at that, who has seldom been out of Greene county and is so quiet and reserved that he can scarcely talk to a stranger. It is impossible for me to believe that such a boy could be guilty of the serious charge impending against him. Smit

GUNBOAT FIRES UPON STEAMER

Reason for Action of Liberian Vessel Is Unknown.

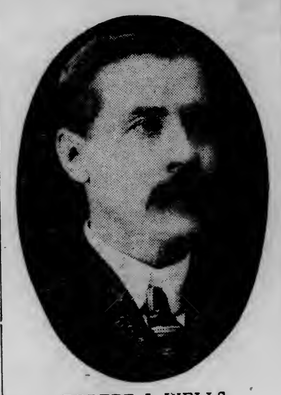

Konakry, French Guinea, West Africa Jan. 15.—News is received here that the Liberian customs gunboat Lark has bombarded a German steamer of the Woerman line, off the coast of Liberia. The reason for this action is not given.

A German guardship from Kamerun has sailed for Liberia. The Woerman line runs steamers from Hamburg, around Africa.

The Lark is of 740 tons and was formerly a yacht of Lord Rothschild. She was purchased by the Liberian government last September, with the object of stopping ships coming into ports that are not open to the trade of the world. The six guns on board the Lark are a gift of the British government. Her commander is Capt. Bunge, a member of the British naval reserve.

TAMING THE PRESIDENT.

HEARING ON BILL TO PREVENT FOREST FIRES TO BE GIVEN WEDNESDAY

ROBERT J. WELLS,
Of Breckenridge, Who Has Introduced a Bill to Change Method of Taxing Water Power Companies.

Chief Object Is to Have Slashings Taken Care Of.

Heavy Claims for Damages From Cutting of State Ditch.

Bill to Make Railroads Pay Special Local Assessments.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The timber interests and any others who may be concerned will have a chance next Wednesday afternoon, to be heard on the bill to prevent forest fires, prepared by the state forestry commissioner and presented in the house yesterday by Representative Holmberg of Renville county.

The chief object of the measure is to compel lumbermen and others who are cutting timber, or clearing forest lands, to take care of the slashings, which include branches, tops and other refuse. There is at present no state law governing the disposal of this inflammable material, so usually it lies in the woods to become dry, and this is turned into kindling wood that helps the forest fires along amazingly.

The bill has been referred to the house committee on forestry, which decided yesterday afternoon to hold a public hearing next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 when anybody interested may appear and tell what he knows.

The bill makes supervisors and clerks of towns, mayors of cities and presidents of villages, fire wardens for their

TO COMPEL ALL TO VOTE

Or Pay Fine Proposed by Bill Introduced in Senate.

Appointments of J. L. Washburn and Louis W. Hill Are Made.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A law compelling every legal voter to exercise his prerogative, or pay a fine, is proposed in a bill offered in teh senate this morning by Senator Witherstine of Rochester. It requires all voters to vote at general and primary elections of all kinds, and anybody that fails to do so is to be fined $2 for each failure. It is made the duty of town and village boards, and of city councils, to find out who fails to vote, and to notify them that they owe $2 a piece. If they fail to pay the fine, it is added to their taxes, and if they fail to pay taxes, they will not be permitted to vote at the next election. Senator Works introduced a bill creating the state board of public lands to take the place of the state timber board, the state forestry board and the land commissioner, all of which officers are abolished. The board is to consist of three members, appointed by the governor. Their terms are to be for six years, though the first board will have terms of two,

JONES CAUGHT MANY VICTIMS

Missing Rugby, N. D., Banker, Said to Have Stung Many.

Rugby, N. D., Jan. 15.—Andy Jones, the missing cashier of the Rugby National bank, is believed to have made off with $100,000 in cash realized from various sources. It is declared that people all over the Northwest were victimized.

The investigation of the affairs of the bank continues and it is believed it will weather the financial storm. Jones passed his worthless paper on individuals and other banks and left his own bank alone as a rule, evidently through fear of the federal authorities.

His action in indorsing his own paper is contrary to banking rules and the bank will not be held, although Jones is criminally liable. Government secret service men are looking for him, but have not located him.

HOMESTEADER FROZEN.

Overcome With Cold, He Perishes in the Upper Peninsula.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 15.—Antoine Swanson, a homesteader, residing near Silver Mountain was frozen to death sometime during last Saturday night, his body being found by his nephew, R. Johnson of Alston late Saturday afternoon, while the latter was returning from a trapping expedition. Swanson, who was about 28 years of age, spent Saturday afternoon in Alston, and at about 4 o'clock started to walk home. Friends endeavored to persuade him to remain for the night, but he refused.

Shortly after nightfall he arrived at the home of Donald Grant, former supervisor from Laird township, who tried to have him put up for the night, but Swanson refused, despite the fact that he was suffering greatly from the cold. That was the last seen of him alive. From tracks found it is believed Swanson walked to within two miles of his home and then, evidently becoming lost in the darkness, started to return to Alston. He had gone several miles when the tracks came to a stop, but for quite a space the snow was trampled quite hard, which leads to the belief that Swanson was overcome with the cold and endeavored to keep his blood in circulation, but finally, becoming exhausted, was forced to give in.

DOUBLE-CROSSING IN CAUCUS IS CHARGED

B. F. SHIVELY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 15.—John W. Kern, recent Democratic candidate for vice president and until early yesterday morning candidate for United State senator to succeed Hemenway, is sore over the victory of B. F. Shively, whom the Democratic legislative caucus chose for the toga. Kern says he was double crossed, and makes extensive charges of double dealing. He adds:

"The secret ballot made possible all sorts of treachery, double dealing and corrupt practice. I believe thoughtful people will find in the scenes of the last two days additional strong argument in favor of the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. I do not care at this time to discuss in detail the causes which contributed to the result."

BREATHING MORE FREELY

Judge Wilson Says It Was Fad to Slam Railroads.

But That Hobby Is Outgrown by State Legislators.

Judge Thomas Wilson of St. Paul, general attorney for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, and one of the best known railroad attorneys in the West; is at the Spalding today.

Judge Wilson, according to his statement made to a Herald reporter, does not believe that any radical, adverse railway legislation will be enacted by the present legislature. The railroad attorney is of the opinion that radical railway legislation has seen the height of its activity and that business interests have seen the evil effects growing out of such adverse action by legislators, and that unwise and unthinking action on the part of state legislators is a thing of the past.

"I do not anticipate any radical legislation adverse to the interests of the railways of the state at the present session of the legislature," said Judge Wilson. "I am of the opinion that anti-railway legislation was more or less of a fad, a kind of epidemic if you will, which caused state legislatures to enact many measures that were very unwise, uncalled for, and very harmful not only to the railroads, but also to the general business interests of the state and nation."

Judge Wilson was asked if he believed that anti-railway legislation had resulted in hurting the general business of the country.

"That is the general impression we have," replied Judge Wilson. "I believe that conditions will show that such an effect followed the many adverse measures passed against the railroads. I believe that people are in a more sane state of mind at the present time, and while some railway measures have been introduced into the legislature, I do not look for the flood of adverse bills that were introduced two years ago."

According to Judge Wilson, there is little of news interest in the affairs of the railway lines of the state at the present time. Business is fairly quiet and there is little in the legal affairs of the roads right now that is exciting interest.

Judge Wilson is at the Head of the Lakes to attend to some legal matters connected with the Omaha road. He spent part of the day in Superior.

Swindling Crookston Banks is Also Charged Against Kiderofsky.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Orin Daniels has arrived from Bemidji with Mike Kiderofsky, charged with the theft of a large amount of grain from a farmer named Charles Ross, residing in the town of Fanny, north of this city. He worked for Ross last summer, and it was after he was paid off that the thefts were committed. He hauled the grain with a team he hired from time to time from a livery stable. He is said to have defrauded two banks in this city out of $50 each by fake mortgages on stock and land, and is regarded as a very bad man. TAX TITLE CASE ENDED

Decision is Virtually a Victory for County Auditor.

Case Has Been Fought Through the Courts for Years.

The famous fight of John Olson of Two Harbors to recover money paid for tax titles and interest to date, was probably brought to an end this morning by an order by Judge Dibell, granting a mandamus to compel Odin Halden, county auditor, to pay over the amount paid in, with interest to Oct. 4, 1902. The suit was brought against Mr. Halden and the result is virtually a victory for him, as he is not compelled to pay the interest from 1902 to date.

The case is a long-drawn out affair, which at times during the years of its course, has assumed amusing phases by the vigor with which it was fought. It originated in 1895, when Olson bought in for taxes, a number of pieces of property in Duluth, paying over $1,600 in all. There were sixteen pieces of property, mostly in suburban additions to Duluth.

Several years later the judgment of the auditor, who then held office, was overthrown and the tax titles declared void. Olson began a fight to recover all of the money paid. The amounts paid on three lots were in dispute and they formed the sticking point. Olson appeared before the county board time after time, but the county board refused to certify the three disputed lots to the state auditor for refunding. Olson refused to accept any of the refund unless he received it all.

Two of the lots in dispute were dropped out of the proceedings years ago and the third didn't figure much. A decision of the supreme court in 1902 held that interest on refunded money on void tax titles could be paid only to six months after the date of the decision. Olson's suit was virtually to recover the interest from that time to the present.

Under the decision handed down by Judge Dibell, Olson is entitled to recover his original payments, with interest to Oct. 4, 1902, except such moneys as he paid on lot 4, block 20, Carlson Place addition, one of the lots involved in the original dispute. Olson will recover $1,600 and $790 interest, instead of the $1,600 and $1,557 interest, which he sought.

VERDICT IS SET ASIDE

Jury's Award of $2,000 Held Inadequate by Judge Dibell.

Holding that the verdict of $2,000, returned in favor of Thomas N. Pinkerton against the Wisconsin Steel company, by a jury in district court at the May term last year, is inadequate to compensate the boy for the loss sustained by his injury, Judge Dibell issued an order this morning setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial.

The action is an unusual one in the Duluth court, and Judge Dibell refers to the fact in his memorandum. He says that though the setting aside of a verdict on account of inadequacy of damages is not often countenanced, the case is one where judicial discretion should be exercised. He says the young man is 17 or 18 years of age, a high school student, who had good prospects. There may be much in life for such a boy in these times, he says.

The injury is a serious one, says the court, and the amount awarded gives compensation for but a fraction of the handicap under which the boy is placed to go through life.

The suit was for $20,000, and was brought by John A. Pinkerton, father of the boy. Thomas N. Pinkerton was employed during the school vacation period of 1907, at the Hawkins mine at Nashwauk. The complaint charged that after finishing a day's work, Aug. 15, 1907, he was set to work at night, acting as a brakeman. On the morning of Aug. 16, while coupling an engine to a string of cars, his right hand was caught in the coupling apparatus and crushed, so as to be practically useless forever.

The company was charged with negligence in putting a boy of Pinkerton's age and inexperience at such work, and in not properly instructing him in regard to the duties and dangers of the work.

Carlton Man Says He Can Give Information Regarding Him.

Judge Middlecoff, of the probate court, received a letter today from Dr. O. S. Watkins of Carlton, who saw the reference in The Herald to the heirs of Alper Posy, searching for property supposed to have been owned by him in Duluth. Dr. Watkins says that if the man referred to its North Albert Posey, he can give any information that may be wanted as to the manner and time of his death. The heirs will be notified that North Albert Posey is the only man known in Duluth of that name, and if he is the man the information wanted will be given.

OLD STORY IS REVIVED

Rumored That Canadian Pacific Has Purchased Wisconsin Central.

Report Comes From Chicago and Is Believed in St. Paul.

A story that has been handed around in Duluth railroad circles for some time, that the Wisconsin Central railroad had passed into the control of the Canadian Pacific stockholders, is revived by a report from Chicago today.

The announcement comes from Chicago that the Wisconsin Central has changed hands, and that the road has already been turned over to the Canadian Pacific. The story is believed in St. Paul railroad circles, and Duluth men also give it credence.

Various stories have been printed to this effect. It has been known for some time past that the Canadian Pacific was angling for the control of a Chicago connection. It was at first believed that the Chicago Great Western railroad was the road that the Canadian Pacific interests had been endeavoring to secure, but this was denied.

The securing of the Wisconsin Central would give the Canadian line some advantages that it would not secure by the purchase of the Great Western. It would give the Canadian road a direct line from St. Paul to Chicago, and also a direct short line between Chicago and Duluth.

It would further mean that the Canadian Pacific could compete upon even terms with the Hill roads, an ambition that has been a spur to the efforts of the officials of the Canadian Pacific for some time.

With the Wisconsin Central under its control, the Canadian Pacific could compete for Chicago-St. Paul business with the Burlington, a Hill line. It could compete in the territory of the Northwest, with the Soo, and it would have in addition a short line between Duluth and Chicago, which would give it some advantages over the Hill lines.

The deal, if it has been made, has an important local bearing, and it would mean much to Duluth. The Wisconsin Central has for years been listed with the so-called weak lines. It has been one of the weaker of the Chicago-St. Paul lines and while new energy has been shown in the affairs of the road of late, the fact that it would have the unlimited capital and backing of the Canadian Pacific behind it, could not but help increase the efficiency of the road.

With two lines controlled by the Canadian Pacific—the Wisconsin Central and the Soo—with outlets at Duluth, it is only natural to suppose that the Canadian road would take a great deal of interest in the railroad welfare of this city, and that much of the business of the road would be routed by way of Duluth.

It has long been a threat of the Canadian Pacific that for every mile of railroad Mr. Hill built in Canada, it would build or secure two in the United States. The securing of the Wisconsin Central would be a fulfillment of this threat, made at the time when Mr. Hill crossed the boundary line.

ABSOLUTE CURE OF SKIN ERUPTION

Broke Out on Hips and Legs—Was So Sore, Irritating and Painful that Little Sufferer Could Not Sleep—Scratched Constantly and Kept Growing Worse.

CUTICURA'S EFFECT QUICK AND PERMANENT

"When about two and a half years old my daughter broke out on her hips and the upper parts of her legs with a very irritating and painful eruption. It began in October; the first I noticed was a little red surface and a constant desire on her part to scratch her limbs. She could not sleep and the eruptions got sore, and yellow water came out of them. I had two doctors treat her, but she grew worse under their treatment. Then I bought the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent, and only used them two weeks when she was entirely well. This was in February. She has never had another rough place on her skin, and she is now fourteen years old. I used only half the bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and less than a box of Cuticura Ointment. Mrs. R. R. Whitaker, Winchester, Tenn., Sept. 22, 1908."

is an older man, has traveled extensively, has been a prominent figure in Waynesburg life and has never been actively identified with me or my interests. It is hard for me to believe that he would take upon himself so serious an act as to attempt to tamper with any of the members of the jury. In my opinion, it will be found at the hearing that a mistake must have been made.

"I need not say that the whole matter was an entire surprise to me, as I had hoped that the jury would acquit me on account of the manner in which I went on the stand last Tuesday and made a clean breast of my connection with the affairs of the bank. I fear now that these arrests may damage my case, but in spite of that I believe Worley and Smith are innocent."

The jury desired the exhibits charging abstraction of the funds of the bank and, following a brief conference, the prosecution and defense consented to the exhibits being sent to the jury room.

It is reported a private detective agency has been connected with the attempt to corrupt the jury. Several representatives of the agency were taken to the office of United States Commissioner Lindsey, and are said to have undergone a severe examination.

HAINS JURY WRANGLING

Ahearn, another juror, is suffering from a cold.

Thornton Hains slept through the early hours of the morning on a table in the sheriff's office, while his brother, Maj. John Hains, wrapped his army coat about him and stretched out on a court room bench.

Short Naps for Lawyers.

John F. McIntyre, chief of Hains' counsel, and his associates, slept for a couple of hours, while District Attorney Darrin, after a short nap in a chair, went home to rest.

Justice Crane appeared to stand the all-night session better than the rest.

During the night Gen. Hains and his wife who went to New York at a late hour, called up frequently on the telephone, to learn if a verdict had been reached.

Judge Crane convened court at 8:40 this morning, and after Thornton Hains was brought in, sent for the jury. The defendant seemed fresher and in better spirits, notwithstanding his ordeal waiting all night for the verdict, than at any time in the last two weeks.

The jurors appeared worn and weary. The request for the reading of testimony having been made, and Justice Crane having explained that the cross-examinations as well as the direct testimony must be read, the court stenographer began to read the testimony of Capt. Clark, which was in effect that he saw the shooting from his boat, anchored near the float, but that the sails and booms prevented him from seeing what was going on in detail. Capt. Clark testified that he saw Thornton Hains on the dock twenty minutes before the tragedy, but did not see him at the moment of the shooting.

In brief, Dr. McBride's testimony was that he did not know William E. Annis; that he was on the float when the shooting occurred; that he saw a man waving a revolver back and forth, and that the last shot was fired after the man had waived his revolver. Dr. McBride said he did not know the man who waved the revolver.

One Pleads Illness.

John Tierney's testimony was then read and Judge Crane asked the jurors if they desired to hear the cross examination read. The jurors talked among themselves and Juror Denham arose and said:

"Your honor, I am sick, and if we can't agree within an hour I ask you to discharge us."

Justice Crane directed Dr. Hicks to examine both Jurors Walsh and Denham and they went behind the jury box where they consulted with the physician.

"I would like to hear that part of your honor's charge," said Juror McLean, "that had to do with manslaughter in the first degree."

Thornton Hains appeared startled by the request.

Justice Crane read that part of his charge referring to manslaughter.

Juror Boenig wished to have his recollection refreshed on that portion of the judge's charge that had reference to Thornton Hains walking away from his brother on the dock just before the shooting.

"I think I can make that clear," said Justice Crane. "If Thornton Hains merely walked away while the shooting was going on he is not guilty, but if he went down on the boat, though with no design to kill, but to stop others from preventing the killing, he is guilty of manslaughter in the first degree."

The jury then retired again.

PRIMARY ELECTION

New System is Proposed by North Dakota Legislator.

Would Have Party Conventions and Direct Primary Elections.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The White primary election bill, introduced in the house by Representative George A. White of Traill county is substantially the same in its general makeup as the bill introduced by him two years ago. The first section says that the act shall be liberally construed, and no mere technical error either in the giving of any notice, the marking of ballots, the conducting of the primary election or certifying the results thereof, shall be allowed to defeat the will of the electors.

On the third Tuesday of June, next preceding a general election, a primary election shall be held to nominate party candidates, including all state, national county, judicial and legislative candidates, as well as United States senatorial candidates.

It is with reference to the nomination of candidates in the primary election that this bill differs materially from other measures proposed during the past two sessions. Mr. White would have the candidates named in conventions, the people to ratify or disapprove of the convention selections, as they see fit in the June primary election.

The bill provides for the holding of caucuses for the purpose of nominating delegates to the county conventions. In the county conventions, which shall be held on the first Tuesday in April, candidates for the various county offices, as well as delegates to the state convention and district convention, shall be nominated. With reference to this question of county, district and state conventions, the White bill is as follows:

"The county convention shall meet at a place within the county, selected by the county central committee, on the first Tuesday in April, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to nominate candidates for the several county offices, and to elect delegates to the state convention, and all district conventions in which the county shall be entitled to representation.

"Majority and minority nominations for the office of county commissioner shall be reported to the convention in open session, and be certified to the county auditor, the same as nominations for other county offices.

"The county convention shall elect delegates to the judicial district convention, and the delegates so elected shall convene at a place selected by the judicial district central committee, on the second Tuesday in April, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and place in nomination a majority and a minority candidate for the office of judge of the district court of the district.

"In counties constituting a part of a senatorial district, the county convention shall elect delegates to the legislative convention. The delegates so elected shall convene at 11 o'clock a. m., on the second Tuesday of April, at a place within the district selected by the legislative central committee of the district, to nominate majority and minority candidates for the legislative assembly.

"In a county constituting one or more senatorial districts, the delegates elected at the caucuses within their respective districts shall constitute the legislative convention of the district, and they shall convene immediately after adjournment of the county convention, and place in nomination majority and minority candidates for members of the legislative assembly.

"The state convention of each political party shall convene at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of the third Tuesday in April preceding a general election, at such place within the state as may be selected therefor by the state central committee of the party. The state convention shall place in nomination majority and minority candidates for United States senator, members of congress, judges of the supreme court and all state offices. The state convention shall elect delegates to the national convention of its party and place in nomination candidates for presidential electors, if it be the purpose of the party organization as such to participate in the election of a president of the United States; but only majority candidates for presidential electors shall be nominated and their names shall not be placed on the primary election ballot."

The bill then takes up the question of rules governing state conventions, the so-called unit rule being tabooed, each individual member of a county delegation being voted, although the delegates can be called by counties and the vote of that delegation given so many for and so many against, as the case may be. The bill then takes up the question of voting for party candidates, being as follows:

"The voting for candidates shall continue until one person has a majority of all the votes cast, and such person shall be declared the majority nominee of the convention, and the person having the next highest number of votes shall be declared the minority nominee of the convention.

"No convention shall ever entertain, consider or vote upon any motion or proposition to make the nomination of the majority candidate unanimous and any and every attempt to do so is hereby declared to be subversive of the purpose of this act and void."

The primary election shall be held the same as a general election. The ballots of the different political parties shall all be at the voting polls and no one person can vote more than one party ballot. The names of both the majority and the minority candidates of the conventions are placed on the ballot, the majority candidate's name being placed above the minority candidate's name.

With reference to the election of United States senators, the bill provides that the party candidates receiving the highest vote shall be given a certificate of nomination by the secretary of state, which shall be presented to the speaker of the house and the president of the senate, those nominated to be considered the party candidates before the legislative assembly. The legislative pledge or act by which a candidate for the legislature binds himself to vote for his party's choice for United States senator is cared for in the following manner:

"The acceptance of any convention nomination to the legislative assembly shall be construed as a pledge on the part of the person so accepting, that he will vote for the candidate nominated by his party at the primary election for United States senator, unless the candidate for the legislative assembly shall publicly announce in the convention nominating him that he will not be so pledged, or, in lieu of such announcement in the convention, he may publish a notice to the same effect over his signature in at least two newspapers in his district at least fifteen days before the primary election.

"In case of a deadlock for ten consecutive ballots on the election of United States senator, owing to there being three or more candidates for the office, no one of whom has a majority of all the votes, then all members of the legislative assembly shall be absolved from such pledge."

A concurrent resolution adopted by the legislative assembly Thursday afternoon provides for a committee to draw up suitable resolutions on the death of Former Governors John Miller of Duluth and E. C. Shortridge. The senate had but a short session, adjourning out of respect to their memory.

The state affairs committee of the house has appointed a sub-committee to amend the penitentiary investigation resolution by which the house would have a majority of the committee, and also giving power to subpoena witnesses.

This afternoon a joint session was held for an address by Franklin McVey, chairman of the Minnesota tax commission, who spoke on taxation and tax laws.

GETS DAMAGES FOR SON'S DEATH

James McDonald Secures $1,680 From Street Railway.

The sealed verdict returned last evening by the jury in the case of James McDonald, as administrator of the estate of James W. McDonald, vs. Duluth Street Railway company, was opened in court this morning. It was in favor of McDonald and fixed the damages at $1,680. He sued for $5,000.

The suit was brought as a result of the death of James W. McDonald, the 11-year-old son of James McDonald. The boy was killed on Tower avenue near Eighth street, in Superior, Dec. 17, 1907. He was running across the street, slipped on the track and fell, a car striking him and dragging the body for some distance. When the car was stopped, the lifeless body of the boy was taken from under it.

The plaintiff charged that the motorman was negligent in that he was running the car beyond the legal limit, and should have stopped before striking the boy, as the car was still some distance away when the boy fell. The company denied the charge of negligence, contending that the boy had been careless in running in front of the oncoming car, and it was impossible for the motorman to stop the car after the boy fell.

There was a fall of 33 degs from yesterday, and at 10 o'clock this morning it was 1 above.

It may get some warmer today, but according to the weather bureau the temperature tonight will be about the same as that of Thursday night.

The coldest point this morning was Prince Albert, where the natives experienced a temperature of 36 below zero at 7 o'clock this morning.

The present cold snap is general through Western Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Northern Wisconsin and Northern Michigan.

O'Donnell, Not McDonnell.

The supposedly insane man who died in the county jail yesterday, was not William McDonnell as was believed by the jail authorities, but William O'Donnell. This correction was made this morning by the woman at whose house O'Donnell had boarded for the past eight years. She said that O'Donnell has a sister residing in Minneapolis, who should be informed of her brother's death, and for that reason was anxious that the correction be made.

MINER SUES FOR $20,000

Claims He Was Injured in the Negaunee Mine.

Case Is Held Up While Legal Point Is Argued.

John Carlquist, a miner, who was injured in the Negaunee mine at Negaunee, Mich., seeks to recover $20,000 from the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company for his injuries. The case was called in district court this morning, and after some testimony had been introduced, was held up until this afternoon, while Judge Dibell took a point raised by the defense into consideration.

The suit is brought against the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, and service was made on that corporation. Now, it is claimed by the defense, that the Negaunee Mining company is the owner of the mine, the Cleveland-Cliffs people having only a small interest. A motion was made to vacate the service on that account, and the jury was dismissed until 2 o'clock this afternoon, while the court took the matter under advisement.

Carlquist attributes his injury to the failure of the company to provide timbers for blocking up a drift after a blast. The injury occurred on April 3, 1908. Carlquist and his partner had just entered the drift as they went on shift in the morning. Carlquist claims that with his arm resting on a timber, he looked up at the roof of the drift and just at that moment a quantity of loose dirt descended, striking his arm. It was badly smashed and now is still at the elbow, and so deformed that he will never be able to use it again.

It is claimed that on the night before the accident, after the men working in the drift had blasted, they were unable to find any timbers in the place where they were usually kept, and continued to work through the night without any bracing on the roof where the blast had loosened the dirt. It is claimed the shift boss had been in the drift at 3 o'clock in the morning and had seen conditions, commenting on them, but failing to do anything to remedy them.

Carlquist was on the stand all morning until the adjournment was taken.

ORDINANCE IS HELD VALID

Village of Hibbing Allowed to Fix Fire Limits.

The ordinance of the village of Hibbing setting fire limits and prohibiting the rebuilding of a frame building partially destroyed by fire unless it is made fireproof was upheld in a decision issued by Judge Dibell in district court this morning.

The restraining order secured by Mrs. Lizzie Koski against Robert Stratton as village attorney, and other officials of the village of Hibbing, enjoining them from interfering with her in the rebuilding of a partially burned building owned by her, is vacated by the court.

The case was of some local interest at Hibbing. The building was quite badly burned, and the commission decided that it should not be reconstructed unless made fireproof. The village officials threatened to enter the premises and tear down the building if the repair work persisted, and Mrs. Koski then appealed to the district court, a temporary restraining order being secured. The order is vacated by the decision of the court and the woman will probably be required to rebuild so as to make the structure fireproof.

M'LEOD OUT OF SOO EVENT

Defeated by Dunbar of St. Paul in Morning Draw.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Evan Rees got a sweet revenge on Rochon, the great Winnipeg skip, this morning, putting him out of the Duluth jobbers' event by the score of 15 to 5. This made the third defeat Rochon has suffered in the bonspiel.

Bob Dunbar defeated McLeod 14 to 4, in the Canadian Soo event. Dunbar had to start right in again against Lowe of Winnipeg, on the 11 o'clock draw, and it will be a strenuous day. Dunbar's rink suffered a sad deprivation in losing Lambert Deflel at the most critical point of the bonspiel. Deflel found this morning that his knee is so bad that he will be unable to play again. Dunbar is thus obliged to go into his games with the strongest assistant missing, and play it out with three men.

The scores this morning follow:

Duluth event—Rees, St. Paul, 15; Rochon, Winnipeg, 5.

Minneapolis event—Whalen, Fort William, 9; Labatt, Minneapolis, 14.

Canadian Soo—Dunbar, St. Paul, 14; McLeod, Duluth, 4.

Consolation—Reedal, Phillips, 12; Meidahl, Duluth, 6; Brewer, Duluth, 10; White, St. Paul, 8. Poplur, Minneapolis, defaulted to Cameron, St. Paul. Nenbovig, Mankato, defaulted to Miller, Minneapolis.

International—Sharp, Winnebago, 7; Russell, Superior, 13.

Laughter, Digestion and Health

An eminent Russian physician has stated his opinion that laughter is one of the best means known to science for the correction of Dyspepsia, stomach and nervous diseases.

Laughter, however, in a dyspeptic is like the memory of running brooks and shady glens to the famishing and dying man lost in the desert.

If one could but know all the causes, reasons and origins of Dyspepsia, one would not wonder at a half-heartedness of a dyspeptic's gaiety.

There is a ceaseless call for appetite, food and enjoyment to a dyspeptic, coupled with a morose, moody belief and knowledge that such a call is mockery and if indulged in will bring discomfort, pain and regret.

Perhaps if it were understood that the digestive system, including mouth, throat and alimentary canal, embracing as it does the stomach, is composed of membraneous tissue filled with millions of small nerves, which control added millions of little mouths or suckers. Perhaps if this were known men could more comprehensively understand that to disarrange such a system would mean indeed intense physical pain.

Now suppose that this alimentary canal is a mass of worn-out debilitated nerves and mouths, each suffering excruciating physical pain and discomfort, and suppose such a canal filled with the fumes and foul odors and decayed food from the last meal, and one has a slight idea as to the lack of laughter of a dyspeptic.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets composed of the highest digestive ingredients—one grain of a single ingredient being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of food—relieves the alimentary canal of its onerous duties, assists it along its entire length (30 feet) to perform its routine, imparts strength and buoyancy to the stomach and gives back to the blood a strong, healthy nourishment.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural adjuncts to digestion. They do not falsely stimulate an already weakened machine, but build up where building is needed and remove where removal is necessary.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have nothing to conceal. Here is what they are made of: Hydrastis, golden seal, lactose and asceptic pepsin. Forty thousand physicians in America and Canada use and prescribe them. They should be used after every hearty meal whether one is a dyspeptic or not.

Every druggist carries them: price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

A SECRET FOR WOMEN

Cut This Out.

Madame Moneaux, deceased beauty specialist of New York, long possessed the greatest of all secrets pertaining to feminine charm. And what is this great secret, so much desired by women—the secret that has made a vast fortune for the madam's heirs, and that brought her all the famous actresses and society leaders for patrons?

It is a simple but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women who through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces rose water," and "one ounce tincture cadomene compound" (not cardamom), and five cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with tincture cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BOUND OVER FOR KILLING

Barney Nelson Is Held, Charged With Murdering Morris Fuller.

Alleged to Have Fired Shot Killing Wadena Man, Jan. 2.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Barney Nelson, charged with murdering Morris Fuller of Wadena near Fowlds Saturday night, Jan. 2, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice H. A. Simons of this city, and was bound over to the grand jury at the next term of the district court, which convenes in this city Feb. 23.

County Attorney Chester McKusick appeared for the state and Henry Funkley of this city for the defendant.

Twelve witnesses were examined, and their testimony brought out, in substance, the following: Barney Nelson had been armed on the night of the crime, and had shown his revolver to several men at Fowlds; he had displayed the revolver to a saloonkeeper at Fowlds and left the bar four or five minutes before the shooting; a shot had been fired a few minutes after Nelson had left the saloon; and three men, returning to Fowlds from a dance at Puposky, had met a man, whose clothes answered the description of Nelson's, running a short distance from Fowlds soon after hearing a pistol shot; the man had averted his head, so that the three were unable to see his face.

Mr. Funkley stated, after the witnesses had been examined, that his client waived examination and Nelson was accordingly bound over to the grand jury.

Archie Brown, the principal witness in the case, was also bound over to appear before the grand jury. His bail was set at $500.

ST. PAUL ACTOR DEAD.

Carl Ahrendt, Formerly Business Man, Passes Away in South.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Ahrendt, formerly a business man in St. Paul and since a prominent actor in the support of noted stars, died last Monday at Greenville, Miss. He was then traveling with James K. Hackett, his role being that of Col. Sept in Mr. Hackett's revival of "The Prisoner of Zenda." The circumstances of his death were not transmitted.

Mr. Ahrendt was born in 1842 in the town of Lauterberg amid the Hartz mountains, Germany. His family removed in 1857 to Baltimore, where he completed his education. Going then to New York he joined a New York regiment of volunteers, and fought during the Civil war.

In 1866 he came to St. Paul. He was employed here at first as a travelling salesman for P. H. Kelly, the late wholesale grocer, and afterwards for the firm of Nichols & Dean, dealers in heavy hardware. About 1870 he entered the wholesale hardware trade himself, as a partner in the firm of Ahrendt & Knauft, who had a store in Knauft's block on East Seventh street, near Olive street. Mr. Ahrendt married here May 25, 1869, Miss Rosa Siegenthaler, a sister of Attorney Godfrey Siegenthaler, who has long practiced at the local bar.

One leg was missing, and this was found by yardmen in the Mankato yards yesterday morning where it had been carried by the locomotive. The missing member was shipped to Kasota, where the coroner of Le Sueur county is holding an inquest.

Lancaster was a bridge carpenter and was about to enter the employ of the railroad in that capacity. He is survived by two daughters and a son, Miss Lancaster and Charles Lancaster of St. Paul, and a married daughter, living in Iowa.

TO JAIL WITH "ROLL."

Houghton County Prisoner Prefers Doing Time to Settling.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—With $135 in bills cunningly concealed in his socks, August LaFave, went to jail for sixty days rather than pay a fine and costs amounting to $15. August came up from Kenton with a roll of money, the size of which rather dazzled him. He tried the old expedient for sore eyes by looking through the bottom of a whisky glass, and this transferred the bedazzlement to his feet.

When arrested he was in a very happy state. Tuesday morning he was arraigned before Judge Brand on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He pleaded guilty and was fined, being given the alternative of digging up or going to the Hotel de Byers for a sixty-day stay. He chose the latter, and went.

While searching him at the jail Deputy Anderson discovered a big roll of bills in one of LaFave's socks; drawing off the other pedal envelope another bunch was found, and when all were counted they totalled $135. When asked why with so much money on his person he had not paid his fine instead of going to jail, LaFave replied that his money was too hard earned to throw it away in paying fines. Mr. Fave will live sixty days at the county expense and will have his mony intact, minus interest, at the end of that time.

CONFESSES TO MURDER.

Robbery Prompted the Crime at Keegras Lake.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Androic Gombac was arrested yesterday for killing August Bayer, aged 34, of Herman, Minn., near Keegras lake, Tuesday. He later confessed to the crime.

The capture of Gombac was rather peculiar.

In a touring car two detectives had been scouring the outskirts of the city, when the machine broke down. Going to the home of a farmer nearby for assistance, they were told by the farmer that he had just given a man of the description of the murderer a ride. The detectives promptly abandoned their machine and ran down the road, and from a hill spied their man just as he was turning into another farmhouse. The officers entered this house and accused the man of the crime. He made a clean breast of everything. He said robbery was his only motive, and that he had shot Bayer when he had tried to get away from him. He said he knew the bullet had hit his victim, but he did not know he had killed Bayer.

He had sold his revolver in a pawnshop in this city, and was trying to make his escape by the highways when overtaken.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Francesco Franchina, Italian consul in St. Paul, fears his sister and her family have perished at Tortorici, a little town in Messina province, which was almost completely destroyed by the earthquake.

MANY WIFE DESERTIONS.

Marquette County Brutes Permit County to Feed Families.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 15.—County Poor Supt. C. D. Blanchard says that more calls for aid are being registered at his office this winter than a year ago, many of which are from wives who have been deserted by their husbands. Capt. Blanchard believes that the frequency of this inhuman crime is due, to some extent, to the inadequacy of the punishment meted out by the law in such cases. It is claimed that men leave their wives and children, knowing that they will be taken care of by the county poor board, and that they can be given nothing more severe than a jail sentence, which, in many cases, is no punishment at all. "A man who is so disreputable that he will desert his family is so low that a term in jail has no terrors for him," said Capt. Blanchard.

Grand Rapids Telephones.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The Mesaba Telephone company is at present removing its instruments at Grand Rapids. About one-half of the same are ordered out by customers, and more than likely the balance will be ordered out soon. While the increase in rate is not satisfactory, it is not the chief bone of contention. Previous to the year 1905, the exchange was owned and controlled by the Iron Range Telephone company, which held a franchise under agreement to give long-distance service before 1904, but, failing to fulfill the same was, on June 13, 1905, served with a notice from the village council to install long-distance service. During the year 1904, officials of the Mesaba Telephone company appeared before the council, stating that they were desirous of taking over the exchange; that they would remodel it, and would give the village a better service; also that they would fulfill the conditions promised by the former company, in reference to long-distance service. An ordinance was prepared, similar to the one under which the former company was doing business, and was one of the files at the end of the council term, March, 1905, but later one was passed which did not contain several sections relating to rates and service, although the council supposed it was passing an ordinance which had been under discussion during the fall of 1904. The Mesaba company failed to make good its promises, and the service was not only poorer, and more unsatisfactory in the year 1908 than at any time since the exchange was installed, and repeated promises did not seem to help any. In the face of such service, the company served notice of a raise in rates, and the council at once passed an ordinance fixing the same at the price which was the basis of rates when the franchise was granted, but the company has by its actions, refused to obey, claiming confiscation of property, but has not endeavored, except by verbal statements, to prove that the rates were unreasonable and the people, being tired of the promises and "con" talk are glad of an opportunity to get rid of it. The movement now is for an independent company, but a request will probably be submitted to the voters this March to have a municipal exchange, and the same would undoubtedly carry. The citizens of Grand Rapids do not express themselves as willing to continue without the service of a telephone exchange but see in this condition an opening to get rid of the present one, and obtain a service similar to that enjoyed by other towns of this size, and the arbitrary actions of the company will undoubtedly put it out of business in the very near future. Yours truly,

A CITIZEN.

MINNESOTA BUTTER IS BECOMING GREAT PRODUCT

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the 1,000,000 cows in the state of Minnesota were all in the butter producing business, the quantity of butter produced would be tremendous and would flood the market. The dairy and food commission has issued a report, covering the creamery production of the state for the ten years intervening between 1897 and 1907. The amount of butter produced in the ten years was 700,000,000 pounds. There were 34,700,000 pounds of buter produced in 1900, the value of which is estimated at $10,121,824. For the year 1907 there were 87,064,817 pounds produced, with an estimated value of $26,113,445.

IN AIRSHIP EXHIBITION

Every Form of Flyer on View at Paris Exposition.

Wright's Aeroplane Center of Attraction as Most Successful.

Paris, Jan. 15. — Fifty thousand people a day have been visiting the first exhibition of flying machines yet held.

There may be scoffers who think the idea of an exhibition of flying machines is premature, but when the first motor cars appeared not so many years ago other scoffers called them interesting, but not important.

It is only fifteen years since M. Michelin, whose business turnover now exceeds $15,000,000 a year, was a locksmith in an humble way of business; M. Clement, who now employs 2,000 hands, was an apprentice learning to put his first bicycle together, and M. Darracq was a maker of iron racks for holding bottles.

The Wright aeroplane is the great attraction of the show. "Where is the Vrichte?" is one of the first questions asked, that being as near as a Frenchman can get to pronouncing Wright.

The majority of the spectators were not aware that the machine they were looking at is not the one that holds all the records of the air, but the first Wright machine made in the workshops at Dunkirk. The historic aeroplane of Le Mans is the property of Lazare Weiller, who has refused $20,000 for it.

A Dirigible Balloon.

Next to the Wright machine in interest comes the dirigible balloon Ville de Bordeaux. Fully inflated it hangs above the crowd, stretching nearly across the Grand Palais. The car comes down almost to the level of the heads of the people and a staircase is placed so that spectators can ascend and walk about the platform of the car and admire the two Hotchkiss mitrailleuses with which it is fitted. Two ordinary balloons are on show, also fully inflated.

The place of honor in the aeroplane section is given to the Avion, designed and built eleven years ago by a French engineer named Ader. The machine resembles a huge bat and is driven by a steam engine.

It was built for the war department, and officers alone were present on the only two occasions it was tested.

Wright's first flight with a motor-moved machine was on Dec. 17, 1903, over six years later. At the second test, despite a strong wind, M. Ader succeeded in flying 250 yards, but was unable to steer the machine along the given course, a circle. It was driven off at a tangent and in landing was considerably damaged.

The military authorities abandoned the whole affair, although they had previously granted the inventor a subsidy of $100,000. Utterly discouraged, M. Ader destroyed his manuscripts and machines, except the Avion, and so ended twenty years' incessant work and an expenditure of $240,000 of his own money. The inventor's friends say that an earlier machine of his, the Ecole, flew fifty yards at the Chateau d'Armainville on Oct. 9, 1890.

M. Bleriot, who has invented and built eleven flying machines, has three on show, two monoplanes and one biplane. The latter, as yet untried, is very like the Wright machine in its outlines.

The Monoplane.

Robert Esnault-Pelterie clings to the monoplane. At the end of each wing is a small bicycle wheel, and the aeroplane is supported by a single wheel in the middle. Resting on this middle wheel and one on each wing wheels, the apparatus is started by its propellers. As the motion quickens the wing leaves the ground, and when it becomes sufficiently rapid the aeroplane rises.

Under the cupola of the toy aeroplane built by Santos-Dumont and called the Demoiselle. It is so small that it looks like a toy. The stretch of its wings is not six yards, and its total surface is not ten yards square. The total weight, in working order is only 440 pounds, allowing 110 pounds for the pilot. Santos-Dumont does not exceed that weight.

Farman's machine is on view, also its twin brother, Delagrange's. There are models by the score, their makers all prepared to demonstrate that the problem of aviation is definitely solved. And thousands of visitors take an intelligent interest in them, visitors of all ages and classes, and all go home convinced that France is leading the way in a new science and that no other country could hold a similiar exhibition.

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, healtth and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man today." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

SCHOOLMASTER WAS FINED $40

For Moral and Intellectual Damages to His Pupils.

Paris, Jan. 15.—A Dijon schoolmaster has just been fined $40 and costs for moral and intellectual damages to a pupil. Morizot, a teacher of the local communal school, was proceeded against by the father of one of his pupils, for having in a mixed class of children given utterance to anti-religious, anti-patriotic and grossly immoral teaching.

The defendant, in addressing his pupils during school hours, is said to have described the French army as a band of ruffians, to have contended that the Germans were right in killing off, during the war in 1870, French infants in their cradles and to have characterized those who believed in God as being little better than fools, adding that the only true God was a well filled purse.

The injured father first applied to the administration chiefs, but the authorities of public instruction refused to listen to him, so he entered a legal action, claiming $400 by way of moral and intellectual damages for the wrong done his son.

The court decided that it was incompetent to hear the action and said that the defendant's utterances were, after all, merely a matter of opinion and that the case was one for the educational authorities themselves to settle.

The prefect of the department also took these views.

An appeal was lodged and again the father was beaten, but, at last, in desperation, he took the case before the Tribunal des Conflicts. This body, after ordering an inquiry with a view to ascertaining if the charges were well founded, sent the case back to the court of appeal, with orders to adjudicate upon it. Here the whole case was heard from the beginning.

The court found the charges proved, but reduced the damages to $40 and costs.

STATION BUILT OVER A RIVER

How Rochester and New York Central Work Together.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 15.—The city of Rochester, and the New York Central railroad are co-operating on a plan to build a new station in that city. It is proposed to build the depot over the Genesee river, a small stream which divides the city in two sections. Twin boulevards on arched viaducts over the water and along the banks of the river, uniting in one broad entrance to the station are a part of the plan.

The physical surroundings of the river site for the passenger station add very materially to the plan from an artistic standpoint. The wide, elevated boulevards and the spacious plazas will be attractive. The rocky bed of the river, the shallowness of the water for the greater part of the year and the elevated tracks, about twenty feet above the neighboring streets, make an economical and convenient station design.

The widening vista down the river with the broad facade of the station spanning the stream will present a pretty and unusual setting.

Arcade buildings like those on the Rue de Rivoli, Paris, are to cover the sidewalk along each boulevard from the principal street to the plaza. They are intended to mask the rear of the stores and factories that line the banks of the river. They will also produce revenue for the abutting property owners.

The general idea of the terminal as planned by William J. Wilgus, chief engineer of the New York Central railroad, is to combine utility, convenience and beauty. The city's business men, representing diversified interests, the mayor and the railroad are working together.

The railroad had already purchased a site for the new station which was not satisfactory to the Rochester citizens because it was in an undesirable location and was not to be artistic. There was a strong sentiment for a "Beautiful Rochester." A delegation of Rochester citizens went to New York city and conferred with the railroad engineer and other officials. The first plan was abandoned and the plan for a station over the river was adopted.

ITS DIAMOND TRADE HEAVY.

Germany Has Shipped 13,000 Carats Since Sept. 15.

Berlin, Jan. 15.—According to information supplied to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the amount of diamonds found in the neighborhood of Luderitz bay and shipped since Sept. 15 is 13,000 carats, and the last lot shipped realized a price of $7.25 a carat. While these figures are better than those of previous independent estimates, they do not go far to support the optimism of the "expert geologist," who informed Herr Dernburg that there might eventually be an ouput of 5,000 carats a day, and well informed financial circles are inclined to take a modest view of the prospects of the German diamond trade. It is stated that Herr Dernburg's expert informant was a diamond merchant named Voit.

The Amsterdam correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung says that the news of fresh finds of diamonds is welcome in Holland, because it is feared that an increase in the supply may tend to lower prices. He adds, however, that the German reports are regarded in Holland as exaggerated, and that the president of the Amsterdam Diamond Workers' union has declared that it is practically impossible that diamond mines can exist in the places where stray stones have been found. According to this authority the Amsterdam diamond cutting trade has nothing to fear from German competition.

M'VEY CONSIDERING.

May Not Accept University Presidency Until Later.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a possibility that Franklin L. McVey of the state tax commission, who has been selected for the presidency of the University of North Dakota, may not sever his connection with the commission until June. He is understood to have asked Governor Johnson to be allowed to remain until that time.

According to Prof McVey, he has not accepted the position, but has taken it under consideration. The delay, it is said, by some, is to give the board of regents of the Dakota institution time to increase the salary of the president to $6,000 a year.

BALLOON IN A CYCLONE

When the Drag Rope Flew Taut Above the Balloon.

Thrilling Sensation of Being Caught in a Cyclone Cloud.

New York, Jan. 15.—"Thrilling experiences?" repeated Leo Stevens. "Oh, sure! You get them in ballooning, naturally. In a wey it's like leaving suddenly for a new world and getting there in a few minutes—a strange land of wonderful sights and sensations, great air currents, clouds, rainbows, snow and rain factories, cyclones—yes, don't forget cyclones.

"My most dangerous experience came just last summer—after twenty-three years of ballooning.

"Allan Hawley and I made an ascent at Pittsfield, Mass., taking along a young chauffeur from the city, of whom the local Aero club wished to make a licensed pilot.

"A licensed pilot, you know, must have made in all at least ten ascents, two of which must be conducted under a regular pilot, one alone and one at night."

Stevens stopped and chuckled. "This young chap got all his experience concentrated in this one trip, I guess, and Mr. Hawley and I each had a new one.

"We went up very nicely—straight up for a few thousand feet—and then floated away from the city toward Dalton, a suburb. It was a fine, clear day, the weather predictions were favorable, and when we struck our course we began plotting on the map, just how far we would go and about where we might land.

"Just over Dalton the balloon stopped for a moment and circled easily back toward Pittsfield. This move was against the calculations, and we thought it rather funny. Were we going eastward, after all?

"That was decided very quickly. Just east of the city we stopped again and came back in a narrower circuit, more swiftly this time, and so around again and again, swifter, swifter, swifter—and then, as quick as a flash, we plunged into night:

"There was a great long streak of pale light straight up from our heads—a sort of road to heaven, it struck me—and then came a roar like the sound of a cataract. We were still circling, but in such a small, fast circumference that it made us dizzy. And all the time there was rasping, grating noise under the basket.

"'We're scraping the tops of trees!' yelled the boy, and that was the last thing I heard him say. Suddenly there was a flash of light, and Hawley leaned over the car.

"'My God!' said he, 'look at that!'

Shot Into the Skies.

"He pointed at the drag rope. For a moment I saw it. It was flying taut like a curved whiplash above our heads. Then it dawned upon me what had happened. We were caught in a cyclone cloud—caught in the tail of it—and were being sucked up through the center.

"How far up were we?

"Well, maybe 7,000 feet. We couldn't see the instruments."

Stevens' nervous face was alight with the memory of the lightning-like trip.

"Great Scott!" said he. "It was fearful. Seemed like a monster was running away with us and shaking the car with might and main to fling us out. It was hard work to hold fast.

"'You're in for it,' I told Hawley.

"He smiled a little. 'Well, I'm in for the best of it,' said he. And we didn't have time to talk much from that time on.

"I looked at the boy. He was crouched down in the car on his knees, gripping the side of the basket with his hands—and teeth, it seemed. Just as his eyes showed over the top I spoke to him, called him by name, yelled at him and finally kicked him. But not a word out of him, not even a look. I wonder what he was thinking of?—praying probably for an automobile to take him home!

"It seemed as if we ought to do something, but, after all, there was nothing to do. We must wait, that's all.

"Hawley motioned toward the safety valve, but I shook my head.

"'I'm not going to valve,' I yelled. 'Not yet!'

Struggling Against a Cyclone.

"You see, I figured that it was false suction pulling us up, and no device in the world could check that ascent. Just think of that drag rope! We couldn't do a thing till we were free. To attempt any tricks might prove fatal. Struggling against a cyclone is like dealing with a balky wild beast—you'd best lie low till each gets good natured.

"Well, we got to the end of that long funnel after a while, and seemed to pop out suddenly upon what looked like a dark, billowy sea. Then we began to descend.

"I remember hoping that we would not land on Mount Greylock. We were going down fast and threw out most of our sand, then our rugs, carrying cover and lunch baskets.

"Suddenly the ground loomed up and I saw an open field and farmhouse. A man was plowing and I yelled at him. He thought some one was calling to him from the front of the house and hurried away, leaving his horses. We were coming down directly over them and I threw out my last half sack of sand. The balloon stopped, quivered a moment, floated away and landed nicely.

"It was some time before the boy found his voice. Then he looked at me and said: 'You look awful white, Mr. Stevens.'"

Stevens stopped and laid a warning finger upon my arm. "Now, that sounds mighty dangerous," said he, "climbing a cyclone a mile or more into the sky. In a way it was—for an inexperienced person. But inexperienced people don't go up alone, and, anyway, it was more spectacular than perilous. You mustn't get the idea that ballooning is dangerous. It isn't. My own record proves that, and every other balloonist will tell you the same thing."

SHAH'S BROTHER NOW AN EXILE

He Lives In Great Privacy—Women Interest Him Greatly.

London Jan. 15.—A correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes that Warsaw has recently given hospitality to Salar-ed-Dooleh, the shah of Persia's younger brother.

Prince Salar, who has been exiled on account of his liberal opinions, is 27. He has a suite of twelve persons and lives in great privacy, going out only after nightfall, when the aspect of the streets with thir well lighted shops and people amuses him immensely. He is good looking, intelligent and evidently energtically disposed, so far as Eastern ideas go.

The women interest him greatly. He asked a lady at a dinner party where the young women were. She indicated several under 30.

"But they are all quite middle-aged, and some even old!" he exclaimed. "I mean women of ten to sixteen years of age. All these ladies are excessively intelligent and amusing, but I want to see what the young ones are like."

He himself has left a small harem of six ylung wives at Teheran. He has already fallen in love with a young Polish debutante whom he met at a party given by the Persion consul and to whom he proposed the next day. The girl's parents did not seem inclined to accept this princely suitor, possibly on account of the six wives in Teheran.

Scarcely less interesting is the prince's private secretary, being no less a personage than the French author who writes under the name of Pierre de Caulevain. This lady is half Russian, her mother being a Princess Wolkowska, and was married to a Russian, Count Wikulinow. Her book on England made a sensation a year or two back.

Countess Wikulinow is a great admirer of England and English. She went to Persia with the intention of founding a French school in Teheran for the daughters of Persian nobles. The Medjlis was to give her a charter, but when this body was dispersed by the shah she left the country with the prince at his urgent request that she would help him during the first weeks spent in new surroundings.

The countess is a brilliant linquist and a most interesting conversationalist. She intends shortly to publish a book upon Persian customs.

DEATH'S HEAVY HARVEST.

The Grim Reaper Claims Three Steele County People.

Owatonna, Minn., Jan. 15.—J. C. Goldsmith was found dead in his yard yesterday. He had not complained of ill health. It is supposed that death was due to apoplexy.

NEED OF NEW DORMITORY

J. L. Washburn Says Normal School Should Have It.

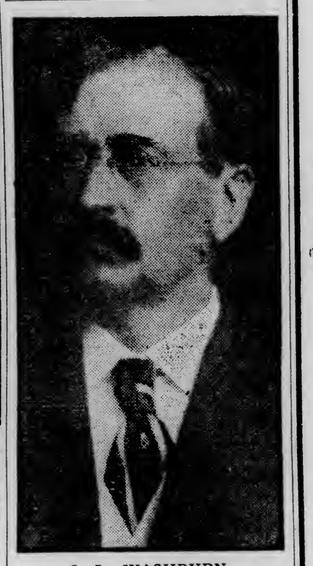

Twice as Many Students Could be Accomodated, Says He.

"The Duluth state normal school could accommodate fully twice as many students with a comparatively small addition to the teaching force, if another dormitory should be constructed," declared J. L. Washburn of the normal board today, when discussing the needs of the normal schools.

Mr. Washburn stated that there were so many things that should be done that he had concluded to remain on the board, as Governor Johnson and many others seemed to desire it. Dormitory accommodations are the great need of the Duluth school, paramount to all others, he said.

"The benefit of dormitories to the school," continued Mr. Washburn, "has come to be thoroughly recognized. The additional facilities for culture and the home life furnished by them make them no small part of the school equipment. Added to that, the cost of board in the city of Duluth to young women coming here from the outside is substantially prohibitive.

"The dormitories when constructed have been self-sustaining. In the city of Duluth we have been able to furnish rooms and board at $15 per month and give to the occupants of the dormitory wholesom efood, well and properly cooked, and the surroundings in the hall are ideal. Miss Pettigill, who has supervision of the hall and of the domestic science department in the school, has no superior in her line anywhere. Parents from out of the city can feel absolutely secure in sending their children to the school if they can have such a home.

J. L. WASHBURN,
Who Has Consented to Serve Another Term on the Normal Board.

"The state normal board has recommended that $65,000 be appropriated for an additional hall at the Duluth school. They have also recommended the construction of one of the wings which was omitted from the building when it was first erected. This wing would be used for model school purposes and would enable us to double the capacity, at least, of our practice schools. The plan is to obtain the dormitory out of the first year's appropriation, one wing to the building out of the second year's appropriation, and then when the next legislature meets, go to it for the other wing of the building, in which latter wing we could have library room, gymnasium and possibly a better auditorium, and with these things done, this school can take care of 300 normal students and nearly as many model school pupils.

"I would like the people of this city to appreciate the benefit this school, this state institution, is to this locality and to appreciate the service it is rendering the state. It is an institution that is not being run with any clamor or with the jingling of bells or the sounding of trumpets, but it is standing for a high ideal, and is manitaining a high standard of requirement in those it sends out to teach. There is a corps of teachers at work in this school who have no superiors in any school in this state. The school is presided over by a president whose personality and whose scholastic attainments make him one of our most valuable citizens. I have been pleased to note the growing appreciation on the part of our people with respect to this school.

"In a few years more of the gradual development and safe growth which has characterized this institution, it will not only be an important institution here in our own locality, but its influence will be far-reaching. It is worth while for us all to make some sacrifices in its behalf."

NOW FOR ACTION.

Attorney General George T. Simpson yesterday rendered an opinion to the effect that the legislature has power at this session to prescribe the bounds of the legislative districts of the state. In his opinion Mr. Simpson concurs in the opinion of Former Attorney General Young rendered a year ago. The constitution of the state prescribes that "at their first session after each (state) enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States" the legislature shall have power to prescribe the bounds of congressional and legislative districts. The attorney general's office holds that the word "first" is clearly directory and that if the reapportionment is not made at the first session, the legislature may do it at the next session.

The state constitution also provides that "the representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state in proportion to the population thereof." The representation is now notoriously unequal. The matter has been thoroughly discussed and the need of reapportionment is admitted by all, but there is some reluctance to act owing to the fact that some sections of the state must necessarily suffer a loss of representation in any reapportionment that may be made. It is therefore a public duty of the highest importance to the people they serve that the newspapers of Central and Northern Minnesota shall set this matter forth in their every issue with facts, figures and opinion to the end that the members of the legislature may be encouraged and commanded to proceed in this matter and to establish justice where injustice now prevails.

The press of the state has a most important duty to perform. It has never yet failed in Minnesota to respond to such a call and it will not fail this time.

A SUDDEN SOLUTION.

There are few states of the Union which have not on their statute books a corrupt practices act of some kind. There are no states in which these acts accomplish in the slightest measure the lessening of the evils which they are aimed at. Minnesota has such a law and it is just as ineffective as it is in other states.

The demand for some means by which to check the widespread and constantly increasing corruption in political elections caused the enactment of all the corrupt practices acts. It was hoped that by compelling candidates to swear to a statement of their expenses the purposes for which money was spent in elections would be laid bare and that men would thereby be deterred from spending except for legitimate purposes. But in actual practice it was soon discovered that under the conditions imposed by established political conditions it is impossible for any man, having opposition, to be nominated for or elected to any office with the expenditure of the amount of money allowed by the statute. There are exceptions, but they are very unusual. The inevitable result is that candidates for office have filed the report provided by law, but have somehow compounded with their consciences, or have entirely disregarded that small but insistent inner voice, and have made their affidavits to only such portion of their expenses as they have been pleased to single out from the others as worthy of public scrutiny. The law is a dead letter. It is neither respected nor observed by any one.

But we have suddenly accomplished in another way, and practically without the compulsion of law, the object sought for in the corrupt practices act. We have compelled publicity for campaign contributions, with the result that there was in the recent national campaign, an almost total cessation of contributions from corporations and from other sources which put the successful candidate under obligations which directly conflicted with the duty he owed to the whole people.

The change in sentiment in regard to such contributions has been revolutionary. It is only a very, very short while ago that Mark Hanna openly and without comment, except the comment of wonder and admiration for his genius, financed a national campaign and elected a president and rewarded himself for his work with a seat in the United States senate and the practical dictatorship of his party. Today such a thing is impossible; it has been impossible for some little time. Very little money that carried any obligation with it was contributed to either great political party in the recent campaign. In contrast to Mark Hanna, who openly levied and collected his political assessments, Charles P. Taft, the brother of the Republican candidate, supplied from his private pocket the largest single contribution of the campaign. Hanna took his seat in the United States senate as his natural and legitimate reward; the sentiment of the country, revolutionized, denied a similar honor to Taft.

This revolution in methods has been brought about by means of a public sentiment which has been defined by Perry Belmont, president of the National Publicity Law Organization in the following words: "It is now the accepted opinion that a contributor to a political committee has no right to secrecy. The false conception that in respect to political contributions the individual has the right to use his money as he sees fit no longer exists in disregard of long established restrictions upon the use of money in elections. It is now admitted that campaign fund publicity is not an unnecessary interference with alleged individual rights, and that publicity is essential in determining the propriety of motives prompting political contributions."

The society of which Mr. Belmont is president is directly responsible for the only campaign fund publicity law in the country, the New York law, whose provisions were practically followed by both the Democratic and Republican parties in the recent campaign. This society is composed of eminent men of all parties and is now actively at work to secure a national law similar to that of New York. Such a bill has passed the house and is now in the senate. That it will ultimately be enacted into law cannot be doubted.

CONGRATULATIONS TO ALL CONCERNED.

The announcemen made by The Herald last evening that the Hon. J. L. Washburn of this city has decided to accept reappointment as a member of the state normal school board, was received by the people of Duluth with a great deal of satisfaction and will be hailed with applause by those interested in the normal school work in all parts of Minnesota.

Mr. Washburn has been a most powerful and helpful factor in the normal school work of the state. His great interest in this feature of the state's educational system, an interest which as gone to the length of commanding both his time and means to an unusual extent, has been recognized by his colleagues as one of the most valuable educational forces in the state. His consent to accept reappointment has therefore been anxiously sought and will be received with a realization of the great value to the state of a continuation of such services.

To the Duluth normal school Mr. Washburn has been most helpful. He has been a very present help in every time of need and his devotion to the needs of the school and his active interest in its actual work has been an inspiration to the local board, to the faculty and to the student body alike.

The appointment is one that sought the man, and the people of Duluth and of the state are glad that it has been able to retain his services.

SUNDAY EVENING NEWSPAPER.

The irrepressible Frank A. Munsey just delights to do something that nobody else has done, and the more things of that kind he can do, the better pleased he is. He is to the magazine world what Hearst is to newspaperdom—the uneasy, the specious, the sensational. Anything to make people talk is the motto of Hearst and of Munsey. Magazines and newspapers occupy different spheres of thought and action, but granting this difference, Munsey and Hearst are much the same.

Mr. Munsey's newest announcement is that he will publish a Sunday evening newspaper. Mr. Munsey entered the newspaper field some time ago and is the owner of the Washington Times, the Boston Journal and the Baltimore News. He occasionally gives a little thought to their management. Few things appeal to Mr. Munsey unless they are new—the new attracts everybody's attention, is always a valuable advertisement, and is more easily made over into dollars than anything else. Mr. Munsey appreciates all these things, particularly the dollars, as he quite frankly says in his reply to the protests of Cardinal Gibbons and other church men on this subject, and he proposes to work his newest new discovery for all there is in it. His argument for a Sunday evening paper is very characteristic of the man. He says:

> "There is no sane argument against doing a thing because it is not being done, or because it never has been done. The fact that there is now no Sunday evening newspaper in America does not weigh heavily against the idea. If there are any reasons why we should not have a Sunday evening newspaper, they are vital, not conventional. Convention is often accepted as a reason, but there is no reason in it. It is mere usage, habit, and this habit is sometimes well founded and sometimes not. The Sunday morning newspaper is an accepted fact. It is no longer a question of discussion. It is as conventional a thing as any weekday morning paper. It has crystallized into a necessity, as all daily papers have. To cut it out now would be impossible. If the Sunday morning newspaper, why not the Sunday evening newspaper?"

How reasonable this all is—providing you do not stop to think that the sum total of the argument amounts to nothing at all! Mr. Munsey, too, is quite tickled with the argument that a Sunday evening paper "completes the scheme of publicity—a well-rounded-out and well-ordered news service." The mental machinery of the people is as alert on Sunday as on any other day and Mr. Munsey is appalled by the spectacle of a "broken service," of an aching void of twelve whole hours without the shrill cry of the newspaper boy. We do not fast from eating on Sunday, he says, and that we should fast from the news of the world from Sunday morning to Monday morning is "illogical and unsound." When the shops and theaters are closed Sunday evenings and the lid is on and the people are at home they need a newspaper, he declares.

Mr. Munsey's Sunday evening edition may be a hit with the people already groaning under a heavy burden of print paper every Sunday morning but we doubt it. We Americans are a most restless, aggressive people, and we seldom stop to rest, it is true, but there is a growing conviction that it will be good for our health to take at least a part of the rest that Sunday was made to provide us with. Mr. Munsey may make money with his new venture but he will not make for the uplift of the people with it, and this is true even if we leave the ethical aspect of the matter entirely out of the question.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

If some of the Italian cities that were visited by the wrath of the earthquake felt deserted and lonesome after the citizens had been destroyed in the catastrophe, what must have been the feeling of Big Lake, that humble settlement upon the boundary line between Cook county and the province of Ontario, when it was left deserted the other day?

Henry Truelsome, who is at the Spalding hotel, was at the deserting of Big Lake. The desertion took all of the population of the lake away and left the place deserted and silent. Three Indian squaws and a white man—a squaw man, by the way—composed the population, and they all left upon the same train that Mr. Truelsome left upon.

To get to Big Lake from Duluth you are obliged to go up to Fort Frances, take the Canadian Northern over to Port Arthur, and from there take the branch line of the Canadian Northern from Port Arthur down the north shore to Big Lake, which is situated near the boundary of Cook county and Ontario. The trip will tax your patience, but you are rewarded by seeing some great country and some fine scenery—but very few people.

It was 48 below zero the day Mr. Truelsome struck Big Lake. Maybe that is the reason why the three squaws and the white man decided to decamp. They went to Port Arthur, and until they return to the lake it will be deserted and its echoes undisturbed by the voice of man.

Big Lake is upon the line that may possibly be extended to Grand Marais by the Canadian Northern people. There is some talk of doing this, which would put Grand Marais in connection with Port Arthur. However, if the Canadian Northern decides to extend its road from Port Arthur down the north shore, it is very likely that it will build the line clear to this city, thus putting all of the settlers of the north shore in close connection with Duluth.

Mr. Truelsome says there is a belief at Port Arthur that the Canadian Northern will extend its road down the north shore to Superior and Duluth.

Druedel Scott of St. Louis, a member of a firm that manufactures wheels, spokes, ax handles and other implements, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Scott is selling to the Duluth market through the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, and says that business at Duluth, judging from the goods he has sold here, is better right at the present time than it is in other parts of the country.

"We have no complaint to make of the business of Duluth," said Mr. Scott. "There is an increased demand for manufactured goods here at the present time, which is not reflected in the same degree in other parts of the country. Business is very quiet in the South. The retailers haven't a lot of goods on hand, but they are afraid to get very much more. They don't trust the market. They are afraid that the demand for goods is going to continue very dull. That policy upon the part of the retailers is keeping business very quiet down in the Southern country.

"You can be sure that many—or most—of the business men of the South were very glad that Taft was elected. I believe that in Missouri practically all of the men who were heavy property owners—that is, of property the value of which would be influenced by the prosperity of the times—voted for Taft. Most of the people who do not own property and who habitually make the most noise in politics, shouted and voted for Bryan. You will find that the Solid South is gradually breaking up, and that the more conservative people are voting the way their business judgment dictates.

"There is no scarcity of money in the South at the present time. It is simply caution upon the part of the business men. Credit is sound, and I believe that buiness is upon the soundest basis. But just the same, the South is a little slow in getting started after the depression that tied us up pretty well."

J. E. Saunders of Minneapolis, at the Lenox yesterday, said the public affairs committee of the Minneapolis Commercial club has mapped out a municipal campaign for the betterment of Minneapolis, and that the efforts of the committee will include the reform of all of the municipal weaknesses that stand against the progress of the city.

"Not only have the members of the committee advertised the city abroad, but they have also attempted reform within, knowing that progress comes from within," said Mr. Saunders. "The members of this committee, with the help of public sentiment, have relighted the city, have succeeded in removing overhead signs, and have worked other reforms."

THE WEATHER.

The cold snap came as predicted, but it was hardly as severe as the weather man expected, and the lowest point reached was 8 degs. below zero. The cold will probably continue through tonight, but it is expected to moderate tomorrow, and there will be some snow flurries.

A year ago today it was snowing, and the temperature was about the same as today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:50 a. m. and will set this afternoon at 4:46, making eight hours and fifty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Alberta-Saskatchewan cold wave extends eastward to and including Lake Superior with the highest pressure overlying Manitoba. Zero weather prevails in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Western Ontario, Northern Michigan, Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana, the coldest being 36 degs below at Prince Albert. Temperatures have risen in Atlantic states and throughout the Far Northwest, due to low pressure areas central off the New England coasts. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused rain or snow over the lower Mississippi and Ohio valleys, Atlantic and Gulf states, South Dakota, the upper Rocky mountains, plateau region and Pacific states. Indications favor snow flurries at the Head of Lakes tonight and Saturday and moderating temperature Saturday."

That Franked Typewriter.

Chicago Daily News: In the midst of the uproar which has followed the president's letter on Senator Tillman, the fact has come out that the picturesque South Carolinian lately attempted to make use of his franking privilege to cover the transportation by mail of a typewriter from his home to Washington. The postmaster as the capital held that an article of this kind was not frankable, and that the senator would have to pay postage at full letter rate before he could get possession of the machine. Senator Tillman refused to pay the $16 asked of him, saying that the typewriter belonged to the government and that he was not interested to the extent of $16 in getting possession of it.

Occasional instances of this kind serve to enlighten the public as to how the franking privilege is abused. If Senator Tillman, in the course of his duties as a public official, needed to have a typewriter sent from one place to another, the cost of shipment should have gone into an expense account. Presumably, however, it would have been cheaper for the government to send the machine by express than to let it cumber the mails.

The chief trouble with the franking privilege is that it leads to waste. Because it costs nothing to send an article through the mails, under the franking privilege, the mails are burdened with non-paying matter. It is short-sighted, however, to say that it costs nothing to have this service performed. It would be far better if the franking privilege were done away with altogether, except perhaps for the business of the postoffice department itself, and each department of government, including the legislative department, were required to make an accounting for the service furnished by the postoffice department. Only in this way can abuses be eliminated and proper economy secured in the use of postal facilities by other departments of government.

Scylla and Charybdis.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Scylla is a promontory on the Italian mainland jutting out into the sea and greatly feared by mariners, ancient and medieval. According to the legend, Carybdis was a ravenous woman whom the gods converted into a whirlpool and placed in the sea off the coast of Sicily, opposite the promontory of Scylla. The strait of Messina being very narrow, sailors who escaped the rocks of Scylla were in danger of being swallowed up by the ravenous whirlpool of Charybdis.

Out of this fact grew the proverb which is older than Virgil, going back probably to the earliest days of navigation, when seamanship was a matter of mere personal courage and skill, and had none of the aids of science which make the modern voyage "plain sailing."

The proverb has survived its application, and is used to denote that predicament in which men find themselves when they can do neither one thing nor the other without getting into trouble. But it has become too "literary" for popular usage, and when we speak of a man in that "fix" we say he is between the devil and the deep sea—a saying which can be understood without a reference to Bullfinch.

Fun in the Press.

He raised enormous crops
Of hops,
Which every year he sold
For gold;
Till some one said to him:
Say, Jim,
You're making lots of beer
(And Jimmy is a deacon, so here is where he stops
The sinful occupation of raising harmful hops.)

But once, while going down
To town,
He heard a fellow say:
"Nay, nay!
There's no hops in the booze;
They use
Adulterants, you know."
"That's so,"
Thinks Jim, and goes back home again and takes up, where he drops,
The innocent profession of raising gentle hops!

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Roseau Times: Roosevelt is loaded for all comers, but his shots make him almighty unpopular in Washington. The rest of the country is "deelighted."

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth News Tribune is of the opinion, freely expressed, that the recent message of Governor Johnson to the state legislature, was issued purely as a boost for his presidential aspirations. It must be a sample of hell to be as narrow-minded as that.

Walker Pilot: We see no real harm in mixing politics with the state university agricultural school. It's generally the farmer's vote that counts.

McIntosh Times: Compulsory education is all right, but there is such a thing as carrying it too far. Six months' compulsory education is enough in country districts, and if Supt. Olson's recommendations are carried out the law should be so amended that more cannot be exacted.

Warroad Commonwealth: Forty congressmen of the Middle West have served notice on the powers that control that unless the duty is removed from lumber that they will vote against any tariff revision. Here's hoping they stick to their threat.

Buffalo Journal: It looks as though the president was right in criticising congress for attempting to confine the work of the secret service to the treasury department. It is just as important that thieves of timber be detected as those who steal cash.

St. Peter Free Press: It is stated upon good authority that a bill extending suffrage to women will be one of the features before the legislature next winter. If our solons are wise they will make short work of the bill when it comes up for discussion. There is but little demand for it; the great majority of the women that make homes happy have neither time nor disposition to enter the field of political activity, and that ought to settle the question.

Tower Weekly News: Some of our exchanges feel that the abolition of the timber and stone act is the proper move. As they express it, "we don't get any land notices anyway, and it is only the papers with land notices that are championing the timber and stone act." This view is rather narrow and plainly indicates that jealousy has the upper hand of some editor's head. Thousands of poor men have been benefited by the timber and stone act and thousands more can be benefited, wherewith the repeal of this measure, no one but the railroad scrip owners will be benefited.

Brainerd Daily Dispatch: Even the gentlemen who hold commissions as notary public come under the ban of the anti-pass law, and even if a notary public is a railroad employe, he cannot ride on a pass. All passengers look to the conductor now.

Returns From Forests.

Topeka State Journal: That the benefits in the way of material returns to settlers from the new policy of the Federal Government in the management of the forests of the nation are not inconsiderable is evidenced by a statement issued recently by the forest service department of the United States department of agriculture. It shows that during the last fiscal year ending June 30, the forest service issued to settlers in the neighborhood of national forests in Western states over 30,000 "free use" permits, under which the settlers received free about 264,000 cords of firewood, posts, poles and sawlogs, worth $169,320, or about 64 cents per cord in the forest—a low valuation.

Besides this, the different states received for school and road purposes 25 per cent of the income from the national forests amounting last year to $447,064. The direct return to the states in lieu of taxes on the 147,000,000 acres, the estimated area of unpatented land in the national forests, amounted then in the last year to $616,384 in cash and "free use" timber.

In 1907, the total of "free use" material and money paid over amounted to about $253,400. The increase of the amount given to the states from 10 per cent to 25 per cent, of course, is largely responsible for the large return in 1908, but even had this percentage not been changed a good increase would have been shown, despite the demoralization of the lumber business caused by the financial flurry. In fact, this increase may be looked for up to many times the present amount as the demand for timber increases and the forests are developed more and more.

TOWERS AND DOMES NO MORE

Have Disappeared From Tops of Government Buildings.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Duluth got its postoffice several years too early. Its building is one of the old architectural regime, under which all public structures, no matter what their character, had to be replicas of the capitol in Washington.

Within the last half dozen years, a momeatous change has come about, all unobtrusively, in the style of postoffices. Domes and towers have disappeared.

You may not get the full significance of that the first time you read it. The proposition is important and needs study. So be it repeated—domes and towers have disappeared.

Now You Know What You Missed.

Perhaps now that your attention is called to it you may recall that the newer federal structures you may have happened to see were somehow different from the model that was all the vogue in your youth. You don't quite know what the trouble was, but you had an uneasy feeling that something was wrong. What you really missed was the dome or tower.

There was a time when no public structure was complete without one. The federal government had no monopoly on them. No statehouse or county courthouse was considered finished without its dome.

Of course, there was no particular reason for a dome on a postoffice or courthouse. It served no useful purpose. It was merely set down on the roof like an inverted tumbler on a center table, heaven knew why.

As for the tower, it ordinarily was a little two by three affair, too small to be of any earthly use. It was intended merely for ornament.

Now the modern common sense idea in architecture is that a building intended for business nothing can possibly be ornamental that isn't useful as well. So when the present supervising architect of the treasury, James K. Taylor, came into office, trained in the modern school, why the domes and towers went out.

Where It Is Excusable.

"The dome may be architecturally justified on a church," Mr. Taylor said the other day, "because it crowns the auditorium. It is all right on the capitol, because it emphasizes the unity of the building with the senate wing on one side and the house wing on the other. Besides, it makes a sort of portal into which the whole nation is supposed to flow. But it serves no possible use on postoffices, so we aren't designing any more like the one in Duluth.

"The tower had to be cut out along with the dome. That is, the old style of narrow tower. The only justification for the tower is that it be big enough to be of use. The Metropolitan Life tower in New York is merely an office building emerging from a lower structure. That's all right. Towers might be put on new public buildings if there were any need for them. But we can't stand for architectural features that don't mean anything."

The style of architecture now in vogue for the new government buildings is the renaissance modification of the classic. A good model is the proposed bureau of engraving and printing in Washington, in which the row of columns along the front shelter an expanse of light-giving windows that without the columns might give the building the appearance of a greenhouse.

WOULD BE FIRST MONARCH TO FLY

King Alfonso Ambitious to Pilot His Own Aeroplane.

Paris, Jan. 15.—Alfonso, king of Spain, is preparing to become an adept in the art of flying.

He has already acquired an aeroplane of the Wright model and is soon to become a pupil of Wilbur Wright.

Alfonso has an ambition to live in history as the first monarch who ever navigated the air as pilot of his own aeroplane. When he has finished his course of instruction under Wright he means to travel about the immediate neighborhood of Madrid in an aeroplane instead of in an automobile.

Representations made by court officials respecting the risk to his life have had no effect upon him, as the king takes much pride in being up to date in matters of sport. Where he got his flying machine is a mystery. It is thought the machine was manufactured for him in the aeroplane workshop of Leon Bole at Le Mans last autumn.

His engagement as tutor to the king of Spain is one of the reasons why Wright will be unable to carry out his project of giving public exhibitions at the aerodrome of Juvisy for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers.

Orville Wright, who has just arrived here, says that the sums of money to be gained by them are too large to permit him and his brother to daily much longer in France for the sake of his lawyers . on every occasion when they spoke. Whenever the prisoner came into court he was enthusiastically applauded and the same thing happened when he left it. He was applauded even in the streets when, after each day's sitting, he was carried to prison.

The trial was stopped, to be begun over again at Campobasso, a small provincial town in Southern Italy. The jury was composed of country people, and Cifariello, although acquitted, complained that his dignity as an artist was deeply offended, owing to the fact that he was tried by peasants.

The prisoner pleaded guilty. His defense was that he killed his wife, not while of unsound mind, but simply to revenge his outraged honor. During the trial it was proved that Cifariello knew quite well that his wife's behavior was not what it should have been, and yet the jury acquitted him.

GERMANY PUZZLED.

Strange Conflict of Ideas on Subject of Man's Dress.

London, Jan. 15.—Dispatches from Berlin describe the confused ideas that prevail in German society as to the proper dress for men on various occasions. The point has risen in connection with the forthcoming production of Somerset Maugham's comedy, Mrs. Dot.

The authorities of the theater in which it is to be played, think that the English atmosphere of the piece can only be properly reproduced if the actors wear evening dress, no matter whether the scene is laid in a drawing room at tea time or on the river. Members fo the cast who have some knowledge in sartorial matters are trying, hitherto, in vain, to convince the management of its error.

According to one correspondent this conflict of ideas on the subject of man's dress is causing great inconvenience to fashionable hostesses and hotel managers, who strive valiantly, but without much success to persuade German gentlemen not to wear evening dress till the evening.

"Dress suits," he says, "continue to dot the landscape at all hours. No daylight function is complete without them. They appear at the launching of battleships and the unveiling of statues, at garden parties, afternoon receptions and at funerals.

"The thousands of young Grmans who cross the channel to learn business and English manners return to advocate the English rules of dress for men, but their example seems only to add to the perplexity.

"The result is that the new luxurious hotels with restaurants and palm courts present a wild riot of incongruous attire. Some guests come to luncheon and tea in evening coats or dinner jackets while others arrive to dinner and late supper in lounge or morning suits."

WIFE MURDERER WAS ACQUITTED

As the Result of an Unwritten Law in Italy.

Rome, Jan. 15.—The acquittal of the sculptor Cifariello, who was tried for the murder of his wife three years ago in Naples has reawakened the discussion about a reform of the penal code. There seems to be an unwritten law in Italy that wife murderers should not be punished and in fact, the conviction of a man for killing his wife is practically unrecorded in the annals of judicial history.

Whenever such a crime is committed the friends of the prisoner initiate what is known as a campaign di saivataggio, or campaign to save him. They secure the services of the leading lawyers, who strive to delay the trial and, in the meantime, attempt to convince the crime was committed to safeguard family honor.

Friendly newspapers publish long accounts of the case favorable to the prisoner. The victim is generally painted in the darkest colors and the crime excused. When the trial is held, and very often two or three years are employed for the preliminary investigation, the friends of the prisoner are present in court to appiaud.

In the case of Cifariello, when the trial was first held at Naples, it could not be continued on account of the applause which greeted the prisoner and his lawyers . on every occasion when they spoke. Whenever the prisoner came into court he was enthusiastically applauded and the same thing happened when he left it. He was applauded even in the streets when, after each day's sitting, he was carried to prison.

The trial was stopped, to be begun over again at Campobasso, a small provincial town in Southern Italy. The jury was composed of country people, and Cifariello, although acquitted, complained that his dignity as an artist was deeply offended, owing to the fact that he was tried by peasants.

The prisoner pleaded guilty. His defense was that he killed his wife, not while of unsound mind, but simply to revenge his outraged honor. During the trial it was proved that Cifariello knew quite well that his wife's behavior was not what it should have been, and yet the jury acquitted him.

MIGHT MOVE THE OLD JAIL

Suggestion That Present Building be Used on New Site.

Could Erect New Sheriff's Residence in Front of It.

The old county jail is coming in for a good deal of discussion these days. It is being condemned as too small and upheld as large enough. It is wanted to house prisoners and is wanted as a detention home. It is said to be too far from the courthouse and others say it is all right in its present site. To all of which another phase has been added. Why not move it?

"Why not?" says the conservative business man, assuming the role of the confirmed pessimist for the nonce. "A new jail on the courthouse site will cost $250,000, if it will cost a cent. The people of St. Louis county can't stand for these enormous expenditures forever. A new jail will mean new bonds, and we have about all the bonds we can handle now. They say we can build a jail for $150,000. We can't do it.

"The old jail is just about as good as any county in the state has. The steel in it is of the very best. The hardest files and saws that jail breakers can devise don't any more than scratch the paint. The jail may be a little too small for the future needs of the county, but that is easily remedied and would cost less than the erection of a new building.

"There isn't any necessity of introducing an incongruity into the group of public buildings, either. Why not move the old jail, set it back on the site and erect a sheriff's residence of the same material as the new courthouse on the front of it, turn the present quarters of the sheriff into a women's department and let the present women's department be an addition to the men's quarters. There you have it at much less expense than $250,000.

"The only question is whether Third street is wide enough to allow the jail to pass through it. There isn't any question of the practicability of the plan. Bigger buildings than the jail have been successfully moved greater distances than from the present site to the courthouse site. I believe the detention home plan is a good one, but let's have the jail before we have a detention home. I am in favor of saving enough ground on the site of the old courthouse for a detention home and erecting it when the county can see its way clear to do so. For the present, the jail question is the most important one.

"Above all, I am not in favor of using the jail on its present site when court is held in the new courthouse. Nobody can tell when something may come up which would find the distance between the courthouse and the jail a great inconvenience. A small army would be necessary to guard some classes of prisoners while being taken from the jail to the courtroom, and such a condition shouldn't exist. I hope the county board will attend to the matter and do it as soon as possible, so that the jail on the new courthouse grounds will be ready when the building is occupied."

PRIEST CALLS IT RIDICULOUS

Discusses the "Live Like Jesus" Movement at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 15.—"Ridiculous," was the term applied by Mgr. Felix M. Boff, vicar general and administrator of the Roman Catholic church diocese of Cleveland, to the "Live Like Jesus" movement.

This movement originated in Cleveland and more than 12,000 young people, members of the societies of various Protestant denominations, are endeavoring to live for two weeks as they conceive Jesus Christ would live, were He to meet the daily problems of 1909.

"Ridiculous," repeated the veteran priest, with emotion. "I will not call it anything worse but it is all wrong. These men and women are either Christians, are attempting to live as they are commanded by the Scriptures to live and will get their heavenly reward accordingly, or they are not following Divine commands and will get their punishment.

Rules of Living Too Lax.

"It's one thing or the other; there's no middle ground. Living two weeks as Jesus would live, or the announcement that they will try to do it, is of no avail. As I said before it's simply ridiculous. All these things are the direct result of conditions that have been coming about during the past quarter century. The people of Cleveland are not what they were twenty-five years ago. I have been a priest here fifty years. I have had the opportunity to observe.

"Rules of living have become too lax. There is a woeful tendency to doubt the divinity of Jesus Christ, and all the sins that flesh is heir to, follow in this path of unbelief. Take away that rock upon which the Christian faith is built, and you have nothing remaining. I will go still farther and say that if we eliminate the divinity of Christ we are all fools.

Why Only Two Weeks?

"Granting that divinity, we must follow His commands. Not one day, not two weeks, nor for any other period of time but throughout our lives. We hear too much today about the ease of the Christian life. Certain ministers preach it from their pulpits. They want to please the people. The easy religion with two weeks of uprightness is no religion at all. Christianity bids us to take up our cross and follow in the footsteps of the Master, which was not an easy path.

"I have never tried to make the Christian life easy for myself or for others. I have preached the gospel of Christ and never cared what people thought. Now I am about through with this world, and there is a satisfaction in knowing that I have not given myself up to skepticism and doubts which would class me with the heathen who have never heard the word.

"That's where the people of Cleveland stand who are chasing the hallucination of modernism. They have reached a stage where they are to be classed with the heathen, and are no better.

"Here is one thing in which all men must take a stand. They cannot dodge the issue; they either must follow all the commands of Christ all the time as taught by His church or suffer damnation."

FORTUNE AWAITS WOMAN.

All Trace of Her Lost Since February, 1902.

New Haven, Mo., Jan. 15.—An estate worth many thousands of dollars awaits Annie Eliza Craig, daughter of the late Robert Craig, who disappeared from this town about ten years ago. Since 1902 relatives here have not heard from the missing woman, although diligent effort has been made by the administrators of her father's estate to find her, that she may benefit by the legacy willed to her.

Miss Craig went to St. Louis from here, and on June 15, 1899, she was employed as nurse by a Mrs. Robertson and accompanied her mistress to Trenton, N. J., where they lived at the American house.

The year after Miss Craig was married to George Wagner of 718 East Twelfth street, New York city. Later she left Wagner, and he too does not know of her whereabouts at present.

It is known that in October, 1900, she lived at 450 Canal street, New York city, and the following year at 83 Thomas street. In the same city. In February, 1902, she left New York for Syracuse, and since that time all trace of the missing Missouri woman has been lost.

Miss Craig was born on Oct. 5, 1873, and would now be a few months over 36 years of age. She is the eldest daughter of Robert Craig, who died a year ago. So far as is known, there has been nothing to estrange the woman from her people. For several years after leaving here she corresponded frequently and cheerfully with her relatives, and at no time was there ever suggestion or reason for her dropping out of the life of her kinspeople.

Her stepmother, Mrs. Mary D. Craig, has served as administratrix of the estate, and has made every effort to find her stepdaughter, but without success. In the meantime the estate is becoming more valuable each year, and when Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Craig-Wagner is located she will find herself heir to a large fortune.

GETS $400,000 IN ALIMONY.

Mrs. Ettenson Secures Divorce From Her Millionaire Husband.

Leavenworth, Kan., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Rebecca Ettenson has obtained a decree of divorce and property and securities worth $400,000 as alimony from her husband, Henry Ettenson, a millionaire Jewish merchant now living at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

The action was settled without controversy, according to prearranged terms, and no testimony bearing on the allegations of Mrs. Ettenson's sensational petition, charging her husband with denial of their marriage, obscenity and threats of bodily harm, was introduced. The finding of the court includes a vindication of the wife in a declaration that the Ettensons were legally married in New York July 3, 1875.

SHERIFF TOO ALERT.

Jumps From Moving Train and Captures Escaped Prisoner.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only the speedy action of Sheriff Albert Osmon of Traill county, in leaping from Great Northern pasenger train No. 10 as it was pulling out of a small station this side of Hillsboro Tuesday evening, saved him from stinging defeat at the hands of William Haverland, an insane patient whom he was taking to the state asylum at Jamestown. It appears that Haverland got into the good graces of the officer by good behavior, and as the train was pulling out of the station north of here, he made a dash for liberty. Sheriff Osmon was quick on the train and, leaping from the moving train, he soon had his man again. A fellow passenger pulled the air on the train and the sheriff and his charge were soon aboard.

ESCAPED FROM PRISON TO CANADA AND IS FREE.

Lethbridge, Alta., Jan. 15.—Oscar Webb, the Minot, N. D., man who escaped from prison in that place and was discovered here, came before Judge Stuart in connection with the habeas corpus proceedings taken by his lawyer, C. F. Harris, to prevent his deportation.

The immigration department took proceedings to have him deported, as they considered he was an undesirable character. Judge Stuart ruled that a man convicted of selling liquor in a prohibition state could not be considered as having committed a crime of moral turpitude.

Escaping from prison is a crime of such character, but he had not been convicted of such an offense.

As a result of the decision Webb is a free man and can remain in Canada.

SLIVER PENETRATES BODY.

Patient in Ashland Hospital Victim of Odd Injury.

Ashland Wis., Jan. 15.—Robert Le Roy, of Forestville, was brought to St. Joseph's hospital, suffering from a peculiar accident. While clambering over a brush pile, he fell, alighting on a newly cut stump, from the top of which several pieces of wood extended into the air. One of these "slivers," sharp as a lance, entered his body, impaling him.

It was with considerable difficulty that he succeeded in freeing himself, and after examination this morning, showed that the "sliver" had entered his body to a depth of six inches, making much the same kind of wound that would result from being stabbed or thrust with a sword. The wound is a very serious one.

GAS ON THE STOMACH

The Experience of a Minneapolis Woman in Finding a Remedy for Indigestion.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a burning sensation in the stomach and a feeling as of weight on the chest Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom. The tonic treatment for stomach trouble is a comparatively new idea but it is sound in principle and shows satisfactory results in cases where other treatment had failed.

Mrs. J. S. Wilder, a saleslady, of No. 338 Ninth street, S. E., Minneapolis, Minn., found no relief from stomach trouble until she tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Speaking of her case, Mrs. Wilder says:

"About four years ago I was suffering with stomach trouble, which was brought on by irregular and hurried eating. I was confined to my bed for three days at a time with headaches due to biliousness. My stomach felt as though there was a lump in it and the gas on my stomach gave me awful distress. I had severe pains in my back, my complexion was sallow and I was nervous and irritable. It made me short of breath to go up stairs. In the morning there would be a brown coating on my tongue.

"The doctor gave me only temporary relief and after I had been sick for a year I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the advice of a friend. The pills worked wonders for me. They helped me after a fair trial and then made a rapid cure. I can eat a hearty meal now without distress and can work every day. I always praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and shall never be without them."

Sufferers from dyspepsia in any form, who have found their condition unrelieved or actually growing worse while using ordinary remedies, would do well to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by all druggists or direct by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box; six boxes, $2.50. A diet book will be sent free, on application to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

LYCEUM—Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady."

Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady."

Rose Stahl will open her engagement at the Lyceum tonight and play matinee and night tomorrow in "The Chorus Lady." James Forbes' famous comedy of stage life.

"The Chorus Lady," which is under the direction of Henry B. Harris, has for more than two years enjoyed the distinction of being one of the most unique and strikingly original plays on the American stage. Miss Stahl, who leaped to instant fame when "The Chorus Lady" was first disclosed, will again portray her inimitable role of Patricia O'Brien, member of the chorus and apostle of cheerfulness under all conditions, favorable or otherwise. When "The Chorus Lady" was brought out in New York three seasons ago under the Henry B. Harris management, it scored so heavily that it ran for an entire season on Broadway, and this was followed by a four-months' run in Chicago, and by such long engagements in other cities that when Miss Stahl closed last spring in Boston because of much-needed rest, she had placed to her credit a record of ninety-four consecutive weeks to business which shattered records right and left.

"The Chorus Lady" is a comedy in four acts depicting certain momentous incidents in the life of Patricia O'Brien of the chorus, who is in love with Dan Mallory, the owner of a racing stable at which her father, Patrick O'Brien, is employed as trainer.

"Not an Incubator Show."

When Harold Pierce opened the Lyceum theater box office this morning, two applicants for third row aisle seats were promptly satisfied. The third person to approach the window was an elderly woman. She produced her purse and slowly placed a dime before the astonished gaze of Mr. Pierce. "Madame, this is no museum," he exclaimed.

"What's that, young fellow?" was the tart answer. "Your sign out there says 'Three Twins,' and I always take in these incubator shows. You're not going to try to charge me any more than 10 cents, are you? Maybe you think that three twins are worth 30 cents, but I don't, and I won't pay that much." This was hurled at the bewildered Harold without giving him an opportunity to explain.

"Madame," he began solemnly, "this is a play, a musical play, and the show will not be here until Monday night."

"Incubators and music, eh?" she queried.

"No, ma'am; comedy and music."

"Well, if that's all, I wouldn't give a dime to see it."

CARMICHAEL IS PLACED IN GRAVE

Remains of Minister-Murderer Are Buried in Michigan.

Romulus, Mich., Jan. 15.—The remains of Rev. J. H. Carmichael, who murdered Gideon Browning at Rattle Run and committed suicide in Carthage, Ill., were buried here this morning, with brief ceremonies. Four doctors who examined the minister's brain make this report:

"We find that Carmichael was a sufferer from acute mania. The blood vessels of the brain were congested. There was an adhesion of the coverings of the brain to the cranium, which showed an anaemia of the right side of the brain, and we found granulations of the superior, posterior surface of the cerebrum. It is evident Carmichael suffered several attacks of acute inflammation of the brain."

The doctors agreed that the marks found upon the body, which gave rise to a report that the minister was addicted to the use of a hypodermic syringe for administering drugs, were made after the minister's death.

SIX HAVE DIED; DRUG SUSPECTED

Bodies of Two Exhumed; One Found Containing Arsenic.

Somerville, Mass., Jan. 15.—Bodies of two persons who died at the home of Mary Kelliher under conditions believed by the police to be suspicious, were exhumed yesterday. An official connected with the investigation said the examination of the viscora of Katherine Kelliher, the 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Kelliher, disclosed a quantity of arsenic sufficient to cause death. Six persons, members of the Kelliher household, have died within three years.

Mrs. Kelliher is awaiting trial on two charges of arson.

FIRE DAMP EXPLOSION KILLS FIFTY-SIX MEN.

CABINET DISCUSSES LINCOLN HOLIDAY.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The cabinet today discussed a proposition made by the G. A. R. for a national observation of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, Feb. 12 next. The plan was proposed to President Roosevelt yesterday by Commander-in-Chief Nevius of the G. A. R.

HOME MIXTURE CURES RHEUMATISM

"One ounce syrup of Sarsaparilla compound; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. These to be mixed and shaken well and used in doses of a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime.

The ingredients are obtainable from any well stocked druggist who will mix it or it can be mixed at home, and it is said to show immediate results.

SHORTCAKE? NO, NOT YET

Strawberries Are Not Coming to the Local Market Now.

"Cold Weather—No Demand," Say Commission Men—Eggs Higher.

If the weather had not been so cold here lately, and if people had expressed any great hankering for them, Duluth could have strawberries now.

The extreme South is sending a goodly number of strawberries to northern markets now, and the price, considering the season, is said to be very reasonable. Those who can pay it are eating the berries in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and the Twin Cities.

Some strawberries were in the market here about Christmas time, but not many. Since that time local commission men have not brought any in. There has been no inquiry for them, and the weather has been so severely cold that there would be considerable risk about it.

The Michigan street houses are loath to buy them until a better inquiry prevents any spoiling on their hands, and consequent loss.

The cold weather has caused a stronger tone in the market for vegetables of all kinds. Potaoes have bulged from 70 and 75 cents to 80 cents. Eighty cents a bushel is what the ordinary spuds are bringing in the wholesale district at the present time.

Cabbages, of which there has been quite a shortage this season, are very firm at $2.50 per crate.

While there are no actual changes from last week in the quotations on other staple vegetables, the undertone of the market is decidedly stronger and should the severe cold continue there will be increases.

Great precautions have to be taken in bringing the green vegetables to town, carefully heated cars and special wrappings being no small part of the work.

Wax beans are $2.50 per basket. Hothouse cucumbers are $3 a dozen. Lettuce is $1 a bushel. Parsley is quoted at 40 cents per dozen.

Cranberries have been one of the strong features of the market all winter. They are still in the market and still at the very firm figure of $14 per barrel.

Eggs are up again. The past week has brought them back to the high level. Before the first of the recent series of cold snaps, eggs went off somewhat in price and long-suffering householders felt that they were going to drop back to a normal level. But the low temperatures came back again and the price of eggs went up.

Fresh eggs are quoted today at 40 cents a dozen, which is about as high as they have been in recent years.

Storage eggs are 20 cents a dozen, which is pretty steep for the refrigerator variety.

Butter continues in the even tenor of its way, showing no change in price from last week. Creamery prints are 35 cents a pound and tubs are 32 to 34 cents. Other grades are unchanged.

There is no change from last week in the price of cheese. Full cream twins are quoted at 15 to 16 cents a pound. Wisconsin flats are 15 to 16 cents.

Oranges are plentiful at $3.25 and $3.50 a box. The season for them is at its height and the fruit is delicious in flavor.

Grape fruit is a popular dish among Duluthians at the present time. It costs $4.50 a box on Michigan street. California lemons are $4 a box.

Imported figs are $1.25 a box and California figs are 85 cents to $1.25. Dates are $1.10 to $1.19.

The poultry market is very firm. Spring chickens and hens are 12 to 15 cents a pound and turkeys are 22 to 23 cents a pound. The demand is quite firm.

HEARING ON BILL TO PREVENT FOREST FIRES

respective districts, and holds them responsible for the safeguarding of their territory from forest fires. They must take energetic caution to prevent fires, and must visit all parts of roads, trails, camps and frequented places, warn campers and other users of fire, and extinguish small or smouldering fires. They must investigate fires, find out how they started and locate the blame, if possible.

The forestry commissioner is to divide into districts the territory exposed to fires, and in a dry and dangerous season employ a ranger for each district to have the power and perform the duties of fire wardens. In the employment of rangers, preference is to be given to cruisers and woodsmen, game wardens and forestry students who are known for reliability and efficiency. Rangers are to be paid by the state at $5 per day for the time actually employed, with reasonable traveling expenses.

The forestry bureau is to be equipped with funds, and its annual expenditures for fire protection are limited to $28,000. The bill carries an appropriation of $30,000 annually, and the commissioner is empowered to give rewards to the extent of $2,000 a year for specially meritorious services in preventing and extinguishing fires. Fire wardens are to be paid 25 cents an hour and actual necessary expenses. Half this expense is to be carried by the county and half by the state.

For neglect of duty on the part of officials, and for carelessness on the part of anybody leading to fires, there are to be fines of $50 to $100 or imprisonment for thirty to ninety days, or both. Malicious setting of fires, whereby property and lives are destroyed means a fine of $500 or ten years' imprisonment or both.

Campers who start campfires in the woods are required to clear the ground for ten feet around, and carefully to put out the fire before leaving.

The matter of chief importance in the bill, however, is that providing that any person or corporation who cuts timber shall pile and burn the slashings at the time of cutting; provided, however, that if the cutting is done between March and November the slashings shall be piled and burned during the following winter. Failure to heed this provision is punishable by $50 to $100 fine, or thirty to ninety days in the county jail.

Members of the committee want to know a little more about the proper time for having the slashings burned. The bill says that they must be burned during the winter, but woodsmen say that that is difficult. It is clear, on the other hand, that burning them in summer, especially when the woods are dry, may be dangerous. This part of the bill needs explanation and alteration, according to members of the committee, and that will be one of the things the committee will consider at next Wednesday's hearing.

One by-product of drainage when it is not carried on upon a wide and elaborate system that will take the interests of all sections into consideration is illustrated by the filing of seventeen claims by Traverse county farmers, aggregating nearly $115,000, for damages caused by the overflow of their lands following the cutting of a state ditch into the Mustinka river. When the contents of the state ditch emptied into this little stream, its capacity to carry off the flow was inadequate, and these farmers claim not only heavy damages to crops for several years, but total destruction of the value of part of their land if conditions remain as they are. Their claims are not only for crop damages, but for permanent injury to the land. The claims were referred to the drainage committee for consideration.

There are two contests in the house this time, and the committee on elections decided yesterday afternoon to begin work upon them next Tuesday afternoon. E. E. Lobeck of Alexandria, a Prohibitionist, was elected by six votes on the face of the returns, and a recount increased this to twelve. E. H. Olson, his Republican opponent, is bringing the matter before the legislature.

James A. Carley of Plainview, a Democrat, beat William Foreman, a Republican and a member of the last house, by twelve votes, and Foreman has also contested the election, though it is reported that Foreman may abandon his case.

The tax committee and the judiciary committee of the house both held meetings yesterday afternoon for purposes of organization. The tax committee appointed a sub-committee of five to decide what permanent sub-committees may be needed to facilitate the work of the committee, and who they shall be constituted. This decided, the chairman will select the committees.

Chairman Bicknell of the house judiciary committee announced yesterday afternoon the following sub-committees:

Constitutional law—Kneeland, Congdon, Austin, Bjorge, McKenzie, J. N. Johnson.

Remedial law—Theyer, White, Spooner, Selb, Carley.

Substantive law—Wells, Wright, Burquist, Davies, Grant.

Courts and court officers—Christenson, Dalzell, Sawyer, Wallace, Graham.

Pleading and practice and criminal law—Kling, Stuart, Haugland, Pfaender and Allen.

The bill which Representative Wells of Breckenridge proposes to introduce later, taxing water powers, which was briefly referred to in The Herald last evening, carries into the plan the spirit of the tonnage tax idea. Water-powers are now taxed upon an ad valorem basis, just as other property is taxed, and Mr. Wells believes that they do not really pay anything like the same rate of taxes that other property pays. He illustrates this belief by figures of the earnings of the Mississippi water-power at Minneapolis. He would make the tax upon the basis of the number of units of horse-power supplied, not upon the potential horse-power. A privately-owned water-power, for instance, might have a possibility of 10,000 horse-power, yet be supplying only 1,000 horse-power. Mr. Wells would tax it upon the 1,000 and not upon the 10,000.

This tax is for state purposes, of course, and this measure is probably only the first of a flood of similar measures providing special taxes for the benefit of the state.

Duluth is especially interested in the bill introduced in the house yesterday by Representative Nimocks of Minneapolis, requiring railroads to pay special assessments for local improvements, including drainage. At present the railroads pay a tax of 4 per cent upon the gross earnings, in lieu of all other taxes and assessments, and in many cases this absolutely prevents needed local improvements. Mr. Nimocks does not propose to interfere with the gross earnings rate, but would simply require the railroads to begin paying their share of the cost of improving streets, etc. They should pay it, of course, because they benefit by the improvements as much as any other interests. Indeed, oftentimes the improvements are made necessary solely because the railroad is there, and streets have to be paved to enable the passengers and freight carried by the railroads to get to and from the depot.

Representative Spooner, who has a bill in increasing the gross earnings tax rate to 6 per cent, says he believes that it is not possible to make the railroads pay local assessments, because it would be double taxation. Midway between the Spooner plan and the Nimock's comes the bill introduced by Daniel Robertson of Argyle, to increase the gross earnings tax rate to 5 per cent, and also to make the railroads pay local assessments.

The obvious comment on the increase of the railroad taxes is that the state can't keep on raising and lowering freight rates without defeating its own ends. There is a point where both are fair, and few people believe that that point has been yet reached in either case. Nevertheless, it is said the railroads are not ill-pleased with the agitation for higher railroad taxes, because it helps to convince the courts that it isn't safe to let the state cut freight rates.

There is a law now against letting minors enter billiard and pool halls, and Representative Mork of Brycelln wishes also to close the doors of the bowling alleys against them, so he introduced a bill to that end yesterday.

One of the house doorkeepers appointed yesterday was Thomas Thorsen of St. James, who was formerly a representative, and later a state senator. The John W. Gates, who was appointed as a doorkeeper, is not the eminent financier.

Senator Peterson's bill to increase the pay of jurors to $3 a day is timely. Jurors, both grand and petit, have been paid $2 a day for many years, but the pay has long been inadequate. While the ordinary jury panel may contain a few men to whom $2 a day looks good, still it is about common labor size, and many a citizen is compelled to stay away from business that means many times that to him, for a paltry $2 per day. Three will not make the work attractive, of course, but it will be a little more in keeping with the job.

Senator Witherstine of Rochester had the Chisholm forest fires in mind when he prepared the bill he introduced yesterday allowing county commissioners to appropriate public funds for relief when great calamities visit the country. The bill carries no limitation of the house to be appropriated.

Mrs. Grant of Fargo, N. D., is visiting her son, Representative Richard F. Grant of Duluth.

STATEHOOD IS CLOSE AT HAND

Prospects of Arizona and New Mexico Seem Bright.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Arizona and New Mexico are in a fair way to become full-fledged states during the present session of congress. The house committee on territories is to take up the statehood measures in the immediate future with the object of reporting them to the house as early as possible.

Conference between members of the territories committees and the leaders of the house have been held in the last two weeks and the advocates of statehood from both the territories have been active. It is believed there will be no contest on the floor by the statehood boomers.

Dunbar and Ordway of St. Paul are now down to the semi-finals in the St. Paul event, with Rochon and Carson of Winnipeg, Meldahl of Duluth, and Whalen of Fort William also having a chance.

The Duluth men in the various events a little more than held their own, and are playing in good form. The last draw finished about 7 p. m. The curlers then proceeded to the Orpheum theater, where some 300 seats had been reserved for them and their friends as guests of the St. Paul curlers. After the show, they all proceeded to Carlings uptown cafe, just across the street, where an elaborate banquet was served. Following the banquet there was general merrymaking, including a side-splitting monologue by a black-faced minstrel, who cracked an endless number of jokes at the expense of various curlers.

MAROONS LOSE TWO MORE STARS

Crowley and Garrett Quit the Chicago "U" Track Team.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Another blow was dealt the University of Chicago track team Thursday in the withdrawal of two more star athletes.

Crowley, the all-around man, who won his "C" in football last fall and was expected to be the heaviest point winner on the track team, and Garrett, the best of the half-milers, are the retiring athletes. Both men will enter their events again in the spring with the opening of the outdoor season.

They expect to get in shape for the tryout for the Pennsylvania games, which takes place early in April. Stagg counts on having the two stars for the outdoor dual meets, and especially for the conference meet, which he hopes to win again.

With Iddings and Steffen gone from the team, and Crowley and Garrett resting up during the winter, the track squad is only a shadow of what it might have been.

ATTELL DEFEATS FREDDIE WEEKS

Champion Picks Up Opponent and Carries Him to His Corner.

Goldfield, Nev., Jan. 15.—Abe Attell last night retained his title to the featherweight championship of the world by knocking out Freddie Weeks in the tenth round, at the Goldfield Athletic club. Weeks fought gamely, but never had a chance to win. His blows lacked steam necessary to do any damage to the champion, who came out of the battle without a scratch. Eddie Graney of San Francisco officiated as referee, and the boys put up a clean fight in every way.

Both Attell and Weeks were well within the weight limit of 122 pounds.

Attell opened the fighting with a right swing to the head, and ended it in the tenth round with a series of vicious swings to Weeks' head and jaw, which staggered Weeks to the ropes. Attell followed him with a right across the jaw, putting him down and out in one minute after the tenth round opened. Abe then picked Weeks up and carried him to his corner.

It was a gruelling match, but the champion outgeneraled Weeks at every point, and was never in serious danger. He frequently poked his head into Weeks' face, and smilingly took blow after blow without a stagger. In the third round Attell opened Weeks' left eye, which bled freely throughout the rest of the fight and worried Weeks perceptibly.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—At the annual meeting of the bonspiel association, last night, it was decided to hold the next bonspiel at Duluth.

The selection of Duluth as the next meeting place was greeted with cheers, much enthusiasm being displayed over meeting in the Zenith City on the occation of the next 'spiel.

Elected President of the Northwestern Curlers' Association.

President S. H. Jones, Duluth; vice president, J. Catlin, Duluth; second vice president, R. W. Chadbourne, Duluth; secretary, A. H. Smith, Duluth; treasurer, F. W. Hargreaves; executive committee, Thomas McDermott, St Paul, W. D. Stewart, St. Paul; George P. Reedall, Phillips, Wis., and Dr. R. C. Ogilvie, Superior.

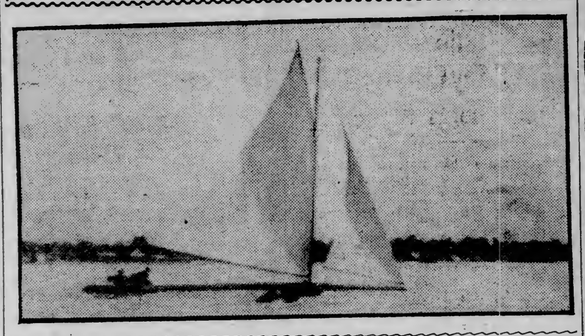

LIGHTWEIGHTS WILL BATTLE

McFarland and "Fighting Dick" Hyland Meet in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—One of the most important lightweight boxing contests of the year will occur here tonight at McCarey's pavilion, when Packey McFarland of Chicago and "Fighting Dick" Hyland of Grass Valley, Cal., meet in a ten-round bout.

McFarland and Hyland will weigh in this afternoon at 3 o'clock and must be on or under the 133-pound mark. Neither will have the slightest difficulty in making the weight. The betting is around two to one on McFarland. There will be no decision announced in the ring, a city ordinance preventing it. Charles Eyton will act as referee.

"THE KITE," SPEEDY ICEBOAT OWNED BY ARTHUR KRIEGER

ARRANGE FOR SHOOTING MATCH

Board Divides Riflemen Into Three Divisions of Fifteen Teams.

Washington, Jan. 15.—At the meeting of the national board for the promotion of rifle practice, yesterday, candidates for the national matches for both rifle and revolver, were decided upon. The matches will be shot at the camp range, owned by the state of Ohio commencing with two days of preliminary practice, on Aug. 21 and 22. There will be three matches included in the program, the national team match, the individual match, and the revolver match. The national team match is for teams of twelve riflemen from the infantry of the army, the navy, the marine corps, the naval academy, and the military acedemy, and teams from each state and territory.

The principal changes in the rules to govern the national team match was one by which, on a basis of the position of the teams shooting last year of which the number was fifty, the contest is separated into three divisions. The first division will consist of the first fifteen teams, the second of the second fifteen teams, and the third of the other teams shooting last year. Three sets of prizes will be given, but the match is shot as one contest and a team in either of the two lower classes by making a superior score, may win a place in the first division, or even the national trophy, the first prize.

ADAMS ALUMNI VS. ST. CLEMENT'S

West End Teams Will Meet at Basketball.

Tonight in the gymnasium of the St. Clement's school, the Adams Alumni team and the team representing the St. Clement's school will meet at basketball.

The teams have not met before this season and an interesting contest should be the result.

The St. Clement's bunch has, as yet, not been defeated this year, and the team that represents the Adams Alumni claims the same distinction.

They will line up as follows:

Adams	Position	St. Clement's
Anderson	forward	Emerson
Grenner	forward	Gallagher
Rankin	center	Arimond
Whittie	guard	Schiltz
Crozier	guard	Owens

LANGFORD MAY FIGHT JOHNSON

Negro Scrappers Wanted by Management of London Fight Club.

San Francisco, Jan. 15.—That Sam Langford probably will meet Jack Johnson in a twenty-round contest before the National club in London May 24, is announced by Joe Woodman, manager of the Boston middle-weight. He denies, however, he has signed articles for such a fight, and says that Bettinson, manager of the London club, will have to make him certain guarantees before the match is consummated.

Today Woodman received the following cablegram from England:

"Require Langford 24th May, Derby ductedweek—Bettinson."

"Last fall," said Woodman, "I conducted negotiations with Bettinson for a Langford-Johnson fight for November. It was agreed the purse was to be $10,000, of which $7,500 was to go to the winner and $2,500 to the loser. We were also to have some money for training expenses. When the match was called off I asked Bettinson for certain money we had spent, but no word has come from him. Langford will fight May 24 if the inducements are right and we get our transportation and expense money."

WILL RACE IN CHICAGO.

Pietri Arrives in Windy City for Race With Corey.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Dorando Pietri, the game little Italian runner, reached Chicago Thursday, to complete his training for his match race with Albert L. Corey, at Dexter Park pavilion, Jan. 22. Dorando is accompanied on his travels by his brother who acts as his interpreter, and by Tommy Murphy, the former jockey. All the athletic clubs of Chicago have put their facilities at his disposal, but Dorando has accepted the courtesies of the C. A. A., which was the first to extend the use of its gymnasium and track for training purposes.

Corey is running daily on the pavilion track. He has been in condition for some time and is allowed to run only about five miles a day, his running companion being a greyhound. The pavilion course measures practically twelve laps to the mile, so that the contestants will have to circle it 314 times with a final dash of 192 yards, to complete the Marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards.

FOOTBALL STARS GET BLANKETS

Walter Wilmot Re-Engaged as Baseball Coach With Salary Increase.

Minneapolis, Jan. 15.—Football blankets were awarded to the "M" men on the 1908 team at Thursday's meeting of the university board of athletic control. Those men who received their blankets one or two years ago do not get another one, in accordance with the rule adopted from the beginning, but they receive an additional star for every season after the first. The players who will get the Indian paraphernalia are McGovern, Atkinson, Hubbard, Plankers, Pettijohn, Farnam, Rosenwald, Ostran and Johnston. The following will get the stars to be sewed on their blankets: Safford, Rademacher, Young and Coughlan.

The board formally engaged Dr. L. J. Cooke to coach this year's basketball team, the salary to be the same as last year. The basketball schedule, previously announced by Manager Holon Leach, was authorized. It was voted to have a basketball team for the coming season. Baseball has not yet received a final standing at the varsity, and must be authorized from year to year.

Walter Wilmot is favored by the board for its baseball coach, and it was decided to offer a somewhat larger financial inducement than last year. The proposition is now in Wilmot's hands. "Fay" Caldwell of the athletic board will have charge of negotiations for the board. Coach Grant of the track squad asked the board to appropriate sufficient funds to purchase a sprinting board for outdoor use during the winter season. The board was to be 180 yards long by ten feet wide. No action was taken on this petition.

ALROTH GOES TO MINNEAPOLIS

Will Enter Western Indoor Races at the Hippodrome.

Carl Alroth, the local skater left last night for Minneapolis, where he will enter the Western indoor tournament to begin at the Hippodrome rink tonight.

Crack skaters from all over the country are in attendance and the tournament is expected to be the most successful held yet.

Anderson, the fast skater from Chicago, who recently came into the limelight by defeating the best Chicago and surrounding towns had to offer will do his best to clean the slate in the Mill City. He is ambitious to become champion in the indoor class, and it it said that his ambition is not set too far ahead of his powers on the ice skates.

Alworth came home last year with a bunch of medals and it is expected that he will give a better account of himself this year than last.

The Eastern skating events begin the first of the month, and if his showing is satisfactory in Minneapolis, he will attend the Saranac Lake indoor and outdoor races, and also the indoor and outdoor events to be held in Montreal, Can.

WON'T GIVE OUT NAMES.

Fight Promoter Refuses to Tell Who Will Meet Johnson.

London, Jan. 15.—Manager Bettison of the National Sporting club said last night that he had been endeavoring to arrange fights between Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, and other aspirants for the championship, both American and English. He could not mention names until the matches had been clinched, as he would only invite the competition of the other clubs by so doing. With the exception of Johnson's fight with Sam Langford of Boston, absolutely nothing had been arranged, not even the date. Fitzpatrick, the manager of Johnson, has written that he would be back in London some time in February, but Mr. Bettison did not expect him before the end of March, on account of theatrical engagements.

Both Johnson and Fitzpatrick had said they desired to make engagements with the National Sporting club.

Detroit Gets Moriarity.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 15.—It was announced here yesterday that President F. J. Navin of the Detroit American league baseball club has concluded arrangements with the New York Americans for the purchase of George Moriarity, who will play at third base for Detroit. The amount of the purchase money was not announced.

DULUTH BOYS MAKING GOOD

But Cleveland Papers All Call Them Canadians.

George McLaughlin, the hockey player who was claimed to be from Canada, is really a Duluth boy, who last year played ball with a team in the Three I league, and whose parents reside on Park Point.

Winters, Cummings and McLaughlin are all hailed as being from Canada in the Cleveland papers.

All the Duluth boys are making good down East, and in a recent edition of the Cleveland Plain Dealer much space is devoted to the spectacular playing of McLaughlin.

When it comes to skating, the Duluth boys have it on the Eastern hockey players, and it is due to this fact that the boys from Duluth are given credit by the scribes as being the best hockey players in the league.

The Cleveland managers are crazy about the Duluth players, and want to know if there are any more at home like them.

COMMITS SUICIDE.

Christy Matthewson's Brother Shoots Himself Through Right Temple.

Barron, Pa., Jan. 14.—Nick Matthewson, brother of the famous New York ball pitcher, and himself a promising pitcher, shot himself fatally in the right temple yesterday, evidently with suicidal intent. He was a student at La Fayette college, Easton, and had been at home sick for two weeks. It is thought that overstudy unbalanced his mind.

Of the twenty-seven countries that have ministers in this city, China was the only one not represented, Minister Wu Ting Fang being absent because of the days of mourning for the dead emperor of his country have not come to an end.

DEATH KNEEL OF HIGH SCHOOL FRATS SOUNDED.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 15.—The death knell of high school fraternities and societies was sounded in this city yesterday when Supt. Riddle announced that he was in receipt of affidavits signed by students under suspicion of belonging to secret organizations declaring that they were neither members nor contemplated joining while in school. Principals at the three local high schools report that there are no longer any fraternities or sororities in any of the institutes here.

The recent maiming of a high school student during initiation precipitated the war upon the fraternities.

COOL-HEADED ACTOR TURNS ON BRAKES AND PREVENTS A WRECK

Danville, Ill., Jan. 15.—The presence of mind of Arthur Hill, an actor, saved from death sixty-four people when, by turning the brakes he prevented a railroad coach from a collision with a freight train. A theatrical company en route from Urbana to Danville, was running a special on the Wabash and when the train reached the top of a grade six miles south of Danville, a draw-bar on the rear coach broke and the coach started down the grade at forty miles an hour.

Hill was standing on the rear platform and as the runaway rounded a curve he saw a train in the distance coming to meet them. He applied the brakes, but before the coach was brought to a standstill, May Poth and a Miss Hadson, who were on the rear platform, jumped. Dorothy Hutchinson remained on the platform, and when it struck the freight train, which had just been brought to a standstill, she was thrown against a telegraph pole and was injured about the shoulders.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

Before any sore can heal, the cause which produces it must be removed. As long as the blood, from which our systems receive their necessary nourishment and strength, remains impure and contaminated with disease germs, any old sore on the body will remain open, and resist every effort made to heal it. The nerves and tissues of the flesh around the places are continually fed with unhealthy matter and nature is simply disposing of the poison by draining it from the system through the sore. The only cure for an old sore is a thorough cleansing of the blood, entirely ridding the system of the cause. S. S. S. heals old sores by removing every particle of impurity from the circulation. It goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and so completely cleanses the circulation that there is no longer any impurity to drain through the sore, but the place is once more nourished with rich, healthful blood. S. S. S. heals the sore from the bottom, the place soon fills in with healthy, firm flesh, the tenderness leaves, all discharge ceases, the skin regains its natural color and when S. S. S. has thoroughly cleansed and purified the blood the place is permanently healed. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"These letters came here to the house," said the man's wife, sliding a few over to the man as he sat comfortably and happy, looking serenely at life through the blue haze of the smoke drifting easily from his cigar. The man took them casually. A bill at the house did not worry him. Life was roseate, and he was happy, and nothing, nothing could disturb that ease and comfort of existence which surrounded him. He puffed a few puffs before he reached for a paper knife to open, with nice precision, the letters that were awaiting him.

He closed one eye and held his cigar in one corner of his mouth, clutched firmly, so that the other end, slanting at an acute angle, was about one inch from the closed eye. He opened the first letter.

It said:

Dec. 24.—1 hat $7.00
Dec. 24.—1 smoking jacket 15.00

Total $22.00

Then down underneath it said:

"Our fiscal year ends Jan. 20, and although this is in no way a dun, we would be pleased to receive this amount by that time, in order that no old accounts be carried, etc."

The man roared.

Suddenly—just like that—he was transformed from a quiet, harmless, happy, being; into a raging tyrant of whom no one was afraid.

"The nerve!" he said. "The unmitigated nerve of that fellow to send me a bill. I haven't been near his store for a year and for a smoking jacket of all things! I never wear the silly things and to spend $15 for one! The idea!

The man's wife interrupted quietly. "What's the matter, dear?" she said.

The soothing tones made no impression on the man.

His face was red and hot looking, and he was sitting forward on his chair waving his arms about, and he was just as mad!

"They have sent me a bill," he said, "for a hat and a smoking jacket. A smoking jacket!" and he was on the point again of exploding violently.

"What of it?" asked his wife, swaying backward and forward in an easy rocking chair.

"This of it" said the man, "I never got them. Never saw them. Never wanted them."

"Why yes, you did get them," said the man's wife.

"Woman," said the man, "Don't you think I know when I buy a hat. I may be weak minded and that sort of thing but really I think I know when I get a hat. And I never got them. A smoking jacket!" he said with a snort of contempt.

"Well, you did get them, John, and there's no use of fussing around over such a little thing. I got them for you Christmas, myself, and you said they were perfectly lovely. And if that's the way you intend to act at every little bill that I happen to find it necessary to have charged to you, I think it's a mighty funny thing. I know one thing that I don't intend to be going around at Christmas time or any other time, and anyhow, I think it's perfectly horrid of you to talk that way about a smoking jacket. There are plenty of women who would never even let you smoke in the house, let alone wear a smoking jacket, and I never say a word, not a single word. I just sit and let you smoke until I don't know, except for the smoke, that you're here at all, because you are completely shut out of my sight by the clouds and clouds and clouds of smoke, and then for you to get into such a rage and say such horribiy—unkind—things—about — the — Christmas gift — that — I thought—you'd like—I think—"

The man trailed off to write a check and his wife's voice, trailing along, made a pleasant and well known accompaniment to which he paid, like many soloists, but little attention.

Many men are just receiving the bills for their Christmas gifts.

GRAPE FRUIT SALADS.

Nothing More Delicious—Plain or in Combination.

There are few salads that are more delicious than those in which the grapefruit plays a part, says the Delineator for February. It may be used alone or in combination with other fruits. Thus, for example, seed some white grapes and see how delicately their flavor combines with that of the grapefruit, especially when they are accompanied by a cream mayonnaise instead of the ordinary French dressing; but if the grapefruit is to be combined with the alligator pear, it is the French dressing alone that should be utilized; and when, in the summer, it is one's pleasant fate to be able to concoct a strawberry and grapefruit salad, see to it that neither the French dressing nor the mayonnaise have an opportunity to mar the delicate delights that await you. In place of these two distinctive sauces, take the same quantities of white wine and sugar, mix them well together and pour them over the fruit.

A plain grapefruit salad is made by removing the pulp, arranging it on lettuce leaves, and then pouring both the juice of the fruit and a light French dressing over it. If the pulp is served with romaine and pimento olives—the little olives that have already been stuffed with red peppers—the result is quite as pleasing, or one may cover the grapefruit and lettuce with a boiled dressing in which cream, butter and eggs are used.

If the character of the dinner should seem to require a combination fruit salad, here is one that cannot fail to please: Take a bunch of celery, half a pound of stoned dates and half a pound of almost any kind of nuts except almonds. Chop these ingredients into quite small pieces, and, when they have been well mixed, add the pulp of two grapefruit; arrange on lettuce leaves, and dress with a mayonnaise.

PESHTIGO FEARS RABIES.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 15.—An epidemic of hydrophobia has broken out in Peshtigo township, near this city, and not less than twenty-five dogs have thus far been killed, and the slaughter is not ended. Four dogs have been killed in Marinette and all of them were found to be suffering with the disease. A young horse owned by Jake Van Haren was bitten by one of the dogs and is developing the disease.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Tomatoes, $1 a basket.
New carrots, 10 cents a bunch.
Hubbard squash, 4 cents a pound.
Malaga grapes, 25 cents a pound.
Spinach,
Turkey, 30 cents a pound.
Shrimps.
Lobsters.
Roasts.

If you are again getting hungry for turkey you would much better change your mind and appetite for turkey, if you please, is 30. cents a pound. And not such very good looking turkeys, either. At this unapproachable price, turkey becomes instantly more desirable and precious, and looms in imagination from a kind of meat that you don't care whether you ever see again or not, to the most necessary delicacy that the season affords.

The market man gets almost peeved if you act ever so slightly surprised at the price he is demanding for the fowl.

There are plenty of vegetables, but they are rather expensive, too.

THE EVENING STORY

THE RINGMASTER

By S. A. D. Cox.

The ringmaster was a handsome man, after a cruel, tigerish fashion, and Mlle. Zongora, the animal trainer, was good looking too. True, there were hard lines about her face, showing that the mademoiselle had lived and suffered; but what of that? She had a heart; she had feelings, just the same as do those whom fortune has never buffeted, and when the ringmaster coolly told her that he no longer cared for her, and that he was going to marry Mlle. Therese, the bareback rider, who can blame Mlle. Zongora for feeling hurt and angry?

They stood there beside Mlle Zongora's cage of lions and tigers, he with a cold, sneering smile on his lips, she with pain and rage in her eyes—eyes which were capable, on occasion, of flashing with as much fierceness as those of the most courageous of her tigers.

"So! You are going to throw me over and marry that white-faced chit of a girl, are you?" fiercely.

"So I have told you," carelessly.

The animal queen was not the woman to rave. She simply regarded the ringmaster for a few moments with flashing eyes. Then she pointed to Diavolo, the man-eating tiger, in the cage, before them, and said in an intense cutting voice:

"Look there! You see Diavolo? He is a tiger, a brute. He would tear anyone to bits, and that would end it; but you are worse. You tear your victim's heart, wring the life blood from it, and leave its owner to live and suffer! The tiger is the better animal of the two! "You—"

With a harsh laugh, the ringmaster turned and strode away, leaving the woman to glare after him, pain, rage, despair gleaming from her eyes.

II.

Mlle. Zongora, desiring to always be near her animals, lived in a little house on wheels, a house-wagon, consisting of two miniature rooms. There were two doors opening into the sitting-room, one at either side.

After the performance that evening, the ringmaster entered this room for what was tacitly understood to be the last time. Mlle. Zongora had invited him to enjoy a little luncheon, with wine. She bore him no ill will, she told him, and wished their parting to be as that between friends.

She greeted him with a smile. No one would have guessed that she was not happy.

The ringmaster was somewhat ill at ease at first, but after they had eaten something, and drank some wine, he began to be himself again, and laughed and talked as was his wont. He little suspected that Mlle. Zongora was as good an actor as she was an animal trainer. He little suspected that she was playing a part for a purpose. He little dreamed that, standing close beside the little house-wagon, on the farther side from the one at which he had entered, was the wagon containing the cage in which was Diavolo, the man-eating tiger. He did not for one moment suspect that the door of this cage was exactly even with the door of the house-wagon. Nor did he imagine that a certain circus roustabout was standing with hand on the sliding door of the tiger's cage, ready to draw it quickly back when he should hear a whistle from Mlle. Zongora's lips. But all this was true, nevertheless.

And when the ringmaster, his head muddled by the wine he had drunk, rose to leave, he did not notice that he was shown to the door on the opposite side of the room from the one on which he had entered, but this was true.

With her hand on the door, Mlle. Zongora smilingly bade the ringmaster good night and good-by. Then she jerked the door open, at the same moment giving utterance to a shrill whistle. There was a grating sound, and then, as the ringmaster, surprised and a bit startled, hesitated, Mlle. Zongora gave him a fierce, strong shove, and he went headlong through the doorway of the house-wagon—and through the open door of Diavolo's cage also! There was a grating sound as the cage door was pushed shut, Mlle. Zongora's door closed with a slam; and then—

Mlle. Zongora stuffed cotton in her ears and calmly undressed and got in bed.

SEAGULLS OF AUCHMITHIE.

London Spectator: In the fishing village of Auchmithie you may frequently witness seagulls flying into the houses of the fishermen and partaking of food from their hands. One of these seabirds was in the habit of staying in a fisherman's house all the year round, except at the breeding season, when it left. About a fortnight ago, while the gull was away, the fisherman removed his home some three and a half miles from the former place.

The fisherman never expected to see his old friend the gull again. It was therefore, much to his astonishment that he beheld on a recent Sunday the sea bird come walking into his new residence with stately steps to resume his old familiarities and household ways.

WILD BUGS HE HAS MET.

An Ancient Mariner Recalls Entomological Experiences.

New York Sun: "Speaking of political conventions reminds me of bugs," said the ancient mariner, romancer of seven seas, and he reached for his papers and rolled a cigarette. "And about bugs—well, I know something of strange bugs. I've been bit by 'em, crawled over by 'em, driven crazy by 'em all the way from Petropavlovsky Nova Zembla.

"Those fellows write books about wild animals they have known. Why, say, young man, if I should write a book about wild bugs I've known I'd have all the publishers offering me a dollar a word. That's something out of the ordinary you know—what wild bugs subject. I'm something of a bird fancier myself, and what I've done to help the Smithsonian out in the line of preserved bugs had best be kept private, for I'm a modest man.

"Now, for instance, right here on East Twenty-third street, New York, I've batted about the whole world and been bitten by more kinds of bugs than you could hunt up in ornithology books in a month, comes a beetle and bites me thirty-six times on one leg. But what—

"The ancient mariner reached in his desk and brought out a paper upon which was drawn in ink a chart of his leg, each of the thirty-six bites being noted by a dot. He pointed to the array of dots with his cigarette holder and continued:

"This here beetle I take to be one of the very rare species of geometrical beetles found in the Celebes, down off the coast of Java. I never saw one outside the islands there before. But along comes this beetle and takes those thirty-six bites out of me one night a week ago and the next morning I found him, put him in a bottle of alcohol and shipped him down to the Smithsonian as a very rare type.

"The geometrical beetle is so named because he always bites in strictly geometrical designs. You notice by this chart here that these bites are in two exactly parallel lines, each line containing the same number of spots.

"Now draw imaginary lines between the top bite on the left hand line and the bottom bite on the right hand line and you get a regular parallelogram, which can be divided by pi if you are a mariner like myself and konw how to take the sun. Some of these beetles down in the Celebes I've known to bite a perfect Pythagorean problem on a man's back—the sum of the squares of the opposite sides of a right triangle equal the square of—well you know how it goes. Yes, sir, you could stand right up against that man—he was a Swede—and work out that problem, using the lines that the beetle had bit.

"But I must say that the geometrical beetle can't touch the East Indian cockroach I think that cockroach is the king of bugs, just like the lion is the king of beasts, which he isn't, for a tiger gives you a bigger run for your money. Why, when I was shooting tigers down in the Malay states—but to get back to that cockroach.

"He is as long as your finger and as broad as the blade of a kitchen knife and he has legs on him that can take him over the side of your ship's cabin so quick all you can see is a blur. He also smells, but that we won't talk about.

"Well sir, this cockroach you get south of Singapore and east of Aden, all the way down to Australia. What makes him so bothersome is his feeding habits. He'll come up to you at night and gnaw all your toenails off if you happen to be a heavy sleeper like myself; yessir, he'll gnaw 'em down to the quick. Not fingernails, just toenails he prefers.

"Not only that, but he'll eat all of the waxed thread out of your shoes. You wake up in the morning and start to put on your shoes and the uppers fall apart from the soles and you've got nothing but worthless leather strips to show for your good pair of brogans.

"He likes horn buttons. Just hang up your coat with horn buttons in a cabin where the cockroach is and next morning you'll find they've eaten all the buttons up, right down to the thread.

"Why, know what the skippers do when their boats get overrun with these cockroaches? They go ahead and beach her somewhere and open the seacocks. The water floods the hold and the cabins right up to the deck and you can see those cockroaches floating off so thick they look like tea grounds in a pot."

The ancient mariner paused to roll another cigarette for his better ease of nerves, then continued:

"Now you can't exactly call him a bug, that 4 o'clock down Venezuela way; you can't call him a bug; but he's worse than any bug horn. He's poison, deadly poison.

"The 4 o'clock lives only in Venezuela; whenever they change the boundary line down there he moves back so as to be always in Venezuela. He's a lizard I guess you'd call him, and he always lives in the same bush with a tarantula. Find a tarantula and you'll find a 4 o'clock right next door.

"Well, sir, the strange thing about these 4 o'clocks is that when they bite you you always die at 4 o'clock. I guess that's where they got their names.

"Say you are bitten at 11 o'clock in the morning; you'll die at 4 that afternoon. Or say you're bitten at 5 o'clock in the afternoon; you'll linger until 4 o'clock next morning. There is absolutely sure death about the 4 o'clock's bite and it's sure death at just the minute the hands of the clock point to the figures 12 and 4.

"I got bit by a 4 o'clock once by mistake and I tell you it was pretty fierce. What?

"Oh, no, of course I didn't; at five minutes of 4 that afternoon I blew up the bite with gunpowder and that saved me. Ever have to blow up your leg with gunpowder? It isn't nice.

"Now, that reminds me of the whale flea; he's a strange bug when you stop and think about it. First time I saw a whale flea was up at Herschell Island, off the north coast of Alaska. I thought it was a rat, he was so big.

"Of course, you never find bugs on fish; but a whale isn't a fish, you know, so he's got bugs. This whale flea is about as big as a rat, as I said, and he's got such strong hind legs he can jump from one end of a right or Greenland whale to the other in a little over three jumps.

"The peculiar thing about this whale flea is he's got both gills and lungs. When he tackles onto a big man whale and the whale dives the flea just naturally uses his gills like any fish; but when the whale comes up to blow or sleep all the fleas he's got work around on the upper deck and use their lungs for breathing.

"Those whale fleas certainly bother whales terribly. They have a way of catching on in the tender parts right under his flippers and behind his ears—especially the ears of the mule variety of Alaskan whale, which I must say is a rare specimen—and they chew right into the whale's vitals. The whales stand it as long as they can and then they take a desperate remedy to rid themselves of the pests.

"They deliberately go up where the ice floes are forming and get packed in a freezing floe. There they stay, practically frozen in the ice, until the whale fleas, whose fur isn't so long as it might be, die of exposure. I've seen ice floes with dozens of these whale fleas frozen in about a great cylindrical space where the whale had been.

"And there's just one more bug they have in Japan which you might like to hear about. That's the warbling katydid. The Japs love to have them around and you'll see boys standing on the street corners selling little bamboo cages each with a warbling katydid inside.

"These singing bugs come along about June and they have a way of perching on the roofs of the Jap houses and rubbing their wings on the grass thatch, which produces the warbling. They can't perch on a tiled house because the tiles are too slippery; only on thatched houses.

"Why, I've known some of these warbling katydids to accompany a geisha girl on her samisen when she was singing to a dance. And a fellow I used to know up in Nagoya kept a warbling katydid for four years and taught him to sing the Japanese national anthem, the 'Kimigayo.' Ever heard the 'Kimigayo' played? Well, if you did you could understand how easy it'd be for a warbling cricket to imitate it."

SOMETHING IN WIRELESS.

A Tablecloth and a Red Banner Facilitate Interstate Commerce.

Wireless telegraph and the marine telephone have nothing on the neat and inexpensive system of communication across water that has been in operation for some time between Tottenville, Staten Island, and Perth Amboy across Saten Island sound in New Jersey. A red banner and a white tablecloth are the only implements necessary for this interstate communication, says the New York Sun.

It so happens that three young women, who are considered attractive by more than one youth of Tottenville and Perth Amboy all live together in a house that is situated high on a hill in the former town just back from the water's edge. One of their chief admirers lives across the sound in a house that commands a full though distant view of the rear windows in the Tottenville home. This young man is generous and acts as wireless interpreter for two of his friends in Perth Amboy, who are less fortunately situated as to the location of their homes.

According to the code that has been arranged between the young people, should the Perth Amboy swain see a white tablecloth fluttering from the upper window of the Tottenville shrine of adoration he immediately notifies his companions, for this signal always set promptly at 5 in the afternoon, means "All three of you come over tonight."

Should the watcher in Perth Amboy see a single flash of red streaming from the window across the water he knows this to mean. "You can't come as we had planned." A red and a white rag draped from the Tottenville window indicates this message: "We'll come over if you will take us to the theater tonight."

One feature of this system remains still a mystery to the Perth Amboy youths. Though they have asked persistently what article of household furniture constitutes the red flag they have met invariably with Sphinx-like silence on the parts of the young ladies. It is a red flannel petticoat, if the truth must be told.

THE REFORMED BRONCO.

To the general public the word bronco suggests everything wild and vicious in horseflesh. One associates the usefulness of the bronco almost entirely with the rugged West. That this wiry little animal could ever develop the points of a good park horse would be received with much reservation by most persons.

Yet some ten years or more of cross-breeding, says Country Life in America, has accomplished this somewhat amazing result. Today one can see on the bridle paths of Central Park the well groomed bronco fraternizing as an equal with the Blue Grass thoroughbred, and his number is constantly growing.

To be sure he is no longer the hammerhead, with a pronounced ewe neck, almost as devoid of flesh as a skeleton. He has developed a fine crest in this upbreeding and can show as fine a neck as any Kentucky bred horse.

His middle piece is no longer distended from much eating of gross food, nor is he so loosely joined to his quarters as his prototype. Higher living has rounded him into a strikingly well proportioned saddle horse. In his new estate he subsists less on the fresh, juicy grasses, and the new order grows quite a different animal.

But through all this transformation he still retains the leg characteristics of his bronco ancestry, perfect symmetry, rather light in muscle and slender in bone, but the muscles of strong quality and the sinews very firm.

His power of endurance has diminished somewhat, but even so he has few equals and no superiors. His toughness and grit have changed little in the cross-breeding, and doubtless if turned out to the freedom of the range, he would give as good an account of himself as did his ancestors in the early days of the West.

WHY BUTT IN?

Success: Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, head worker of Hudson Guild settlement in New York, was lecturing some boys from the water front on the doings of Nero. He gave a vivid picture of the cruelty of the Emperor and thought he must have fixed the idea of non-ethical deeds in the minds of his hearers. Then he began questions.

"Boys," said the teacher, "what do you think of Nero?"

There was no reply and the class moved around uneasily.

"Well, O'Brien, what do you think of Nero? Would you say he was a good man? Would you like to know him?"

No answer, and O'Brien looked longingly at the door.

"Well, wasn't Nero a bad man?"

"He never done nothin' to me," was the unexpected response, reflecting the Tammany policy of noc butting in.

LOGICAL METHOD OF SEARCH.

Youth's Companion: It was closing time at the town library. Old Mr. Duke, who had filled the place of librarian for years, took down his coat and hat and, with the assistance of his little daughter, got them safely on. Together they started for the door. It was raining hard.

"Wait a moment, child," said her father, and went back into the building. The girl remained, obediently.

Five minutes passed. Then ten. She pushed open the door and walked in. Her father was bent over one of the card catalogues.

"What are you looking for father?" she inquired.

He put the drawer back, suddenly abashed.

"I'm getting old, Margaret," he said. "I couldn't find my umbrella, and I was searching for it under U in the lists."

A DOUBLE PLAY.

The Strand: A London urchin ran into a baker shop and, placing a halfpenny on the counter, asked nervously and timorously: "Mister, 'ave you a 'alfpenny buster (bun)?"

"Yes, my little man; here is one quite hot."

"Thanks, mister; would you mind a-shovin' it down my back?"

"Down your back, my little man! Why down your back?"

"'Cos, sir, I'm only a little 'un, and if those chaps outside know I've a buster they'll take it, and I am so 'ungry, I am."

"Dear me; how wrong of them! Come around here, my little chap. There—there, it is down your back."

The boy ran off. In an instant another entered—a bigger boy.

"I say, mister, 'as a little boy just been in 'ere?"

"Yes."

"And did he buy a 'alfpenny buster?"

"Yes."

"And did 'e arsk you to shove it down 'is back, as us big fellows would take it?"

"Yes."

"Yah! Where's your watch and chain? 'E's got 'em; 'e's just around the corner."

Out rushed the baker. In a trice the big boy collared the till and bolted.

The shopman never saw the comic side of it all.

IS PREPARED BY ANYONE

May Mean Less Sickness Here When Known by the People.

Simple Remedy for Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism.

This is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of Rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments prove this simple mixture effective in Rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up.

MANY ILLEGAL BALLOTS CAST

Irregularities in Crooked Lake Precinct Vote, Develop at Contest.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Riddell-Riley contest for the office of sheriff of Itasca county continues in the district court here before Judge Cant of Duluth. Counsel for the contestant, George Riddell, say they have about all their evidence as to Sand Lake precinct in, and they have proceeded to offer evidence in the matter of alleged irregularities in the election held at Crooked Lake. Nothing has developed of importance in that precinct as yet, save that a few persons, all of ehem living on homesteads in the precinct, and not having their second papers, had voted. No allegations of fraud in the conduct of the election have been sustained by the evidence thus far.

The point has been raised, although not formally, that the recent decision of the supreme court in the tax amendment case will affect the issues in the contest now pending here. If the contestee is sustained, it will probably mean that the contestant's case will be thrown out of court. Arguments will soon be taken up on the legal features of the case, including the above.

MANY FINNS ARE AT THE MEETING

Evince Deep Interest in Fight Being Waged on White Plague.

Eveleth, Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Finnish people had charge of the anti-tuberculosis exhibit last night, only one address being in English, that of Dr. Ranney of the More hospital staff, who read a paper on tuberculosis and told of the treatment in the sanitariums.

After his talk Rev. Mr. Wargelin, the chairman, announced that the other talks would be in Finnish. The hall was crowded with Finns. Dr. John Jackola spoke in general of tuberculosis, John Saari, one of the best known Finns on the range, also spoke.

At the afternoon session County Commissioner Nell McInnis was chairman. Addresses were by Dr. Victor Johnson and Christopher Easton. A large audience was in attendance both in the afternoon and evening.

The exhibit is attracting much attention and many are taking advantage of the fact that the exhibit is open continuously all day, and they go in and look over the various charts and statistics. Tonight there will be a foreigners meeting and speakers will address the crowds in the German and Austrian language. Saturday night is known as Teacher's night and the speakers that evening will be some of the best of the week. Dr. Longstreet Taylor of Minneapolis, Dr. J. F. Patton of Duluth and Prof. Greening will read papers and give addresses.

At the meeting Sunday afternoon in Vail hall, Dr. Ecklund of Duluth, Dr. H. M. Bracken of St. Paul, members of the state board of health and some local speakers will talk.

IT'S BIG MISTAKE, SAYS ACCUSED ONE

Virginia Candyman Is Charged With Crime in Iowa, Denies It.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.—Albert Arduvs, employed by a local candy store, is in the city jail, all because, as he claims, of mistaken identity. Arduvs was arrested at the instigation of a detective who arrived here from Iowa City, Iowa, with authority to arrest him, as he answers the description of a man wanted at that place on a charge of fraudulent conveyance of goods. A man answering the description of Arduvs had been in the employ of a merchant at Iowa City, and had smuggled a large amount of goods from the store to his home and afterwards disposed of them to other parties. The crime is supposed to have taken place some time last summer, and detectives have been on the track of the man ever since. Arduvs claims that he never was in Iowa City and never stepped foot in the state of Iowa, and also claims that he can easily prove an alibi. The merchant is expected to arrive here from Iowa City today to identify the man. Arduvs appears to have a clear case, as his employer and others who have known him for several years state that they are positive he is not the man wanted.

HIGHWAY ROBBER IS UNDER ARREST

Alleged to Have Held Up Woman on Outskirts of Chisholm.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Perault, who is employed at one of the mines in this vicinity, faces a charge of highway robbery preferred by N. Lucalli.

Perault is charged with holding up Mrs. Lucalli in her house Jan. 13 and taking $20 in cash and some jewelry.

He left the house with a rig secured in Hibbing and was driven to Chisholm. The Lucalli house is located on the outskirts of town on the road to Hibbing. He was captured as he was leaving town.

Leary & Lark, coal dealers, have dissolved partnership, Mr. Leary having disposed of his interest to Mr. Lark, who, it is said, will continue in the business. Mr. Leary is as yet undecided as to what he will do.

The Winston-Dear company, under the superintendency of F. H. Holladay, has resumed operations at the Monroe mine stripping with two steam shovels, and will continue throughout the balance of the winter, adding other shovels on other jobs until within a few weeks the company will be operating in full force.

LOSES VALUABLE RELIC.

R. E. Bailie Can't Find Old Gift When He Packs Up.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bailie and children left today for Duluth, and on Sunday will leave for their future home at North Yakima, Wash., where some time ago Mr. Bailie purchased a fruit farm and invested in other business enterprises in that section. Mr. Bailie was engaged here for a number of years in the jewelry business and was for several years school treasurer. He and his family are held in the highest esteem here, and the best wishes of all go with them to their new home.

While engaged in packing their belongings preparatory to shipment, Mr. Bailie discovered that an old boyhood relic was missing which search failed to find. The relic is a handsled made by his brother and presented to him some thirty years ago. The sled is built of shell bark hickory and of a most substantial make. The name "Robert" and the date "1879" is painted upon it, and its identification can be easily made. The sled, because of its age, beauty and substantiality, is highly prized by the family, and Mr. Bailie has offered a very liberal reward for its return. Any information regarding its whereabouts or its return to R. G. Sherwood at the Fayal hotel will be liberally rewarded.

Edward Wenzel, for a number of years past, employed as stenographer for the Virginia Lumber company, has left that company and is now employed as bookkeeper for the Virginia Light & Water company.

THREE OF A KIND.

Dropped Coffee, Picked Up Postum, and Health.

The harmful acton of caffeine—the drug in coffee and tea—is the same in all cases, it is only a matter of degree.

One person may suffer more in the way of heart palpitation, sour stomach, nervousness, or insomnia, than another, but the poison is there all the time, if one continues to drink coffee or tea.

A Penn. lady and two friends learned the truth about coffee in the same way. The lady writes:—

"About four years ago I had an attack of nervous prostration and a great deal of trouble with my heart. Sometimes feared I was dying, and my doctor seemed unable to find out the cause of my trouble.

"I would frequently wake at night with these attacks and the doctor said there was some constant irritation of the nerves, and he began to think some organic disease was at work.

"One day I was told of a case very similar to mine, and that the woman could find no relief until she stopped using coffee. I did not like the idea of giving up coffee, for I was very fond of it.

"Having read frequently of Postum, I determined to try it. It certainly made a great change in me. Those spells left me entirely.

"My most intimate friend was afflicted as I was. In fact the similarity of our afflictions drew us together in the first place. When she saw the great change Postum had made in me she tried it and was benefitted as I was.

"The beneficial effects of Postum on us two induced a neighbor to follow our example and so we are three of a kind who can't say enough in praise of Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

YOUNGER PUPILS SUFFER IN COLD

Kindergarten Tots of Aurora Had Tough Time During Bad Spell.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the recent cold spell some of the kindergarten pupils reached school in a pitiful state. One little boy had his hands badly frozen. A boy and girl from the Mohawk were frozen quite badly, especially the girl, who had been sent to school with a damp dress on.

The most pitiful case was that of a little boy, living in town, who went to school clothed in a pair of blue overalls and a torn waist. He had no underwear and the thermometer registered 46 degs. below zero. Misses Parks and Merkline, kindergarten teachers, bought the boy warmer clothing.

CASHED ANOTHER'S CHECKS.

Serious Charge Preferred Against Virginia Lumber Mill Man.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Smith, a Pole, in the employ of the Virginia Lumber company, was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with forging the name of John Anderson to a check issued by the lumber company. Smith had some money coming from the company, but his pay had been garnisheed. It is said that Smith conceived the idea of drawing the pay of some fellow-workman, and selected Anderson as his victim. Anderson had payments coming from three different departments of the company, and as the company has several hundred men in its employ, it is a difficult matter for the clerks to identify each employ. When Smith presented himself at the office as Anderson, the latter's checks were readily turned over to him. The checks were made out as follows: $34.15, $1.85 and $7.87. The accused succeeded in cashing the largest one at Landrigan & Darcy's, and when this firm presented the check at the bank, they were informed that the signature was a forgery. Whether the other checks had been cashed by Smith is not known as they have not made their appearance at the bank.

FAIL TO REACH AN AGREEMENT

Jury in the Eveleth Slander Case Is Discharged.

After about twenty-four hours of deliberation, the jurors in the case of Vivian Prince vs. Morris Stein reported to Judge Ensign in district court late yesterday afternoon that they could not agree. The foreman reported to the court that the twelve men were hopelessly divided, and they were then discharged.

The jury retired at about 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, and the foreman said, after being discharged yesterday, that they were hopelessly divided from the start. The first ballot stood seven to five in favor of the defendant, and once the tide turned to eight to four in favor of the plaintiff, but the jury was never nearer to an agreement than that. Ballots were taken every few minutes, except during the time the jurors slept Wednesday night and during meal times.

The suit was for $5,000 and was brought by Prince, who is municipal judge of Eveleth, to recover for an alleged slander. He claimed Stein said Prince had held his hands while Max Greenburg struck him with a knife and Mrs. Greenburg rubbed his slit. The case attracted considerable interest on the range, where all of the parties concerned are well known.

Denial by Mr. Gall.

To the Editor of The Herald:

My attention has been called to an article in your paper under the heading of "Verdict for the Samaritans," in which you state, presumably on the authority of Mr. McManus, that Mr. Leland and myself, as treasurer, made certain arrangements as to the payment of his dues and that the society had no knowledge thereof. There was no arrangement made between myself and Mr. Leland. When I was financial scribe he paid in the same way as many others and the manner of payment of these was well known to the society. I was not financial scribe (or treasurer) at the time of Mr. Leland's death. Very truly yours,

THOMAS A. GALL.

REGARD SUIT AS A BLUFF

American Carbolite Attorneys Not Worrying Over Chicago Case.

Attempt of Carbide Trust to Scare Off the Customers.

A suit, which is regarded by Duluth people interested, as an attempt on the part of the Union Carbide company of New York to gain free advertising, or scare off prospective customers of the American Carbolite company of Duluth, has been filed in the United States district court at Chicago. Infringement of the fundamental patent on the main product is charged, and a perpetual injunction is asked in addition to damages alleged to have been sustained by the Union Carbide company in the sale and use of the product by the Duluth company.

The suit is not regarded as important by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, local attorneys for the American Carbolite company. Oscar Mitchell said today that he hadn't heard of the suit, beyond what he saw in the Chicago papers.

"There isn't anything to it," he said. "They can't get service on this corporation in Illinois because we haven't any representatives in that state. They may have filed a complaint, but it cannot amount to anything but an advertising scheme. We are sure of our ground and have nothing to fear from the suit or the result of the one now pending in New York."

The New York suit, which is still pending, was brought some time ago by the Union Carbide company against a purchaser of carbolite from the Duluth concern. The suit was brought during the existence of the defunct American Carbolite company, but the points involved are of just as much consequence to the new concern, which took over the patent rights of the former company.

The Union Carbide company claims the exclusive right to manufacture the product from which acetylene gas is made. It first brought suit aimed at the Duluth concern in the Ohio courts, but that was dropped and then the pending new York suit was brought. The Chicago action is the first against the Duluth company direct, but as no service has been obtained, it is not likely to ever come to trial.

BOUQUET FOR DULUTH.

Rock Island Official Says It is Becoming Great Railroad Center.

Railroads are beginning to look upon Duluth as a coming great railroad center, according to W. L. Hathaway, district passenger agent for the Rock Island road, who is in the city from Minneapolis, today. He says that his company gets a great deal of traffic, both passenger and freight, from the Head of the Lakes.

"We have great expectations for Duluth in our business," said Mr. Hathaway. "There is not the slightest doubt in my mind but what Duluth will be a great railroad point some day. In fact, it is now."

Mr. Hathaway stated that the road's business in the Southwest is growing rapidly, and that as that section of the country advances, as it is doing now, the railroad is extending its interests and improving its lines.

THE ELEVATED HANDSHAKE.

London Globe: It appears that some of the present day fashions owe their origin to physical defects. The elevated handshake is one of these, and a Paris contemporary throws an interesting light upon its origin. It appears that a prince, a leader of society in the French capital, had a carbuncle or some such inconvenient and painful growth on his shoulder. Whenever a friend gave him a handshake the operation, as far as the prince was concerned, was most painful. To prevent this he raised his hand horizontally to his shoulder, and, if we may use the expression, had "the whip hand."

This new method of hand shake was the astonishment and admiration of certain persons always on the lookout for the latest in society, who thought that the prince had inaugurated a new fashion, which one sees daily in operation in the Strand.

The dainty lace handkerchief which ladies use owes its origin to the defects of nature. The unhappy Empress Josephine introduced the fashion. She suffered from bad teeth, and living in the time when American dentistry was unknown, she cast about her for some means to hide the defect. The cambric handkerchief, with rich lace, was the outcome. If the empress wished to laugh, or had to open her mouth widely, the handkerchief was requisitioned.

Again, yellow lace has its origin in sadness, according to tradition. A lady of distinction had lost her husband by shipwreck, or some other cause. She was impressed with the idea that he would return and vowed to continue wearing, until he was restored to her, the lace which adorned her dress when she said farewell. Like Josephine's handkerchief, her intimates thought her soiled lace was an innovation in fashion, and adopted means to copy it.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Longs Big Sellers of Wheat in the American Markets.

May Flax is Half a Point Off at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 15.—Longs were active sellers of wheat during the session in the Amreican markets today and closing prices were off more than a point from yseterday.

Argentine shipments were large, being 1,512,000 bus, against 864,000 bus last week and 2,160,000 bus a year ago.

The Modern Miller says: "Excepting a small top growth the backwardness of wheat plant due to late seeding and drought conditions and the presence in some localities of Hessian fly, with some claims of damage therefrom, no complaints regarding the condition of winter wheat preceded the recent freeze. Snow now amply protects the plant over a large part of the country."

Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d higher, Berlin ⅛c higher, Budapest ⅝c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

The May option closed 1⅜c lower in Duluth, 1@1⅛c lower in Chicago, 1⅛@1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, 1⅛c lower in New York and Kansas City, 1¼@1⅜ lower in St. Louis and ¾c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅜c lower in Duluth, 1@1⅛c lower in Chicago and Kansas City, 1⅛c lower in Minneapolis and St. Louis and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅜@½c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼@⅜c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—As a result of the firmness in American cables yesterday and the firmer LaPlata offerings, the market here was steady at the opening and ¼ to ⅜d higher. During the morning the market gained a further ⅛d with offerings light. There was a better spot, cash markets were higher and receipts during the last few days were light. The expectations of increased shipments from Australia and the increasing shipments from Argentine, however, served to make buyers cautious. At midday the market was still steady and from ⅜d to ½d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The market was neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 14 against 55 last year, and at Minneapolis 132 against 231 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 146 against 336 last year. Winnipeg received 113 against 116 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 303,000 bus, last year 553,000 bus. Shipments, 175,000 bus, last year, 217,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 275,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 481,000 bus, last year 441,000 bus. Shipments 459,000 bus, last year 531,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 352,094 bus.

In Duluth, May wheat opened unchanged, at $1.08⅝, and sold off, with occasionally rallies, to $1.07¾, the closing price, and a loss of 1⅜c from yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed 1⅜c lower than yesterday, at $1.07⅛.

Durum wheat closed 1½c lower, and cash spring wheat was selling at the May price for No. 1 northern.

Flax closed half a point off, May flax opened unchanged at $1.60, advanced to $1.60½, a new high mark for this crop, and closed at $1.59½, a loss of ½c.

Oats closed ⅜c lower.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Timidity of Bears Has Tendency to Restrict Trading.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 15.—Timidity of local bears who have been severely punished the last two days, had a tendency to restrict trading in the wheat market today, the market ruling quiet during the early part of the day. There was no great support from bull leaders in evidence, and, as a result, sentiment in the pit was weak. News of the day was colorless. At the opening prices were ⅛c to ⅜c lower, with initial quotations on May $1.06½ to $1.06⅝. Later May sold off to $1.06⅜. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 159 cars against 147 cars last week and 363 cars a year ago.

The market became weaker as the session advanced, liberal shipments from Argentina and Australia bringing out additional offerings. For May the low point was reached at $1.05½. The market closed weak, with May off 1@1⅛c at $1.05⅝@¾.

Increased offerings of corn from Iowa and Nebraska had a depressing effect on the market for that grain. Commission houses were the chief sellers, and buying was scattered. May opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 61¼c to 61¼@61⅜c, and sold off to 61⅛c. Local receipts were 242 cars, with 7 of contract grade.

The free selling by a leading holder caused additional weakness later in the day, May declining to 60⅞c. The market closed weak, with May down ⅜@½c, at 60⅝@61c.

Extreme dullness characterized trading in the oats market, and sentiment was bearish in sympathy woth other grain. May opened ⅛@¼c lower at 51⅜c and sold at 51¼c. Local receipts were 158 cars.

Provisions were inclined to be weak owing to a 5c decline in the price of live hogs. Opening quotations were unchanged to 7½@10c lower compared with the previous close.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.05⅝@¾; July, 96⅝@¾c; September, 93½c. Corn—January, 57¼c; May, 60⅝@61c; July, 61⅛@¼; September, 61⅝c. Oats—May, 51¼c July, 46c; September, 38⅞c. Timothy—March, $4; clover, March, $9.50. Corn, No. 3, 58@⅝c; No. 3 white, 60½@61c; No. 3 yellow, 58¾@½c; No. 4, 57¼@⅝c. Oats, No. 3 white, 49@51c; No. 4, 48@49¼c; standard, 50¼51c.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

Duluth May wheat closed 1⅜c lower.
Minneapolis May wheat closed 1⅛c to 1¼c lower.
Chicago May wheat closed 1c to 1⅛c lower.
Liverpool wheat cables, unchanged to ⅛d higher.
Duluth May flax closed ½c lower.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Advance in Wheat Holds Until Noon, Then Weakness Sets In.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 15.—The market opened with yesterday's advance maintained, and May wheat holding above $1.08. This lasted until about noon, when the market turned weak and scored a material decline. Liverpool's tone was firm and receipts light. There seemed nothing to account for the break, other than letting go of long wheat, in Chicago, and a bearish construction placed upon the Modern Miller's report on winter wheat. Minneapolis got 123 cars, against 281; Duluth, 14 and 55; Winnipeg, 113 and 116. Local elevator stocks will increase 25,000 bushels for the week. May opened $1.08⅝; high, $1.08⅝; low, $1.07¾; close. $1.07¼@⅜. July opened $1.08⅜; high, $1.08⅜; low, $1.07⅝@¾; close, $1.07⅞@¾. Wheat receipts are slight and offerings for selected No. 1 northern so small that 1½c over May holds for the quotation. But the ordinary No. 1 brings only 1 to 1¼c over, and the demand for No. 2 and No. 3 wheat is only fair. Millers bought sparingly today. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.08⅜; to arrive, $1.08⅜; No. 2 northern spot, $1.06⅛@⅜; to arrive, $1.06⅜; No. 3 wheat, $1.03⅛@1.05⅛; No. 3 yellow corn, 55¼@55⅜c; No. 3 white oats, 48⅛@48⅜c; No. 2 rye, 67¾@71⅜c.

Barley receipts 45 cars against 65, shipments 70. The market was dull. Buyers appear to be awaiting. Close, 56@59c.

Flax receipts 23 cars against 47, shipments 1. One cent over Duluth May remains the selling price. Close, $1.60¾.

Millstuffs shipments 1,155. Bran in bulk quoted at $21.00@21.75.

Pacific coast millers advanced prices today which had some strengthening effect upon local sentiment as indicating general betterment in the industry, but in the increase of business locally there was not much to show. Country mills reported it quiet. Shipments, 39,638 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.25@5.45; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.10.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Assignee for Spencer, Moore & Company is Discharged.

E. A. Forsythe was today discharged as assignee for Spencer, Moore & Co., the grain firm whose failure was announced this week, as the affairs of the concern have now been so straightened out as to permit its resumption of business.

The assets of the company have been turned back to the firm.

These proceedings were carried through with the consent of the principal creditors, notably the First National Bank of St. Paul, the American Exchange Bank of Duluth and G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth.

The failure is now a thing of the past. It was a failure yet not a failure. The day after the assignee was appointed, members of the firm made arrangements for the straightening out of its affairs, so as to permit a resumption of business at once and with the approval of all concerned.

It is expected that the stock of wheat in store at Duluth will increase 165,000 bus this week and that the stock of flax will increase 20,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of corn were 163,000 bus against 81,000 bus last week and 391,000 bus a year ago.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Opened Slightly Higher, Rose Further and Closed Heavy.

Strength of Wisconsin Central and Canadian Pacific the Feature.

New York, Jan. 15.—Opening prices of stocks today were but slightly changed from last night. Gains were the more numerous, but there were a few small declines, including the copper industrials. Dealings were on a liberal scale, but the market was without any special feature.

The floating supply of stock around the opening level was soon cleaned, and bids were advanced until all of the important stocks were ruling a substantial fraction above yesterday's closing. Profit-taking sales then began, and most of the rise was lost, though some of the minor stocks continued in brisk demand. The market was quiet but fairly steady at 11 o'clock.

Strength of Wisconsin Central and the Canadian Pacific group was the feature of the belief in the coming inclusion of the former with the latter. Otherwise, prices moved upwards and downwards alternately, without pronounced tendency. Wisconsin Central shot up 6⅝, while the preferred fell 1. Canadian Pacific rose 1⅛, Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic 2½, the preferred 3¾. St. Joseph & Grand Island second preferred 2¾, and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred 1½. Chicago Great Western debentures sold at a decline of 1⅝ and New York Central and Amalgamated Copper a point. Wisconsin Central reacted 3½, and the whole market became easier. Bonds were firm.

The market closed heavy and dull. Fluctuations in the general list were not more than perceptible, but rose to upward. Obscure special stocks rose at intervals. Wisconsin Central lost all but a point of its early advance in the final dealings, and the preferred stock dropped 1⅝ below last night.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 15.—The cotton market shortly after the opening, sold 1 to 5 points net higher, with all active months, except January making new high records, on aggressive support from spot interests, commission house buying and covering by nearby shorts. The advance was checked by heavy realizing. Prices held within a point or two of the top, with the tone steady during the middle of the morning.

Spot market closed quiet; 5 points higher; middling uplands, 9.65; middling gulf, 9.90; sales 700 bales. Futures, closed very steady; closing bids: January, 9.36; February, 9.35; March, 9.39; April, 9.28; May, 9.30; June, 9.22; July, 9.20; August, 9.07; September, 9.02; October, 8.98; November and December, 8.93.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: While the horse trade was not rushing, still a fair amount of business was transacted. There was a fair request for big seasoned drafters, but the demand centered on farm mares and general purpose horses. Harness classes move slow. Two carloads of farm stuff arrived on the market, also several bunches of second hand commercial horses, most of the receipts being consignments for the big auction sale next Wednesday.

KANSAS AFTER 2,000,000 BUSHELS OF RED WHEAT.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 15.—The Canadian Pacific railway has been commissioned by the largest grain firms in Kansas to secure 2,000,000 bushels of Alberta red winter wheat for the purpose of reseeding in Kansas. Samples sent from here a few weeks ago are pronounced by Kansas wheat experts as the best obtainable for that purpose. An obstacle in the way is the duty on wheat, but congress will be petitioned by Kansas interests to reduce the duties to allow the admission of this wheat, owing to the importance to the state of securing entirely new seed.

FRIDAY, JAN. 15, 1909.

Located in the Cananea district alongside of the big Greene-Cananea properties are the Calumet & Sonora company's mines, and they are fast developing to be some of the richest in all Old Mexico. Reports are continually coming to the general office of the company, giving details in full of the uncovering of rich deposits of high grade ore bodies and it is now estimated that the ore already shown up on the Catalina group is worth $7,000,000. The company has outstanding about 47,000 shares of stock, and the shares are now trading at about $22.00.

Calumet & Sonora stock, I honestly believe, is the best purchase of any high priced copper stock in this country. The shares have been advancing fast and when the stock struck $15.00 some thought they should take profits and they did, others bought their shares and when it struck $20.00 some stock began going into stronger hands and in a couple of days those who bought at $20 will be looking for the $30 mark, and will also soon be much pleased for they will soon be able to take their profits also, but some who know the property and know the shares represent a value several times more than they are now bringing, are the ones who will make the big money. What is a ten point profit on a stock like this? Look at the wise ones who sold out their Calumet & Arizona at $20, and it went to $200, look at the wise ones who sold out North Butte at $18, and it went to $118, also look at the wise one who told me I was crazy when I advised the purchase of Ballaklava at $3 a share, and in less than one year it has advanced to $16.50, and is going higher. The Calumet & Sonora market up to $20, has been built as safe as a stone foundation for a big building and in two days it will be impossible to buy this stock at $20. Answer me this question. How can Calumet & Sonora stock drop more than a point when it is a known fact that the stock has gone into high priced hands from the low level, and when the people who have been taking it on know that the mine is worth several millions. Remember this one thing, Calumet & Sonora will not drop, neither will Butte-Ballaklava because no other two stocks have been built so carefully from level to level.

I hope the stockholders of both companies, understand me in this matter, for it is something that some of the others have overlooked. I will gladly stand back of any proposition that is right and see that the people get what is right for the shares they have in different companies, I have a world of friends and followers and even my enemies have to respect the way I have stood back of my proposition that I have strongly advised the purchase of and have not backed a dend one for over one year and a half, before that I am not understand mining propositions as well as I do now. Calumet & Sonora closed $21.75 bid to $22.25 asked. Watch it break through $25 and then go on to $30 before it stops, and from $30 it should advance to $40, and it may sell at $60 before spring. This is a live one and you can get action on Calumet & Sonora. Look at the management, as good as any in the country, where is there a flaw in Calumet & Sonora?

Ballaklava made a rich strike in the Bell Speculator vein and the stock has started to advance fast. It closed at $16.87½ bid. Here is a game worth watching, and it will be a friendly fight. Ballaklava will advance fast, for Calumet & Sonora has the lead and should sell five points above Butte-Ballaklava right along, no matter how high Butte-Ballaklava sells.

Here is something I want to say to the Butte-Montana stockholders.

That said default consists in the failure of said mortgagors to pay the sum of $752.09, which amount is due at this date upon eight (8) notes of $50.00 each and one note of $300.00, with interest on said notes amounting to $52.09, which said mortgage was given to secure.

That the said R. W. Higgins, mortgagee, has paid the taxes assessed against the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1907 amounting to $4.53; that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, including said taxes, is Seven hundred and fifty-six and 62-100 dollars ($756.62); that by reason of such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

That the property described in and covered by said mortgage is situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and is described as follows, to-wit: the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter (sw¼ of se¼) of Section fifteen (15) in Township fifty-three (53) north of Range nineteen (19) west of the fourth principal meridian, containing thirty-seven and seventy-two one hundredths (37.22) acres, more or less, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

DRASTIC BILL AIMED AT FOREIGN CORPORATIONS IN BUSINESS IN STATE

License Fee That Is in Nature of Tax Proposed.

Chance for State Aid for County School of Agriculture.

Ore Deposits Under Lakes Presenting a Perplexing Problem.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A strong bill, requiring foreign corporations doing business in this state, to give publicity to their affairs and to pay a license fee for the privilege of participating in the profits to be derived from Minnesota commerce, will be introduced in the house next Monday afternoon by Representative H. O. Bjorge of Lake Park, who is also the author of the tonnage tax bill now before the house.

While the measure is rather drastic in its provisions, and will doubtless meet with considerable opposition from the corporations affected by it, Mr. Bjorge states that similar laws are now effective in New York and Ohio, and that his bill is practically the same as the Ohio law.

The license fee required is somewhat in the nature of a tax, and in Ohio the corporations affected set up the claim that it was double taxation. The courts, however, did not sustain this view, but declared it to be not a tax upon property, but a license for the privilege of doing business.

"These companies come into Minnesota, own property here, and secure the protection of the laws of this

HILL CHARTER NOT YET GRANTED

Canadian Situation Same as Before the Money Depression.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—The position as regards J. J. Hill's threatened invasion of Western Canada, as announced from Winnipeg, is understood by railroad men here to be the same as it was before the general depression interrupted the activity in railroad construction.

Mr. Hill had acquired considerable property in Winnipeg, which was intended to be used as terminals for the new lines that were to be built from the border up to that city under a charter which was to be obtained by Canadian promoters. Parliament has not yet granted the charter, and nothing has been done to give practical effect to the scheme.

L. W. Hill Interviewed.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16.—President L. W. Hill of the Great Northern railway, on being asked regarding the truth of the statement that the Great Northern railway would invade Winnipeg and extend its line west through Manitoba to the coast, said: "It has been known for some time that we have acquired about $2,000,000 worth of terminal property in Winnipeg, also that we are asking a charter from the Dominion government for the right to construct a line from the Canadian boundary into Winnipeg, a distance of about seventy miles. It is not true that we are going to build a line to St. Paul and Minneapolis, for we already run to the Canadian boundary from here. As to the western extension in Manitoba, we have had construction work going on there for a long time."

HARD TO HUNT WITH GLASSES

British Labor Leader Warns of Perils Awaiting Roosevelt.

London, Jan. 16.—Robert Wynn, American consul general at London today called upon John Burns, the labor leader, and member of parliament and delivered a personal message from President Roosevelt responding to a message which Mr. Burns had sent the president. In his message Mr. Burns said:

"Tell the president that fears are entertained here for his welfare while in Africa. He must remember that there are great dangers there from both animals and climate and that shooting is hazardous for a man wearing glasses."

CONTEST IS NOVEL

Seat in the North Dakota House is in Dispute.

Contest Brought Against Man Who Was Not Elected.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of who is entitled to represent the Twenty-sixth legislative district in the house of representatives, is one that the committee on elections of that body will have before it next Monday. This contest presents a number of peculiar phases, especially the fact that the man bringing the contest does not bring his action against the man now holding the seat, but against another who was a candidate for the place, but who failed to secure the number of votes necessary to place him in the house.

Col. W. P. Tuttle of Dawson is at present holding down the coveted seat and has a certificate of election issued by the state board of canvassers to back up his claim. John Storey wants the seat, and he has brought contest against G. A. Heroldz, who was at one time a candidate for the position, but who has since dropped out of the race, being, it appears, tied with Storey in the general election last November. D. R. Streeter of Emmons county occupies the other seat as representative from the Twenty-sixth district, unmolested.

Col. Tuttle holds his certificate of election by virtue of a special election which was held on Dec. 28, being called when it was found that a tie vote existed between G. A. Heroldz and John Storey, while D. R. Streeter had been elected. The law provides that in case of a tie vote, a special election shall be called, and in this special election, Col. Tuttle, who was one of the low candidates in the general election, was given an enormous majority. Heroldz and Storey both refusing to participate in the special election, claiming that it was illegal and that Storey had already won out, making claims to the effect that the vote as returned in cer-

KEEFE OPPOSED BY SENATORS

Story That Appointment is Political Reward, is Revived.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Considerable opposition to the confirmation of Daniel J Keefe of Michigan, who was nominated by the president on Dec. 1 to succeed the late Frank Sargent as commissioner general of immigration, has developed in the senate under the leadership of Mr. Gore of Oklahoma.

The objection to confirmation is that a report has been made to Gore by labor leaders that Mr. Keefe received the appointment as a reward for breaking with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, during the recent presidential campaign.

Senator Gore has given notice of a desire to appear before the immigration committee and to argue his objections to Keefe's confirmation.

STRIKING HATTERS WILL APPEAL TO AMERICAN LABOR FEDERATION

Newark, N. J., Jan. 16.—The positive statement was made today by one of the highest officials of the United Hatters of North America that a direct appeal would be made to the American Federation of Labor for aid in the strike of the hatters.

This appeal is made necessary, according to the officials of the hatters, because the federation is custodian of the hatters' fund, which amounts to between $300,000 and $400,000.

When the South Norwalk local had trouble several months ago with the Associated Hat Manufacturers and a suit for damages against the national union was threatened the American Federation became custodian of the hatters' big strike fund.

Vice President Frank P. Shalvey of the hatters, addressing the Essex trades council of the federation last night, expressed the opinion that the discontinuance of the hatters' label is the first step in a general plan of the manufacturers' associations to dispense with all union labels.

THAW GETS NEW TRIAL

The Judge Will Decide Whether White's Slayer Is Sane.

Mother's Efforts in Behalf of Mattewan Prisoner Succeed.

Nyack, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Harry K. Thaw will be given a trial in New York city to determine whether he is sane. An order to that effect was issued today by Justice A. S. Tompkins, to whom an appeal, asking for a trial, was made by Mrs. William Thaw, Harry's mother.

Under Justice Tompkins' decision, Thaw will not be given a trial by jury. Mrs. Thaw's petition requested such a hearing, but as Justice Mills had already refused to grant a similar request, Justice Tompkins denied that portion of the petition and ordered that the case be heard before a court or judge of New York city, with or without the assistance of a referee, as the trial judge may decide.

The questions presented to Tompkins included the validity of the commitment, the present mental conditions of the prisoner, and whether it is now safe for him to be at large. Tompkins decided that he will not consider the question of validity, as that has been already passed upon by Justices Morschauser and Mills and is now on appeal to the appellate division. The question of Thaw's present sanity, Justice Tompkins says is entitled to be fairly tried and determined.

FOUR KILLED BY TRAIN

Sleigh Load of Merrymakers, Returning From Dance, Struck.

Baby Has Miraculous Escape, Receiving Only Few Bruises.

London, Ont., Jan. 16.—A sleighload of persons returning from a dance at Winona was struck by the Grand Trunk express early today at a crossing just east of Grimsby Station. Mr. and Mrs. M. Wilson and George Teeter were instantly killed and Mrs. George Teeter so badly injured that she died soon after.

Miss Lottie Teeter is thought to be injured internally, but may recover. Gordon Nelson was terribly injured and is not expected to recover.

The Teeters' infant had a miraculous escape, receiving only a few bruises. Both horses were killed and the sleigh was demolished.

Passenger and Freight Trains Collide Near Glenwood Springs.

Half a Hundred Persons Are Injured in the Disaster.

Relief Delayed; Impossible to Carry Wounded Around Wreck.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Jan. 16.—Seventy-one persons were killed and fifty injured, at least thirty of whom will die, in a collision at Dotsero Siding, twenty miles east of this city, between Denver & Rio Grande passenger train No. 5 westbound, and freight No. 66 eastbound, at about 10:30 last night.

The passenger was flying down the grade making for a siding about five miles west of Dotsero, where it expected to meet the freight, and the freight was also trying to make the siding. The result was a head-on collision in which the engines were smashed, the baggage car of the passenger left standing on end, one of the day coaches telescoped by the chair car behind it and fifty persons in the day coach and chair car mangled almost beyond recognition.

All the sleeping cars remained on the track and none of the passengers in them was injured.

Is a Blind Siding.

The passenger train crashed into the leading engine of the freight train, going across a switch at Dotsero, which is a blind siding. The chair car was

FIND BODIES OF AMERICAN CONSUL CHENEY AND WIFE

Washington, Jan. 16.—The bodies of the American consul, Arthur S. Cheney and Mrs. Cheney were found in the ruins of the American consulate at Messina yesterday afternoon by sailors of the American battleship Illinois, which arrived at Messina yesterday from Suez.

Capt. Bowyer of the Illinois had been instructed by Admiral Sperry, while en route from Suez to Malta, to proceed to Messina and endeavor to recover the bodies of the American consul and his wife, who perished when the earthquake devastated Messina, destroying the building of the American consulate.

When Capt. Bowyer reached Messina yesterday he sent a number of sailors ashore for the purpose of excavating the ruins in search of the bodies. They were successful in finding them during the afternoon. The bodies were prepared for shipment and taken aboard the American supply ship Culgoa, which will carry them to Naples.

Arrangements are being made for the shipment of the bodies to the United States. Having accomplished her mission at Messina, the Illinois has returned to Malta.

Arthur S. Cheney was born in Illinois and entered the consular service of the United States Nov. 27, 1906, when he was appointed vice and deputy consul at Reichenberg, Germany. He was later made consul at Messina, taking up his work there in August, 1907. When appointed to the consular service, Cheney lived in Connecticut.

Census Taking Impossible.

Messina, Jan. 16.—An official estimate of the dead in Messina as a result of the catastrophe of Dec. 28, made by Stuart K. Lupton, the American vice consul, on behalf of the American embas y at Rome, places the number at 90,000. Lupton estimates also that there are today 10,000 persons in the city. The work of getting information concerning individuals who were in Messina at the time of the earthquake is extremely difficult, as there are undoubtedly still tens of thousands under the ruins and other tens of thousands have scattered themselves throughout Sicily and the peninsula. The people still in Messina are camping out in the outskirts and it has been impossible to take a census of them.

Mr. Lupton left here today for Catania to establish an American consulate there.

To Messina and Reggio.

Naples, Jan. 16.—Paymaster McGowan has come ashore from the battleship Connecticut and will take charge of the disposal of the supplies on board the Celtic from New York. This vessel probably will be sent to Messina and Reggio.

The Bayern Arrives.

Palermo, Jan. 16.—The chartered steamer Bayern, carrying relief supplies purchased with money subscribed in the United States, arrived here today. A big crowd, composed chiefly of refugees from the earthquake district expecting relief, gathered on the water front.

RAILROAD FIGHT NEAR

Colorado Next Battleground of Hill-Harriman Forces.

Union Pacific to Doubly Attack the Colorado-Southern.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—That the Union Pacific is not to stop with the paralleling of the lines of the Colorado & Southern in Northern Colorado, but will also attack that road in the southern part of the state seems certain, and the fight between the Hill and Harriman forces for the traffic heretofore possessed by the Colorado & Southern, the system recently acquired by Hill, bids fair to be bitter.

Surveys have been made and grading done on three new lines by the Union Pacific. One force of Union Pacific surveyors has been put in the field to locate a line from Pueblo to Durango, at which point the Union Pacific is to connect with a line to be constructed by the Southern Pacific from the main line in Arizona to Durango. The Union Pacific will then connect these lines with the main line at Denver.

The first line is to be built from Platteville to Fort Collins. Surveys for this cut-off have already been made. This shortens the Union Pacific's time between Denver and Fort Collins half an hour, and makes the Union Pacific and Colorado & Southern lines practically parallel. This, heretofore, has been considered Colorado & Southern territory.

The business of the Colorado & Southern from this Northern territory, much of which formerly went to the Burlington since the acquisition of the Colorado & Southern by the Hill interests and a big railroad fight with Colorado as the battle ground apparently is the result.

MARRIAGE OF MILLIONAIRE VOID

Court Annuls, in Case of Rhodius and Elma Dare.

Greenfield, Ind., Jan. 16.—In the circuit court here today Judge Mason annulled the marriage of Millionaire George Rhodius and Elma Dare on the ground that Rhodius was not of sound mind when the marriage took place.

MACKINTOSH AFTER ACTION

By Legislature to Confirm His Election as Sheriff.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hugh Mackintosh, who was a defeated candidate for sheriff for Koochichinn county at the late election, but who became sheriff, nevertheless, is here to see if some legislative action cannot be taken to help him to keep the place. P. A. Walsh defeated Mackintosh at the election, but died on election night, just after he had learned of his victory.

The county board named Mackintosh to fill out the unexpired term. The new county board did not qualify on time and the old one, holding over, re-elected Mackintosh for the full two-year term. Then the new board qualified, but is deadlocked in the selection of a sheriff, two for Mackintosh, two for another candidate and the fifth for a third. Mackintosh claims the old board's election fixes him out, but as there is doubt he wants the legislature to remove that doubt.

The attorney general has held that election to the legislature of men holding honorary state board positions renders them ineligible and the offices vacant. This applies to Dr. David Graham of Duluth, who is a member of the state board of visitors of state institutions, and Representative Virtue of Steele county, who is a member of the board of managers of the Owatonna state public school.

EXPORTS FROM GERMANY LESS

The 1908 Figures Show Large Decrease From 1907.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—According to the records of the American consulates in Germany, exports to the United States during 1908 showed a large decrease from 1907. The grand total is $128,239,000, which means a loss of $31,153,000. Berlin shows a loss of $4,043,000, and Chemnitz, including the abolished consulates at Annaborg and Glauchau, a loss of $4,377,000. Aachen, Barmen, Frankfort, Leipzig, Nuremburg and Plauen each show a loss of more than $2,000,000. Hamburg, Stettin and Munich are the only consulates showing a gain. Hamburg advanced $514,000 and Stettin showed an increase of $2,248,000 owing to the heavy increase in the sugar business. Many of the consulates registered good gains for the fourth quarter of 1908; in Berlin this amounted to about $4,000,000.

CONVERTED BY SALVATION ARMY, HE CONFESSES TO BEING FORGER

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 16.—While Wade Hurd of this city was being tried here for alleged forgery, Isom Cox, aged 20, burst into the court room and dramatically announced that the prisoner was innocent and that he himself was guilty.

Cox said that he signed Hurd's name to a check for $15 and then went to Cincinnati to spend the cash. In that city, he said, he was taken in tow by the Salvation Army and converted.

Conscience-stricken because of Hurd's plight, Cox hurried back to free him at the trial. Hurd was at once discharged and Cox was held to answer the charge.

So impressed was the audience with Cox's story that fifty men pressed forward to sign his bail bond.

'POSSUMS MAKE HIT WITH TAFT

President-Elect Leaves Eighteen-Pounder a Mere Wreck.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—"Did you see the way the president-elect ate 'possum and taters' last night?"

This is the prevailing morning greeting in rain drenched Atlanta today.

And Mr. Taft said:

"Well, I certainly like 'possum. I ate very heartily of it last night and it did not disturb in the slightest my digestion or my sleep." There was only a shattered wreck remaining of the eighteen-pound "Billy 'Possum" that was 'toted' up to Mr. Taft's table with great ceremony at the feast last night. After several helpings to the dish, Mr. Taft received a message from a doctor sitting nearby to be careful, but he paid no attention to the warning, and this morning he is proud of the fact that not only is he very fond of 'possum, but that 'possum is very fond of him.

Bethel church had been packed for hours before Taft reached the place to deliver his address to negroes. After this he went to his special train for the trip to Athens.

HOT SPRINGS IN DANGER.

Government May Cut Off Water If City Does Not Reform.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 16.—The reform element of Hot Springs petitioned the secretary of the interior recently to cut off the hot water from the city unless better protection was offered visitors and unless gambling houses were closed. Rev. Thomas Anis, leader of the reform element, has been summoned to Washington by the secretary. The springs from which the city is supplied are on the government reservation and the action of the secretary has aroused fears among merchants.

ASK FOR REHEARING OF TAX AMENDMENT CASE

Attorneys File Petition With Supreme Court for Review.

Call Attention to Two Points That Were Overlooked.

A petition, prepared by H. H. Phelps and C. O. Baldwin, attorneys for the Duluth Real Estate exchange, which contested the judgment of the state canvassing board in deciding that the "wide open" tax amendment had been carried at the election of 1906, was filed in the state supreme court today, asking for a rehearing of the case.

The decision of the supreme court, handed down last week, deciding that the judgment of the Duluth district court should be reversed as affecting the tax amendment, and that that amendment was adopted by the people and should go into the constitution of the state, is vastly unpopular in Northern Minnesota. The attorneys who filed the petition today believe that the court erred in the decision, losing sight of some points, and attention is called to two points in the petition.

It is pointed out that instead of reversing the decision of the lower court, the supreme court should have remanded the case for further investigation. The court held that the count did not proceed far enough, and the amendment could only be declared not to have carried when the recount had been so extensive that the majority against the amendment could not be overcome by all the remaining votes being counted in the affirmative.

The attorneys point out that such being the case, the court should not declare the amendment carried, but rather should remand the case to the trial court, that the remaining ballots might be counted or such evidence received as to their contents as might be available.

The second point raised is one to which no reference was made by the supreme court in the decision. The attorneys point out that in their briefs, they contended that the election as far as it affected the tax amendment and the good roads amendment, was not legal under the section of the state laws prescribing that amendments to the constitution submitted to the electors shall occupy corresponding positions on the ballots and taily sheets. On that point, it is contended, the election should be declared void and the judgment of the people on the tax amendment at the recent election accepted as final.

J. L. Washburn was consulted by a number of local people interested in the decision of the supreme court, and asked to aid in anyway he could. In response to requests, he also prepared a brief, addressed to the supreme court by him as a disinterested attorney. The brief was submitted to Messrs. Phelps and Baldwin, and after a conference it was attached to the petition of the attorneys directly interested in the case, and the whole was submitted to the supreme court.

The petition of Messrs. Phelps and Baldwin, excepting citations, follows:

"In the decision filed by your honors in said cause, a complete reversal of the judgment of the lower court is ordered.

"In the majority opinion accompanying said decision it is said:

"'Such a contest is not, in a strict legal sense, an adversary proceeding. It is neither an action at law nor a suit in equity. It is more in the nature of an investigation for the purpose of discovering the truth.'

"And again: 'But it is not necessary or desirable that every technical rule of evidence shall be observed with extreme nicety, nor should the result in a matter of such public importance be determined by a nice balancing of presumptions and possibilities.'

"These holdings are in line with the former rulings of this court, wherein it is held that the courts will take judicial notice of the vote of the people on a constitutional amendment.

"In the trial of the above entitled action in the district court the rulings of the honorable presiding judge were to the effect that this contest was governed by the same rules as a contest between two individuals contesting for an office, and that the identity and preservation of the ballots must be shown in this case with the same degree of certainty as in any other; that the best evidence must be produced, and that the recount must have been made in the presence of the legal custodian of the ballots.

"As we understand the opinion of your honors, such 'technical rules of evidence' are not now required in order to determine in this proceeding what actually was the vote of the people on this amendment, but the court may satisfy itself as to the facts by any reasonable evidence which will aid it in such determination.

"In consequence of the rulings of the trial court sixty-five precincts that had been recounted by the inspectors were eliminated from the proofs. The objections to the recount of these sixty-five precincts were purely technical. The ballots had been found by the inspectors and as carefully recounted as any of those received in evidence. The reports of the inspectors showing the true vote in those sixty-five precincts as found by the recount are on file in the office of the clerk of the district court, where said cause was tried, and are still available to show to the court what the vote was in the sixty-five omitted precincts. The receipt in evidence of the true vote in these sixty-five precincts, will reduce the yes vote on the tax amendment 2,076 votes below what the trial court found that vote to be. In other words, if the vote in the sixty-five precincts is shown it will leave the tax amendment with a yes vote of 138,636.

"As we understand your honors to hold, if the recount had gone far enough to reduce the affirmative vote on the tax amendment to a point where by crediting the tax amendment with the larger 'yes' vote on the two amendments in the uncounted precincts, it would lack a majority, then the contestant would have made out a case. The language of the opinion is:

"It could be determined only by a recount of the entire vote or at least of such a proportion thereof that even if all the remaining votes were counted one way they would not affect the final result.

"By this language the court cannot mean that the contestant must have counted to a point where all the 'yes' votes on both amendments must be overcome. This was a case of transposition of the votes on the two amendments, the vote of the one being counted for the other, and we take it that the court means that the count should have gone to a point where, if the larger of the two 'yes' votes were credited to the tax amendment in each of the precincts not recounted, it would yet lack a majority of all the votes cast at the election.

"An examination of the official returns will show that if, in all of the precincts not recounted, the larger of the 'yes' votes on the two amendments were credited to the tax amendment, it will then have in those precincts 9,396 more votes than was allowed it in those precincts by the official returns and by the findings of the trial court.

"A change in the precincts not yet recounted of less than 5,000 votes, would, therefore, reduce the vote on this amendment to a point where it would fail of carrying under this rule as laid down by your honors.

"In practically all of the territory recounted where the official returns showed a larger 'yes' vote for the tax amendment than for the goods roads amendment, the vote on the two amendments was found to have been transposed in recording it on the tally-sheet. The only exceptions were two small precincts in Jackson county. This being the case in the seventy-three counties, portions of which were recounted by the inspectors, there is every reason to believe that the same state of things exists in the remaining territory not recounted, and that therefore a further recount would continue to reduce the affirmative vote on the tax amendment so that the additional 5,000 change required to reduce the vote on that amendment to the point where it would fail of carrying, under the rule now announced by your honors, could undoubtedly be secured.

"Your petitioner verily believes that if instead of absolutely reversing the judgment of the lower court, as has been done by the order of your honors already filed you will remand the case to the lower court with power to further investigate and receive further proof of what the vote on this amendment was in the precincts of the state not already recounted, that it will be possible to yet get at the truth and know what the people actually did in voting on this amendment.

"Your petitioner is not informed as to whether or not the ballots in the uncounted precincts are still in existence, but if they are not verily believes that it will be possible to prove in many cases what the vote actually was on said amendment by secondary evidence.

"Certainly what ought to be desired in this matter is the truth. If the people voted this amendment in it ought to be declared a part of the constitution. If they did not it ought not to be so declared. Every reasonable means ought to be used to arrive at the truth.

Election Is Void.

"In the opinion filed by your honors no mention is made of one point raised by respondant's counsel in their briefs and we therefore conclude that the court has overlooked it.

"The point in question is the one to the effect that the election on this amendment was void.

"The election was not held in accordance with the provisions of law as the statutes require the amendments to be in the same order on the ballot and tally-sheet. They were not in the same order. The erroneous count was the result. If it is impossible to ascertain the truth in consequence of this error, then the election ought to be held void. We respectfully refer the court to the authorities cited in respondant's briefs already on file.

"The counting of the votes is as much a part of the election as the casting of the ballots. The ballots might be cast but if never counted, nobody would know the result and there would be no election. To have a legal election it is therefore essential that there should be a legal count. Is the count legal when the machinery provided for making it, is so out of gear that the vote for one proposition is credited to another?

"We will concede that it is the rule that where it is possible to ascertain the truth regarding the vote at an election, the election ought not to be held void and under the rule adopted in this case by the trial court it was possible, but under a rule which requires all the votes to be recounted, or requires the recount to go to an extent sufficient to overcome all the votes cast in the remaining territory a different proposition presents itself, and one which we believe the respondent should have a right to fully argue before your honors.

"We ask the court to consider the magnitude of this error. In 589 election precincts recounted an error of 15,337 votes was found on this amendment, and this is not guess work nor presumption, but is actual fact found by the trial court and not disputed by anybody. Was ever an election where such a gigantic error was conclusively shown allowed to stand by any court? Here are numerous authorities which show such an election to be void.

"The same cause which led to these errors of over 15,000 votes in 589 precincts was present at each and all of the other precincts. Ought not the court to fully consider the question as to whether or not this was a legal election?

"Wherefore, your petitioner prays that your honors will grant a rehearing in this matter and will reconsider the decision already arrived at by the court, and that if your honors cannot affirm the judgment of the trial court you will at least remand the case for further investigation upon the facts.

"Dated Jan. 14, 1909.

FAMOUS OLD LANDMARK IS SCORCHED BY FLAMES

Windsor Hotel Damaged to Extent of Several Thousand Dollars.

Old Eyesore Burns With Dense Clouds of Black Smoke.

The old Windsor hotel property, located at the southwest corner of Superior street and Fifth avenue west, owned by C. E. Henderson of Maryland, was damaged by fire this afternoon to the extent of several thousand dollars, only partly covered by insurance.

The blaze started at 12:30 o'clock. The exact cause doesn't appear to be known, but as near as the firemen were ables to ascertain up to 1:30 o'clock, it was due to a leak in the gas main in the basement, under the Levine saloon, which occupied the corner of the building facing Superior street and Fifth avenue. Just how the gas became ignited is a mystery.

While no flames were to be seen from the street, the dence volumes of smoke pouring from the building made a spectacular sight, and a crowd consisting of thousands of people, soon gathered to watch the efforts of the firemen. The flames were confined almost entirely to the basement, although the clouds of smoke in the upper part of the building were so dense as to make it almost an utter impossibility for the firemen to remain there at their work.

Dense Smoke Clouds.

Four fire companies responded to the aairm. Company No. 3 was first on the scene. No. 3 arrived shortly afterwards, and when the seriousness of the fire became evident, Nos. 2 and 4 were sent for, arriving in the order given. The engines were connected with hydrants at the corners of Fifth avenue west and Superior and Michigan street, and Superior street and Fourth avenue west. For a time all traffic was blocked and the thick smoke filling Superior street, and blowing eastward, made it impossible to see for more than half a block, which made it appear that the fire was bigger and of more importance than at first appeared.

The Windsor hotel and wooden store building adjoining, the two occupying a frontage of seventy-five feet, were valued at about $40,000, and paid some of the highest rentals in the city. The Superior street corner was occupied by Gus Levine's saloon, and the building adjoining, on Superior street, was occupied by the Manhattan Clothing company, and owned by C. H. Meyers.

Mr. Meyers valued his stock at $18,000, with $11,500 insurance. While his stock will not be greatly damaged by fire, it will be so thoroughly saturated with smoke and water as to be practically a total loss. The flames spread so rapidly in the wooden building, and the smoke in the upper stories became so thick that nothing but the cash register was taken out of the store. By a curious coincidence, Mr. Meyers had begun a closing out sale, preparatory to quitting business, and had a tray ordered for 1 o'clock to remove the safe from the store. He says several thousand dollars in unredeemed pledges are in the safe. It is believed all these went through the fire unharmed, however.

The Levine saloon stock was valued at about $20,000, with about $15,000 insurance.

The Michigan street floor of the two buildings, and the rear of the second floor, was leased by William Goldstein, and occupied by employment offices. The employment offices escaped without any damage, aside from a little inflicted by smoke.

The store building is two stories high on the Superior street side, and three on the Michigan street side. The Windsor hotel proper, of wood above the stone foundation, is three stories high in front and four behind. All the space above the second floor, and a part of the second floor between the saloon and the National Employment office, which occupies the rear of the second floor, facing Fifth avenue and Michigan street, was used as a cheap lodging house. It escaped almost unharmed, although the smoke and water damge will amount to something.

An Old Landmark.

The Windsor hotel has been a picturesque landmark in Duluth for the past thirty years. Erected three decades ago, it was what was considered a first-class hotel for this section in those days. The building and property upon which it was located, besides the lost adjoining on the west, was purchased twenty-five years ago by C. E. Henderson, who at present resides in Maryland. He is still extensively interested in Duluth real estate, and the corner in question is considered one of the most valuable in town.

For the 75-front-foot property and building it contained, he paid $75,000, and the property now is worth much more.

Eighteen years ago he announced it as being his intention to make the corner one of the most attractive in the business district, and started to build a brick and stone business block, that would have been eight or nine stories in height. He built the foundation and walls of the first floor around the Windsor hotel, intending to have the hotel moved so that he could finish the remainder of the building. The tenant, who had a lease running for a time longer, objected to being ousted.

The story goes that he had influence with the city council, and that he used it. Whether this is true or not, the fact remains that the council refused to allow Mr. Henderson to remove the Windsor hotel until he paid a large indemnity.

Mr. Henderson became so enraged at what he termed the unjustness of this proceeding, that he vowed he would never complete the building, and swore that as long as he lived, the corner should be an eyesore to Duluthians. Up to the present time he has kept his word, for there is not an uglier-appearing corner in Duluth than the one in question. The combination of a brick and stone foundation for a business block, with a dilapidated, unpainted, ramshackle wooden structure sprouting out from its middle, makes about as homely a picture as could be imagined.

"Too bad the firemen got here so soon," was an expression issuing from hundreds of throats in the crowd today.

It is said Mr. Henderson has received attractive offers for the property, but has refused them, and has refused to make further improvements, because of the vow he made almost twenty years ago. He is immensely wealthy, and has secured a good income from the rentals on the buildings, old and dilapidated as they are.

There was a story on the streets today to the effect that Mr. Henderson had been offered $3,200 a front foot for the corner. When asked concerning this report Mr. Stryker, of Stryker, Manley & Buck, the real estate firm which handles the property for the owner, said he had heard the same report a short time ago, and had written to Mr. Henderson concerning it, receiving a reply that there was no truth to the report. Mr Stryker said the value would run something more than $2,000 a front foot.

The Windsor hotel and stone walls around its lower portion, are insured for $5,000, and the frame store building adjoining it is insured for $4,000. The buildings run through to Michigan street.

INVENTS A NEW GAME

Physical Director Starts Water-Basket Ball at Y. M. C. A.

Third Boxing Class Organized; Water Tournament Progressing.

August J. Frey, who is at the head of the physical department of the Y. M. C. A., is an inventor. He has invented a new game which those who frequent the swimming pool are crazy about.

He hasn't named it yet, nor has he taken out a patent, but it will likely be called water basketball. According to those that have tried it, it is the most fun of anything yet tried out in the pool, and it is being played at every opportunity.

The same rules that are used in the floor game are used in the water game with a few exceptions. As in the floor game there are two baskets located at the ends of the pool and raised from three to five feet out of the water. The basket must be shot while treading water or while swimming, and it is a foul to duck another fellow, or hold. Advancing with the ball is strictly prohibited.

On the occasion of the water tournament to be held soon, and to which the women are being invited, there will be a game of water basketball, the first game of this kind ever seen in Duluth. "The Brook Trout" of the swimming pool, will give an exhibition of floating and will, while doing his stunts, keep several news items from a paper just to show how apt he is in the art of floating.

Dr. Chapman, who is said to be the most graceful diver in the city, will give an exhibition of fancy diving.

Among those who are framing up stunts for the carnival are: Charles McKay, Harry George, J. Lathrop, W. Matteson, Heimer, Kirk, Dr. Pahey, H. Johnson, A. Johnson, A. Nelson, G. Bally, E. Bradley and many others.

The basketball team took a rest last week and just to keep in practice Friday evening took on one of the high school teams.

Next Friday evening the team meets the fast squad from Floodwood, and the week following Company I of Superior will be met on the latter's floor. Following this game, the Duluth team will journey over to the city beyond the swing bridge for three consecutive Friday nights to meet the Nelson Dewey, Blaine and normal teams in the order named.

The handball court is going to be entirely refitted the first of the week. The room will have a new coat of plaster, and may be out of commission for a few days.

The third boxing class will be organized next Friday evening. When the first class started it was doubtful whether enough for one class could be found, but so much interest has been shown, and so many have been clamoring for admittance, that it is thought a fourth class will have to be formed.

Plans for the big wrestling and boxing tournament are progressing, and it is expected that it will be a big success.

HOCKEY LEAGUE NOW A SURE GO

Enthusiasts Going Ahead With Renewed Energy--- First Game Tuesday.

Contrary to the report published some time ago, the Amateur Hockey league is going to go ahead and do things.

Plans for a rousing meeting to be held at the store of the Northern Hardware company Sunday afternoon have been made.

It was through a misunderstanding that the captains did not get together on the night planned for the meeting last week. At the meeting Sunday the names of the players will be submitted and passed on. A schedule will be arranged and plans perfected so that actual playing will begin probably Tuesday.

The different teams have been practicing this week at the rink on Tenth avenue west and Third street.

All the teams are on the lookout for promising players, and if present plans are carried out Duluth people will see fast hockey the rest of the winter.

TUCKER STAR OF BONSPIEL

Pardeeville Rink is Sensation of the Week at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tucker, the sturdy Pardeeville man, is the shining hero of the bonspiel. The man who handed Dunbar his first defeat, put Evan Rees out of the Duluth event this morning in a crushing defeat, 15 to 4. Tucker is now in the finals of the Duluth and Minneapolis events. The Pardeeville rink has made them all sit up and stare.

Everybody is glad of Tucker's success as it will encourage a larger number of entries from small towns in the future. Heretofore the less known curlers have felt that they had no chance against the big fellows.

The morning scores follow:

Canadian Soo—Dunbar, St. Paul, 11; Stewart St. Paul, 5.

Duluth event—Tucker, Pardeeville, 15; Rees, St. Paul, 4.

International event—Griggs, St. Paul, 14; Jones, Duluth, 6; Brewer, Duluth, 11; Langford, St. Paul, 8; McLeod, Duluth, 10; Lobbatt, Minneapolis, 4.

Consolation—Neil, Winnipeg, 8; Bradley, Duluth, 9.

MOTOR TALK

The Touring Club of France now has a total membership of 115,000, principally automobilists and bicyclists.

In 1900 there were sixty-nine exhibitors of automobiles at the first automobile show in New York. This year there were 286.

A club has been organized at Findlay, Ohio, having for its object the promotion of sociability and the opening of a campaign for good roads.

It is estimated that 35,000 motor license tags will be issued in Pennsylvania this year, as compared with 26,000 in 1907.

Maine has a blind chauffeur who is earning a reputation of being one of the most capable and careful handlers of automobiles in the entire state. His name is Charles Underwood.

Wherever the motorist goes France, Germany, Italy, Russian, Turkey, China, Egypt or Dahomey, he finds gasoline sold in the same style American 5-gallon cans of commerce that he sees at home.

A luxuriously equipped automobile stage or motor 'bus has been put into service between New York and Lakewood, N. J., for the special benefit of the society people who reside in the Jersey pines during the winter.

The value of the exhibits at the Grand Central Palace show in New York was $1,000,000; the exhibition space 70,000 square feet, the lowest price car shown $150, and the highest $15,000.

In California they have begun to put car demonstrators in uniform. The plan is said to work well, as prospective purchasers are more apt to ask questions freely than if the driver were in ordinary clothes.

Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, has plunged into motoring with his usual enthusiasm for sport, according to a dispatch from Berlin, and will reduce the imperial stud one-half owing to the increase in his motoring equipment.

Recent police investigations in Bohemia into a supposed miners' labor association, which turned out to be an anarchistic organization, have brought to light a large quantity of books, papers, documents and letters of a highly incriminating character, and it was found that the bulk of correspondence with anarchists abroad was caried on in Esperanto.

NEED MEN AS TEACHERS

Boys of Sunday Schools Should Have More Male Instructors.

Other Recommendations Made by Sunday School Committee.

Some time ago, when Fred H. Goodman of New York was in the city working under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. associations of the country, trying to bring the association and the Sunday schools of the country into closer relationship, a committee was appointed to take the matter up.

They have just finished their report, which is as follows:

"Before tabulating your report we wish to commend the management of the Y. M. C. A. religious work, for having brought Mr. Goodman to this city, and we believe we are voicing the sentiment of those who have attended the Institute when we suggest, that it would be profitable if arrangements could be made, to have Mr. Goodman visit us at least once each year, in the same capacity as at that time.

"There is a great need of work in this city so far as interesting men and boys in the study of the Bible is concerned, and we regret that the apparent lack of interest, which seems prevalent at the present time can be done away with through organization and the suggestions offered in the following facts:

"We note the following statistics taken from the recent census of churches in Duluth: Total Sabbath school attendance for eight churches, 1896; boys over 12 years, classes, 356; attendance 284; men's classes, 3; attendance, 315; total attendance, 599. Average male attendance, 31 2-3 per cent.

"1. We recommend that a strenuous effort be made to secure male teachers for boys between the ages of 12 and 18. Experience has taught those of us who are connected with the work that men are needed and needed now. We do are, as a rule, more effective. We do not lose sight of the fact that there are many ladies who have been very successful with the boys' classes. But there are times in a boy's life when he needs the confidence and assistance of a man.

"2. It is also the recommendation of your committee that there be systematic co-operation on the part of the atic co-operation on the various Sunday superintendents of the various Sunday schools of this city, with a view to keeping a proper record of pupils who are transferred from one Sunday school to another, and increasing the efficiency of the work of the superintendents in general.

"3. That the Y. M. C. A. establish a confederation of teachers from the churches for the consideration of difficulties so numerous with boys between the ages mentioned ages.

"4. That in the matter of teacher training classes for men, the principal object should be to instruct men how to teach boys' classes.

"5. That a Sunday school athletic league be established.

"6. That an extension Bible class be established at each church, its teacher to be a member of the training class at the Central building.

"7. We recommend a graded plan for the systematic study of the Bible among men and boys.

"In conclusion we wish to express our approval and commendation of the Religious Educational Federation plan, which was so ably presented by Mr. Goodman, and which is working toward the same goal as the Sunday schools of this city hope to reach by mutual co-operation.

"W. H. SHACKEL,
"ANDREW NELSON.

WILL MEET IN DULUTH

Probate Judges of Minnesota to Come Here Next Year.

Oppose Repeal of Inebriate Farm Law at St. Paul Meeting.

The State Association of Probte Judges of Minnesota will meet in Duluth next year. Just before the association adjourned at St. Paul Wednesday. Judge Middlecoff of the St. Louis county probate court invited the association to visit Duluth next year. The invitation was unanimously accepted.

The association will gather here, Jan. 12, 1910, and will be in session just one day. By that time, it is hoped to entertain the judges in the new courthouse and the fame of St. Louis county's beautiful building will be spread through the state by that medium. About forty delegates usually attend the session.

One of the most important actions taken by the association at St. Paul was the passage of a resolution commending Chapter 288 of the Laws of 1907, providing for establishing a state inebriate farm. The resolution is in opposition to the move said to be contemplated by the legislature to repeal the law at the present session and copies of it will be sent to every representative and senator.

"Probate judges probably come into contact with inebriate insane more than any other officials, and their advocacy of the establishing of the farm should have some weight," said Judge Middlecoff, who returned last evening from the convention. "We have cases weekly in which men are run down from the effects of drinking and insane after a fashion, but they are hardly subjects for the insane asylums. A special permit is necessary to get them into the insane asylum and then they are only kept until they sober up, being turned out to go right back to drink again.

"The inebriate farm will supply a want. The law is one of the most charitable passed by the Minnesota legislature in a good many years, and I hope the legislature now in session turns down the attempt to repeal it.'

"The law provides for a fund made up of 2 per cent of the money received from liquor licenses to support the farm, and the law has been declared constitutional. A tract of 640 acres at Willmar has been settled upon as a site for the farm, and if the movement to repeal the law fails, the farm will probably be established during the present year.

RAILWAY AND VILLAGE CLASH

Brookston Would Compel Great Northern to Cover Crossway.

The village of Brookston and the Great Northern Railway company have become involved in a row over a street crossing that has reached the district court. The village filed a complaint this morning, demanding an order compelling the railway company to cover a railroad crossing at Second avenue, in compliance with an order of the village council.

The complaint sets forth that the company has failed to build a crossing where its main track and switches cross Second avenue. The matter was taken up by the village council and an order was served on the railway company, giving thirty days for the construction of the crossing. The company hasn't made a move, though the order was served Nov. 10.

The company has demurred to the complaint, claiming that the village has no cause for action.

A woman in Portland, Or., willed her husband $1, and to be sure that he did not squander it made provision that it should be paid him in monthly instalments of 10 cents.

WEST DULUTH INDUSTRIES ARE ALL FLOURISHING

Nearly 1,500 Hands Employed in Factories This Winter.

Reopening of Mill Will Give Work to 300 More.

Though an industrial relaxation may exist in other cities, West Duluth's manufacturing and milling enterprises seem to be little affected this winter, judging from the number of men who are now being employed by West Duluth companies.

Though the day of the lumber mill is gradually passing in West Duluth, the other industries are enlarging and increasing constantly, so that the loss of the lumber mills will soon be overcome by the growth of the other industries. A few years ago, when all the West Duluth lumber mills were running full force, summer and winter, hundreds of men found work in them. Now every mill is closed, except the Red Cliff, which during this season only operates its planing mill, which requires only seventy-five men. In the summer that company's other mill is in operation and more men are employed. There is a report, however, that the Virginia & Rainy Lake company anticipates opening its mill in West Duluth by Feb. 1, and will keep employed two full crews, night and day, of 150 men each.

Along other lines manufacturing seems to be flourishing. It is through the growth and enlargement of such companies as the Zenith Furnace company, the National Iron works, the Union Match company, the American Carbolite and the Elliott Packing company, that the loss of the sawmill industry is being partially if not wholly counterbalanced.

The Zenith Furnace company is now by far the heaviest employer of labor in West Duluth. That company has now on its payroll 750 men. In the season of navigation, when men are needed about the docks, the number is increased by from 50 to 100 more.

There are now employed in West Duluth, not counting the men working in stores and at smaller industries, at least 1,450 wage earners, and if the Virginia and Rainy Lake Lumber company starts up its sawmill, there will be added to this number 300 more.

With the completion of the improvements at the Elliott company's plant, that company will increase its force. It now employs seventy-five men.

C. J. Petrushke's box factory is not running a full crew at present. The factory employs only forty-five men, which is 40 per cent less than it does in its busy season. The Duluth Tar company has recently closed down for a time. The Duluth Brass works is employing only a small force of men. But in spite of this, 1,435 men are employed at West Duluth plants this winter.

The West Duluth mills, factories, etc., and the men they employ are as follows:

	Number of men.
Zenith Furnace company	750
National Iron works	180
American Carbolite	120
Union Match factory	175
Red Cliff Lumber company, (more in summer)	75
Elliot & Co. (more soon)	75
C. J. Petruschke's box factory (dull season)	45
Alger-Smith mill (closed in winter)	500
Zenith Broom factory	15
Virginia & Rainy Lake mill, (Feb. 1, 300 men)
Duluth Tar company, (closed)
Duluth Brass works
Total	1,435

LOCOMOTIVE JUMPS RAILS

Engineer and Fireman Remain in Engine and Escape Injury.

A serious accident was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon when a locomotive, backing on to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern trestle, was derailed and ran for some distance on the ties at the very edge of the trestle.

The fireman and engineer had presence of mind enough not to jump, though both clung to the outside of the engine, expecting that at any moment it would plunge to the ground, forty feet below. If it had left the trestle it would probably have meant death to them, or serious injury.

The engine, which was drawing a number of cars of crushed stone, was backing over a switch, when the wheels left the track. The engineer instantly closed the throttle, but the engine did not come to a standstill until it had bumped along for several feet on the ties.

A derrick and wrecking crew were at work yesterday, and today hoisting the locomotive back on to the tracks. It was a ticklish job, for the least false move might have hurled the unsteady engine from the trestle.

Energetic Campaign.

A thorough campaign of the Seventh ward is being carried on by the friends of Lucien Merritt, candidate for alderman from that ward, on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Merritt himself was in West Duluth this morning visiting the voters. Several Democratic ward meetings have been held, and a strong organization has been formed. Each precinct has its captain, who is working for the candidate.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers have been made through the office of L. A. Barnes, recently: The east 50 feet of lots 14, 15 and 16, block 57, West Duluth, Second division to David Horwitz, consideration $3,000; the east half of lot 129, block 139, Duluth proper, Third division to Elmer S. Parsons, consideration $900; lots 11 and 12, block 77, West Duluth, Sixth division to Otto Haller, consideration $600; lots 13, block 25, Oneota, to A. Bertilson, $1,400; lot 14, block 34, West Duluth, First division to Barbara C. Heidt, consideration $315.

The hotelkeeper in Providence, R. I., who went into bankruptcy the other day should turn waiter and become rich again.

BODY FOUND NEAR TRACKS

Ole Trulson Meets Horrible Death Under Engine Wheels.

Was Employed on Railroad Job by John Runquist.

Ole Trulson, a blastman, 58 years old and employed by John Runquist, the contractor, met a horrible death this morning at about 7 o'clock on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern tracks not far from the Fifty-ninth avenue west spur.

As far as is known no one witnessed the accident. Trulson left the boarding car on the switch, before the rest of the crew, and walked up the track.

Later, when the remainder of the men were going to work, they found his dismembered body lying beside the track, which was spattered for yards with blood. The head and legs were nearly severed from the trunk.

From the location of the body and its mangled condition Trulson evidently was struck by an engine. The body was taken to M. J. Fillatrault's undertaking rooms. It is believed that the man is single, and it is said that he formerly worked on the railroad near Two Harbors.

OPPOSED TO AMENDMENTS

Commercial Club Holds Warm Debate on Proposed Changes.

"Resolved, that this club is opposed to each and all three of the proposed amendments to the city charter relating to street improvements, and we believe it to be to the interest of the city that said propositions should be rejected, and we pledge ourselves to work and vote to that end."

The above resolution was passed last evening at the regular weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, after much discussion

The meeting, which was an open one, was well attended, a large crowd being present. As was announced, the entire time of the meeting was devoted to the discussion of the amendments. There were many men present who favored the amendments, and there was a warm debate before the matter was decided by vote.

At the club's regular meeting next Friday evening, the remainder of the amendments will be taken up for discussion, and action will be taken as to whether the club will support them or not.

DAUGHTER AS WITNESS

Tells How Father Was Content to Live on Her Earnings.

Left Family to Starve While He Went Trapping.

The sympathies of all present in the municipal courtroom this morning at the trial of Frank Koski, charged with wife desertion and non-support were enlisted, when his daughter, a very pretty child, just 17 years old today, told a story of almost unbelievable cruelty. At the close of the testimony of the child and her mother, the only witnesses, Koski was given a straight jail sentence of ninety days.

The beauty of the girl and her testimony, given with flashing eyes and flushd cheeks, could not help but have its effect. The girl stated that while she was earning from $1.75 to $2 a day at the match factory, her father was content to stay at home, but when her earnings dwindled to 94 cents a day, he quit the family and went to the woods to trap and hunt, leaving his family of six children, of which she was the oldest and a baby of 15 months, the youngest, to get along the best they could.

The last money that he gave to the family, the child said, was on Nov. 10, when he handed over $10. After that he lived on her meagre wages, finally leaving them for the woods. On the day before Christmas he returned to find them half starved.

He stopped with them only over night, and when he left offered to give them $4.50. After they had spent that, he said that he hoped they would starve. The mother threw the pitifully small sum back in his face.

The testimony brought out that Koski in times of passion threw knives, plates and forks at his wife, whose deafness provoked his wrath. Sometimes they were thrown with such force that they would stick in the walls.

When the father left for his last hunting and trapping trip, just before Christmas, he took with him every morsel of food in the house, and also two blankets which were greatly needed by the family.

He was arrested near Iron Junction in a camp.

RELIEF CARS ARE TIED UP

Train Bearing Injured From Colorado Wreck Is Halted.

Derailment Causes Stoppage—Most Fatalities in Chair Car.

Caused by the Collision of Two Denver & Rio Grande Trains.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—To add to the horror of the wreck, a second relief train on its way to Glenwood loaded with injured has been tied up by the derailment of some of the freight cars. The first relief train bearing a number of the more slightly injured reached Glenwood this morning, bringing reports of the wreck, which appears to have been one of the worst in the history of railroading.

Most of the slaughter was done in the chair car. Of sixty-nine passengers in that coach, sixty-eight are said to have been killed. The only human being to escape was a six-year old girl, who was found under the body of her mother and who is too near dead to remember her name farther than that it is "Alice."

Little identification of the dead has been made, according to the reports reaching Glenwood. The dead are in many instances so horribly mutilated that identification will be very difficult.

It was from the chair car that the worst of the dead were taken. The known dead:

GUS OLSON, engineer on the passenger train, Salida.

Known injured:

Sig Olsen, engineer on freight train badly injured, may die.

J. T. Jeffrey, engineer on freight engine, badly injured; may die.

St. Paul Man Unhurt.

Others injured are: John Rosso, Cleveland, Ohio; Thomas Elliott, Pendleton, Iowa; W. Adair, Ravenna, Ohio; T. B. Miller, Denver; Mrs. C. Blanke, Wapolin, Mo.; Charles P. Mance, Mrs. Charles P. Mance; William Barber, Anthony, Kan.; B. F. Haven and child, Buffalo, Okla.; Fred Jensen, Iowa Falls, Iowa; Mrs. Nellie J. Morton, Standish, Cal.; Mrs. A. W. McCauley and child; W. C. Maxey, Los Angeles; J. B. Thompson, Brookings, S. D.; F. Chandler, Denver; Clyde B. McGowan, Pullman conductor; Clarence Vassau, Middleboro, Vt.; D. E. Cannon, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Among those who were on the train and escaped: Dr. Charlotte Hall, St. Paul, Minn.; Emma Strafford, Cleveland, Ohio; Mary E. Speare, Cleveland; Mertle Speare, Cleveland; E. L. Roff, Winside, Neb.; Hugh Gregg and family, Harrisburg.

According to information received here, the wreck was caused by the failure of Engineer Gus Olson of the passenger train to correctly read the time indicated by his watch. When nearing Dotsero, Olson looked at his watch and read the time to be 9:45 p. m. It was then 9:50. Thinking he had plenty of time to make the next siding below Dotsero, he pulled the throttle of his engine wide open and was making forty-five miles an hour on a down grade when he collided with the freight, which was laboriously climbing up the hill, under a full head of steam of two engines.

When the passenger did not stop at Dotsero, Conductor Edward McMurdy jumped to the bell cord and signalled to the engineer to stop the train, but it was then too late to avoid the disaster and the two trains crashed together with terrible impact.

Crushed Into a Mass.

The three big engines telescoped, and when they came to a standstill, resebled one huge piece of twisted steel and iron rods and mechaism. The combination baggabe and express car, the smoker and the day coach, which followed the engine, telescoped, while the three heavy Pullman sleepers and diner crushed them into a mass against the engine. The day coaches were smashed.

Everybody, except one in the chair car was killed. Eight of the passengers were decapitated, as though by a guillotine, their heads rollign from their bodies. Most of the bodies of the dead are mutilated so badly that identification will take hours. The only person to escape was Alice Williams, 4 years old, from some point in Iowa. She was found under her dead mother, guillotine, their heads rolling from head to foot with blood. The child was taken to Glenwood Springs in the second relief train.

The second member of the train crew injured was John Anderson, who in jumping sprained his ankle. Engineer Gus Olson of the passenger is a brother of Sig Olson, who was in charge of the head engine of the freight train. Harry Jeffreys was the engineer in the second engine. Both Sig Olson and Jeffreys live at Glenwood Springs. The wreckage caught fire immediately after the collision and a holocaust was avoided by passengers who were not killed or seriously injured, and the members of the train crews, who secured shovels and boards and put out the blaze with snow, which is piled in huge banks alongside the tracks.

It was at first supposed that the two mail clerks, Hammond and Frazee, or No. 5 were killed, but it later developed that it is the custom to cut the mail car at Pueblo and send it on by No. 1 an hour later instead of a half hour later so as not to delay the through train by stopping to load the heavy mail that they generally pick up at Pueblo.

RAILROAD NEWS

NIGHT SHIFT WON THE RACE

First to Let Daylight Into Wisconsin Central Tunnel.

There has been a spirited race between the day and night shifts of the Wisconsin Central workmen employed in the tunnel, the western part of which was partially completed yesterday morning at 4 a. m. There was the greatest rivalry to see which of the two shifts should have the honor of breaking through the western opening. The night gang had the honor of making the western portal into the great outside, and when the first pick broke through the opening there was a shout from the workmen that made echoes ring throughout the length of the tunnel.

Shift Boss H. P. Thurne was the first man to go through the opening. He was followed by Robert Thompson, foreman of the night shift, and F. J. Cullen, engineer.

The completion of the heading of the western portion of the tunnel, means that the hardest work of the tunnel has been completed. The benching remains to be completed, and also the eastern portion of the heading.

INCORPORATES BRANCHES.

Idaho, Montana and South Dakota Divisions Under One Management.

A circular from the offices of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company of Washington, which was received in Duluth today, says that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company of Washington has taken possession of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul of Idaho, of South Dakota, and of Montana, and that these different branches of the Milwaukee system have been brought under the management of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railroad company.

H. R. Williams of Seattle will be president; E. P. Sewall of Chicago, vice president; A. M. Ingersoll of Tacoma, vice president, and H. H. Field of Seattle, general counsel.

Since the Milwaukee has become one of the big continental lines of the country, with the construction of the Pacific coast branch of the line, the move has been made to bring all the branches of the line under one management. The Missouri river will be the dividing point between the Eastern and Western divisions of the road. It is believed that the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railway company will have the supervision of most of the western affairs of the road.

ANSON "BROKE" AND ADMITS IT

Pioneer Baseballist Tells Court He Cannot Pay Bill.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 16.—"Busted." This is the financial condition of Adrian C. Anson, former baseball leader, as expressed by himself in Judge Fry's debtors' court today. Mr. Anson was explaining why he could not pay a bill of $111. He admitted the possession of a baseball bat, a first baseman's glove (relics of former greatness) and two or three baseballs, but for these he claimed and received exemption. His income, he stated, depends on the success of his semi-professional team, "Anson's Colts."

SINGULAR LOVE TRAGEDY IN PARIS

Young Girl, Forbidden to Go to Dances, Shoots Herself.

Paris, Jan. 16.—A singular love tragedy has been recorded. Lucienne Milloret, a 16-year-old workgirl, fell in love with a grocer's assistant in the Rue Nationale. The girl, in the language of the country, was serieuse; that is to say, she loved with one object in view, to marry the man of her choice some day. She met her sweetheart once a week at a Sunday hop. Unfortunately for the lovers, the girl did not take her parents in confidence. On Sunday, when she was about to start for the usual rendezvous, her father insisted on knowing where she was going, and when informed that she was bound for a dance, he objected to her going out. The girl took the matter tragically. She went to her room, and a few moments later a revolver shot rang out. Lucienne Milloret had lodged a bullet in her head. She died in the Cochin hospital.

Wreaths from the emperor and empress were placed on the coffin.

Charcoal Removes Stomach Poisons

Pure Charcoal Will Absorb One Hundred Times Its Volume In Poisonous Gases.

Charcoal was made famous by the old monks of Spain, who cured all manner of stomach, liver, blood and bowel troubles by this simple remedy.

One little nervous Frenchman held forth its virtues before a famous convention of European physicians and surgeons. Secheyron was his name. He was odd, quaint and very determined. His brothers in medicine laughed at his claims. Thereupon he swallowed two grains of strychnine, enough to kill three men, and ate some charcoal. The doctors thought him mad, but he did not even have to go to bed. The charcoal killed the effects of the strychnine and Secheyron was famous. Ever since that day physicians have used itt. Run impure water through charcoal and you have a pure, delicious drink.

Bad breath, gastritis, bowel gases, torpid liver, impure blood, etc., give way before the action of charcoal.

It is really a wonderful adjunct to nature and is a most inexhaustible storehouse of health to the man or woman who suffers from gases or impurities of any kind.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal, sweetened to a palatable taste with honey.

Two or three of them cure an ordinary case of bad breath. They should be used after every meal, especially if one's breath is prone to be impure.

These little lozenges have nothing to do with medicine. They are just sweet, fresh willow, burned to a nicety for charcoal making and fragrant honey, the product of the bee. Thus every ingredient comes to man from the lap of nature.

The only secret lies in the Stuart process of compressing these simple substances into a hard tablet or lozenge, so that age, evaporation or decay may not assail their curative qualities.

You may take as many of them as you wish and the more you take the quicker will you remove the effects of bad breath and impurities arising from a decayed or decaying meal. They assist digestion, purify the blood and help the intestines and bowels throw off all waste matter.

Go to your druggist at once and buy a package of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents. You will soon be told by your friends that your breath is not so bad as it was. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Students Will Have Chance at Prizes for Essay Writing.

Manual Training for Girls —The Zenith and Senior Plays.

The opportunity for extensive work in essay writing has been offered within the last week to the students of the high school.

In order to encourage the students to take up this line of work, Mr. Smith offered several inducements for the writing of essays. These are in the form of prizes, which are being offered for competition by different organizations all over the United States. The most important, perhaps, is the contest being conducted by the W. C. T. U., which is a national one. They have offered a prize of $50 in gold for the best essay on the subject of "The Value of Total Abstinence to a Life." In this competition, prizes will be given for the best essay in each city and each state and the best one of all these will get the big prize.

Another contest will be the one carried on by the G. A. R. This organization gives prizes every year for the best essays on some historical subject. The object is to encourage a greater interest in the great Civil war. This year, being the anniversary of the birth of Lincoln, the subject will be "Abraham Lincoln." The competition will be for the colleges, high schools and grade schools. The first prize in each class will be a gold medal, the second a silver one, and a bronze medal for the third. They will have suitable inscriptions and the names of the winners on them and will be presented at the next encampment. Mr. Smith has added to this by offering bronze medals to those of the different classes who write the best essay on the subject of "Abraham Lincoln." The English teachers are taking this matter up with the pupils and it is expected that a great many will enter the competition.

Much interest is being taken all over the country in the coming centennial of Lincoln's birth. Not to be behind the times, the high school will show its love and reverence for the great president by suitable exercises. By the time the day arrives, everyone will have learned the Gettysburg address. Mr. Smith suggested that everyone learn this masterpiece, and the English teachers are seeing to it that the suggestion is carried out. An effort will be made to secure Marcus W. Bates as a speaker for the occasion.

A new field of activity will be opened for the girls of the school next semester. This will be manual training. Heretofore only the boys have been permited to acquaint themselves with that very interesting place where all the queer loud noises come from. Since the room is quite crowded now, only ten senior girls will be given the privilege of learning to drive a nail without hitting the thumb. The senior girls will draw lots to see who the lucky few are. Manual training may be taken instead of "trig" or economics.

Some one suggested that in anticipation of the calamities that might result, an infirmary be opened, or at least plenty of court plaster and arnica be provided.

At a special meeting of the junior class yesterday, an attempt at settling the much-discussed hop question, was made. The restriction of the faculty in regard to the class hops has aroused a lot of criticism and opposition on the part of all the students, and perhaps no rule of the faculty's has ever been as unpopular as this. The lower classes claim that unless all the school is permitted to come, that they can not make their expenses, and will not be able to give them at all. Furthermore they point out that the senior hop was not crowded and therefore the others would not be. A while ago the juniors appointed a committee to consult with Mr. Smith on the subject but they did nothing. Mr. Smith appeared before the class yesterday, personally. After much deliberation they decided that they would give a hop of some sort and since there was no other way out of it, they will have the party all to themselves. And so the seniors will have to be content with only two class hops unless they give them outside the school.

A meeting of the Zenith board was held yesterday afternoon, at which much preliminary work was accomplished. The main question was in regard to the class pictures. Samples were presented by the different photographers of the city, but a final decision as to who shall do the work, will not be made until next week, when all the bids will be in. Also the shape and size of the book was determined and several other matters attended to. The committees were urged to get their work under way, and the other classes will be reminded that they are supposed to contribute to the Zenith also.

Mr. Denfeld appeared in chapel Friday morning and gave a little talk as is his custom. There probably is no one whom the school likes to hear more than Mr. Denfeld, and the students enjoyed his talk very much.

What has happened to the debaters? At the library, at any time from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until about 9:30 in the evening, six very much over-worked and wild-eyed young men may be seen digging in massive volumes. These are the "martyrs," who will be sent against the strong Pine City team, which comes here to debate on the evening of Feb. 5. At present the Pine City team seems to have the advantage in all ways. It has a great reputation, but Duluth Central high was never known to give up without a struggle, and that is the spirit with which the Duluth men will try to overcome the "Bedeites."

Preparations are being made for the senior clas play, which will be put on soon. As yet the play has not been selected, nor the actors, but the whole thing is in the hands of Mr. Custance, so a success is assured. Mr. Custance has several plays under consideration and as soon as a decision is made, work will begin. The school is delighted over the fact that Mr. Custance will have charge of the production. Mr. Custance has succeeded in making the senior class play one of the institutions of the school, and no one else has ever been able to put on such clever and such pleasing plays as he has, so his return into the theatrical business will be welcomed by the whole school.

The seniors had an easy time beating the freshmen at basketball last Tuesday. It was the first game of the season, and owing to the loss of the captain, the game looked dark to the seniors, but they won out 34-28. On next Tuesday another interesting game will be played between the juniors and the sophomores and the outcome is very doubtful. But when the juniors and the seniors clash, there will be "something doing" and it will be a great fight.

JAMES KELLY,
President of the Freshman Class.

THE WEEK AT THE NORMAL

Lengthening of Session Hours Does Away With Athletics.

The Athletic association held a meeting, the first one since vacation, to decide upon a course of action for this term. Since the school session has been lengthened until after 3 o'clock the work enjoyed by the members of the association has had to be discontinued. It was decided, therefore, to drop the athletics for this term, but keep the association together, by other means, until next term when, by a new arrangement of the session, it may be possible to resume the athletics again.

A committee was appointed to make arangements for a social gathering to be held in the near future. Those on the committee are: Sadie Stevens, Margaret McClellan, Clara Hanson, Ruth Raleigh and Ethel Eckert.

As a part of the work in the Senior domestic science class, it has been the custom, for three or four girls at a time to serve a meal to which they may each invite a guest. The menu is planned by the girls themselves, a limit being put on the cost of the provision, however, and all the food is prepared and cooked by them.

This week a very dainty breakfast was served at 3 o'clock, however, in the domestic science dining room by Theresa Fiebiger, Faye Cook, Alice Guerin and Ethel Eckert. The guests at the breakfast were: Miss Pettingill, Miss Murray, Mrs. Lyons and Miss Emmeline Higgins.

Next week members of the other division of the cooking class will serve a luncheon.

The members of Miss Long's division of the literary society gave their first program yesterday afternoon at a closed door meeting, held in Mrs. Lyon's room. The numbers on the program were exceptionally good, especially in view of the fact, that this was the first attempt of the students to take part in any such meeting.

The program was as follows:

Vocal solo, Ethel Eskert.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used.' Doctor Says Rockefeller Will Live to be 100 Years Old.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 16.—John D. Rockefeller's physician, H. F. Biggar, declared yesterday there was no truth in the report that his patient was suffering from rheumatism.

"He will live to be 100 years old," said Dr. Biggar. "He avoids worry, he takes plenty of exercise in the open air, he never overloads his stomach and always gets up from the table a little hungry. If men would follow Mr. Rockefeller's physical methods we would all be young at 70."

ADVANCE IN FUR PRICES

Some Classes Are Higher Than They Ever Were Before.

Average Is Good All the Way Through the List.

"We have been in the business for nearly forty years, but very seldom during all that time have we witnessed such prevailing high prices for most all kinds of furs, as at present. Some furs are now higher than ever before, and in our opinion it would be wiso for the trapper to take advantage of present conditions, for fear there may be a decrease a little later."

This extract from the January raw fur catalogue of one of the largest dealers in the country, with headquarters at Chicago, will be encouraging news to the scores of trappers scattered through the Duluth district. An examination of the list in question shows a high average of prices, although in a few individual instances the scale is somewhat below that of a year ago. This is because a failing off in the fashion of that particular fur.

The humble skunk is now worth $2.75, if he be of fair size and his fur is fine. This is a jump of $1 over the prices at the opening of the season. To the average person living in the city, $2.75 probably looks like pretty small pay for killing and skinning his skunkship, but to professional trappers it is no more trouble than killing and dressing a chicken, and it looks like big pay to them, for the simple reason that the skunk, next to the muskrat, is about the easiest animal there is to trap, and in a district where they abound a man can make big money while the supply lasts.

When the season opened in November it was predicted in some quarters that the average prices prevailing this winter would be lower than usual. Either an unexpected shortage in the supply, or a sudden change of fashion, favoring furs more than any other material for coats and other wraps, has changed the situation, and practically every class of fur has advanced over the prices quoted in November and December.

Here are some of the prices quoted by the wholesale dealers in raw furs, showing what can be obtained for first-class pelts from animals which are to be found in Northern Minnesota: Mink, $7, muskrats, 35 cents; otter, 22; lynx, $15; grey fox, $1.50; red fox, $6.50; fox, cross, dark in color, $20; marten, $20; fisher, $12; beaver, $8.50; timber wolf, $4; wild cat, $3; white weasels, 40 cents.

These prices are for large, prime skins, of the right coloring. Those of inferior quality are graded and priced accordingly.

WILL CURE DYSPEPSIA

Whatever You Eat Will be Digested Leaving Nothing to Ferment.

You Are Unnecessarily Suffering From Stomach Trouble.

Miserable indeed is the man or woman whose digestive system is unstrung—who goes to the table and can not eat or what little is eaten seems to fill them and lays like a lump of lead in the stomach, refusing to digest.

If you, dear reader, suffer this way and will put on your wraps now and get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and eat one 22-grain Triangule after your next meal you would appreciate, five minutes later, how long you suffered unnecessarily.

There will be no more Indigestion—no misery in the stomach—no sour risings or Belching of Gas, no Heartburn, Flatulency or Eructations of undigester food and acid or feeling of Nausea, Fullness, Headache or other symptoms of a weakened Stomach.

Stomach trouble and Indigestion vanish like snow before the blazing sun.

When Diapepsin works your Stomach rests—gets itself in order. Diapepsin purifies and sweetens a sour stomach and freshens the intestines without the use of Laxatives, and what is more, it increases the gastric juices. This is what your stomach is begging for—more and better digestive juices. This is what makes you hungry and want to eat, and you can rest assured what you then eat will be taken care of properly and not left in the stomach to ferment and turn to gas and acid, and poison the breath with nauseous odors.

Get a 50-cent case from your druggist now—you ought to have Diapepsin about the house always. Should one of your family eat something which does not agree with him or her, or for a Sour Stomach or Excessive Gas, one triangule will always give immediate relief.

REYNOLDS IS BADLY BEATEN

Real Estate Dealer Assaulted in Garfield Avenue House.

W. H. Reynolds, a local real estate man, appeared at police headquarters this morning in a badly battered condition, and swore out a warrant for one Joe Williams, whom he said had beaten him without provocation, on Garfield avenue, last night.

According to the story told the police, Reynolds had gone down on the avenue to close up a real estate deal in which a boarding house run by Ann Haggett was involved.

She asked him to stay to supper, which he did. Williams came in while he was sitting at the table, deliberately took off Reynolds' glasses and then started in to beat him. He apparently did a very thorough job.

FACTS TO THINK ABOUT.

How Many Out of Every One Hundred Grown Persons Suffer from Stomach Trouble?

It is an established medical fact that the greater part of human ailments have their beginnings in the stomach. A well stomach means wood health, while a sick stomach always invites disease.

You can get the stomach well and keep it well by taking Beecham's Pills. No better remedy was ever compounded for Indigestion, Stomach Pains, Flatulence, Acidity of the Stomach, Nervous Dyspepsia or any of the ailments that arise from a disordered Stomach, Liver or bowels. Beecham's have been the standard stomach pill for over fifty years. Sold by all druggists. 10 cents and 25 cents a box.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ELY'S CHARTER NEEDS AMENDING

Business Men's Club Is in Favor of Proposed Change.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Business Men's club discussed the question of amending the city charter at their last regular meeting.

The charter is deemed deficient at present in that it does not permit the city to bond or borrow for the purpose of improving the system of sewerage and water.

At present the main sewer is merely the creek channel on the south edge of the city and is an open sewer soon after the creek crosses the Iron Range Railway company's right of way at the depot, exposing the residents in that section to contagious disease and the unpleasantness, in general, of living near an open sewer. This sewer is constructed on private property and on account of using the creek channel for a main sewer, the sewage does not carry away as it would were the sewer made of regulation sewer pipe. The probabilities are that a new main sewer will be constructed on First avenue that will take care of all of the sewage of the city, and will be built, no doubt, entirely beyond the limits of the city, and instead of discharging the sewage, as at present, into the lake, a septic tank will be provided, in which all of the sewage will be treated with acid that will destroy any germs that may be in the sewage.

This is the recommendation of the health officer to the city council and no doubt some such improvement will be made in the near future. Another feature of the plan is that instead of the property owners along the avenue on which the main sewer will probably be constructed, standing the expense they will not be required to pay two-thirds of the cost, as is the custom and law here in other construction work of laying sewers and water mains, for those property owners have already borne their sewer and water taxes, and since the improvement will be for the benefit of the entire city, it should be so borne.

Gans of the local More hospital spoke on the "Prevention of Tuberculosis," discussing the necessary care needed in keeping the house clean, and the need of the enforcing of the anti-spitting ordinance, which, he said, would help much in combatting the disease. He spoke about the promiscuous kissing at the depots, and said that that helped breed the disease. He said it would be a good idea to have a hospital for advanced tuberculosis cases. Christopher Easton closed with a short talk about ventilation, and needless kissing. He said a good sign at depots would be:

"Do your kissing at home."

Dr. F. J. Patton of Duluth, who was to have spoken this afternoon, will be unable to attend, and will address the mass meeting Sunday afternoon. Dr. Westbrook, one of the well known state authorities on tuberculosis, will also be unable to appear. Dr. J. J. Ecklund of Duluth will speak in Swedish. SMALL FIRE IN PROCTOR HOTEL

Starts in Attic, Damage From Smoke and Water Resulting.

Proctor, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire in the upper part of the Proctor hotel, a two-tsory frame structure, managed by Henry Babin, yesterday afternoon bid fair to do considerable damage, but it was extinguished by the department before it had gained much headway. The rooms in the upper story were more or less damaged by smoke and water while a large hole in the roof shows what the fire might have done had its advance not been checked.

The fire was discovered about 4 o'clock. An alarm was turned in and the department was promptly on the scene and soon had streams of water playing on the blaze, which seemed to be confined to the attic. It was soon extinguished and sighs of relief swept over the crowd that gathered about the burning structure, fearing the worst. The origin of the fire has not been learned if it had broken out at night, when the sleeping apartments were occupied, there might have been an appalling loss of life as the building being frame would offer fine material for flames.

SEVENTY LIVES LOST

telescoped and the first passenger coach was wrecked. It is said that not a single person in the day coach escaped.

It was impossible to carry the wounded around the wreck. This delayed the relief to passengers for more than an hour.

The passenger train was going at a high rate of speed when it reached the siding at Dotsero. It is supposed that the engineer of the passenger thought the freight had passed the siding, and was going too rapidly to stop his train when he saw the danger. The great locomotive attached to the passenger train was demolished, and the chair car and passenger coach were turned on their sides and shattered.

With the arrival of the relief train from Glenwood Springs, it was possible to start the work of rescue of the bodies. The injured were pinned under the wreckage, and the heroic work of the passengers of the rear cars saved many lives. Some of the injured were terribly mangled.

Was Well Filled.

Train No. 5, which was wrecked, left Denver yesterday morning. The train was well filled with passengers, many of whom were to get off at this point. Dotsero is a blind siding with no station and no telegraph office. When the relief train reached the scene it was found that a long string of freight cars on the freight train were in the way and the only way they could be disposed of was to back them to Shoshone, eight miles from the accident. The physicians and nurses, however, left the relief train as soon as they reached there and ministered as best they could to the dead and dying.

A special train with Amos C. Ridgway, general manager of the Denver & Rio Grande and other Denver officials of the road on board, left Denver at midnight last night for the scene of the wreck. The special was given right-of-way over the Colorado Midland, and Denver & Rio Grande, and made a record run to Dotsero.

"Nothing Is Known."

New York, Jan. 16.—In the Union Pacific railroad offices here today, it is said nothing is known of the road's reported plan to begin the construction of a line paralleling the Colorado & Southern in Northern Colorado. It was stated that these roads already parallel each other at some points in the state, notably from Denver to Greeley and that a part of the Colorado & Southern's lines are now used by the Union Pacific.

The report of the intended rivalry with the Colorado & Southern was attributed to the announcement of plans for minor extensions of some of the Union Pacific's branch lines in this territory.

WANTED BY THE ST. PAUL POLICE

Alleged Jewelry Thief, Arrested in Duluth, Has Bad Reputation.

James Baldwin, the man who was arrested in the Esterly jewelry store some days ago, charged with stealing a small packet of pearls, is badly wanted by the St. Paul police.

According to a letter received this morning by Chief Troyer of the local department, Baldwin stole two diamonds in St. Paul, lifting them on the street.

He tallies with the description furnished, and it is likely that he is the man wanted.

His examination has been set for Tuesday morning and his bail has been set at $500.

Baldwin will in all probability be returned to St. Paul, for the police there say they have a sure case against him. His partner in St. Paul, who was with him when the gems were stolen, is already under arrest there.

Chief Troyer has photographs and Bertillion measurements of the man wanted, and they agree exactly with those of Baldwin. In St. Paul he went under the aliases of James Smith, James Sawyer and James Johnson. He is 27 years old, and is said to be an old offender.

John Carlquist Brought Suit Against the Wrong Company.

The $20,000 damage suit of John Carlquist against the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, was dismissed by Judge Dibell in district court yesterday afternoon. The motion of the defendants for a dismissal was granted, it being shown that the Negaunee Mining company owns and operates the Negaunee mine in which Carlquist was injured, the Cleveland-Cliffs company having only a small interest in it. It was held the suit could not properly be prosecuted against the Cleveland-Cliffs company.

WEST END

SKI MEN TO HAVE MASS MEETING

West Enders Will Push the Project for a New Slide.

Some evening next week, a mass meeting of West enders who are interested in skiing will probably be held, to form an association to establish a ski slide in that part of the city.

The project has been much talked of, and West enders have expressed approval of the plan. They agree that a slide in their section of town would be a good thing, one much appreciated, and have assured the projectors of their support.

All that seems to have stood in the way has been the lack of persons to take the initiative and now that obstacle seems to have been removed. A. O. Anderson has announced a willingness to push the proposition and he will probably call a mass meeting for an early date.

It is planned to erect a slide on one of the hills near Lincoln Park. There are many devotees of the skiing sport in the West end and they have agreed that the Lincoln Park location for a slide, is an admirable one.

Those who are urging the erection of a slide in the West end wish it to be understood that they are not antagonizing the Duluth Ski club in any way, but feel that they should have a practice slide in their end of town, as it is too far for them to go to Chester hill every time they want to do a little jumping.

MANY OPPOSING STATEHOOD BILL

Delegates From Territories Find Adverse Sentiment Among Senators.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Numerous delegates from New Mexico and Arizona, here to press the claims of those territories for statehood, have learned that the senate leaders do not propose that the statehood bill shall pass at this session. This decision has been reached at an informal conference of senate leaders. It was aid that there was not enough time remaining of this congress to enact the necessary legislation. The statehood measure generally prolong the debates. It is said that there are a number of questions to be settled, among which will be by the decennial census and many members of congress therefore urge that statehood be delayed.

PATHOS AT FUNERAL

Of Baby Girl Who Was a Victim of Destitution.

London, Jan. 16.—Incidents of profound pathos were connected with the funeral today of Maggie Massey, the baby girl of a man out of work, who was evidently regarded by the unemployed as a sacrifice to the prevailing distress. Maggie's parents were discovered by the band of people, who under the name of God's army, are doing a noble work among the starving denizens of Birmingham's courts and alleys. Father, mother and five children were in absolute destitution and three of the children were suffering so severely that they were removed to a hospital, where Maggie, the baby, died. Her body was borne back to the poverty-stricken home in which her little life was spent, and workless men and women assembled at prayers in the squalid yard today prior to the funeral. It was a moving requiem. George Dunkley, under whom the relief work of God's army is conducted, led the service.

During eight weeks this organization has fed 16,000 of the hungry. It carries relief to points untouched by official and semi-official machinery. Help is now called for to succor children who cannot have the advantage of the free breakfast at schools.

VICTOR HUGO'S SKETCHES,

Bequeathed to Paris Library, in Danger of Being Sold

Paris, Jan. 16.—The courts are at present dealing with an action which has arisen over Victor Hugo's sketches. In the great writer's will appeared this sentence: "I give all my sketches, and all that is found written or sketched by me to the national library of Paris, which one day will be the library of the United States of Europe."

For some reason or other these sketches remained in the possession of M. Georges Hugo, the grandson of the poet. The sketches, as well as the furniture in the flat occupied by M. Georges Hugo, now run the risk of being sold. In order to avoid this eventuality, which is held to be contrary to Victor Hugo's will, two solicitors, representing the grandson and his aunt, demanded that the sketches and two busts might be removed from the sale. The president of the referee's court has acceded to the request, and has ordered the sketches and busts to be confided to the guardian of Mme. Adele Hugo until the court has given its decision on the matter.

"HEADING" OF WISCONSIN CENTRAL TUNNEL COMPLETE WITH EXCEPTION OF 300 FEET

BLASING A WAY FOR THE WISCONSIN CENTRAL, THROUGH DULUTH'S GRANITE HILLS.

The above picture represents a flashlight view taken in the tunnel of the Wisconsin Central, at the West end of the tube, just before the heading of the tunnel was cut through to its western opening, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues west. The west opening has been cut through since the photograph was taken, and at the present time there is a clear space between the west end of the tunnel and the center shaft, at Tenth avenue west.

The eastern end of the tunnel extends to Eighth avenue west. The heading, or upper part of the tunnel, is completed to Eighth avenue, with the exception of a space of 300 feet, midway between Eighth and Tenth avenues west.

The tunnel is 1,450 feet long. With the exception of the space of 300 feet of the heading, there is a clear space the entire distance. With the completion of the 300 feet of uninished heading, the work upon the bench, which is the lower part of the tunnel, will be started. The bench is the easiest work of the construction, so that with the completion of the heading the hardest work of the tunnel will be completed.

When the tunnel is completed it will be sixteen feet wide. It will be in the neighborhood of 25 feet in height. This width will be ample for a single track. The tube, before the placing of the concrete walls and arches, is about 22 feet wide. The concrete walls are 22 inches thick, and they are built under the timbers that were used to hold up the earth.

The work upon the tunnel was started in January, 1908. It is a matter of guess work when the tunnel will be completed, but as over two-thirds of the tunnel is finished at the present time, it will probably be completed and ready for business by the first of next year.

One hundred and sixty men are at work upon the big tube at the present time. They work in night and day shifts. They never cease laboring upon the subway entrance to the city. Dinky cars are run into the tunnel and the dirt and stone are loaded upon them. These cars are run out at the shaft at Tenth avenue, where the dirt is placed upon standard cars and hauled away.

The above picture represents the heading of the tunnel. The remainder of the work upon the tunnel consists in digging down a distance of fifteen feet, and placing the retaining concrete walls in the sides of the tunnel.

NEW PUMP IS NEEDED

Gas Pumps Inadequate to Supply Water to Middle District.

New Building Will Be Erected Near Old Reservoir.

A new pumping station, equipped with a large electric pump, is planned by the water and light department to supply what is known as the middle district. Manager L. N. Case has already advertised for bids for the pump and plans will be prepared as soon as possible for the pumping station.

The new station will be located on the property purchased by the board last year, just east of the old reservoir near Chester park, between Sixth and Seventh avenues east. The entire middle district, or all of that territory in the East end above an elevation of 275 feet above the level of the lake, is now supplied by two gas pumps located at the old reservoir. Each pump is of fifty-horse power and has a pumping capacity of 562 gallons a minute. Only one of the pumps is run at a time so that the other may be held for relief, and the pumping capacity of the station is inadequate.

The electric pump to be located in the new pumping station, as recommended by Manager Case, will have a capacity of 75,000 gallons an hour, or a little in excess of the capacity of both gas pumps now in use. It is planned to move the pumps now in use to the new station and use them in case of emergency. With both pumps running in relief, almost the pumping capacity of the electric pump will be maintained.

About half a million gallons of water are pumped daily into the middle district. The district is constantly growing. Numerous new residences are planned to be built there during the coming year, and the half million gallons now pumped must be almost doubled in the near future to supply the needs of the district. With the site already available, the water and light commissioners believe they should go ahead and provide the new station so that it will be ready before the district outgrows the present pumping facilities. Woodland is also supplied by the station, the Woodland pump repumping the water to the suburb.

About $15,000 will be expended on the new building and pump. The pump will require several months to manufacture, but the contract will be let as soon as possible and the new station is expected to be operation some time next summer.

DRASTIC BILL AIMED AT FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

state," said Mr. Bjorge, yesterday afternoon, in speaking of his bill. "I do not see why Minnesota should not follow the example set by these other states, and help out its revenue by imposing a reasonable license fee, as a preliminary to admitting these corporations to the state."

The license fee provided for is one-tenth of 1 per cent annually upon the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the corporation that is represented by the property owned and used and the business transacted in this state; the minimum annual fee to be $20.

This would mean that if a foreign corporation doing business in Minnesota had an authorized capital stock of $10,000,000, and its Minnesota property and business amounted to $7,500,000, it would have to pay an annual license fee of $7,500 into the general revenue fund of the state. If its Minnesota business only stood for $100,000 of its capital, its license fee would be $100 a year.

Mr. Bjorge has made no estimate of the amount of money this measure would bring into the state treasury every year, but it would probably amount to a great deal, and would go a long way toward reducing or ultimately wiping out the direct state tax.

In addition to the license fee provision, the annual statements required to be filled would include information on the following subjects: Name of corporation and where organized; location of principal office; names of the president, secretary, treasurer and members of the board of directors, with postoffice addresses of each; date of annual election of officers; amount of authorized capital stock and par value of each share; amount of capital stock subscribed for, amount of capital stock issued and amount of capital stock paid in; name and kind of business in which the corporation is engaged and the place or places of business both within and without the state of Minnesota; name and location of offices in Minnesota, and names and addresses of officers and agents of the corperation in charge of Minnesota business; value and nature of property owned and used by the company in Minnesota, where situated, and the nature and value of property used outside Minnesota and where situated.

Failure to make the required reports or to pay the required license fee, involves a fine of $100 and a penalty of $25 for each day the report or payment is withheld.

Mr. Bjorge will also introduce a bill requiring foreign corporations to pay the filing fees provided for in the present law upon their authorized capital; now the payment is required only upon issued capital.

As St. Louis county has voted to establish a county school of agriculture, its people will be interested in the bill introduced by Lawrence H. Johnson of Minneapolis, providing for state aid for such schools. Also, they will do well to keep track of the progress of Mr. Johnson's bill in making further steps in the creation of the school proposed for St. Louis county.

Mr. Johnson's bill provides for state aid in the construction and maintenance of four county agricultural schools, and as this aid is to be extended "first come first served," to the first schools complying with the provisions of the bill, St. Louis county may be able to be first on the ground, if the bill passes, and to get the assistance of the state in carrying out its pending project.

The present law requires the people to approve the establishment of the school, but it provides for no state aid. The bill introduced by the former speaker of the house, who has always taken a keen interest in county agricultural schools, allows county boards to provide for the school upon petitions of 100 freeholders, and it also provides state aid for the first four schools established. The measure contemplates schools costing from $20,000 to $30,000, and the state would give $15,000 each to such schools, and pay two-thirds of the annual maintenance cost up to a maximum of $4,000 each. Thus if St. Louis county got under this bill and provided a $30,000 school, costing $6,000 a year to run, the state would pay $15,000 of the cost and $4,000 of the cost of maintenance.

First, however, there must be a school established, and the county board must create a county school board composed of the county superintendent and four others not members of the county board. The community getting the school must donate a site of at least ten acres. When a county board has decided to establish a school, has made a levy for building it, and has appointed a county school board, the board is to give notice to the state superintendent, who will extend state aid as described to the first four counties making the required arrangements. The bill carries an appropriation of $60,000 for aid in the buildings costs, and $16,000 for annual maintenance cost.

The house committee on mines and minerals took up yesterday afternoon the Bendixen and L. H. Johnson bills, carrying out the recommendation of State Auditor Iverson that the state lay claim to the ore deposits underlying meandered lakes and rivers. Both bills are substantially the same, and they will be joined together before being returned to the house as the Bendixen-Johnson bill.

Attorney General Simpson was called in to discuss ways and means of making the proposed measure effective. There is a very important, very delicate and very interesting legal point involved, and as the bills as they stand provide no way of getting this point into court, the attorney general was instructed to devise an amendment that will provide for positive action on the part of the state that will result in an effective test of the state's right to the lake bed mines.

As the matter stands now, there is said to be a considerable quantity of iron ore underlying certain lakes in Northern Minnesota. The shores are owned by private individuals or corporations, and possibly in some cases by the state itself. These riparian owners have what the lawyers call a right in expectancy to these submerged rights, which practically means that though they only bought and paid for a certain number of acres on the lake shores, if the lakes ever dry up they expect to follow the receding water line and acquire the land laid bare. The state, for its part, has control of the waters. But in this situation, providing the lakes do not dry up, there is no possible way of using these ores.

What the folks back of this measure want to do is to have the state declare its right to these submerged ore beds, and then by issuing leases to some of them and thereby involving itself in a lawsuit with the riparian owners, find out if it does actually own the lakebeds, or if they must lie there until the lakes are dried up or are stealthily drained off.

While lawyers, some of them, anyway, are skeptical of the state's claim in this matter, the lay members of the house who are back of the bills figure that there is everything for the state to gain and nothing for it to lose, and that therefore it might just as well as not make a try to get these valuable ore deposits.

The house railroad committee yesterday afternoon decided to take up for a special hearing next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the several measures relating to the anti-pass law, the operation of the exceptions from these include the Nimocks bill, which would let policemen, firemen, salvage corps members, health commissioners and letter carriers in uniform ride free on street cars if the street railways will let them, and Representative Spooner's bill, which cuts the railroad and warehouse commissioners and their employes out of the list of exceptions and adds mail carriers to it.

As to the latter measure, it is asserted that it is due in part to the claim that during the last campaign employes of the railroad and warehouse commission were riding about the state on passes boosting the candidacy of one of the members of the commission.

No bill has yet been introduced, but there will undoubtedly be some consideration of the cases of those honorary employes of the state who are also railroad attorneys or physicians, and who unquestionably come under the provisions of the anti-pass law as it stands today. A conspicuous example is Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, who has accepted the honorary position of member of the state highway commission because of his interest in good roads, but who will be compelled to pay fare upon his own railroad because of his acceptance of the honor.

J. L. Washburn of Duluth, who as an attorney for the Northern Pacific railroad, is entitled by the anti-pass law to ride free, is compelled by his acceptance of the honorary position of member of the state normal school board to pay fare.

The house committee on general legislation started its season's work well yesterday afternoon by killing two bills. One was the Mork bill, providing for a bounty for killing crows, 5 cents for adult crows and 3 cents for youthful crows. The other was Representative Spooner's bill, reducing the maximum contract rate of interest in this state, from 10 to 8 per cent. Mr. Spooner stated that he offered the bill merely to test sentiment upon it, and that he had no personal interest in it. The committee was practically unanimous that the time has not yet come for making this reduction, so the bill will be recommended to the house Monday for indefinite postponement.

Senator D. S. Hall of Buffalo Lake yesterday renewed his attack of two years ago upon the corrupt practices act with a bill providing for its repeal. The measure was defeated then, though there was considerable feeling against the law.

The corrupt practices act is a very conspicuous example of an excellent idea that hasn't panned out. Nothing could be more praiseworthy than the object of this measure, which was to attack corrupt practices in elections by limiting the amount of money that candidates could spend, and by restricting the purposes for which it could be laid out. A candidate could spend so much only, and it could spend it in certain ways only. That is the law, and a very good law it is; but it has been, in practice, an absolute absurdity, and its only effect has been to put a premium on perjury.

Scarcely a candidate for any office worth while fails to violate it, both as to the limitation of amounts expended and as to the restriction of purposes for which money is expended. Every candidate is supposed to swear to his election expense statement, and if he does, in nine cases out of ten he swears to a lie. The law provides proper punishment as a means of enforcement, but still it isn't enforced.

Clearly, it is doing no good as it stands. It ought either to be enforced or repealed. It is needed, too; but its enforcement is needed more than its mere inert presence in the statute books.

What the legislature will do with it, it is hard to say. It will hardly repeal it; perhaps it may devise a new way of making it really effective.

John G. Lennon's resolution politely offering Lynn Haines, the sleuth of the People's Lobby, a place at the press table, has occasioned a divided sentiment in the house. That part of the resolution which assures the People's Lobby that the legislature has nothing to conceal, that it welcomes investigation, and that the rule against lobbyists does not apply in its case, is satisfactory to everybody; but the indorsement of Haines does not go well.

Two years ago Haines got a committee clerkship, and in that capacity he acted as agent for the Loftus Shippers' & Receivers' association, and "muckraked" the house members—and senate members too, for that matter—in a string of country papers. He didn't use the best of judgment in this enterprise, so he was discharged. Thereafter his correspondence became more bitter still, naturally, and during the election he sent his matter to districts where it helped to make it exceedingly interesting for some candidates. Some of his dates for re-election. dates for re-election. Some of his charges might have been true; others were probably greatly exaggerated or wholly untrue.

But those who were his victims feel that if the house bows and scrapes before him and extends him the privileges of the floor, it will not only indorse all he has said about members, but it will give him undue advertising.

So it is likely that at Monday's session a substitute resolution will be offered of a slightly different tenor. It will be most polite to the people's lobby, and it will court that interesting institution's fullest investigations. But it will cut out the personal reference to young Haines, and will assume the people's lobby that the house will receive hospitably any duly accredited agent who will tell the truth and nothing but the truth, and who will not use his position to vilify members without cause.

Representative John Goodspeed of Minneapolis has returned to the legislature for a third time after a long intermission, and he is most outspoken in his admiration for Duluth and the class of men it sends to the legislature. He was first acquainted with Duluth's representatives in the session of 1893, when the Duluth members were Leonidas Merrit, James A. Boggs and Joseph B. Cotton, and he retains pleasant memories of all three. John Zelch, a member of the present house, was also in that session, which included in the legislature such well known oldtimers as Frank A. Day, Ignatius Donnelly and Ole C. Canestorp in the senate, and in the house Sam Langum, J. J. Furlong, Daniel Shell, S. R. Van Sant, Allen J. Greer, Charles F. Staples, John H. Ives, Hiter H. Horton, Philip B. Winston, Edward T. Young, Jacob F. Jacobson, Robert C. Dunn and Hans P. Bjorge. Senator Canestorp, who is in the above list, is a member of the present senate. Mr. Goodspeed was also a member of the house in 1899, when the Duluth house members were George J. Mallory, George F. Davis, T. M. Pugh, Andrew Miller, George R. Laybourn and N. C. Nelson. Of that Duluth delegation the only ones now in the legislature, T. M. Pugh and George R. Laybourn, are now in the senate.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

YEAR'S OPENING SHOWS PROGRESS

Dun, However, Notes Disappointment in the Steel Market.

R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade today says:

"Trade during the first half of January shows expected progress. New undertakings are encouraged by the more settled policy regarding large financial and industrial affairs and ample funds are available. Leading industries gradually increase working forces and output and while in most lines both continue below normal, the gains established in the closing months of last year are fully maintained. Disappointment is manifest in the iron and steel markets, demand lacking snap and requirments coming out in a hesitating way. Better buying was expected owing to cheap money and the fact that the entire country is practically bare of finished goods. Little Inquiry is received from the railroads.

Some weakness is noted in pig iron. Good inquiries are received from pipe mills and one large block is under negotiation. Business in rails continues very quiet. Wire products show the nearest approach to normal activity. A slow and weaker market for coke followed the increased production and the smaller shipments have resulted in larger stocks.

"Perceptible improvement appears in the primary markets for cotton goods and prices are held much more firmly. A revival of export demand is a patent factor in the direction of strengthening the market, the China trade having taken some 18,000 to 20,000 bales since the beginning of the year, and buyers for export are experiencing some difficulty in securing nearby delivery. The event of the week in the woolen market has been the opening of staple worsteds by the leading producers, with prices showing an upward tendency. Yarn prices have declined and the market continues inactive.

EAU CLAIRE MAN KILLED.

Falls to His Death Working on Fort Frances Dam.

Fort Frances, Ont., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fatal accident took place on the dam when a workman by the name of John Everton slipped and fell off the top of the wall at the head of the old canal. He fell a distance of twenty-seven feet striking on a log and breaking his back, death resulting instantly.

He was 40 years of age, a native of Sweden, and was residing at Eau Claire, Wis., where he leaves a wife and three children. The body was sent to his home for interment. This is the first fatal accident to happen on the works since the construction began three years ago and the accident cast a gloom over the workmen.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

CORBETT IS VERY SORE

Jim Does Not Like the Way He Is Being Treated.

Says It Is Not Up to the Sporting Writers Anyway.

Boston Mass., Jan 16.—Jim Corbett does not like the way he has been criticised in some quarters for offering to meet Jack Johnson. In an attempt to bring back the heavyweight title to the white race. Talking about the matter at Denver, the other day, he said:

"All I ask is fair criticism. If sporting writers want to write about me, let them look over my record. Take every fight I have ever had and, outside of my last one with Jeffries, they will all bear the closest examination. So, to sum it all up, I am not anxious to fight Johnson unless the white race wants the title back. If Johnson were a white man I would never think of re-entering the ring, as I am doing exceedingly well right where I am. That's the whole story in a nutshell about my fighting Johnson. I now leave it to the American public to decide for me.

"And then I want to personally add it's not up to the sporting writers to decide whether Corbett is to fight Johnson or not. After all, it's up to Hugh McIntosh and the other Australian promoters who are putting up the money to secure an opponent for Johnson, and candidly, they should at least be allowed a word in discussing the matter, after all."

"Then here are a few more questions: What fighter ever gave Jim Corbett a black eye? Or what fighter ever gave him a beating? Then, too, it has never been proved that I am all in. The same cannot be said of the others.

"That being true, who is there left to meet Johnson? He'll be champion all the time if nobody fights him. It looks to me that if the patriotic spirit of the white race would look the issue squarely in the face they would arrive at the same conclusion that I have. And that is, if Jeffries refuses to meet Johnson there is no white man outside of myself that has even a chance to win back the championship.

"I have figured it all out carefully and I feel that unless Johnson is a better man than I have doped him to be—and, mind you, I have seen him in action several times—I can defeat him. I can't see where any of the present day fighters have the cleverness of the fighters of fifteen years ago. Without getting egotistical, it must be admitted that I am the originator of the present school of boxing. Johnson, to a degree has mastered it, but I fail to see where he ever boxed as well as I did. Up to now I have never been hurt. I have never been punched about like the average fighter. My defeats were always administered by a single blow."

ATTEMPT TO FLY ACROSS COUNTRY

Balloonist Proposes to Soar From Los Angeles to New York.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—Charles A. Coey, president of the Aeronautique club of Chicago, states that he will make an attempt to cross the country in his balloon, the Chicago. He has been carefully studying the local situation from the standpoint of a balloonist and is firmly convinced that the project is feasible. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Coey. The balloon is being shipped to this city.

Capt. G. L. Bumbaugh, who will go with Mr. and Mrs. Coey, will come to Los Angeles Jan. 20, and final arrangements for the trip will be considered following his arrival.

"There are three ways in which the trip may be made," said Coey. "One is under conditions which will permit a shoot over the mountains and a straightaway journey without a stop, a second is by coming down at night and anchoring until the next morning, when the warm sun will bing an expansion of gas with a much greater lift than the night before. As a third expedient, it may be possible to go as far as the first inflation will carry, then re-filling and going on. The non-stop appeals to most balloonists and it may be taken from Los Angeles to New York sometime."

HAS BETTER OF SWIFT FIGHT

"Packy" McFarland Outclasses Dick Hyland of San Francisco.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—Packy McFarland of Chicago and Dick Hyland of San Francisco fought ten rounds, no decision, before the Pacific Athletic club last night, McFarland displaying more cleverness in his style of fighting than Hyland displayed throughout the fight, coming back after every exchange with the exception of the final rounds. McFarland landed many more clean blows than Hyland and was stronger at the finish. The Chicago boy started after his man in the tenth round, fighting him from one side of the ring to the other. The only thing resembling a knockout occurred in this round when Hyland half slipped to one knee. Almost immediately he was up and fighting, but McFarland fairly smothered him with rights and lefts to the head. Hyland was hanging on throughout the la half of this round. Packy excelled in long range fighting, but Hyland more than held his own at close quarters. Charles Fyton was referee.

ROLLER SKATING.

Bemidji People Trying to Get Fast Men Together.

Bemidji, Jan., 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Negotiations are under way for a series of three races between Al Thorpe of Fargo and Harry Carpenter of Crookston to settle the question as to which of the men is the champion roller skater of the Northwest.

For some time past Thorpe and Carpenter have both claimed the championship, but they have not as yet come together. Carpenter skated with and defeated Schultz of Hibbing about a month ago and Thorpe is here at the present time giving exhibitions of fancy skating. Both have made good time on the local rink, and it is the desire of local sports to get Carpenter and Thorpe together.

A formal challenge was sent to Carpenter on Tuesday night, in which the Crookston man was asked to skate a series of three races against Thorpe in the Bemidji rink, for a purse of any part of $100 a side, gate receipts to be divided to suit Carpenter.

LEO PARDELLO WINS.

Yusiff Mahmout Loses His Handicap Match With the Italian.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Leo Pardello won in the handicap wrestling match with Yusiff Mahmout last night. Mahmout secured a fall in 17 minutes, but thereafter was unable to keep his promised pace. He had agreed to throw the Italian three times in thirty minutes.

HAVE REACHED THE SEMI-FINALS

Brewer and McLeod Are Fighting Hard in Two Events.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—Dunbar and Stewart of St. Paul, and Ordway of St. Paul and Brewer of Duluth will meet in the semi-finals of the Canadian Soo event this morning and the finals will be played off in the afternoon.

There are four rinks still left in the Duluth Curling club trophy, Dunbar and Rees of St. Paul, McLeod of Duluth and Tucker of Pardeville.

The feature of the play in the Northwestern bonspiel yesterday was the second defeat of Dunbar of St. Paul, Carson of Winnipeg putting him out of the St. Paul Jobbers' trophy in the semi-finals, after a close game by a score of 13 to 10. Carson and Ordway of St. Paul will meet in the finals of this event today.

Rees of St. Paul defeated Whalen of Fort William 10 to 4 in the semi-finals of the Minneapolis event and will meet Tucker of Pardeville in the finals tomorrow, the latter having defeated Neil of Winnipeg 13 to 3 yesterday.

Gotch Coming Home.

London, Jan. 16.—Frank Gotch, the world's champion heavyweight wrestler, having been unable to arrange a match with George Hackenschmidt, the Russian lion, from whom he won the title in Chicago last year, will sail for New York Jan. 27 on board the steamer Deutschland.

MAY HOLD RACES ON THE BAY

White Winged Flyers to Get Busy If There is Wind.

This afternoon, weather permitting the ice boats will line up for the first real race of the season.

Up to this time, on the dates the races have been set for, there has been but very little wind, for want of which a number of the boats have failed to finish and the races have proved, so far, unsatisfactory.

The season is advancing and the member of the Yacht club are anxious to get the events started. The last race in the first series of three races is yet to be run off, and there are two more events, one of three races and one of five yet to be held.

DETROIT SIGNS FIVE PITCHERS

Outfield and Pitching Staff Are Now Complete for 1909.

Detroit, Jan. 16.—Two departments of the Detroit ball club will be sufficiently well manned within a week to remove any great worries to 1909. Already the outfield is out of doubt, with three veterans signed, and McIntyre expected to come in as soon as he has sufficiently recovered from his present illness to take any interest in contracts. Now the pitching staff is being rounded out, and it is only a matter of days before there will be enough twirlers on the staff to carry a big league club through an ordinary season.

George Mullin is the latest to sign. He drifted in from Wabash, Ind., Saturday, called on President Navin, and attached his signature to the papers that had been prepared. He had no arguments to make, the salary being entirely satisfactory.

The stocky lad is in pretty fair shape now, and thinks that with the preps that he has mapped out he should make a good getaway. Mullin is always strong in the spring, and wants to be at his best this season. Two years ago he was largely responsible for carrying the club until Donovan and Killian were ready, his great work at the start of that season keeping the team in the race.

There are now five pitchers under contract, the three veterans, Donovan, Killian and Mullin, having signed in the order named, while Works and Allen, youngsters, turned in their contracts some time ago. In addition, Willett and Summers have accepted terms, and will return contracts some time during the week.

Players Reinstated.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 16.—Announcement of reinstatement of seven players was made yesterday by the nation baseball commission. The players affected are Frank Smith, John A. Donahue, Gary White, Jacob Atz, Fred Olmstead, L. H. Flene and Nick Altrock, who participated in games against the Logan Square club of Chicago last year. A fine of $200 is assessed in each case and $150 of this is suspended during good behavior.

BIG GUNS SEE A PRIZE FIGHT

"Sports" Outwit Ministers and Hold Mill in Country Barn.

New York, Jan. 16.—Jack Doran, the "Bridgeport Kid," and Abraham Conway, the "Wallop Mixer," entertained 500 sports of the millionaire colony of Huntington, L. I., with a ten-round prize fight yesterday afternoon. It resulted in Doran putting the bee on Conway in a barn in that cheerful Long Island village.

The week was the week of prayer, and several reverend gentlemen, assisted by Charles O. Sheldon, who became a revivalist after he retired from the police force of this city, where he had been a sergeant, sermonized long and earnestly on the evils of gambling, the vice of drink and the injurious effects of prize fighting, physical, mental and moral. The result was startling. The bartnders felt a loss of trade and wouldn't "come back" when somebody bought ,and pinochle and poker decks lay idle and unfingered.

Then, while the afternoon services were in full bloom, 500 of the town sports lovers silently escorted two clean-limbed chamois pushers to a large barn, which lay in the shadow of a $30,000 summer mansion and was fringed on all sides by othesr palatial homes.

There was no membership formality about the proceeding, and as each visitor put up his money he was allowed to enter and gain a seat on a rafter or a beam. A man in a red sweater locked the door and called time.

The bout ran along evenly for six rounds, which was the agreed limit. Fearing that a long time would elapse ere they could congregate, the sinful demanded that the fight go ten rounds, which motion was carried without applause by the order of the man in the red sweater.

In the eighth session Doran was felled with a right to the nose which drew blood. He got up again and resumed, finally knocking out Conway just before the final bell.

The audience dashed out with loud cries and as they filed into Huntington's sedate streets no secret was made of the fight.

The clergymen got together, again notified the police, and the latter are now looking for Conway and Doran.

WHO WOULDN'T BE A JOCKEY

Little Eddie Martin is Now Making $1,500 a Month.

San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Who would not be a jockey? Eddie Martin is to get $1,500 a month and a bonus for riding Irving W. Wheatcroft's horses this winter at Santa Anita. Representatives of W. K. Vanderbilt, the American turfman now racing in France, and Wheatcroft, who owns the St. James stable, have been hotfoot after Martin, but the latter gentleman closed the deal by wire with Rome Respess, the mentor and contract employer of Martin.

The terms, $1,500 a month and a bonus, are about the record for a jockey's services on a winter racetrack. "Marvelous" Miller received $1,200 a month from T. H. Williams last winter, while "Canada Jack" Martin's contract with "Bob" Tucker and Capt. "Sam" Brown at New Orleans, La., three years ago, called for $1,000 a month. Martin may continue in the employ of the St. James stables in 1909, for Mr. Wheatcroft may purchase Statesman from F. Gardner and race him abroad with Martin as the stable rider.

According to "Barney" Schreiber, Col. W. A. Applegate and other good judges, Martin is the best lightweight rider seen in this country for several years, and the only logical rival of Shilling for the current jockey premiership. During the recent Latonia meeting he rode four winners on two successive days' ridding. He can do 100 pounds and was unheard of until this season. Vanderbilt offered $15,000 for the boy's contract outright. Wheatcroft is several times a millionaire, Cearlon for $6,000 and Miss Sain for $4,000 being recent thoroughbred purchases. His winter home is at Pasadena.

WANTS TO MEET JOHNSON.

White Sox Pitcher Would Meet Big Colored Scrapper.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Big Frank Smith, former piano mover, now pitching for the White Sox, objects to a colored champion. Therefore, he has decided to challenge Jack Johnson to a finish fight. Smith is backed by Secretary Fredericks, of the White Sox, who, after a conference with Smith, has announced that he will post an offer of $10,000 for the fight, and that it is now ready for Johnson's acceptance. Smith is a clever boxer, and has often expressed a desire to go into ring work. When Jeffries was at the height of his glory in the ring, Smith challenged him, but the challenge was never accepted.

New Chicago League.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Six of Chicago's semi-professional baseball clubs last night outlined a plan for the formation of a new league. If the league is formed the players hope to get some sort of recogntion from the national commission.

FOOTBALL TEAM "SHOT."

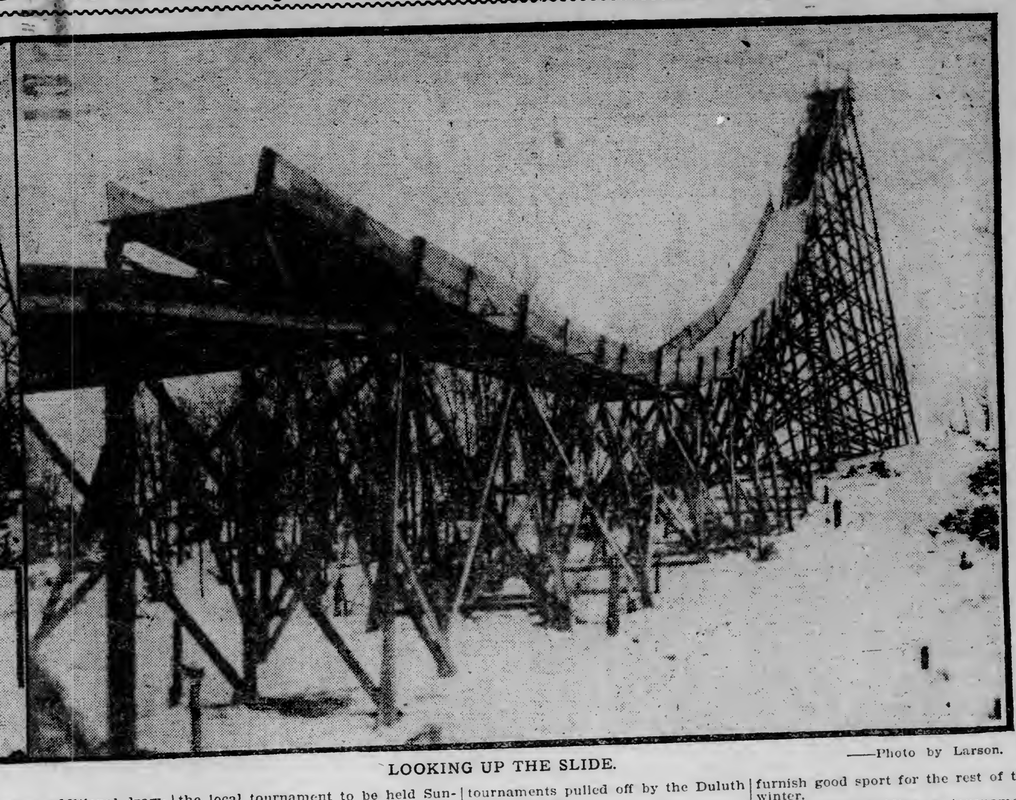

All togged up in their new sweaters and with their hair neatly parted, the seventeen huskies, who battled for the glory of the Central high school on the gridiron last fall, stood before a photographer's camera this morning and were shot.

Boyle wanted to have his hair mussed up as though he had just tackled Brennan of the St. Paul team, but as it was 16 to 1, the little quarterback finally gave in and had his picture taken as though he never played a rougher game than ping pong.

IT IS ON THIS NEW HILL, RECENTLY COMPLETED, THAT THE MEMBERS OF THE DULUTH SKI CLUB HOPE TO BREAK LONG DISTANCE JUMPING RECORDS THIS WINTER

SIDE VIEW OF THE HILL.

LOOKING UP THE SLIDE.

Now that there is more snow on the ground there is nothing to keep the members of the Duluth Ski club from enjoying themselves to the full.

The new hill is completed and the riders pronounce it the best in the country. Up to date there has been no sliding from the top because there has not been enough snow. In preparation for the tournament to be held one week from Sunday, the hill is now in constant use by ambitious riders who are anxious to make a good showing on the occasion of their first public appearance.

There is some talk of bringing Ole Larson, the famous Norwegian jumper, to this country as an additional drawing card at the national affair to be held in Eau Claire early next month, and if this is done, he will be offered inducements to slide for the benefit of the Duluth public on the ocassion of the local tournament to be held Sunday, Feb. 12.

Skiing has been pronounced by many to be the cleanest winter sport of all, and that Duluth is interested was proven by the turnouts at the tournaments pulled off by the Duluth club last winter.

This year the club has been hampered so far on account of the lack of snow, but from now they promise to furnish good sport for the rest of the winter.

Superior is holding a tournament Sunday and a number of the Duluth men will have their first contest of the present season then.

DULUTH SKATER WINS FIRST RACE

Carl Alroth Takes Half-Mile Event; Rankin is Second.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—The first races for the Northwestern indoor amateur championships, under the sanction of the Western Skating association, were held at the state fair grounds, between St. Paul and Minneapolis, last evening, before a large crowd. Three events were run off, the results being as follows:

One-half mile—Alroth, Duluth, first; Rankin, St. Paul, second; Kaad, Chicago, third. Time, 1:26.

One mile novice—Kelly, St. Paul, first; Coe, St. Paul, second; Hendenstrom, Minneapolis, third. Time, 3 minutes.

Five miles—Fisher, Milwaukee, first; Kaad, Chicago, second; Alroth, Duluth, third. Time, 16:34.

Allan Blanchard of Chicago acted as referee. The meet will be continued tomorrow evening.

ADAMS DEFEATED AT BASKETBALL

St. Clement's Team Wins Interesting Game by Score of 26 to 16.

The St. Clement's basketball team took the Adams Alumni team home last night by a score of 26 to 16.

The contest was held in the gymnasium of the St. Clement's school, and despite the large score the game was interesting throughout.

The lineup follows:

Adams.		St. Clement's.
Whittle	g	Arlmond
Stevens	f	Owens
Anderson	f	Gallagher
Rankin	c	Schiltz
Grenner	g	Emerson

SKI TOURNAMENT AT SUPERIOR

Duluth and Superior Riders in First Competition of Season.

Sunday afternoon, on the grounds of the Superior Ski club near Billings Park, there will be held, under the auspices of that club, the first ski tournament to be held at the Head of the Lakes this year.

Ole Fiering, John Evenson and a number of Duluth riders will jump, while a number of riders are coming from various points in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The slide is said to be in the best of condition, the light snow which fell Friday helping out wonderfully.

In all there are about fifty entries, and the Superior people are enthusiastic. The slide is located on a natural hill, the riders coasting down on the river after they have finished their jump.

RACING MATINEE BEING HELD

Warm Weather Brings the Fast Ones to Ice Track.

The racing matinee that has been postponed so many times on account of the severe weather, is taking place this afternoon on the ice track at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west.

There are a large number of horses entered in the three classes. The free-for-all promises to be the most interesting of the events and to create interest, James Henderson has hung up a silver loving cup as a prize. In the 2:20 class the winner will receive a blanket donated by J. H. Constantine. The prize for the green class horses has not yet been announced.

The prizes will not be awarded until after all the meets, the horses that then have the greatest number of points will be declared the winners.

'CYCLONE JOHNNY' IS DEFEATED

Chicago Lad Outclassed by a Salt Lake City Boxer.

Pocatello, Idaho, Jan. 16.—Pete Sullivan of Salt Lake City won the decision last night over "Cyclone Johnny" Thompson of Chicago in a fast 20-round contest. Only in the third was there any danger of the shifty Utah boy being worried.

Thompson forced the fighting from the start but Sullivan's cleverness prevented a knockout. Sullivan was in the pink of condition, while Thompson, contrary to expectations, failed to stand up under the grilling Sullivan gave him.

Tom Paynter of Evanston refereed the bout, and his decision awarding the long-end of the gate money to Sullivan met with general approval. Thompson and Sullivan have met twice before, the Utah boy gaining a decision in the first meeting and Thompson scoring a knockout in the second bout. The meeting last night was considered as decisive.

'BARREL' SMITH KNOCKED OUT

Curley Ulrich Scores Clean Knockout in Ashland Scrap.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 16.—"Barrel" Smith of Philadelphia was knocked out here last night in the ninth round of what was to have been a bout of twenty rounds' duration by Curley Ulrich of Superior. Ulrich had the better of the mill all the way.

BASKETBALL.

Purdue Defeats Wisconsin by Score of 23 to 29.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 16.—In one of the hardest fought basketball games ever seen on the local floor, Purdue defeated Wisconsin last night by the score of 23 to 20. The features of the game were the remarkable work of Stiehm, at center, for Wisconsin, and the great floor covering of Capt. Lewis of Purdue.

Fast Mills in Dayton.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 16.—Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee fought Mark Anderson of Chicago twenty rounds here last night to a draw. The men met at 142 pounds and Clabby was a pronounced favorite by reason of his decision over Young Erne recently. Last night he was a great disappointment. "Kid" White of Chicago and Young Kilbane of Cleveland, featherweights, went ten fast rounds to a draw.

"Haddy" McAndrews Defeated.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 16.—Willie Grupp of St. Louis won from "Haddy" McAndrews of Chicago in the ninth round last night, in the fastest bout seen here in years. While McAndrews fought gamely, he was not equal to his opponent, and suffered much punishment before his seconds finally acknowledged defeat.

Little wonder they call big Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox the premier pitcher of the American league and world. Little wonder that he won the A. L. pitching honors in spite of the fact that he pitched in far and away more games than any other pitcher.

This fellow Walsh is a marvel—a marvel among pitching marvels. He allowed but 339 hits during the season, and as 1,675 players were charged with at bats while they were securing that number of bingles, Walsh held the American league batters to a .202 average.

Exceptionally effective was Walsh against both Boston and New York, the former batting only .165 and the latter .178. The Boston batters were at bat 273 times and secured but forty-five hits. George Winter, the "spit" ball pitcher, who became a Detroit Tiger late in the season, headed the Red Sox in batting against the famous Walsh. However, he only faced him three times, securing two hits, an average of .667.

Will Jeffries come back into the ring to fight Jack Johnson?

This is the question every man in America, interested in sports, is asking just at this moment.

Jeffries continues to say "No."

The public continues to demand.

Jeffries' friends say: "Wait and see," intimating that the big champion is thinking.

Those who know say that Jeff's position is this: He wants to win the championship back from the negro. Apart from any financial advantage, he wants to prove his ability to answer the demands of the great public, and to give to the white race again the world's title in pugilism.

But, first of all, Jeff wants to know where he is, what he can do, what his chances are.

So he is going at it in the sensible manner. He has started in to find out whether or no he can make himself the Jeffries who, a few years ago, was invincible.

He has started training. He will go along quietly, saying nothing, convincing himself as to whether he may reasonably hope to whip Johnson.

It is no easy thing for any athlete to recover when once he has gone stale through years of ease and lack of attention to his condition. This is particularly true of fighters.

Jeffries will go on the stage and do a fighting stunt twice a day, and in a short time he will know whether he is responding to the treatment, whether he still has the speed, the stamina, the strength that are needed to defeat the present champion.

If he finds that he can stay the pace, then he will be up and after Mr. Johnson. If he finds that he has lost his old vigor, he will decide to stay dead and come forth into the lime light no more.

It is known that Sullivan used to go fat and stale and slow, and yet come back into form repeatedly. Why cannot Jeffries do the same? This is what the fight followers are asking.

The optomistic ones declare that six months will make Jeffries the great and only fighter that he was when he first won the world's championship.

Let's start a school for umpires. They are teaching electricity, mining, shorthand, so-called "journalism" and some fifty or sixty other branches by mail. Why not develop a few umpires by the same methods?

Year after year, baseball magnates literally scour the minor leagues with several kinds of brooms, searching for ball players of fast minor or major league ability. Every year sleek league presidents send emissaries hither and yon in search of men capable of judging play. For every dozen good players discovered, there is less than one umpire worth letting into the ball park. A competent official is a rare bird, muchly to be sought and sure of speedy and lucrative reward if he can show.

The question of competent umpires is often one that gives league presidents more trouble than half the other affairs of his organization combined. One umpire of poor judgment can turn some 90 or 100 games of baseball into howling farce and incite about 90,000 fanatics to near riot. Nothing will queer an otherwise pleasing contest quicker than indifferent work behind the bat or on the bases.

Players may strike out when any kind of a batted ball would bring the deciding run. Pitchers can throw high fast ones when they should have used curves. Base runners can tangle themselves into various sorts of muddles and run into the hands of a fielder holding the ball. But all these things can be forgiven by the fans, because the offenders may turn defeat into victory tomorrow by clever work and regain their positions as town heroes.

But one poor umpire, if he makes an apparently incorrect decision, has no chance for atonement. He may deliver decisions with the wisdom of a Solomon in the next fifty games, yet he is stamped as a "mut," as a "robber," as a "thief" and everything else from horse thief down. He never has a chance to get square. Even if he gives the home club a shade the best of the close ones thereafter, the very fans whose interests he seems to be looking after will jump on him for that. In a word, the umpire must be 100 per cent efficient all the time to gain even the reputation of being "a pretty good sort of an official."

CHANCE EARNS $25,000 A YEAR

Chicago Manager Is Highest Salaried Leader in Baseball.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—"I have heard," said Charles Murphy last night, "of the $25,000 alleged to have been offered Frank Chance by the California outlaws for two years' services. Well, including his dividends, etc., Frank Chance makes more than $25,000 every year, not every two years, with the Cubs. This may surprise folks, but it is the truth. Chance makes over $25,000 yearly right here, and I don't think he is apt to accept any outlaw offers while he has such sums coming his way.

"Chance is the best manager in the country. He has made more money for the Cubs than any one else could. I have allowed him to fix his own salary, and the paper he signed last September will be in force for four years more."

THE GIANTS HAVE A HUSKY LOOK

No Weak Spots Apparent in McGraw's 1909 Machine.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Giants—their admirers are legion. Wherever baseball is known the name of "Muggsy" McGraw is upon every lip and "Giants" is a word to conjure by. They are the typical American athlete scattered among nine men.

The Giants came, oh, so very near landing that bunting in 1908 that every baseball fan in the entire country is waiting to see how they will shape up in the coming year, almost hoping that they will be more fortunate next season in taking the pennant. People in this town go to see McGraw's team, not because they think they may lose, but to see how a real ball team plays. The Giants are real ball players.

Well, what of the Giants of 1909? Johnny McGraw says that they will win the flag hands down. He has been corralling several wonderful performers in every line, and he should know what he is talking about.

"Last year's infield will be preserved intact," says McGraw. "Recent sales and the acquisition of several good twirlers has made the team fully 30 per cent faster than it was last year. I think we shall have little trouble in taking the pennant of 1909."

Last year's infield was one of the best in the National league, too, by the way.

It was surpassed by that wonderful baseball machine, the pennant-winning Chicago Cubs. It was that infield which gave such magnificent support to Christy Mathewson and Lou Wiltse. And that same infield will be together again.

"I PICKED HIM UP," SAYS O'CONNOR

Former Manager Takes Credit for Michigan Boy's Success.

San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, has handed Joe O'Connor the ice pitcher and seems to have signed up with Willis Britt to look after the managerial end of his interests. O'Connor yesterday received a wire from Ketchel, saying:

"Britt and I have signed for fifteen weeks' theatrical engagement. Don't make any more engagements until you hear from me."

O'Connor said: "I have nothing against Ketchel. I picked him up when the world thought him nobody. If he is going to Britt, I wish him the best of luck."

Ketchel is to appear with a burlesque company, doing a three-round boxing stunt.

HOW TO SELECT AN AUTOMOBILE

Selection Does Not Require Special Ability in Mechanical Lines.

To make a safe and satisfactory selection of a motor car does not require special ability along mechanical lines. By the aid of the following suggestions any sensible man or woman can reach a purchasing decision with no fear that the chosen car will be a disappointment.

First—First of all, note whether the car seats the number of passengers you desire to provide for, and seats them comfortably. If passengers must be wedged into place you will do well to avoid that car, else you would forfeit comfort at the start. And if you can't have comfort, why have a car at all?

Second—Power—Observe whether the car has ample power to carry its full complement of passengers at the desired speed. An under-powered car is always a bitter disappointment. And note this trick of the trade: A car may be geared so high that it will run fast on the level and yet be unequal to the first hill of any consequence. Or it may be geared so low that it will scale hills handily, but be unable to show real speed. Insist upon having the same car show its power and speed on both hill and level on the same ride.

In hill climbing be not satisfied with mere speed or high-gear success. Stop the car on the grade and note how it gets under way again. Times will come when you will be required to stop on hills and you need to know what to expect. The car that will pick up handily in a test of this kind shows merit.

Third—Quietness—Is the motor quiet? A noisy motor is years behind the times and ought to be avoided, because it is an imperfect motor.

Fourth—Vibration—Run the motor at various speeds, while the car stands. If the car vibrates materially, the motor is imperfect. The more the vibration, the sooner with that motor wear itself out, the car as well. Economy says avoid vibration.

Fifth—Flexibility—Flexibility means range of motor speed in the throttle, without changing gears. Have the car run on high gear, and see how slowly it will run—without slipping the clutch. Clutch-slipping is a driver's trick, and you don't buy it in the car. Have the driver keep the clutch in full contact. Then the car that shows the widest range of speed on high gear is the most flexible.

Flexibility is important, because it avoids gear-changing, saves motor work, reduces wear and tear on motor and transmission, and means economy of fuel. The driver who is compelled to shift gear in and out of traffic does work that a really flexible motor would do for him.

Sixth—Acceleration—Slow down the motor on high gear and have it pick up speed as quickly as possible. The sluggish motor, the motor that gains headway slowly under load, is not one of quality, and is always bad in traffic.

Seventh—Cranking—Note whether the driver is required to crank the car for any length of time in order to start the motor. Some of the best cars are equipped with self-starters, which render cranking unnecessary. Cranking is always disagreeable.

Eighth — Durability — Require the salesman to give you trustworthy statements of the durability of his car. There are cars which seem to possess many merits, but lack that of durability and are expensive in upkeep. The only makers who are sure of their ground on this point have abundant evidence to present to you.

Ninth — Weight — Extremely light weight cars ride hard and are likely not to withstand hard usage. Heavy-weight cars withstand hard usage, but eat up tires and fuel. Either kind is highly expensive in upkeep. Medium-weight cars avoid these faults.

Tenth — General Appearance—Any casual observer can tell the general character of a car by its appearance. Where slipshod work appears that car is to be avoided. Beauty of body lines and work, of painting and upholstery, unmistakably mark the high grade car.

But above all else is—

Eleventh—Comfort in Riding—Does the car ride comfortably? Sit in the tonneau, for the front seat of any car is almost always more comfortable. The tonneau gives the test. Try ruts and bumps, and note how you suffer, or are free from annoyance. And remember that the tonneau is where your wife or sweetheart or mother or friends will ride, and surely, you want them to enjoy ridding and not to find it a bugbear.

Twelfth—Who are the makers? What experience have they had in building the particular car offered for your purchase? And what has been the experience of their customers in the past? Do customers enjoy prompt and cheerful service? Should you need a supply part, what assurance have you of getting it quickly? Are the makers stable, or may an adverse wind blow them away and materially injure your investment? That condition has happened in the past, and may happen again; you can avoid it in your case by making sure of your ground before you purchase. There are standard makers who may be patronized safely; be sure the maker you patronize is of the right kind.

News of the Theater

"THE 3 TWINS"

THE WEEK AT THEATERS.

LYCEUM—Five night, beginning Monday, with a Wednesday matinee, "The Three Twins."

LYCEUM — Saturday Afternoon and night, "The Land of Nod."

BIJOU—All star bill of vaudeville.

(Coming attractions as described by the facile pens of the press agents.)

"The Three Twins."

"The Three Twins," which comes to the Lyceum for the first five nights of next week with a matinee Wednesday, is one of the best musical comedies that has been produced, if critics of other cities are to be believed.

Its long run in Chicago of five months at the Whitney opera house, and of eight months at the Herald Square theater in New York, where the S. R. O. sign is still being displayed nightly, are proof of this.

"The Three Twins" is a musical comedy with a plot and many novel features. The conglomerate nonsense, the riot of color, and the spirited movements make such an agreeable attack on one's senses that it matters not under what name the revelry goes. The music titillates and tantalizes, and the witty lines and adept clowning excites one to laughter. Mr. Gaites has lavishly costumed the beautiful show girls. In the second act there are eight handsome Parisian directoire gowns worn by beautiful and shapely girls. The electrical effects are marvelous, the faceograph being a distinct novelty. The electrical aerial swing is a massive structure of steel, illuminated with more than 2,000 electric lights, revolving at a rapid rate with six girls in the baskets singing "The Cuddle Song." It is said to be one of the most beautiful finales ever staged.

The company is headed by Victor Morley, who created the title role, and includes Richard Bartlett, George S. Trimble, Elzie Brown, Florence Sweetman, Della Niven, Bessie Clifford, Florenz Kolb, W. H. Woodside, Frank Smith, Charles Dorrance, E. P. Bower, Ada Bateman, Marie Naskow and a large chorus.

"The Land of Nod."

"The Land of Nod," an extravaganza which contains about as much enjoyable entertainment as it is possible to crowd into one show, will be seen at the Lyceum next Saturday afternoon and night. Besides having everything which goes to make up a high class musical comedy, it exhibits an equipment of scenery, costumes, electrical and other effects and stage embellishments, such as are rarely seen outside of the big Broadway theaters in New York.

The scenes are not only massive and beautiful, but their novelty occasions surprise. The domain of "The King of Hearts," with its house of cards, its Peppermint river, its candy bridges, its mammoth mushroom trees, and the palace of "The Sandman" exposes a series of pictures of the most gorgeous and, at the same time, unique description. It is all a dream—the dream of a child "Bonnie," who, at the opening of the first act falls asleep under a rose bush in her mother's garden. A resourceful, poetic mind conceived the scenes.

With striking consistency the old parsonages who inhabit this mysterious realm have been evolved, consummating a complete, coherent whole. While "The Land of Nod" is exceptionally attractive to children, it possesses all of the elements which are thoroughly enjoyed by the adult. The comedy is bright and genuinely good; the music is of the popular "catchy" kind, and the presenting company, which number seventy-five or more, is made up of comedians, singers and dancers, who possess qualifications of the highest order. Among the principals who made distinct hits in last season's cast, and who return this time are Mr. Knox Wilson and Miss Grace Drew.

At the Bijou.

One of the best bills of vaudeville ever presented at the popular Bijou theater will open Monday afternoon and continue all week. Each act is considered a feature attraction.

Heading the list will be Mareena, Navara and Mareena, a trio of European equilibrists that have few equals. The feats performed by thes gymnasts surpass anything yet seen at the Bijou. The act is a Morris importation and comes direct from the Morris theaters in New York to Duluth.

A big favorite in Eastern vaudeville is Elmer Tenley, who is known as the "Master Monologist," who will play his first Western engagement in Duluth, introducing an act of songs and stories that are new to the public.

The roaring comedy sketch, "The German Professor," one of the funniest acts in vaudeville will be played by the clever team, Harry C. Stanley and Sarah Cogswell, who have long been vaudeville favorites. The act is a musical playlet and one that offers a laugh every minute, while being played. The first American appearance of Hetta Urma, better known as "England's Pet Boy," was in New York a few weeks ago, where she won the hearts and applause of the New York vaudeville patrons. She is now playing eighteen weeks in the West, after which she returns East to play return engagements. Miss Urma has a distinctive style of her own in introducing her different characters, and her English, French and German portrayals are in a class by themselves, and are well worth seeing.

As an added feature, Don Leno's "Ten Happy Youngsters" return with all new people, new songs, dances and musical numbers. The act has been greatly improved since its last appearance a year ago, and the youngsters are now presenting a musical comedietta without a breathing spot in it from start to finish, introducing eight big musical numbers.

Isadore Silver will sing a new illustrated success, entitled "Honey Dear." The moving pictures will be Edison's newest subjects.

Matinees are given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A school children's matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

"Little Johnny Jones."

Extraordinary interest is being manifested in the approaching engagament of "Little Johnny Jones" at the Lyceum on Jan. 25, 26 and 27.

All last season the delightful music of this production was whistled and sung so frequently that every music lover in this city is now thoroughly familiar with the catchy melody of the songs. "The Yankee Doodle Boy" and "Give My Regards to Broadway" are probably two of the most famous songs in America. It is not alone on the tuneful melodies of Mr. Cohan's successful play that its fame depends, for he is said to have displayed in the liberetto much originality. "Little Johnny Jones" is best described as a musical melodrama, for it contains a plot, dramatic action, and thrilling situations, with several dramatic scenes that the critics have pronounced worthy of any first-class dramatic production. "Little Johnny Jones" tells the trials and tribulations of an American jockey who goes to England to win fame and fortune on the English turf. The story is interesting, natural and dramatic throughout, while each musical number is said to be consistent with the development of the plot. The production will be seen in this city exactly as presented for twenty-two weeks in New York and over three months in Chicago last season. Much has been said in praise of the beauty and effectiveness of the three gorgeously mounted acts, while the wardrobe is spoken of as extremely beautiful and in rare good taste. The cast that will be seen here in the production embraces the names of many metropolitan favorites, while the chorus of over forty girls is spoken of as one of the best singing and best dressed ensembles on the American stage. In all, the company numbers seventy-five people, and is one of the largest companies on tour this season. Much local interest has been manifested in the engagement, as indicated by the extremely large demand for seats.

"A Message From Mars."

That delightful comedy drama "A Message from Mars" is the offering at the Lyceum on Jan. 28, 29 and 30. The reputation this play has acquired in London and New York City by its long and phenomenal runs, together with its popularity in all of the cities where it has been seen, was sufficient to cause very general interest upon the part of theatergoers.

The play "made good" in every particular when here. The play has many merits, and it appeals to all classes, the lower floor, the balcony, and the gallery alike.

The introduction of an inhabitant from the planet Mars is conceded to be something out of the ordinary. It provides a subject for the most thoughtful consideration by those who see this play.

"Peer Gynt."

At the Lyceum theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 4, 5 and 6, with a matinee Saturday, Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" will be presented by Louis James and his company.

Ibsen is best known to the stage as the author of dramas of problems and discussion, but in this he discloses an entirely different phrase of life, for he wrote "Peer Gynt" in 1867 under warm Italian skies, while traveling under the indulgence of a pension provided him by the Norwegian government, thus reflecting in his composition, the attributes of prosperity so suddenly bestowed upon him. He was at that time admired for his five poetic dramas of rare beauty and inherent strength and the North believed him to be another Shakespeare, a confidence he has since then fully justified.

The popularity of "Peer Gynt" begot an insistent demand for its presentation upon the stage, a behest to which he yielded, after long insisting that no player in Europe could compass the many requirements of the role, and that no stage could realize the pictorial exigencies. When, however, he did consent to its stage presentation, and edited the manuscript for the Royal theater, Christiania, more than half his text fell under his pruning knife.

When Richard Mansfield presented his acting version of "Peer Gynt" he restored many of the most famous episodes in this fascinating comedy, making a restoration of nearly one-third more of the original text to the prompt book than was used in the Norwegian theater, and Louis James, ever faithful to the author, has added additonal text.

The cast, chorus, auxiliaries, musicians and stage mechanics call for nearly eighty people.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

STAGE PEOPLE NOTED FOR THEIR CHARITABLE DEEDS—MARY ANDERSON SAYS THAT THE AVERAGE GIRL SHOULD SHUN THE FOOTLIGHTS. -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:-

New York, Jan. 16.—The holiday season just past is responsible for the republication of a letter by the late Bishop Potter commending the charity of the people of the stage.

"There is no profession which so largely gives of its energies and its material means for the healing of the afflicted as that of the theater," he said. "The ear of the player is never deaf to the cry of pain or want, and while other crafts look after their own, sometimes, in the hour of storm or stress, the actor leaps to the relief of any individual or any class when the voice of appeal is heard."

Bishop Potter was right, and right to a greater degree than the public in general knows. Sometimes overenthusiastic press agents give an almost offensive publicity to these charities, suggesting that the charities are of the pharisaical kind, performed for the sake of this very publicity. But while this may be, and unfortunately is, the case sometimes, it is certainly not the case in the majority of instances, as any one who has had pertsonal relations with the actor folk can directly from the heart, and not from a thirsty pocketbook, expecting a "hundred-fold" increase for funds expended. The stories concerning the charities are dug up often by overzealous newspaper reporters, who regard stage people as their natural prey, and not by the press agents at all. Practically all actors and actresses have had their ups and downs, and the majority of them, in their "ups," regard the "downs" of others with a kindly eye and an open hand.

"On the stage you play at being in love—you pretend a romance, but I prefer to live my romance, to have it in reality, as I have had it for years in the happy life I have led with my husband."

The speaker was Mary Anderson—"Our Mary"—former queen of the American stage, and the happy look she bent upon her husband, Antonio de Navarro, left no doubt of her sincerity. He smiled and nodded in reply, and then obeyed the injunction of their 8-year-old daughter, Marie Elona, to "Take my hand, papa."

Mr. and Mrs. de Navarro had just landed in New York with their 12-year-old son, Jose, and their daughter, from the White Star steamer Baltic. They are in America for a visit, and "Our Mary" made it very plain, in a frank interview, that she had no thought of returning to the stage. "I do not regret my stage career," said she. "I look back upon it as a pleasant memory, for it dealt kindly with me, but I left it without regret and I have no desire to return to it. There is too much real life happiness for me to wish to go back and pretend happiness for others to enjoy.

"When I left the stage the playgoing public, I think, wished me to remain and entertain them. I left when they retained a memory of me as a rising actress. I would not wish to go back now and play old women parts, even if the love fetters of my home did not hold me.

"You can say that there is not the least truth in the reports that I intend to return to the stage, or that I will even take part in theatrical entertainments during my stay here.

"It is true that I have appeared in England occasionally in the interest of some charity, but that is all, and then only at very rare intervals."

"It was said that you might consent to appear in behalf of the Mary Anderson Guild in aid of chorus girls?" ventured her interviewer.

"Such a request has been made," she admitted, "but I do not see how it is possible for me to break my rule, much as I would like to aid the chorus girls in their studies and in every way possible. I have a very great sympathy for those at the bottom of the ladder. I know how hard it is to climb even when one has talent, but I cannot consent to act again—not even in the case of these girls.

"I do not wish to be understood as saying I disliked my theatrical life. I would not have missed it for the world. But acting is pretending, in a way to make it seem real; one has actually to live one's part to reach perfection. I met some great men and women while on the stage. I understood their humors and felt their sorrows. It helped to broaden my mind and prepare me for the peaceful home life I am living today.

"The theatrical profession is an easy one to enter. It is a hard one to leave and a hard one to live in unless one has great talent. The stage smiles on talent and punishes mediocrity. The mediocre actor or actress has a hard time of it.

"It should not take long for a young girl to discover whether she has real talent or is doomed to spend her entire stage life in minor positions. If she is mediocre she is far better off off the stage.

"To my mind the average young woman should not seek a stage career at all. Unless she is very sure that she is born to reach the top rung of the ladder and be a leading woman of note, she would better take up the teaching of music or even school teaching. Every one has some certain talent. The thing is to discover that talent and develop it. All can not be actresses.

"This is the first time I have been in this country in eight years, and my children have never been here before," continued the former queen of tragedy, as she looked proudly after her son, Jose, who was running up and down the pier in keen enjoyment of the brisk air.

"It seemed amazing to me when I watched the skyline of New York as we came up the bay. The city has changed completely. It is like a dream city. The panorama that spread out before me was wonderful. The effect was heightened by the slight haze that made the tall buildings, reaching skyward, look like so many great gray specters. They looked unreal—almost ghostly. I was never so impressed in my life before."

Mme. Eames has acute indigestion. M. Caruso has for the last few days been ill of a gastric indisposition. Consequently "Aida" could not be sung last week at the Metropolitan Opera house. Miss Farrar was telephoned to. Riccardo Martin, the American tenor, had gone to his native Kentucky. Rita Fornia was ensconsed in the Grenoble. Thus they gave Gounod's "Faust." Caruso lost $2,500, the sum he receives for each of his performances. This is the second time he has had to withstand this financial disaster in four days. Mme. ames lost $1,500, for the fair Emma is compensated in this generous sum.

The Metropolitan Opera house probably lost something. The speculators lost money The jobbers in tickets lost money. In a score of indirect ways money was lost by a score of different people. And all this because Caruso had a kink in his stomach and Eames was ill.

The public often wonders how a slight indisposition can prevent a singer from appearing; how a cough of an ache may lead to the changing of an opera or the actual closing of the house. Are lungs and vocal chords so easily and so drastically affected by each pang of illness? Would not Caruso be only just a shade less interesting if he sang when indisposed? These questions are often asked, and asked with some irritation, "when Johnny Lachmann hangs out his notice: "Signor Boncuso is ill. Signor Boril will take his place."

Let us consider the question a moment. A great many serious illnesses first manifest themselves by a sore throat. This would mean that the throat is a delcate point. So that sore throat which prevents singers from singing is not only a local disturbance, but may make the actual emission of sound difficult, uncertain or impossible, but may also be the indication of a weakened and disordered system.

Indigestion and the complete demoralization that it brings about the singers dread as a child does a churchyard at midnight. If you are ever privileged to enter a prima donna's dressing room about 9 o'clock you will see the strange devices these ladies have resorted to to keep themselves from being hungry during a performance. They have dined soberly and Spartanly at 4 or 5 o'clock. The hebetating and somnolent effects of a good dinner all men know. But you must not come to the opera hebetated and somnolent. Your brain must be afire, your soul must be awake, your nerves must be a-tingle; else, how can you arouse the nerves, the brain, the soul of a wooden-faced audience?—all audiences are at first wooden-faced—how have the transcendental force that you must transmit to those rows of "tired business men?"

Well, about 9 o'clock the prima donna may be a bit hungry. A nice mutton chop and potatoes? Heresy. A slice of coal roast beef and a bottle of Guinness? Madness!

Look at eager, tired Olive Fremstad's dressing table, and you may see a cup of beef tea getting cold and a piece of toast already cold, hidden away amid the grease paint. Here is a Valkyrie, speared, corseletted and armored, eating two eggs beaten up in a glass. Here is Mimi Melba, swallowing what seems like a bottle of the very lightest, purest beer. Here is consumptive Violetta sipping a cup of tea, prepared wonderous by a German dresser. Here is noble, heroic Siegfried nourishing himself during a seven-hour fast on half a glass of sherry and half a biscuit. They are hungry and they dare not eat—it would show at once.

The largest playhouse in the world is the New York Hippodrome, which has on its pay roll over 1,000 employes and which this season, in spite of the dullness that has characterized the amusement business, has entertained an average of 82,000 people a week. The bill this season includes two big spectacles, the ballet and a complete circus. A special feature is "The Battle in the Skies" between giant airships.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gould have witnessed Anna Held's new musical comedy, "Miss Innocence," seven times. A New York paper remarks that they will soon know the show by heart.

A New York newspaper man, in a laudable effort to add still further to the dignity of his profession, has discovered that the writers of a large number of the modern stage successes are or have been newspaper men. "The Battle," he discovers, is by Cleveland Moffett, editor of the New York Sunday Herald. Charles Frederick Nirdlinger, author of "The World and His Wife," was once editor of the Illustrated American. James Forbes, responsible for "The Chorus Lady" and "The Traveling Salesman," is from the staff of the Pittsburg Dispatch. George V. Hobart of the libretto of "The Boys and Betty," is "Dinkelspiel" of the New York American. Paul Armstrong, one of the authors of "Via-Wireless," used to be a writer on sporting topics. Harry B. Smith, with the lyrics and lines of "Miss Innocence," "Little Nemo" and other musical successes to his credit, used to provide dramatic articles for a Chicago daily. Paul Potter, adapter of "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," was at one time employed on the New York Herald.

Vaudeville has a new sketch, styled a fantastical musical travesty," and entitled "The Devil and Tom Walker." Tom Walker is a negro, who sees the funny side of things, even in hades, where the scene is laid. There is a Salome in the sketch, and she makes extraordinary sacrifices for the man she admires. She is sentenced to the infernal regions, and Tom Walker, with his ready wit, makes her forget her gloomy environment. The act terminates with a trip to the moon in a monster airship, guided by Tom Walker.

"I love grand opera!" exclaimed the lady from Pittsburg, as they listened to the opera in New York. "Who is the composer of this one?"

"The great Wagner," was her friend's reply. "He's very popular here!"

"So he is in Pittsburg. He's on our baseball team, you know!"

A bit of dialogue from Marie Doro's new play, "The Richest Girl," may be used as a text for country school debates. It would vary somewhat the monotony of "Resolved, That capital punishment should be abolished;" "Resolved, That Washington was a greater man than Lincoln," and "Resolved, That gunpowder has been a greater aid to civilization than the printing press." Here is the dialogue:

"What a quaint little mind you have!"

"I haven't a little mind. Why do people always think little people have little minds? In my experience it is the big people who have little minds and the little people who have big minds."

As a starter it might be suggested to the affirmative that Nazimova, the Russian actress, says that all the great women of history have been little women.

"Ninety per cent of the women born in this country want to be actresses," is the sweeping, unqualified statement of a New York theatrical manager. "They think all they have to do is to put on nice clothes and walk out on the stage and speak a few words. Every chorus girl thinks she can take big parts, and right here comes in the cheap manager, who, with his trashy productions, has glutted the stage." That there is more truth than poetry in this statement can easily be verified by persons accustomed to attending first-class performances in the larger cities if they will take the trouble to visit some of the second-rate theaters in the smaller cities. With still less trouble they can verify the assertion by going to see some first-class productions that, after long runs, have been "farmed out" to cheaper managers who rely on the former fame of the production to carry it through.

That stage managers are human is known from the report of the eyewitness, who was present one day when Ben Teal was rehearsing "A Winning Miss."

"Ladies," called Mr. Teal in persuasive, soothing tones to the chorus on the stage. "Ladies, what I want in this number is style! Class! Breeding! To get that we are willing to pay something more than the usual salary. I want grace! Poise! Distinction!"

He swept the stage with his experienced eye, and every girl within its range straightened her back and steadied her stride.

"I want you to appear as ladies, as well-bred ladies, accustomed to the drawing room. As I said before, I want grace! Breeding! Gentility!"

And then he took a long breath.

"Good heavens, girls—don't walk like a lot of ducks!" he shouted.

A story is told of James O'Neil, he of "Monte Carlo" fame, showing that an actor can know his part so well and live that part so frequently, that scarcely any shock can overturn his presence of mind. One night in the "World Is Mine!" scene, when O'Neil was climbing out upon the wave-dashed rock, the dust that he was heaving up by the shovelful to represent spray got into the lungs of a strenuous stage hand. A tremendous—and appalling—"Ar-ker-chew!" followed: it was a sneeze that sounded to the topmost row of the upper balcony, and above the mechanical noise of stage breakers. Calmly, quite unconsciously, O'Neil said, "God bless you!" and then went on with his melodramtic speech. And his very unconsciousness saved the occasion.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Option Taken by Jones Furnace Interests on Old Spur Mine---Ore From Saginaw Mine Being Shipped to Canadian Soo.

Already having taken over a very extensive acreage, for the most part Menominee range tracts containing low grade ores for which there has heretofore been little demand, the interests associated with John T. Jones in the operation of his newly-invented furnace at Iron Mountain, are steadily enlarging their holdings of mineral lands. The latest property on which it is understood that an option has been taken is the old Spurr mine, located in Baraga county, Mich., at the western end of the Marquette range. The Spurr has been idle for many years. It was opened in 1873 and made its last shipment in 1883. Its total output was 164,000 tons. The product was a hard specular, with occasional masses, the mine in this respect resembling the big Republic and Champion properties, to the east, although the ore was much more mixed. The operators of the Spurr contented themselves with taking out the ore contained in the original lens encountered, and there has long been a belief that exploration would reveal more other deposits of greater extent.

The old Bird mine property, in the Crystal Falls district of the Menominee range, a lease to which has been acquired by the Jones furnace people, is owned by the county of Houghton. Much land in the mineralized regions of Upper Michigan was granted to this Copper country county years ago, in return for the construction of roads, and a very considerable acreage still remains in its possession.

Ore from the Saginaw mine, in the Norway district, west of Iron Mountain, is being shipped this winter to the Algoma Steel company at Sault Ste Marie, Ont. Seventy men are employed and some 3,000 tons of ore per month will be sent out. A new shipper on the Menominee the coming season will be the Buckeye mine of

SONORA MINING INDUSTRY

On Eve of Great Boom Following Yaqui Treaty---Final Elimination of Most Serious Drawback to the State's Progress.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 16.—Since the news has gone forth of the final ending of the Yaqui war through the signing of the peace treaty at Hermosillo, there has been an awakening of interest in Sonoro mining properties that bids fair to grow into the biggest boom that has ever been inaugurated in the adjacent state of the southern republic. The Yaqui disorders have, more than any other factor, retarded the development of the rich mineral districts of Sonora and with the Yaquis off the warpath and devoting their time to labor and tilling of the soil in the fertile sections where they have for years resided, in the mining industry in Sonora, and especially in the once infested districts, will have an opportunity to expand to its rightful proportions.

The Miner has it from a reliable source that all of the large mining interests in the Southwest are already preparing to send men into the Sonora field for the purpose of picking up valuable properties before the boom, which is surely coming, succeeds in inflating the prices of Mexican mines and prospects. They can be had at present at very reasonable figures, but just as soon as there is a general movement toward the acquisition of properties in Sonora, the prices are bound to advance, just as they have in the various mining districts of Arizona after an important deal is consummated.

Sonora is rightfully classed as one of the richest mineral countries in the world. Almost every kind of precious and base mineral can be found in the state, and in paying quantities, and it is safe to predict that in the course of a very short time Sonora will furnish some of the richest gold and copper mines in the world. There is a vast country south of Cananea and between the Yaqui river and the coast, almost all of which is heavily mineralized, and which has scarcely been scratched below the surface. Numerous small companies have operated in this isolated country during the last half-dozen years, but it is doubtful if there has been a paying venture, though thousands have been expended, in the entire country, south of the Nacozari and Cananea districts.

The influx of mining men and prospectors into the Sonora fields is expected to be a very heavy one within the next few months, and it is certain that numerous important mining deals will be consummated within a very brief period.

THE THREE R'S MINE IS SOLD

Calumet & Arizona People Wanted it, But Eastern Capitalists Closed Option--Calumet & Arizona Takes Bond on the Adjoining Ground.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 16.—The Three R's group of copper claims, consisting of thirty-nine claims about six miles southwest of Patagonia has been sold by Ben Heney to Eastern capitalists, through John C Montgomery of New York, and Henry S. MacKay of Los Angeles.

This same property was sold to W. C. Greene of Cananea, just before the financial crash, and after paying two payments, amounting to $1,333.33, besides doing considerable development work he was unable to make the third payment which fell due in the midst of the slump and the bond was finally forfeited. Since then the Calumet & Arizona people made examination of the property, and their report was strongly favorable, but the closing of the deal was delayed and in the meantime new mining capital was secured at a limited option. These new capitalists made their examination and closed within thirty days with their first payment. Man Warrin, who had been with the Calumet & Arizona for three years stated that he considered the Three R's country as good as the Cananea district and he backed his faith by taking up twelve claims lying to the south and doing all the necessary work upon them.

During the examination period they had on the ground besides their engineers Mr. Wright of the Miami Copper property of Globe. Since closing on the Three R's, they have taken under bond all adjoining claims to the number of fifty or more. Upon placing of the deed in escrow they immediately wired to New York for a mining manager who was instructed to begin active development work at once.

Mr. Heney says he does not wish to divulge the consideration agreed upon at this time, although it ran well up into the six figures, neither do the parties behind the deal wish to have the names in evidence at present. Enough to know the purchasers represent some of the largest copper capitalists in the country and it will mean much to the Patagonia district and this entire section in having these people there. It is their intention to do development work on a big scale.

The reason for selling as Mr. Heney states is that they had not enough capital to install a large amount of machinery with which to economically operate the property. Like all copper mines, after reaching a certain stage, further development requires large capital to keep the mine in operation.

William Kemp, field engineer of the Calumet & Arizona has taken a bond on all ground between the Three R's and the Flux mines and the World's Fair mine and development work is in progress.

On Saturday, Jan. 2, L. W. Powell, general manager of the Calumet & Arizona came to Tucson and inquired of Mr. Heney if the deal of the Three R's had been actually closed, and upon being assured that it had been and that the first payment had been made and the deeds placed in escrow, said he had always hoped to secure the property for his people.

TWO RICH ORE STRIKES MADE

On Property of Arizona & Eastern Consolidated Co.---Big Strike That Was a Christmas Gift--- Rich Six-Foot Vein Uncovered.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 16.—Maj. E. L. DeLestry, general manager of the Arizona & Eastern Consolidated Mining company, came down from Globe a couple of nights ago and is registered at the St. Regis for a few days. The company has made two rich ore strikes on its properties on Mineral creek, southwest from Globe, and, quite naturally, Mr. DeLestry feels highly elated, and so are a number of El Paso citizens, who only a month ago quietly purchased some of the company's stock, and who are calling to extend their congratulations. Pointing to a display of high grade copper ore on exhibit in the lobby of the St. Regis, Maj. DeLestry said to a Herald reporter.

"Our last strike was a Christmas present. We had anticipated striking shipping ore in our No. 1 shaft for some time, although we have not yet reached the depth which we wish to attain. However, the formation is ideal. The ore occurs between a quartz and limestone. It's a true fissure and needs only further exploration to prove its great extent. Leading mining men who have seen our property agree with me as to its great value. I had already advised our stockholders of this strike as a Christmas greeting, as we cut into the pay streak on Dec. 17, but I was not quite prepared for a second surprise so soon after the first find. It was a few hours before quitting time, the day before Christmas. A small crew had been working in our No. 2 tunnel, about half a mile from the shaft where the ore was struck, and my calculations were that we had fully 150 feet to drive before cutting the main ledge. Seated in front of my cabin with a visitor, I was aroused by a great commotion near the tunnel. Believing something had gone wrong, we made our way down the creek to investigate the cause of the racket. Our foreman met us and conducted us to the breast of the tunnel, and I was greatly and agreeably surprised to find a six-foot face of ore that leaves not a shadow of room for doubt as to what we have. I at once sacked a quantity to bring in for a test. This ore body lies in a talc. It is streaked heavily with 28 per cent copper glance, and in places there were pockets which ran up to 48 per cent. A considerable body of the ore ran in an 18 per cent brown carbonate, while the whole carries enough sulphites and iron to make it self-fluxing. It is a beautiful face of ore easily mined, and tons of ore can be taken out without firing a shot or driving a drill.

"We shall now continue to drive this tunnel to the main ledge and, if this ore body continues all the way in, we shall have one of the greatest copper deposits, of high grade, known in Arizona."

NORTH BUTTE DEVELOPMENT

Work on Lower Levels Having Satisfactory Results—Butte-Montana Has Begun Shipments---New Boom for Corbin-Wickes District---New Parties in Control of Keating Company.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 16.—(Special of The Herald.)—The development work on the 2,000 and 2,300-foot levels of the North Butte is progressing slowly and that fact has given rise to rumors that the developments there have not been as satisfactory as were expected. The fact is that so far as the work has progressed the results have been entirely satisfactory, but the crosscuts have not gone far enough to get under the main ore body on which the big mining has been done on the 1,800-foot level, and will not be reached for at least two months. So far as the vein has been opened it is stronger than on the level above.

Butte-Montana.

The Butte-Montana Mining company has begun making shipments of ore from the Alex Scott mine, but for some time the shipments will be irregular. The ore comes from the 1,200-foot level, and is a good average of Butte ore. Development work is being pushed on the 900-foot level and drifting is being done on a good looking vein.

Butte & Arizona.

A report comes from Bisbee that stockholders of the Butte & Arizona Mining company, representing 50,000 shares, have determined on legal proceedings against the officers to compel them to make a sworn statement of the affairs of the company during the past two years, covering the lifetime of the company. No report has yet been made by the company, and the Bisbee shareholders have heard rumors of a heavy over issue of stock and other matters, concerning which, after an enlightenment. The officers of the company are all residents of Butte.

Calumet-Corbin.

The Calumet-Corbin Mining company is the latest organized to operate an old mine in the Corbin district. The company has a capital of 150,000 shares, $10 par, and has all been subscribed on the installment plan, $1 having been paid in, and the remainder being subject to call. The company has secured the old Minnesota group of three claims situated between Corbin and Wickes at Gregory. A quarter of a century ago the Minnesota was a producer of silver, lead and gold, but like all the old abandoned mines of that district, which are being revived, the production of those days is somewhat legendary and grows in value with repetition. There is a shaft 300 feet deep on the Minnesota, connected with an adit or tunnel, and the new company has started to sink a new two-compartment shaft at the mouth of the tunnel. Capt. James Wilcox of Mass City, Mich., is president of the Calumet-Corbin; M. E. O'Brien of Laurium, secretary, and J. B. Peyton, treasurer.

Since the inauguration of a new boom for the Corbin-Wickes district it has been claimed that the old mines, prior to twenty-five years ago, produced more than $100,000,000. Practically no mining has been done in the old properties since the silver panic of 1893. Among the leading producers were the Alta, Comet, Gregory, Little Mina, Minnesota, Atlas and Silver King. Nearly all of these mines have recently been put into new companies, some of them excessively capitalized. Some of the new companies promise a revival of the silver and lead output, while others pin their faith on copper and old mines, or some of them, contain good copper ore. In the meantime a number of new companies and individuals are developing virgin ground on real copper veins, and the prospects for opening good copper mines are very good.

Keating Gold Company.

Because of dissension among some of the big shareholders of the Keating Gold Mining company, it looked for a time as if the property under option would be lost, but at almost the last moment on Jan. 2 an agreement was reached and the payment then due was made. Alvin P. Nipgen, who had been president and general manager of the mine, resigned and Jesse B. Roote was elected president, while C. C. Willis has been put in charge of operations. Since the beginning of work in July, 1908, ore of the gross value of $102,000 has been shipped and the company will increase that output considerably. The vein in the Keating mine was widened to full five feet on the lower level and has been opened a distance of 460 feet. On the third level it has been opened for 1,280 feet. Mr. Roote and some New York associates have financed the company by the purchase of treasury stock, and they have also taken options on a large amount of individual stock, giving them control of the company.

Pittsburg-New York.

The Pittsburg-New York company, which owns the Umatilla group of gold claims at Birdseye, Mont., and seven mineral claims south of Butte, contemplates the issue of bonds sufficient to pay off the company's indebtedness, amounting to $16,000, and provide a working fund. It is claimed that the Umatilla claims have the extensions of the famous Drumlommon and Spring Hill veins. The property has been worked in a small way for a

SMELTER IS IN THIRD PLACE

Calumet & Arizona Breaks its Record for Output, Making 50,000,000 Pounds of Copper Last Year—Ranks as Third Largest Producing Smelter in the United States.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 16.—According to the best obtainable figures at this time, Cochise county had, during the year 1908, the second and third largest producing smelters in the United States, and there is every reason to believe that the Copper Queen and Calumet & Arizona smelters will hold these respective positions in the future, because of the many improvements and additions which have been made by both companies.

The approximate output of the Copper Queen's Douglas reduction works for the last year was 96,000,000 pounds of blister copper, of which about 75,000,000 pounds came from ores from the company's Bisbee mines. While the figures in detail of the production at the Calumet & Arizona smelter have not been compiled, the total output for the year 1908 was in round numbers 50,000,000 pounds, the record annual output for that smelter. It is not as yet known just what percentage of this output was from Calumet & Arizona ores, but from Superior & Pittsburg ores, but the output of the latter company was very large during the last few months of the year.

Total Output Heavy.

The total output for the two smelters, including only Warren district ores for the year was approximately 125,000,000 pounds, or an increase of about 15,000,000 pounds over the output of the district for the year 1907.

The year that has just begun will undoubtedly break all records for production of both the smelters and the Warren district, as the output has been considerably increased during the last few months. It will also be remembered that during the entire year with the exception of the last few weeks in December no ore was shipped to the smelters by the Shattuck company, the entire output of the Warren district coming from the Copper Queen, Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg mines. The last year was also a poor one for custom ores, as many small shippers have been idle since the slump in the price of the metal. The greater part of the Copper Queen smelter production, exclusive of Warren district ores, came from Nacozari concentrates.

C. & A. Will Increase.

The work of remodeling several of the blast furnaces at the Calumet & Arizona smelter has not been wholly completed, but it will be in a short time, and the output of the smelter will be considerably increased thereafter.

The coming year will also see three new shippers at Courtland, and the smelter output of the county will be greatly augmented upon the completion of the railroad from Douglas to that camp. Both smelters will handle Courtland ores, as both companies have large interests in the new camp, and there will be at least one important independent shipper.

If other Arizona camps do as well as those in Cochise county, the output of the territory for the year 1909 should far exceed any in the history of the territory, and incidentally place Arizona firmly in its position as the greatest copper producing state or territory in the country, a position it has held for the last two years.

Operating Five Furnaces.

Everything is moving smoothly at the smelters in Douglas since the beginning of the new year. At the Calumet & Arizona, work is proceeding on the enlargement of No. 6 furnace from its original capacity of 300 tons to a capacity of 500 tons. This work was started before the holidays and is expected to be complete within the next few weeks. The Calumet & Arizona is now operating five furnaces, all it has except the one being enlarged. One of the five in use has a capacity of 500 tons and the other four accommodate only 300 tons daily. However, it is the intention to enlarge all the old furnaces so that all will have the same capacity of 50 tons. The material for this work has already been gotten out and as a result, the machine shops of this plant have been fairly busy during the last six months.

Product For December.

The local managers of the smelters never give out the exact figure as to monthly production, but it is known that the two smelters produced during the month of December very near 15,000,000 pounds of copper. The Copper Queen reduction works turned out more than 9,000,000 pounds and the Calumet & Arizona product amounted to more than 4,500,000 pounds. This is about the largest production ever recorded in Douglas. It is expected that the production during the present year will greatly exceed that of last year. This is expected from the enlargement of the capacity of the Calumet & Arizona and also from the increased output of concentrates from Nacozari as a result of the new concentrating mill.

The Copper Queen smeter put into commission last week an additional furnace and now has eight out of ten in commission. The Queen is operating six converters. This plant has been running irregularly during the past six months, as to the number of furnaces in commission, but the product has remained about the same and the policy seems to be to produce about so much copper per month, using as many furnaces as may be required for that purposes.

Shattuck and Denn.

There is still much speculation as to the final outcome of the Shattuck-Denn dissention in the ranks of the big

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Atlantic Driving Fifteenth Level Crosscut Through What May be Main Working Bed of Baltic Formation—Heavy Overburden of Land Causes the North Lake Much Trouble.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Atlantic is actively engaged in driving its fifteenth level crossing through what may prove to be the main workbed of the Baltic formation. The crosscut is in amout thirty feet, disclosing fifteen feet of well mineralized ground on the foot-wall side of the lode, the ground showing somewhat leaner as the hanging wall is approached. The new discovery is approximately 400 feet west of the Section 16 shaft in which considerabe work has been done in an endeavor to locate the Baltic lode. Drift and crosscuts have been driven in every direction without disclosing much of value, the ground at nearly all points of attack being badly shattered, a condition not "kindly" to copper. Some copper ground is exposed, but the extent is limited and nowhere has a continuous stretch of copper ground exceeding 200 feet in length been opened. Small pockets of copper are disclosed at several points throughout the workings, the balance of the ground, for the most part, being shattered. The daily output of copper rock is small, the product of development work only, no stoping being in progress. The shaft is approaching the twentieth level.

North Lake.

An unusually heavy overburden of clear sand is causing the North Lake company considerable trouble, and it is likely that the first of the two sand pipes which are being driven preliminary to diamond drilling, will shortly be abandoned after having reached a depth of 400 feet without encountering the ledge. The second sand pipe has attained a depth of nearly 180 feet, and difficulty in sinking is beginning to be experienced here also. The company had an engineer out recently to locate an outcropping on the property, and actual drilling in rock is expeced to be in progress at an early date, though how the heavy overburden can be avoided in securing a complete cross section of the property remains to be solved. There is little doubt that the Lake lode traverses this property, but its exact location is yet to be determined and if the "outcrop" is found to lie below this blanket of sand, expensive shaft sinking may be expected. That the lode carries copper in payable quantities is not a certainty, as the lode has not been treated at this point, but the wonderful showing of the Lake mine immediately adjoining, is much in its favor.

Seneca.

At the Seneca mine the new shaft sinking for the Kearsarge lode has been fitted with a concrete collar and sinking is again under way. The first level will be established 200 feet from surface, which depth the shaft is expected to make by the middle of January. The crosscut to be driven at that level should encounter the lode about one month later. A drill core obtained a year ago at somewhat greater depth is understood to have been richly charged with copper. A diamond drill outfit is in service engaged in securing a cross section of the property. Adequate surface equipment to prosecute development work for several years was recently installed and is now regularly in commission.

Mass.

Mass is engaged in crosscutting south on the fifteenth and seventeenth levels in "A" shaft to intercept a new copper bearing lode recently disclosed by diamond drilling. The new lode lies about sixty feet south of the Evergreen lode, the most southerly lode worked by the company, and upon which two of the three active shafts are opened. The crosscut at the fifteenth level is in about forty feet and should reach the new discovery this month.

Adventure.

Exploratory work by the Adventure continues without any new disclosures made, so far as can be learned. The two diamond drill outfits engaged in sinking vertical holes through the three lodes disclosed by diamond drill operations last summer have ceased drilling and a single outfit is now engaged in sinking an inclined hole to further test these lodes.

Wyandot.

Wyandot's crosscut on the 700-foot level has attained a length of 600 feet, and discloses two copper bearing lodes, one of which holds forth considerable promise. This lode lies 430 feet east of the exploratory shaft, in which all operations are at present confined. It is exposed by nearly 120 feet of drifting, and found to be fairly well mineralized along the foot-wall portion of the lode. The vein stuff is largely epidote, and in appearance resembles

DEPTH OF BUTTE ZINC ZONE

Lexington Mine Proves It Not Deeper Than 1,400 Feet---Butte & Superior Finds Copper Ore at Depth of 1,200 Feet.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 16.—The fact that the Lexington mine, at a depth of 1,400 feet, has completely passed through the zinc zone and at that depth is mining copper ore of fairly good value, is a matter most encouraging to all the district lying north of the proved copper belt known as the "hill." All of the district east of Walkerville and extending east beyond the Butte & Superior properties, is of similar formation and to considerable depth shows zinc to the extent of about 42 per cent and the ore above the 1,400-foot level is so refractory that it cannot be treated profitably at any of the smelters. In the Lexington the percentage of zinc is not particularly great, although sufficient to penalize the ore, on the 700, 800 and 1,000-foot levels, and by selecting its ore the company is able to ship from 80 to 100 tons of ore a day from those levels. On the 1,400-foot level, however, the zinc has completely disappeared in some of the drifts, and the copper deposits are becoming pronounced. The Lexington shaft is 1,400 feet deep and is being continued to the 1,600, where it is expected that it will prove to be a copper mine of immense value.

The theory that the zinc zone has its depth limit in the neighborhood of from 1,200 to 1,400 feet in the district east of the Lexington is being proved in the Butte & Superior property which is commencing to show the copper values at a depth of 1,200 feet. At this depth, however, in the Butte & Superior, the ore is still refractory, and between this level and the 500, thousands of tons of zinc ore exist and have been blocked out. Above the 1,200 and up to the 500 the Butte & Superior is a zinc mine.

Drifting on the 1,200-foot level has resulted in the finding of copper ore assaying between 5 and 6 per cent copper, and 26 ounces of silver. There is also a good trace of gold. The streak of copper ore which was recently discovered on the 1,200-foot level also carries some covelite, and this is considered as a strong indication that the zinc zone practically has been pierced and that the lower depths will reveal large copper deposits.

Although the Butte & Superior company feels encouraged with the indications, there is no presumption that the property has yet developed into a copper mine. It is confidently believed, however, that before the 1,600-foot level has been reached the property will prove its value in copper. The shaft is now down nearly to the 1,400-foot level. Whether it will be the policy of the company to run a crosscut on the 1,400 or not is not known, but it is probable that no further underground development work will be done until a depth of 1,600 feet has been reached. Before summer the property should decide the correctness of the theory concerning the depth of the zinc zone.

Although definite plans have not yet been decided, it is highly probable that the Butte & Superior company will build a concentrator at an early date for the saving of the zinc, and if this is done, it is believed that the property can be worked at a profit regardless of the copper values, which, it is anticipated, will be opened up on the 1,600-foot level.

The Butte & Superior company is strong financially, is equipped with a magnificent surface operating plant capable of sinking the three-compartment shaft to a depth of 2,500 feet. During all of the period of financial depression work at the property went on uneasingly, and Capt. A. B. Wolvin, president of the company, has stated that operations will continue until the value of the property is proved one way or the other.

GLOBE WILL RIVAL BISBEE

Superintendent of Old Dominion Enthusiastic Over Outlook in Globe District---Globe Consolidated Has Entered Ranks of Steady Shippers.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 16.—R. B. Hegardt, superintendent of the Old Dominion Copper company of Globe, who was in the city a few days ago, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the mines of the Warren district, and he was particularly impressed with the Shattuck, at which he spent considerable time. Asked concerning conditions at Globe, Mr. Hegardt was extremely enthusiastic. "Globe seems to be holding the center of the copper stage," he said, "if one is to judge by the numerous flotations recently made and the big ore deposits which are being uncovered in the district. Almost every group of claims in the district is being developed or is about to be developed, and the city is enjoying a boom that is unrivaled in the history of the camp.

"The Globe Consolidated has entered the ranks of the steady shippers. The company is shipping about twenty-five tons daily to our smelter, and it is highly desirable ore, as it contains an excess of sulphur. Lack of sulphur has been the one drawback to the district, and we have been getting a great deal of sulphide ore from California. The Superior & Boston is rapidly opening up some good mines and the Arizona Commercial has been very active, although a heavy flow of water in its Eureka shaft has delayed work considerably. The Gibson and Black Warrior are steady shippers, and the Miami has recently made a test run at our mill, which I understand, was highly favorable.

"At the Old Dominion we have sunk the main shaft to the sixteenth level, and the connection is made between the winze which was sunk from the fourteenth level and the shaft, we will sink to the eighteenth level. We have recently struck the principal sulphide vein on the fifteenth level, and it has been penetrated for about twenty feet so far, with the average yield of copper per ton of 20 per cent, which is pretty rich ore.

"Of course Bisbee is still the great copper camp of the Southwest, and in production will continue to be for a long time, but up in Globe we believe we have a rival camp that will, in time, contest with Bisbee for the supremacy as the biggest copper producer in the country."

IMPORTANT STRIKE IS MADE

In the Honerine Extension at Stockton, Utah---Black Bess Company's Holdings at Alta Bought by Utah Mines Coalition.

Salt Lake, Utah., Jan. 16.—An important strike has been made in the Honorine Extension at Stockton. The Extension company has a permanent right of way through the 5,000 foot tunnel of the Honerine company and has run 250 feet from its end. Less than a week ago the tunnel cut a body of ore that is wider than the tunnel. A general average sample gave assay returns of 25 per cent lead, fourteen ounces silver and 80 cents in gold to the ton.

Several feet of ore carrying lead, silver, gold and copper, worth in the aggregate between $70 and $80 a ton, has been opened in the Bullion Canon company's property near Cedar City, Iron county, in a winze below the tunnel level.

The Black Bess company's holdings at Alta have been bought by the Utah Mines Coalition, a new corporation just organized by a number of Salt Lake operators, including Duncan McVichie, J. B. Risque, R. H. Strickland, L. H. Farnsworth and James A. Pollock, who are the directors. The Black Bess is located at the head of Big and Little Cottonwood canons and is surrounded by properties that have produced millions. Running through the property are four large fissures and a big contact lode. One of the veins has been developed to a depth of 350 feet by a shaft and workings sent out from it are in good ore. The management has decided to drive a tunnel on the most northerly vein and from this level to crosscut the other four and connect with the present workings. This tunnel will give a depth of 1,000 feet.

The Bingham-Butte Mines company operating at Bingham, has authorized a bond issue of $200,000, running five years at 6 per cent. The money is to be used in paying up purchase contracts in the acquirement of new claims and for equipment.

According to the Davis county Argus Patsy Marley has struck a ledge eight feet wide near Farmington, carrying free gold in great quantities. Marley has been working the property since 1896. He believes that in addition to the gold he has a big find of platinum.

The phosphate lands recently withdrawn from entry by the secretary of the interior in compliance with the president's order comprise portions of Morgan, Rich and Cache counties, Utah and nearly all of Uinta county, Wyo., in all about 7,500 square miles of land more or less underlaid with phosphate rock and constituting the greatest known phosphate deposit in the world

COLORADO'S GOLDEN RECORD

Stupendous Values Returned From the State's Mines ---Great Portland Mine at Cripple Creek Continues to Lead in Dividends.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 16.—Since the discovery of gold in Colorado in 1858 $444,864,767.68 has been produced. Of this sum, $27,213,081 belongs to the period prior to 1870. Approximately reliable data were available then. Official reports of mills and smelters have since made more satisfactory returns. The year 1900 reached $28,762,036.29, high-water mark, although 1902 substantially duplicated the record.

Leadville, the oldest, and Cripple Creek, the youngest but the richest and most productive, have contributed nearly two-thirds of the grand total. Eighteen other counties produced gold in 1908.

The silver product during this period reached $417,196,507.09; the lead, beginning with $5,000 in 1872, reached $39,893,688.81; the total copper product was $23,769,934.05; total, $925,724,887.63.

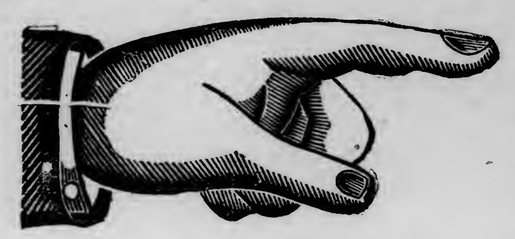

The total zinc product to date is $28,746,007. During 1908 Lake county (Leadville) shipped to the Colorado plants of the American Smelting & Refining company 305,063 tons of ore containing metals and values as follows:

Gold, ounces	47,777	$987,550
Silver, ounces....	3,140,230	1,659,298
Lead, pounds 16,425,080		691,496
Copper, pounds..	6,506,949	845,903
Total		$4,184,247

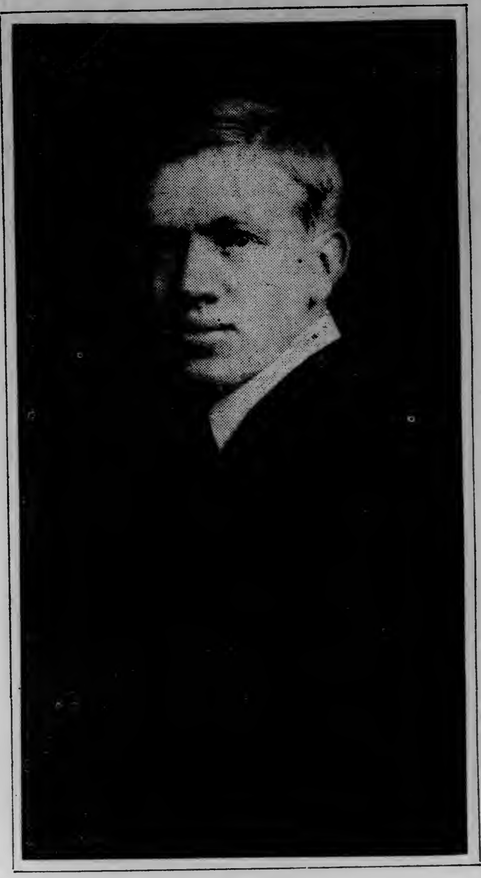

The great Portland mine at Cripple Creek continues to lead in dividends, although its 1908 production is not quite as large as that of the more extensive area controlled by the Golden Cycle and the still larger area of the Stratton estate. The Portland and Stratton's Independence adjoin each other. Their joint production to date approximates $40,000,000. The former has paid more than $8,000,000 in dividends and the latter $3,500,000, exclusive of $4,000,000 or more of profits realized by its original individual owner, W. S. Stratton.

The Florence, Colo., oil fields yielded 300,000 barrels during 1908, the value being $225,000. The United Oil company, owning thirty-five wells, yielding five to 135 barrels daily, is

Calumet and Sonora Stock

At the present time is selling at $22.00 a share. It is one of the greatest buys in the country. The shares may steadily advance to $100.00, and $50.00 will soon look cheap for the stock. Here is one of the biggest and richest mines in old Mexico, with about $7,000,000.00 worth of ore shown up. Calumet and Arizona went from $10.00 a share to $200.00, North Butte from $15.00 to $120.00. Is there any reason why Calumet and Sonora, with only about 47,000 shares issued, should not easily advance to $70.00 or $80.00 on such heavy buying as we now have from all parts of the country? Remember, we told you to buy this stock for the biggest money of any high-priced stock in the country.

Butte-Montana

Some of you may think this one is not going to move fast, but one of these days in the very near future you will see Butte-Montana stock begin to climb. Have I not told you the truth about Ballaklava and Calumet & Sonora, and have I not also advised you correctly on Butte-Montana. It is one of the very best this office has to offer and I believe the shares will soon begin to move upwards. You had better take my tip on this one and begin buying now, for as sure as you live, it is going to have one big advance. It looks as if it has already started, for the orders are beginning to come in fast for the shares. The election of the new officers makes a big difference you know.

Superior & Globe

Should be bought. The mine adjoins the Old Dominion, and one of the strongest crowds in Michigan is back of this issue.

Calumet & Corbin

Mine, located on Corbin Hill, promises to be a big success. Buy this stock, and you'll make money.

Zenith Lead & Zinc

Backed by the Pattison crowd, looks like one of the big winners for the year 1909. Buy it, for you are safe.

ROOSEVELT SAYS NATION IS MENACED BY ELECTRIC TRUST; VETOES MEASURE

Warns Country of Future Power of Westinghouse Interests.

Refuses to Sign Bill for Dam Over James River.

Declares Public Must Retain Control of Water Power.

GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE, Head of One of the Electric Companies Which Roosevelt Names as Future Menaces.

GENERAL ELECTRIC VICE PRESIDENT ENTERS A DENIAL.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 16.—A vice president of the General Electric company in this city has issued the following statement relative to President Roosevelt's veto message:

"The General Electric company is not a party to any trust to control water power, nor is it to any considerable extent interested in water power through ownership thereof. It is interested in the development of water power, as the latter affords a market for electrical apparatus, of which its manufactures largely consist.

"The General Electric company has no interest with the Westinghouse Electric company in the ownership or development of any water power; nor do the men named, so far as I know, control any water power in the interest of the General Electric company.

"I do not know of a single water power company controlled by the General Electric company, except the power at Schaghticoke—the Schenectady Power company—all of which power is delivered to the Schenectady plant of the General Electric company."

Washington, Jan. 16. — President Roosevelt sent a special message to the house yesterday vetoing a bill to authorize William H. Standish to construct a dam across James river in Stone county, Mo., and divert a portion of its waters through a tunnel into the river again to create electric power. In giving his reasons for not signing the bill, the president says it gives to the grantee a valuable privilege which by its very nature is monopolistic and does not contain the conditions essential to protect the public interest. The president reiterates the opinion expressed in April, 1908, when he vetoed a bill to extend the time for the construction of a dam across Rainy river on the ground that the "policy pursued in making these grants is unwise in giving away the property of the people in the flowing waters to individuals or organizations practically unknown, and granting in perpetuity these valuable privileges in advance of the formulation of definite plans as to their use." The Rainy River company, by an agreement in writing, approved by the war department, subsequently promised to submit to and abide by such conditions as may be imposed by the secretary of war, including a time limit and a reasonable charge. Only because of its compliance in this way with these conditions did the bill extending the time limit for that project finally become a law.

Senate Committe Rapped.

"An amendment to the present bill," says the president, "expressly authorizing the government to fix a limitation of time and impose a charge, was proposed by the war department. The letter, veto message, and amendment above referred to were considered by the senate committee on commerce, as appears by the committee's report on the present bill, and the proposed amendment was characterized by the committee as a 'new departure from the policy heretofore pursued in respect to legislation, authorizing the construction of such dams.' Their report set forth an elaborate legal argument intended to show that the Federal Government has no power to impose any charge whatever for such a privilege.

"The fact that the proposed policy is new is in itself no sufficient argument against its adoption. As we are met with new conditions of indutsry seriously affecting the public welfare, we should not hesitate to adopt these measures for the protection of the public, merely because these measures are new. When the public welfare is involved, congress should resolve any reasonable doubt as to its legislative power in favor of the people and against the seekers for a special privilege.

"My reason for believing that the Federal Government, in granting a license to dam a navigable river, has the power to impose any conditions it finds neecssary to protect the public, including a charge and a limitation of the time, is that its consent is legally essential to an enterprise of this character. It follows that congress can impose conditions upon its consent.

Power Should Be Exercised.

"Believing that the national government has this power, I am convinced that its power ought to be exercised. The people of the country are threatened by a monopoly far more powerful because in far closer touch with their domestic and industrial life, than anything known to our experience. A single generation will see the exhaustion of our national resources of oil and gas and such a rise in the price of coal as will make the price of electrically transmitted water power a controlling factor in transportation, in manufacturing, and in household lighting and heating. Our water power alone, if fully developed and wisely used, is probably sufficient for our present transportation, industrial, municipal, and domestic needs. Most of it is undeveloped and is still in national or state control.

"To give away, without conditions, this, one of the greatest of our resources, would be an act of folly. If we are guilty of it, our children will be forced to pay an annual return upon a capitalization based upon the highest prices which 'the traffic will bear.' They will find themselves face to face with powerful interests intrenched behind the doctrine of 'vested rights' and strengthened by every defense which money can buy and the ingenuity of able corporation lawyers can devise. Long before that time they may and very probably will have become a consolidated interest, controlled from the great financial centers, dictating the terms upon which the citizen can conduct his business or earn his livelihood, and not amenable to the wholesome check of local opinion.

The Water Power Monopoly.

"The total water power now in use by power plants in the United States is estimated by the bureau of the census and the geological survey as 5,300,000-horse power. Information collected by the bureau of corporations shows that thirteen large concerns, of which the General Electric company and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company are the most important, now hold water power installations and advantageous power sites aggregating about 1,046,000-horse power, where the control by these concerns is practically admitted. This is a quantity equal to over 19 per cent of the total now in use. Further evidence of a very strong nature as to additional inter-corporate relations, furnished by the bureau, leads me to the conclusion that this total should be increased to 24 per cent, and still other evidence, though less conclusive, nevertheless affords reasonable ground for enlarging this estimate by 9 per cent additional. In other words, it is probable that these thirteen concerns directly or indirectly control developed water power and advantageous power sites equal to more than 33 per cent of the total water power now in use. This astonishing consolidation has taken place practically within the last five years. The movement is still in its infancy, and unless it is controlled the history of the oil industry will be repeated in the hydro-electric power industry, with results far more oppressive and disastrous for the people. It is as yet undeveloped, but the sites which are now controlled by combinations are those which offer the greatest advantages and therefore hold a strategic position. This is certain to be strengthened by the increasing demand for power and the extension of long-distance electrical transmission.

Time to Attach Conditions.

"It is, in my opinion, relatively unimportant for us to know whether or not the promoters of this particular project are affiliated with any of these great corporations. If we make an unconditional grant to this grantee, our control over it ceases. He, or any purchaser from him, will be free to sell his rights to any one of them at pleasure. The time to attach conditions and prevent monopoly is when a grant is made.

"The amendment of the agricultural bill providing for irrevocable permits under the house rules, upon a point of order made by friends of the house bill—that is, by friends of the power companies. Yet, in the face of this record, the power companies complain that they are forced to accept revocable permits by the policy of the administration.

"The new legislation sought in their own interest by some companies in the West, and the opposition of other companies in the East to proposed legislation in the public interest, have a common source and a common purpose. Their source is the rapidly-growing water-power combination. Their purpose is a centralized monopoly of hydro-electric power development free of all public control. It is obvious that a monopoly of power in any community calls for strict public supervision and regulation.

Six Necessary Conditions.

"I repeat the words with which I concluded my message vetoing the Rainy river bill: 'In place of the present haphazard policy of permanently alienating valuable public property we should substitute a definite policy along the following lines:

"First. There should be a limited or carefully guarded grant in the nature of an option or opportunity afforded within reasonable time for development of plans and for execution of the project.

"Second. Such a grant or concession should be accompanied in the act making the grant by a provision expressly making it the duty of a designated official to annul the grant if the work is not begun or plans are not carried out in accordance with the authority granted.

"Third. It should also be the duty of some designated official to see to it that in approving the plans the maximum development of the navigation and power is assured, or at least that in making the plans these may not be so developed as ultimately to interfere with the better utilization of the water or complete development of the power.

"Fourth. There should be a license fee or charge, which, though small or nominal at the outset, can in the future be adjusted so as to secure a control in the interest of the public.

"Fifth. Provision should be made for the termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time, leaving to future generations the power or authority to renew or extend the concession in accordance with the conditions which may prevail at that time.

"Further reflection suggests a sixth condition, viz: The license should be forfeited upon proof that the licensee has joined in any conspiracy or unlawful combination in restraint of trade, as is provided for grants of coal lands in Alaska by the act of May 28, 1908.

"I shall insist upon the conditions mentioned above not only in acts which I sign, but also in passing upon plans for use of water power presented to the executive departments for action. I esteem it my duty to use every endeavor to prevent this growing monopoly, the most threatening which has ever appeared, from being fastened upon the people of this nation."

PETITIONS ARE CIRCULATED

Question of Women's Suffrage is Put Up to Voters.

The question of women's suffrage has been revived in Duluth in the form of a petition which is being circulated for signatures.

The petition is sent out by Mrs. Maude C. Stockwell of Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota Women's Suffrage association, at the request of the National American Women's Suffrage association. Such petitions are beng circulated in every state in the Union and when a sufficient number of signatures have been attached to them, are to be forwarded to the association's headquarters at Warren, Ohio.

The petition is addressed to congress, asking that body to submit an amendment to the Constitution, which will give women over 21, who are American citizens, the right of the elective franchise. Only voters are asked to sign the petition.

Judging from the number of signatures that have been attached to the petitions circulated in Duluth, the men have no objection to their better halves taking a hand in the affairs of the country.

There are now in the United States four states where women have the same political rights as the men, and where they vote at elections upon the same terms. The states are: Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah. Women have school suffrage in Minnesota already, and in twenty-eight other states in some form or other. In a few states there is what is known as tax-paying suffrage. The women who pay taxes are permitted to vote. In other states there is a municipal suffrage.

The petitions from the Women's Suffrage association which have been circulated in this city, have been here but a few days, and already a number of them have been mailed to the association's headquarters with a long list of names signed to them.

STRIKE OVER MUSTACHES

Threatened by the Men Servants at the Elysee Palace.

Paris, Jan. 16.—Another strike is in the air. The dispute is of a somewhat novel character. The men servants at the Elysee palace desire to grow mustaches, and have informed the president of the republic of their ambition, through the first maitre d'hotel. M. Fallieres is in a fix. He does not quite know what to do in the circumstances. It is pointed out by one of the papers that if, on his own accord, M. Fallieres allows the Elysee men servants to grow mustaches, the protocol will be violated. Another way is open to the president. He can call his ministers together, and suggest that a bill be introduced in the chamber on the subject. It is not yet known what action M. Fallieres will take. But at the present moment there is a talk of strike. A mustache strike would not be entirely new in the annals of labor disputes. A short time ago the cafe and restaurant waiters came out on strike because they were forbidden to wear mustaches. They won the day, but the victory was a barren one. In many cafes and restaurants the mustache was forbidden all the same.

MINNESOTA'S GOOD WORK.

Although the weather conditions were unfavorable to the hunting of big game in Minnesota last fall, and the kill was therefor comparatively small, it is the consensus of opinion among those who were in the woods that there has not been for years so many deer and moose in Minnesota as at present.

So much for the work of the state game and fish commission. It is good work. In the face of the slaughter by pot hunters and Indians, in the face of inadequately protective laws and insufficient money for the carrying on of the work, Minnesota has actually contrived to increase its big game. The increase is a valuable asset to the state and to humanity and it ought to be encouraged and promoted by every means in our power.

Minnesota is not the only state which has so protected its big game as to increase it. There are more deer and moose in the Maine woods today than there were ten and twenty years ago. Governor Johnson and the state game and fish commission have made recommendation to the legislature for legislation which will enable the state to undertake the care and increase of game just as it now undertakes, and accomplishes, the care and increase of fish, and it is quite probable that work of this kind will be attempted by the state through the commission very shortly. As to the protection of big game, the state game and fish commission needs larger powers and more money to use them with. Could the state make effective warfare on the pot hunter, big game in Minnesota would multiply much more rapidly. It is believed by all students of this subject, also, that the total suspension of the open season for big game for a period of two years would be a most salutary measure.

There is still something to be said for the settler in this matter. In the past it was almost impossible for the state to secure convictions of offenders against the game laws of the state. This was owing to the lack of discrimination on the part of the state. settlers who shot deer for their daily needs out of season being prosecuted as relentlessly as were mere pot hunters. While the settler was technically equally guilty with the pot hunter, he was not so in fact, for the law was never intended to make it harder for the Minnesota pioneer to subdue the wilderness but to prevent the killing of big game for wanton pleasure or for profit. The state has in some measure learned its lesson, prosecutions of actual settlers are infrequent and the hostility of the settlers to the state game laws has much abated. Injustice to settlers in this respect is still done, however, and within a month a St. Louis county settler has served time in the St. Louis county jail because he killed a deer to support his lonely life in a cabin on a homestead far removed from any town. If the state is to succeed in its work it must enforce the law as to its intent, not as to its letter.

On the whole Minnesota has been doing good work in this respect and the outlook is that it will do distinctly better in the future.

MAKE IT INTERNATIONAL.

Our enthusiasm for the ideal is constantly held in check by the necessities of the practical. It is ideal that Canada and Mexico and the United States should join heads and hands in their plans for the conservation of North America's natural resources but the man-made lines which make several separate nations out of one country mark with equal distinctness the selfishly protective interests of each, and Canada and Mexico, with vast areas of timber untouched, refuse, for the greater part, to make one with us in this matter.

An international conference will be held at the White House on Feb. 18. It will be attended by representatives from the United States, Canada and Mexico. That conference is the outcome of the conservation conferences held last May and December at Washington and participated in by the governors of most of the states of the Union and by men prominent in the work of forest conservation. The president in his letter of invitation to the proposed international conservation conference to be held next month says, "It is evident that natural resources are not limited by boundary lines which separate nations and that the need for conserving them upon this continent is as wide as the area upon which they exist." While Canada and Mexico have already indicated their intention to non-concur in some of the plans which have been proposed for forest conservation, believing that their individual interests are separate as separate nations from the interests of the United States, both countries will send representatives to the conference, and both countries are willing to admit that there are features of the conservation of natural resources upon which a North American agreement may be arrived at.

The protection and control of water supply and water power is one such subject upon which all three countries may agree. If each country is to go its own separate, selfish way the injury that will eventually be done to humanity is great. "The amount of water that can be drawn by American power producers from the falls of Niagara is limited by law," points out the American Lumberman, "but there is no limitation placed upon Canadian use of Niagara waters. Therefor if things go on as they are now going, all the water of Niagara Falls might be drawn off through Canadian penstocks." Somewhat similar to the St. Lawrence and Niagara rivers are conditions which prevail with the St. John river in Maine, the Columbia in Oregon, the Kootenai in British Columbia, the Colorado, the Rio Grande, and others. Even such water powers as those on the northern boundary of Minnesota can be rendered more profitable to the people of the two adjoining countries by agreement as to their control and conservation.

It is certain that the proposed conference will bring out purely national views of the conservation of resources which will be incompatable. Some things that will help the United States will make for the injury of Canada as a separate state, and it is not to be expected that agreement can be reached in these so long as boundary lines prevail and conditions vary in different parts of the continent, but there are many phases of the conservation of natural resources as to which a North American pact may be made, and it is hoped that the international conference of next month will establish the basis upon which such an agreement will ultimately be reached.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

There are many things to help us to realize that this is a big country. One of them is the constant demand for additional departments of government. The latest is the proposal of a department of public works, the demand being the direct result of the idea of F. W. Fitzpatrick, the well known architect, formerly of this city.

The president's cabinet at the outset consisted of four officers, the secretaries of state, of war and of the treasury with the attorney general. The secretary of the navy, the postmaster general, the secretary of the interior and the secretary of agriculture were added in turn. The last department to be added to the government was the department of commerce and labor, organized and established by congress in 1903, thus increasing the four original departments of the executive branch of the government to nine.

The last creation, the department of commerce and labor, is made up of bureaus detached from the treasury department. This department, originally organized for the care of the nation's finances and supposedly, at least, headed by a financier, still includes numerous bureaus of widely divergent character. All of the work which would be done by the proposed department of public works is now done by the treasury department, and includes the planning and building of all public buildings, the development, enlargement and care of waterways, the digging of the Panama canal, the maintenance of all Federal roads, in fact all the engineering and structural work of the government.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who is devoting much time to the promotion of this plan, declares that he does not know of another county which does not have a separate and distinct department of public works. Its primary purpose he defines as above, but its sphere of usefulness would be much greater. Just as the weather bureau, and the department of agriculture are not confined in their scope to national affairs but are made to serve the needs of states and cities, and as far as possible, the needs of every individual, so the proposed department of public works, with its different bureaus would be at the disposal of every state or city. "Its trained assistants and advisers, men of the highest attainments in the arts, would be ever available and anxious," explains Mr. Fitzgerald, "to aid any one seeking to improve, to beautify a city, a park, a railway terminal or whatnot of a semi-public nature. It would urge all our cities to have formulated a fixed and artistic plan for progressive growth, one not necessarily involving the immediate expenditure of vast sums, but a determinate plan to which would conform all improvements as they became necessary or for which funds became available."

The government of the United States is engaged in structural enterprises of vast magnitude and is each year spending millions for its public buildings, waterways and other public improvements. Aside from the artistic, there is weighty argument for the creation of such a department in the savings that would be effected by unity of management and consistency of plan. It is claimed with authority that out of $200,000,000 spent in Chicago during the past five years in general civic improvements nearly 40 per cent has been wasted because the improvements were made "haphazard and without any predetermined general plan of fitting one improvement into another with some definite end in view."

It is expected that the proposed department will be embodied in a bill which will be offered at the next session of congress.

PURELY REFORMATIVE.

The demand for a detention home where children whose offenses have brought them to the attention of the courts of St. Louis county may be temporarily kept and cared for and influenced is purely reformatory in its intention. It proposes to reform the child by correcting his evil tendencies, not to restrain him by punishment.

Children have to be punished, of course, but everybody knows that the thing most needed to be done with them is give them right ideas, to set their feet in the right path, to show them the reasonableness of righteousness and the unreasonableness of evil. Habit and ignorance are responsible for the great portion of all that is bad in children. They are most suspectible to influence, and it is right and overwhelmingly needful that the state shall step in where parents fail and put an end so far as may be to evil influence and substitute so far as may be an influence for good. This is the purpose of the juvenile court and the detention home.

That St. Louis county needs such a court and such a home every one will admit, but how great is the need only those know who have been brought into contact with the work in this very large county which is so rapidly growing in population.

St. Louis county already has the juvenile court and Judge Ensign, who presides over it, and whose work as such presiding judge has made him most familiar with the needs of the errant children of county is of the opinion that the county needs, to complete its care of juvenile offenders, a detention home. In this belief he is supported by all who have given the matter thought.

The opportunity to secure a detention home appears to be at hand. The county will soon have no further use for the courthouse it is now occupying and it is quite certain that the present county jail will also soon be replaced by a more modern and more adequate county keep. The old county buildings may readily be converted into the much needed detention home and the grounds adjacent and now belonging to the county will afford the needed playground for such a home. Thus the county has, practically ready made for an urgent need, exactly the sort of place which it must sooner or later provide.

The matter is one in which expense is no consideration. The few thousands which the county may receive by the sale of the property will be pitifully small compared to the great work of saving our children from what start they may have had toward evil and then making them over, instead, into good citizens. Besides, if this opportunity is neglected, the cost, when the county finally decides to establish a detention home, as it certainly will some time, will be many times greater than the cost to the county of keeping the property it already has.

The juvenile court of St. Louis county has been doing a wonderful work in Duluth and the county; its work has reached the point where it cannot be successfully carried on without a detention home; the home is practically provided without extra expense; all that now remains is for the county formally to accept and establish it.

WHAT WILL THE PENNY BUY?

What will the penny buy? Houses and lands, stocks and bonds, health, thrift and happiness, that's what the penny will buy. The dollar may not do this, but the penny will.

Thrift is a great virtue in a people. The thrift and the contentment of the Scotch people are proverbial. There is no more cheerful people on the face of the earth than the French, and the French people, while not parsimonious or stingy, have a great regard for the penny. It has enabled them to undertake some of the most colossal tasks of history and it has made them happy.

It is said that the French capacity for the accumulation of wealth has probably never been equalled by the people of any other nation. The common people of France, not the capitalists of the nation, have time and again poured out millions on millions for various enterprises in which their aid was enlisted. No other nation has had so many peasant capitalists. Time and again they have responded with the most amazing financial ability to the call of need, as when they paid off the German indemnity so rapidly at the close of the war of 1870, and as when they met and paid the huge indemnity to their canal losses. The wealth of the common people of France is due to economies which we do not practice, if indeed, we know them. It is their high regard for the penny that makes the French people both rich and contented. The tax returns, doubtless far below the real values, show that the French people in 1908 were worth $45,000,000,000 or more than $1,100 per capita. Their foreign holdings bring them in $360,000,000 per year and it is estimated that they are saving a billion dollars every year. All this by taking thought to the penny.

Isn't it wonderful what the penny will buy?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"We have shipped some copper from the Houghton district this winter, and there is every reason to believe that there will be a steady demand for copper during the present year," said T. E. Scarlet of Houghton, at the Lenox hotel yesterday.

"Aside from the value of the copper shares, there is every reason to believe that the market value of the metal will advance. There is but little of the copper metal in the hands of the manufacturers at the present time. Many of the large consumers of the metal were overstocked at the time of the business shakeup, but since that, when the price of the metal has suffered a slump, strange as it may seem, there has been very little buying by the American consumers.

"Since the business upheaval the consumers have been exhausting the supply of copper metal they have had on hand. As a consequence, today there is but little of the metal in the hands of the manufacturers. With but little copper metal in the hands of the consumers, and the business of the country steadily improving, there is every logical reason to look for an advance in the price.

"We have felt the demand up in the Copper country, and they are shipping from some of the mines at the present time. Men who are well informed upon the copper situation state that copper metal is below its real value at the present time, and that there will be an increase in price."

"Vesselmen at Cleveland predict a very good season this summer," said E. G. Rogers of the Cleveland Marine Supply company, at the Spalding yesterday. "Frankly, I don't believe the coming season will be as good as 1907, which will stand as the banner year for some time. There is considerable ore on the docks of the lower lake ports at the present time, and while it is anticipated that there will be a heavier demand for iron in all its forms during the present year than there was during the year just closed, there is a great deal of surplus ore that must be cleaned up before the mines and shipowners will begin to feel the benefit of the increased demand for iron.

"I am of the opinion that the coming season will be a very good one. I don't think that many new boats will be added to the lake fleet. I have been in the South a good part of the year, but since I have been in Cleveland the past week I have heard of but few new boats that will be put into the lake service the coming season.

"All classes of freight carriers should have more business this season than they had last season. There should be an increase in the lumber trade by way of the Great Lakes while increased commercial activity should bring an increased movement of all commodities. The organization of the lumber interests at the Head o. the Lakes will, no doubt, result in a greater movement of lumber by way o. the lakes.

"The people at Cleveland are looking forward to a good season. I can see no reason why there shouldn't be a very profitable season for the vesselmen, perhaps a light season at the start for the ore boats, with a steady increase during the entire season and a very heavy business at the end. There is reason to believe that the demand for iron will increase as the season advances, which will probably mean that the demand for iron ore will show a heavy increase at the end of the navigation season."

"The people up here in the northern part of the state have the idea, at least some of them, that the southern part of the state is opposed to your progress," was the remark of W. M. Twitchell of Mankato, who was at the St. Louis hotel yesterday. "I don't believe there is as much of that sentiment as you believe. There are some people down there who hate to see the northern part of the state develop so fast, it is true, but the majority of the people in the southern part of the state are broadminded, just as people up here are broadminded, and they are glad that the northern part of the state is developing at a rate that is calling the attention of the entire state to its progress.

"Minnesota is getting to the point where its citizens should all put the state before any sectional interest. You know that axiom we used to learn in school: 'The whole is greater than any of its parts.' Well that applies to the state of Minnesota. We have seen this scrap between the northern and southern part of Minnesota, and in my opinion it doesn't do the state any good. The state is big enough for all its citizens, and I don't see that fighting over which part of the state is going to have the best of the state government, is going to help Minnesota any.

"There are narrow-minded citizens in all communities and in all parts of the state. We have them down in the southern part of the state, and you have them up here in the northern part. But, thank the good Lord, the broadminded citizens outnumber them. We have broadminded men in both sections of the state who are working for the good of the state, not for any one section, and in the end these men are the ones who are going to raise Minnesota to the rank of the greatest state in the entire West. Let us forget any sectional differences. It is for the whole state that we are all working."

THE WEATHER.

Today's weather is not very severe and last night was very mild as compared with some this city has been experiencing this month. The minimum temperature in Duluth last night was 6 degs. above zero. The coldest places on the map were Minnedosa, Port Arthur and Qu'Appelle, where the minimum temperatures were 20 degs. below zero.

Sunrise came this morning at 7:49 and about an hour after that, when the sun had risen quite well over the lake and was flooding it and the city, the sight was beautiful. The sun is scheduled to set at 4:47 this afternoon. A year ago, the temperature was 7 degs. below zero.

Of weather conditions, Mr. Richardson says:

"Barometric depressions overlie the Southeastern states and Saskatchewan. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused snow or rain in Pacific coast states, Plateau deglon, the Northwest, and most districts from the Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys eastward to the Atlantic coast, besides higher temperature over Western Canada and Northwestern states. The Manitoba high pressure has moved its center to the lower St. Lawrence valley attended by a cold wave in the latter district and in New England states. Zero weather prevails this morning in Eastern Canada, the Adirondacks and Alberta. The easterly movement of the Sackatchewan disturbance will cause further snow flurries and moderate temperature at the Head of the Lakes tonight, followed Sunday by clearing and colder weather."

The Steel Workers.

The first issue of Charities and the Commons containing the "Pittsburg Survey," has an interesting article about the steel workers of Pittsburg written by John A. Fitch.

Fully 65 per cent of the men employed in the manufacture of steel in Allegheny county are unskilled, but the remaining 35 per cent, the skilled and semi-skilled, are the men who give character to the industry. This is the class from which foremen and superintendents and even the steel presidents have been recruited, and it is the class that furnishes the brains of the working force. To know these men you must stand beside the open-hearth helper as he taps fifty tons of molten steel from his furnace, you must feel the heat of the Bessemer converters as you watch the vesselmen and the steel pourer, and above the crash and roar of the blooming mills you must talk with rollers and hookers, while five and ten-ton steel ingots plunge madly back and forth between the rolls. You must see the men working in hoop mills and guide mills, where the heat is intense, and the work laborious; you must see them amid ladles of molten steel, among piles of redhot bars, or bending over the straightening presses at the rail mills.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Question Why.

In one of his sweetest poems, James Russell Lowell describes his pitiable loneliness when a darling child was taken from him. One of the verses in which he voices his dissatisfaction with the ordinary explanation of trouble is this:

"Your logic, my friends, is perfect,
Your moral most drearily true;
But since the earth clashed on her coffin,
I keep hearing that and not you."

One has some such feeling as this when he reads many of the sermons and articles that have sought to interpret the meaning of the terrible catastrophe in Sicily. Most of them leave you still asking why, why, why?

In a group of distinguished scholars a conversation once turned upon this question of mystery connected with the divine rulership of the world. One man after another sought to contribute what light he could, until it became the turn of the oldest and most revered among them, the president of a leading theological seminary, to speak. All he said was, "Gentlemen, we might as well confess that God does a great many things that man could not conscientiously do." He meant that if a man were in charge of the universe, and had all power committed to him, he would not permit the things to happen that are allowed to happen every day.

For mystery is an every-day affair. The terrible upheaval on the other side of the sea is simply an exhibition on a tremendous large scale of what is happening on a small scale almost every moment somewhere. Indeed, if we can endure and rise above the mysterious dispensations that touch our own lives from time to time, we can probably summon up enough philosophy to meet the great public calamalties concerning which the newspapers scatter particlars far and wide. We do not put the question, "why," for the first time when we read of devastating conlagrations, of engulfing whirlwinds and merciless earthquakes. We put the question, "Why," whenever we hear of a fair, innocent, promising child taken suddenly, or by the slow working of disease, from life; or whenever a young man just through his studies, on the verge of great usefulness in the world, goes insane; or whenever the father and wage earner in a large family dependent upon him suffers a maiming accident; or whenever sickness or death strikes as it seems to love to, a shining mark; or whenever tragedy stalks in one form or another into a familiar and beloved circle of dear ones. We are saying why nearly all the time, if we have any degree of sentiveness to the sorrows, the woe and despair of our fellow men; and if we can give an answer to the question in one case, we probably can in all.

But the fact is, there is no answer—at least none that solves entirely the mystery or satisfies both the demands of the reason and the instincts of the heart. Better for us is it to admit that we are in a world for whose behavior we are expected to give a totally satisfactory accounting. We did not make this world and there are limits to our responsibility for it; and yet we may be sure of at least three things. First, that it is, on the whole a good world. Otherwise the number of suicides would exceed the number of those who die a natural death. The way in which men cling to life, even though they know little but poverty and trouble, is proof that the great majority of mankind regard life as a bcon.

Another certainty is that human sympathy, the best thing that passes between man and man, would never exist were it not for trouble and sorrow. The spectacle of the warships of various nations hurrying toward the Italian waters on errands of relief has been one of the relieving sights in connection with the awful earthquake. Such a tragedy may do more than international peace conventions to bring about friendly understandings that shall make armed conflicts forever impossible. So, too, when trouble comes to an individual, how quickly others signify their appreciation of his suffering, and their desire to do their little best toward making it bearable.

One more thing is certain—trouble ⅔Pb cmf etaoin shrdlu vbgkkqj cnu works out beneficent results in the field of character, provided one does not rebel and complain. The world is educated and disciplined by world tragedies. The individual is purified and ennobled by bitter experiences. So long as the most perfect character that has ever walked this earth was called upon to endure the tragedy of the cross, not only at the end of his life, but all the way through, we who were cast in a lesser mold, who own ourselves far from perfection, ought not to complain when the knife cuts into our flesh or the scourge is laid upon our backs.

The reason can give no answer to the question, "why," but faith, instead of being discomforted and vanquished, is braced and made more robust by every encounter with mystery, for faith takes into account two great factors—God and the future life. And because it rests profoundly on these realities, faith sings on, even though the storm may roar without.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

"I should say he is. He can entertain a whole room full of company."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "That prince didn't pay his hotel bill."

"That doesn't necessarily follow."

Cleveland Leader: Clerk—But you bought this novel and paid for it.

Customer—Yes.

Clerk—Then, why did you wish to return it?

Customer—I read it while waiting for my change.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Did Mr. Taft say he would appoint your friend Dubbs to the cabinet?"

"Not exactly. He said he would take him under consideration. That's a sort of promise."

"Promise? Not by a long shot. When Dubbs gets an appointment it must be on the spur of the moment."

The Bohemian: Celestine—And has Mr. Pryor's church such a small congregation?

Hilda—Yes, indeed. Every time he says "Dearly beloved" you feel as if you had received a proposal.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

Ever since the St. Paul & Duluth railroad was built into Duluth there has been complaint in regard to blocking the crossing at Lake avenue with freight cars. On June 10 the council passed an ordinance in relation to the matter, but it was never enforced. At last the council proposes that it shall be, and the recorder has notified Messrs. Smith and Vance that a policeman will be placed at the crossing who will make arrests whenever the ordinance is violated.

Last night the goods belonging to H. O. Sproat were seized at the instance of Charlie Miller on account of debt, and Sproat left on the night train for St. Paul. Sproat has been living pretty high since he came here. He has been leader in many of the musical and dramatic societies and has been contracting numerous debts. He owes a board bill of nearly $300 to Mrs. Crary. His gold watch was taken from him a few days ago by Susmilch & Montague.

Andrew Johnson, who came from Sweden but lived for several years in Duluth, was drowned near Prince Arthur's Landing recently. He was returning home from work at night and went on the ice, it being the shortest route. He broke through and was drowned. The body was recovered.

The Congregational Literary society held its regular meeting at the residence of T. A. Olmstead last night. The exercises consisted of piano solos by Miss Munger, readings by Misses Murdock and Newman, a solo by Frank Burke, Jr., the society journal by Mr. Atwater, and a vocal solo by Miss Olmstead.

Capt. Smith, Charles Nichols, Charles E. Budden and E. R. Jefferson are the delegates to represent the Duluth camp at the annual encampment of the G. A. R. at Stillwater. Capt. T. H. Pressnell, who is inspector for this district, will also attend the gathering.

W. H. Roberts of Fargo is looking over Duluth with a view of starting in business here.

Superior Lodge of the A. O. U. W. last night elected the following officers: M. W., I. Bondy; foreman, H. S. Patterson, overseer, W. A. Hicken; R. F., N. J. Miller; receiver, P. B. Gaylord; guide, J. S. Daniels; I. W., J. Erickson; O. W., H. Berg; representatives to grand lodge, George Taylor and Isaac Bondy.

THOUGHTS ON BOYS

By J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

Author of "The Young Man and Himself," etc.

His Pa.

(Copyright, 1909, by Joseph B Bowles.)

One of the most valuable items in his assets is his pa, when he has a pa, and when the boy knows it to be so, you find a condition that calls for both gratification and gratitude. There was once a man named Roosevelt who had a son named Kermit, and they and the rest of the family lived in a house that was painted white, in a capital city called Washington. The story has been told that when Kermit started to the public school he was asked certain routine questions to which he gave answer about as follows: "What is your name?" "Kermit Roosevelt." "Where do you live?" "At the White house." "What is your father's name?" "Theodore Roosevelt." "What is your father?" "My father—why, my father is It." That leaves nothing to be desired.

And he has two very desirable qualifications for his pa-ship, whatever kind of a man he may be. First of all, it is very much to his credit and advantage that he was once a boy, and that he can have a pair of boys before his mind every day—his own boy and himself when he was a boy. He remembers exactly what he was thinking about and talking about and trying to do, when he was the age of his boy. Moreover, he now knows where he missed it and where his father and mother missed it, or hit it, as the case might be, and he knows just what to think of his boy and what to do for him. So he sees two boys growing up, side by side, the boy of today and the boy of yesterday, the boy becoming a man and the boy already a man and a father. Unless, of course, he never was a boy at all, in which case, we give him up and drop the subject.

The other qualification is that his boy is anxious to become a man. That, of course, is when he is past the age of Paul Dombey was at, when Mr Blimber asked: "Shall we make a man of him?" and Paul said: "I'd rather be a child." Truly does Charles Dudley Warner says: "One of the best things in the world is to be a boy; it requires no experience, though it needs some practice to be a good one. The disadvantage of the position is that it does not last long enough; it is soon over: just as you get used to being a boy, you have to be something else, with a good deal more work to do and not half so much fun." Just as truly does the same shrewd and genial writer say, "and yet every boy is anxious to be a man and is very uneasy with the restrictions that are put upon him as a boy." Because he wants to be a man, there is a time when he ceases to be a "mamma boy," as he probably was till he was ten years old or more, he loses interest in the feminine point of view and becomes completely and exclusively possessed by the masculine ideals. That is the time when his pa first begins to loom large. That is his father's great opportunity. Then memory begins to work and the lad of today and the lad of yesterday lock arms and march together. Then the father becomes the companion, the dominant companion of his son. He does that if— if, he has a memory; if he has any idea of the value of life; if he is a true man.

The boy will probably find out, fifteen or twenty years later, how he had his pa keyed up and in a quiver all over, during those critical years of the youngster's life, and when he does find it out, they will be still dearer friends. For that father mounts guard and does duty in the boy's darkness, watching his foes that he sees standing along the road anxious to defeat and degrade him, just as his father stood guard over him when he was surrounded by invisible foes, for if there is one thing a boy usually declines to recognize it is the presence of danger, whether physical or moral. He is keyed up to be worth, imitating, for he knows what is going on in that boy's soul—knows he is imitating his dad, just as nature tells him to do. Therein we discover another element in the man's favor; the other thing in the man's favor; the boy has never passed that way before and he is following a trail, trampled and blazed for him.

Nature has given him two things to compensate for his inexperience and insure his safe journey over the unknown path; admiration for the man who is to act as escort, because he is a man and is the particular man that belongs to him; an instinct for following and imitating him, that works automatically.

It keeps that father alive in every fiber. Under the shadow of the pyramids Napoleon said to his soldiers: "Forty centuries look down upon you;" but that father knows that all the centuries and generations to come are anxious about him. He is not only to link the boy to him, but he stands as a representative of the Heavenly Father and must give him his really working idea of what that Heavenly Father is. At the same time, he fills that little soul's ideal of manliness, for he can run and jump and skate and wrestle and handle a gun and ride a horse and whizz on a wheel. He is not only a law-giver, but hero now.

But when that pa is mean and selfish and tyrannical and unfair and hypocritical; when he is always telling how good he was, as a boy, and makes the story more rosy, the older he becomes; when he drives, instead of drawing the boy; when he holds him by the collar instead of his conscience and uses check reins and choke-straps; when his method is repression rather than expression—then woe betide both father and son. As Dr. V. Merrill says, he is a part of all the boy's troubles.

No, he does not do that. He knows the lad, directs him, joins his gang, trains his will and skill and judgment, goes fishing and hunting and camping and rambling and working and worshipping with him, and both think life is worth living.

CHILD LABOR LAWS

BY SAVOYARD

How far your eyes may pierce, I cannot tell;
Striving to better, oft we mar what's well.

ANTONIO LOMBARDI, who came from a land that has made more history than any other, and that was classic when the wise men of the East sought the manger under the guidance of the Star of Bethlehem, is a resident of this town, the capital of the free, and conducts a barber shop in Pennsylvania avenue, in the southeast quarter. He is of that race that had Bellisarius and Narses for heroes, and has in his veins a strain of that blood that escaped the swords of the Attila and Alaric. The Goths and Vandals, the Visigoths and Huns, could not annihilate the stock that had bloody despotisms of a hundred Caesars. Nor even the feudalism of the medieval ages could destroy this hardy people, that in the Christian era gave Dante to letters, Angelo to art, Farnese to the army, and Doria to the navy. In that most desperate and hazardous of all the games participated in by mankind, the survival of the fittest, these be mighty players, these children of sunny Italy.

But there are left the skies
And purple sunsets of her prouder years.

This barber, Lombardi, has a family of seven children dependent on him for support—Jones a son of 14, who in the busy hours aids his father in the shop and learns the trade of a prime minister of one of the most remarkable men who ever wore the French purple, the craftiest statesman of an age when every lion's skin required the fox's to eke it out.

But this free government of ours is 'pragmatical to a degree, and insufferably paternal, as was shown by an act of the first session of the Sixtieth congress, wherein it is made unlawful for children to work in the District of Columbia, and so our barber was delivered to the judge, a just and lenient man, as it proved, who warned him and put him under bond, the effect of which is to require him to rear his son a vagabond—that is, he must wait till the boy is 16 before he can teach him to be a barber. Thus our lawgivers on Capitol Hill assume that the parents of this town are the enemies of their children, and even of their friends. They do not know how to rear them. The bill should have been entitled "An act to encourage vagrancy in the District of Columbia." There is now pending in congress a proposal to extend this nonsense to the states, thus making some 20,000,000 boys and girls wards of the government at this center.

Statesmen who devise mischievous schemes like child labor laws, such as maintains in this district and such as it proposed to apply to all the states, recall Shakespeare's criticism of Ajax—if they had all the arms of Briareus they could not touch, and if they had all the eyes of Argus they could not see. Able, brilliant, virtuous, philanthropic, honest, patriotic, their efforts tend to evil, and failure comes in their wake. Beveridge, of one party, and Bryan, of the other, agreed in nothing else, are in accord that American fathers and mothers are not fit to rear children.

Eldon, lord chancellor of England, was such a statesman, gifted with all the virtues and endowed with all the talents, except wisdom. Lord Palmerston, as justly, as wittily, said to him: "In the history of the universe no man has the praise of having effected so much good for his fellow-creatures as Lord Elion has thwarted." He was the keeper of the king's conscience, and never before, or since, has a conscience had so vigilant and so zealous a jailer. The king was a man after Eldon's own heart, as Eldon was a man after the king's own heart. That volume of Campbell's "Lives of the Lord Chancellor's," devoted to Eldon, is as readable as a novel to one even moderately acquainted with the history of England under the Hanoverian dynasty, and Lord Eldon's early career is a pleasing and romantic chapter. Young Jack Scott, designed for the church, ran off with charming Bessie Surtees to Scotland and got married. They were utterly ruined, and their only visible means of support was a devoted love, apparent to everybody. His father relented, however, though her parents did not, and gave him enough to afford him a moderate support. No church living, for which he was educated, falling vacant, Scott realized the truth that comes to most of us—"He needs must go that the devil drives."

And so he studied for the bar, was called, received some retainers in important litigation, and so greatly did he distinguish himself that he won the heart of the great Thurlow, who got for him a silk gown and procured him a seat in the house of commons, where he soon reached the post of solicitor general, despite the ridicule Sheridan covered him with. Thenceforth, he had a primrose path to eminence—attorney general, a peerage, and finally lord chancellor, a station he held for more than twenty years, during most of which period he was the ruler of the British empire.

Lord Eldon was a thoroughly honest man, a great lawyer, and a narrow statesman. He had the king's ear as no other man had it, and George III reigned at a time when prerogative was a potent factor in England. The king, Lord North and Wedderburn had lost the thirteen American colonies, despite Chatham and Burke, and by the aid of Eldon the king was now to postpone Catholic emancipation. The chancellor was a man of ceaseless industry and infinite patience. He used to read every act of parliament to his majesty without the omission of a word for the king's approval, though the crown had not exercised the veto in more than 100 years. This flattered old George, who one day said to him: "That is not Thurlow's way when he was chancellor. He used to come in with an act of scores of sections, read a sentence or two, and exclaim, 'O, hell, you can't understand it; sign your name here!'" But Eldon preserved all the etiquette of the remote reigns when archbishops of Canterbury were lord chancellors and kings of England absolute monarchs.

Perhaps it was that which gave Eldon his dominion over the king and his conscience, but he was also trusted by old George's scamp of a son, George IV, who had very little, if any, conscience to take inward. William IV., too, leaned on the chancellor, and nearly brought revolution by playing fast and loose with parliamentary reform. The old chancellor lived to a great age, and his married life was one grand, sweet song until Bessie Surtees died about four years before he left the scenes of men.

It is your Lord Eldons who mar free government—your virtuous men, who cannot see with all the eyes of Argus or feel with the arms of Briareus. They are friends of their kind and would advance civilization and promote happiness; but they have neither insight nor foresight, and without one of these gifts—and rare as the phenix is the Crichton who has them both—a man would better be a blacksmith than a statesman.

Eldon was a great lawyer, and of 100 lawyers ninety-nine will prove to be conservatives. Your great lawyer believes in things established. His trade is a study of precedents as well as an elucidation of principles. Sir Edward Coke, the greatest lawyer than Eldon, declared that "the wisdom of all the great men in the world, if they had all met together at one time, could not have equaled the British constitution." That is what every lawyer, fit for his job, thinks of the principles of the law he attempts to expound in the courts. And that is why liberty, as the word is understood in England and in America, is a chip that falls from the ax of the lawyer, whereas despotism is always fashioned by the ambitious soldier, or the politic demagogue. Thoughtless talk tells us the courts threaten and imperil liberties. There is a bit of danger. When liberty dies its last ditch will be in the precincts of the judiciary.

The regulation of every American family by act of congress, as is proposed in federal child labor laws, would be a more cruel blow to liberty than any adjudication of any court. Had ever dealt, and when the last Stuart of the Plantagenets it was not the parliament, but the court that thwarted his design.

That congress will enact a child labor law to apply to the states is quite likely, for there is nothing imaginable that the American congress will not vote for if there be enough clamor for it. New England is for a Federal child labor law, because the cotton mills down South employ children. My information is that these children are infinitely better off than they were in the mountains of the Appalachian chain, where their fathers made moonshine whisky and left them to misery in the cabin. They have opportunities their parents never dreamed of. They attend church and are taught in school part of the year. They are comfortably clothed, sufficiently fed, and are members of a society immeasurably further advanced in civilization than that in which they were born. The real fact is that what New England is concerned about it that the South has driven her out of the coarse cotton fabric trade, and before the world is much older the South will drive New England out of the fine cotton fabric trade. That horoscope is fallible.

Man for man, and woman for woman, there is as much intelligence, as much charity, as much philanthrophy, as much patriotism among the white people of South Carolina as there is among the white people of Massachusetts, and there are more people per thousand of inhabitants dependent on charity in Massachusetts than in South Carolina, and that, too, after South Carolina has paid tribute for threescore years and ten to the mills and factories of New England, to say nothing of the vandalism to which South Carolina was subject in 1865 and the spollation of which she was the victim for ten years thereafter.

The South can take care of her own children, and movements are on foot in the South to regulate child labor by state legislation. If the children of the South were subject to harsh treatment the South is the sufferer. The South is no fool and no miscreant, and the South can be depended on to rear and nourish her own little ones.

But what I would emphasize is that your pure man without wisdom is a worse lawgiver than your bad man with wisdom. It is become a truism that intelligent selfishness is the parent of nearly all that is excellent in government, and it is equally true that misdirected virtue, has been the cause of most that is vicious in government. Ills people infinitely less damage than

John Wilkes, the scamp did the England Lord Eldon, the pure man.

THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA: Memories of Her Student Life and Professors, by David M. R. Culbreth, M.D. New York: The Neale Publishing Co. $5.

In the introduction to his new book, "The University of Virginia," Dr. Culbreth calls himself "a casual alumnus;" but after reading this beautiful book we feels that this "casual alumnus" is a loving and faithful chronicler, and that there was little that escaped his notice during his college days. He relates how he entered the university at Virginia in the fall of 1872, and how he met among the first, the venerable librarian, Mr. Wertenbaker, who knew Thomas Jefferson; and how Mr. Wertenbaker showed the awe-struck new student an autograph letter of Jefferson's, a letter appointing him, Wertenbaker, to the position of temporary librarian; a position later made permanent, at a salary of $150 a year. It is a pretty picture, the eager, fresh-cheeked country boy bending over the prized letter, the old gentleman guarding it zealously, and relating reminiscences of the great man who wrote it. And around them, the venerable librarian and "the new boy," the book-lined walls and pictured columns of the quaint old library.

The new boy is formally entered as a student, and his college life begins. Then follow many charming pictures, pictures of the home-life of the founder of the university, and how he walked and worked and drove about his beautiful Virginia home, Monticello, and the friends he entertained there; crystallized memories of the Jefferson traditions that cling like ivy to the old university; pictures of class-room and debating society, of social and religious functions, of well-known professors—Venable, Peters, Smith, Gildersleeve, Mallet, McGuffey, whose school readers we all remember, and Minor, the expounder and writer of "the law," and many, many others well known to literary and civic fame. They are real and vivid pictures, and bring home to our hearts the university's daily routine thirty odd years ago.

"The University of Virginia," is rich in incidents and anecdotes of the everyday student life of the famous old college, of the men who founded it, of trustees and faculty—the knowledge of an eye-witness, one that has lived through the scenes he relates. Instructive, intelligent, at once spirited and scholarly, Dr. Culbreth's work is a unique addition to the literature of the university.

THE OPERA-GOERS' COMPLETE GUIDE. By Leo Melitz. Translated from German by Richard Salinger. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co., $1.20.

This translation of Leo Melitz's well known work attempts to give to the opera-going public in a short and convenient form the plots of the more important operas, with their casts and principal musical numbers. It is not intended as a serious literary production, but furnishes in the fewest possible words a comprehension of the opera texts for quiet reference. This volume contains the story of every noted opera composed up to 1907, over 200 in number, and therefore comprises all that appears in other books of the kind and many more. The book has become very popular in Germany, and has in fact supplanted all other opera guides. The work has been adapted for use in America by the elimination of a few operas seldom performed here, and the addition of a number of modern operas in which the American public have perhaps a greater contemporary interest.

THE SILVER BUTTERFLY. By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow. Indianapolis: The Bobbs—Merrill company, $1.50.

Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, that exceedingly clever young writer, has hitherto laid the scenes of her stories in the midst of the untamed Western wilderness or amid the ultra-fashionable society of New York. In her new book, "The Silver Butterfly," these two elements have been admirably combined to romantic purpose. The action, to be sure, is placed exclusively in New York, but the plot turns on a mine of fabulous wealth, and a love of the wild forest is a compelling force in the lives of more than one of the interesting and strongly individualized characters. To the tense social drama is in this way added adventurous vigor and unconventional freedom.

"The Silver Butterfly" has the great merit of a concrete object for its center of interest—a delicate, fanciful, romantic object. The idea of the wonderful lost mine, poetically named, itself excites the imagination. When it develops that Robert Hayden, the hero, has long been interested in the mysterious story of the mine, that he has indeed discovered its whereabouts, that he is searching for its present owners, who will not reveal themselves—as these gold-colored threads are one by one played into the reader's hands, and he instinctively connects them with the charming young girl for whom Hayden has conceived instant love, and who wears the shimmering silver wings in her hair and on her cinderella slippers—well, by that time the reader is lost to the world and its cares. Life has anyhow this one good thing in it, and the pages fly.

Howard Chandler Christy's best and boldest color work has been done in the illustrations of this book.

ORATORY OF THE SOUTH. By Edwin Dubois Shurter. New York: The Neale Publishing company. $3.

Prof. Shurter is well fitted to write upon oratory. For years he has been identified with the art of public speaking, and he is an authority on its history and development in America, and especially with its development in the South. He was for some time instructor of oratory in Leland Stanford and Cornell universities, and since 1899 he has been in charge of The School of Public Speaking at the University of Texas. In addition to this wide experience as teacher and interpreter, Prof. Shurter has edited several texts of select orations, and has published much on the subjects of debate and oratory.

In "Oratory of the South," Prof. Shurter presents the best orations of the present-day orators of the South. It is the first of a series of similar volumes, to be issued from time to time, and the plan of bringing out this series has its inception in the fact that the current oratory of the South has been little exploited. The author's aim being to give the latter-day speaker a fair representation, each selection in "Oratory of the South," is preceeded by a few lines of introduction relative to the speaker, and the occasion and circumstances under which the oration was delivered. This first volume of the series contains nearly a hundred selections, and among the orators represented are Henry W. Grady, Stephen D. Lee, John Sharp Williams, David A. De Armond, Richard P. Hobson, Henry Watterson, W. C. P. Breckinridge, Edward W. Carmack, John W. Daniel, Champ Clark, Fitzhugh Lee, William Gordon McCabe, Isador Rayner, Emory Speer, Albert H. Whitfield, Gen. Joseph Wheeler, Charles B. Galloway, and Cardinal Gibbons.

Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court recommending it as "the most excellent and vivid brochure" he had ever read.

One of these, entitled "Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln," is by distinguished men of his time, whose names are among the most significant memories in this country. The other, the story of the president and the Green Mountain boy, who was found asleep on post, called "Lincoln and the Sleeping Sentinel," is told by L. E. Chittenden, who was register of the treasury in Lincoln's administration. Both of these books aim directly at a presentment of Lincoln the Man, his simplicity, his instructive wisdom, and his gentle humanity.

News of the earthquake disaster in Sicily has caused Marion Crawford's "Southern Italy and Sicily" to appear suddenly as one of the books most in demand at the libraries and in bookstores. The January number of The Bookman contains a summary of their reports for the past year on the six best selling books. As was expected, "Mr. Crewe's Career" proves to have been the book of the year. It led all others in the number of points scored, 1,389, its nearest competitor having received 1,195. Mr. Churchill's novel also leads in the number of times it appeared at the head of the list. In four successive months it was the best seller, while its nearest competitors remained at the head of the list only two months.

Frederick A. Stokes company will publish this month a very unusual story, called "Dreaming River.' It has only two characters, with the exception of a good, queer old doctor who comes into one chapter. A man and a girl on the Minnesota prairie, that is all—and nobody else lives within twenty miles. Of these two characters one is unconscious during one-third of the story. Out of this material the author has made a book full of events, a book whose interest is by no means confined to psychological situations, one in which something unexpected is continually happening. Another original feature is the fact that the hero is a poet, whose verse is not imaginary, but is set down in the pages of the book. It is very good verse, distinctly worth reading, and it is written very cleverly into the fibre of the novel. Barr Moses, the author, has never before published a novel. He has written shorter fiction for many years, and one time he studied writing under Robert Herrick, at the University of Chicago.

The critics who have read "Martin Eden" state that it is gripping, vivid and picturesque, and is such a story as only Jack London could write. The editors of Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine believe it to be a story that every man and woman should read, as it contains a big lesson, and in its arraignment of false ideals, is both noble and notable.

This number of the magazine is given over to "human interest" studies of the people of Pittsburgh, putting forward the composite situation as reflected in the lives of two groups—the immigrant and the negro. The February number of the magazine will be given over to Pittsburg, the place; and the March number will discuss Pittsburg, the work.

The opening articles of the notable series, "Stories of a Great N'ation," appear in the National Magazine for 1909, have awakened widespread interest. The January issue contains one of the most remarkable sketches of "The Supreme Court of the United States," written by ex-Justice Henry B. Brown. "The Secrets of the 'Secret Service'" are told in a graphic, interesting way, with illustrations, by the chief of the bureau of engraving and printing. "The National Health," is treated in an article by Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, and is thoroughly interesting and up-to-date. Vivid and picturesque is the second of Peter MacQueen's illustrated articles on "Roosevelt's African Hunting Grounds." Many of the photographs were taken by Mr. MacQueen, who has just returned from Africa, and his sketches are highly entertaining. The "Conservation of a Great Nation's Resources," is the subject of a notable article by T. B. Walker, who is one of the largest individual timber land owners in the country.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for January 9, contains a remarkable interview with Mary Anderson by Frank C. Hemphill, editor of the Charleston News and Courier, in relation to President Roosevelt's nomination of Dr. Crum, a negro, to be for the fourth time collector of that port. The communication sets forth the Southern point of view in a telling manner. Uncle Remus'—the Home Magazine for January leads off with one of the last editorials ever written by the late Joel Chandler Harris. It is called: "Progress—In the Best and Highest Sense," and is an emphatic, though temperate, statement of the central thought which ran all through its writer's life and philosophy; that the piling up of material wealth does no indicate progress in nearly the same degree that intellectual and spiritual advancement does. The writer saw great hope and encouragement in the fact that the South, in particular, is reading more and more; the people are buying more and more books. The fiction for the number includes an installment of "Hibert Neal," Will N. Harben's great Southern story, a New Year's story by Mary E. Bryan, called "The Unmasking of Aunt Sophy," and a strongly emotional tale by Paul Grant, which deals with the fortunes of an old Southern family. It is called "Last of the Lindseys."

All advices unite in indicating that the recent earthquake in Southern Italy and Sicily, causing a loss of more than 200,000 lives and destroying a billion dollars' worth of property, was the greatest catastrophe in the history of the world. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly this terrible event is recognized in several pages of pictures, with an article by Clarence Richard Lindner, giving a concise account of the calamity. The pictures cover the most destructive earthquakes of the past quarter century, and are exceedingly interesting at this time. Other illustrations worthy of special note include the cover picture, representing a Hippodrome girls on an auto outjolly ing in Central Park, New York; a page of photographs from life of stylish New York women in street garb, glimpses of the delights of automobile show of 1909 in New York, hunting scenes in Africa, many pictures of news interest, and the amateur photo prize contest.

SOCIETY

IF the weather settles—that is settles higher than it has settled for the last week or two—then out will come the mackinaws and moccasins, and skis, and shoe pacs, and all society will take to the woods and hills. It has been a poor season for winter sports thus far, but those tingling with the desire to get out and away, are hoping that the next week will produce weather that will make these outings possible. The Spirit Lake branch of the boat club and the various cabins in the woods are the rendezvouses (no matter what you think, that last word is perfectly correct) of the snowshoe enthusiasts. The children, who can be frazed by no little matters of inconvenience, are struggling through the sticky snow on skis, but the less adept are waiting until the snow is hard and slippery and the pathway is well marked out, and the moon is shining, and all other conditions exactly correct, before they essay the exhilarating slide to ignominious downfall.

Meanwhile bridge and tea and sewing parties are the excitements demanding society's attention.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

That there is a way and method of securing an audience in Duluth for a recital or concert was proven last Saturday evenig, when Josef Lhevinne, the Russian pianist, appeared before a crowded house at the Pilgrim Congregational church. This interest, after several seasons of earnest effort by managers to present fine concerts, in some cases world-known artists, to Duluth audiences, always with disastrous results, financially, is electrifying. Many music lovers who have famished during the year for concerts and good music, are devoutly hoping and wishing that the guarantors who made possible the Lhevinne concert would form an association for the bringing of artists to the city. However, the result was achieved, by new thought, suggeston, hypnosis, or what, certain it was that a large and enthusiastic audience greeted the pianist.

What was done once, might be done again, and Duluth in the future may not be entirely off the musical map.

For Large Appropriation.

The club women of Minnesota were much interested in securing the separation of the boys and girls' training school at Red Wing, and after several years of effort that concession was secured from the legislature and the school for delinquent girls is now located at Sauk Center. However, unless a large appropriation, say one of $150,000, be secured, the previous work will have accomplished little good, and so the club women of the state are again busy, putting forth their best efforts to secure this large appropriation from the state for the school. If the matter is not settled at this session of the legislature, it will be postponed until 1911.

The presidents of the local clubs have received notices from the committee of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs interested in the matter, and Duluth women will do what they can to interest the senators and representatives from this part of the state in securing the large appropriation. At the council meeting held during the week, a committee was appointed to communicate with the legislators and many of the individual clubs will also use their influence.

UNITED STATES-VENEZUELA SETTLEMENT IS AT HAND.

Washington, Jan. 16.—After years of patient waiting on the part of the United States, there is a prospect for settlement by a method satisfactory to this country, of the disputed claims with Venezuela, the refusal of which government to arbitrate them resulting last spring in the breaking of friendly relations between the two countries.

The state department announces that W. I. Buchanan, special commissioner who has been in Venezuela several weeks negotiating settlement of the cases, had reported that he had reached the basis of an agreement for their settlement, and that a protocol to that effect was now being drawn up for signature.

They All Say

"I Have Got Others"

writes Mrs. M. E. Burleson, of New Decatur, Ala., "to try Cardui, and they all join me in praising it for sick woman. I shall use Cardui as long as I can get it to use. I was in a delicate condition and had formerly had two mishaps and came very near losing this child. My doctor told me he didn't think Cardui could help me; that I had waited too long. But I stopped taking doctors' medicines and sent for a bottle of Cardui, and in less than a week was up and able to do my housework. Five months later, after taking 5 bottles of Cardui, and with only 1½ hour of pain, I was the happy mother of a fine, healthy, baby boy, of 11 pounds."

Cardui has been found to strengthen and tone up the womanly organs, regulate the functions and restore weak women to health.

It is a pure, vegetable medicine, with genuine curative powers, and acts so gently as to be without any kind of bad after-effects on young or old.

It can't help but help you. Try it.

Picturesqueness the Feature of Winter Sporting Garb - Fashions That Are Set By Athletic Wear - When the Directoire Gown Goes Skating.

It is a beneficent dispensation of the arbiters of dress which permits almost unlimited latitude in the garb for out-of-door pursuits. Or perhaps Fashion, realizing in this case the slenderness of her sceptre, gracefully yields a point to expediency.

Freedom, comfort and adaptation to the needs of the occasion make athletic togs a joy to the wearer. The one unalterable essential is that the raiment shall not hamper the movements. The picturesque quality that should make these informal wearables attractive silhouettes against the background of wind-swept sky, misty winter woods and brown or snow white hillsides, allows many indulgences of individual artistic whimsies.

The vivid brunette who knots a scarlet silk kerchief about her throat under her skating jacket knows very well that a cobwebby lace yoke under sumptuous furs is the fashion, but the flaming neckerchief below her rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes makes of her a picture against the wintry background. Just so the golden-haired maid who pins a pale blue tam over her curls, knows that if not in accord with Mme. Mode's notions, her headgear is gloriously correct for a jolly coasting party, and has the advantage of mianking her as ravishingly pretty as it is her privilege to be.

How Athletic Togs Influence Fashion.

Mme. Mode has to do more than yield a point sometimes, however. Little customs of dress, adopted solely for comfort in out-of-door pursuits, establish themselves in feminine favor by their attractiveness or practical qualities. The familiar bicycle skirt, for instance, with its neat and sensible fastening under a row of buttons at the side, put a blessed quietus upon the long endured gaping placket.

The ribbon bands which pretty tennis maids bound over their pompadours a summer ago, to keep their locks from flying about in the active game, proved so fetchingly becoming that they did much to establish the vogue of the filleted hairdressing for evening wear.

And, as everyone knows, motoring dress has established many a fad among those who wnik. Notably the motor veil, which, in order to keep the hat on the head, had to be tied flat across the top of the head and knotted beneath the chin. A decade ago no woman under 60 would have dreamed of making a spectacle of herself by adjusting her veil in this elderly way. Now every matron and maid who travels by land or sea covers her hat and hair in this complete fashion; and on a stormy morning all the army of business women set forth likewise protected against the weather.

The Riding Habit Must Be Conventional.

The single exception to the picturesque liberties allowed in outing dress is the riding habit. This must not depart an iota from the formal lines set down by custom and fashion as correct. In fact, the severe correctness of the riding habit, as well as its immaculate neatness, is its particular charm.

The riding togs of the winter girl will have the accepted cut, but the coat will be very warmly padded and interlined, and beneath the single skirt will be worn heavy wool underwear and riding knickers of close-woven pongee or satin. Many women who ride throughout the cold weather season wear under their fitted habit coats the gay little waistcoats of silk with chamois linings.

Furs, of course, are out of place with the riding habit, but the girl who has a sensitive throat may cover her linen collar and ascot tie with one of the well-fitting knit mufflers which button snugly and flatly about the throat. The riding girl's blood will soon be dancing with her violent exercise, but she will do well to have her feet and hands very warmly clad. Heavy buckskin or chamois gauntlets will be best for winter riding; fur-lined gloves are much too heavy on the bridle rein. The riding boots of soft leather will be sufficiently loose to permit of free circulation, for nothing is more conducive to frostbitten feet than pinching footwear.

Silken Hose Not for the Athletic Girl.

What is true of horseback riding is also true of all other winter sports. The hands and feet—and particularly the latter—should be warmly, yet very loosely, clad. Some women cannot wear cashmere hose, disliking the roughness the wool sometimes produces on the skin; but stockings of heavy gauge cotton or lisle should be selected, and with leather leggins strapped over the shoes and meeting the silk knickers which button below the knee, the winter athletic woman may snap her fingers at any danger of chill from standing or walking on the frozen ground.

Miss Nimrod Is Nattily Clad.

The hunting girl particularly will attend well to the sufficient warmth of her "underpinnings." Her well-fitting knickers, stockings and leather leggings, while warm and close in texture, should not be heavy enough in weight to interfere with her free movement or tire her on long tramps across country. No petticoats, of course, are permissible under the swinging skirt which must scramble down rocks and slip through brambles.

In fact, the hunting girl's whole costume is built with the idea of being a resister of rain and undergrowth. No loosely threaded wool fabric forms her skirt; but, like the Indian maid, she goes clothed in a clever suit of soft buckskin or doeskin. This suit will be as modish in cut as she pleases, but smooth leather strappings will serve instead of hems and businesslike buckles and straps instead of foolish buttons. Under the leather coat and over a shirtwaist of flannel or soft silk will be slipped a boy's knitted slicker, or sweater, coming high about the throat.

By all means should the hunting girl have a bright-colored hat. Many deplorable accidents have been the result of fur-colored headgear, mistaken among the trees in the misty winter atmosphere for something that is fair play for the huntsman's gun.

The Skating Girl Loves Bright Colors.

Of all the winter sports skating is the gayest and most irresponsible. It represents no keen pursuit, no arduous game, no effort at all, except the pure joy of motion in the frosty air. Its appropriate habiliments, therefore, are not in the least businesslike, but as lively and picturesque as the wearer's fancy may dictate.

Two things, however, the sport imperatively demands—a short skirt and a coat in which the arms are absolutely free. Otherwise one may wear a thousand-dollar fur coat or a gay red sweater, a Fifth avenue turban or a rakish toboggan cap. One may carry a muff or tuck one's happy fingers into comfy knit woolen gloves. And, by the way, the woman who is able to skate gracefully with her muff in her hands has unlimited chances for coquettish posing and movement—impossible to her of simply gloved hands.

The Directoire Costume on Skates.

At a fashionable skating rink not far from Central Park, where the artificial ice is frozen three times a day and the skaters glide about to the strains of the latest comic opera selections, the costumes of some of the fair participators in the sport would be laughable, if they were not pitiful.

Picture hats, conventionally veiled, are the rule, though most of the women skaters do compromise with practicability by wearing ankle-length skirts and necessarily skating boots. The grieved observer, however, has noted this year not a few clinging Directoire skirts, painstakingly upheld during the skaters' gyrations about the rink. And as for a hog on ice, no unfortunate piggy essaying to cross the duckpond in winter was ever as absurd a sight as a woman with a Directoire skirt upheld to display a clumsy pair of hocky boots and be-buttoned Directoire coat tails streaming out behind.

The sensible skating girl garbs herself nattily in a short kilted skirt, with—let coquetry whisper this—a frilly, dainty petticoat beneath and a trig jacket in hip length. She will wear, also, headgear which, while not large enough to catch the wind, will make a becoming background for her hair and face.

The Face Veil Is Out of Place in Athletics.

The skating girl will not try to keep her flying locks in place with a conventional face veil, and thus spoil her picturesqueness. If some protection must be worn over the hair, a net will be better, and this should be loosely adjusted. If a few gay little curls escape to blow about the forehead and ears, it will not greatly matter.

The only veil that is not out of place for wear in out-of-door sports is the long chiffon auto veil. Such a veil, twisted about the face and throat, is often a delightfully becoming headcovering, provided the color is well chosen; but the arrangement of the veil for sporting wear should be informal and scarf like and never in any way suggest the conventional promenade.

The Indoor Tennis Girl Needs a Warm Sweater.

Another sport that calls for warm and roomy garb is winter tennis in the armories. Many young women have permission to use the courts laid out so temptingly on the big armory floors during off afternoons, and it is a pretty sight to see the players skimming about on the gleaming floor to the thudding music of the rackets and balls.

Armory tennis is a much swifter game than the out-of-door sport. There is not the same "spring" to the court as in the case of turf or even clay; neither is the indoor air vivifying and invigorating, and the player, besides becoming very much overheated, is usually greatly wearied after playing a short time. The temptation to sit and rest a few minutes in the draughty, little-heated armory often results in a severe chill and cold, unless there is a warm wool sweater to be donned the instant play is over.

For indoor tennis many women players have gray or blue flannel negligee shirts, such as men wear when camping. With a bright-colored necktie and a graceful, kilted skirt, such a shirt is very jaunty and becoming, and is far more practical than a thin cotton blouse.

The armory floor, besides being very slippery, makes swift play with the ball, and the shoes should be the supple, soft-soled "sneakers" rather than the stiffer leather tennis shoes with rubber soles.

Automobiling Calls for Warmest Wear.

The motoring maid finds the regulation chiffon veil—quite comfortable though it may be during dusty summer weather—scarcely a protection against bleak winter breezes. For her there is a cosy veil-hood of lightweight wool merino cloth, which fits over her fur turban and has in front a broad window of isinglass. This window is no arrangement of twin peepholes in goggle style; it is a sizable pane through which one may comfortably take in the football game without turning the head every time the ball crosses a 25-yard line.

And, speaking of football games, all the pretty girls in the grandstands at the big Yale-Harvard game this fall unbuttoned their huge rug muffs and spread the warm pelts across their knees, lap-robe fashion. The motoring maid, of course, has no need of a muff laprobe, or, indeed, of a muff at all, with 1 furry coat, warm gauntlets and roomy pockets, into which frost-nipped fingers may be thrust.

Angora Garments Ideal for Winter Sports

Even better than the favorite sweater is the jacket of fine angora wool. There has been quite a fad lately for these angora garments, men particularly fancying the light weight, yet extremely warm, waistcoats which are sold for wear beneath hunting and automobiling coats. Angora wear, however, has the distinction of being high in price and not everybody can indulge in these featherweight togs which are warm as fur.

The Basketball Girl.

A consideration of winter sports should not overlook the girls who make merry in a gymnasium during the frozen-up months. Gym suits are all on one model and a good pattern may be obtained for a few cents. Serge is the best material, as it sheds the dust easily, though any light-weight wool fabric will answer. Gymnasiums are kept at a very low temperature because the violent exercise soon sets the blood to dancing, and a pause in the fun makes one feel the chill of the atmosphere very quickly. The gym suit should be dark and inconspicuous in color and should have buttoned cuffs like a shirtwaist, so that the sleeves may be rolled up when desired.

Fashion Paragraphs.

MENDING A SHIRTWAIST WITH A HANDKERCHIEF.

The sheer handkerchief linen shirtwaist has a provoking way of going into holes just below the collar band, long before the rest of the garment begins to show signs of wear. Of course, even the most painstaking darning will destroy the daintiness of such a shirtwaist when the mending must be in such a conspicuous place. One clever woman has hit upon the notion of setting into such shirtwaists the fine linen handkerchiefs which come with small border embroideries just above the narrow hem. The handkerchief, with the hem carefully cut away, may be set into the blouse with the points coming at back and front and on the shoulder seams. A sufficient space is cut away for the insertion of the collar band and a neat hem or facing finishes the opening at back or front.

BUTTERFLY VEIL PINS.

A pretty maid got into a Broadway car the other day looking, in spite of her sumptuous furs, as though she had just come from summerland; for poised airily on the brim of her wide hat was a big butterfly. Closer inspection showed that the butterfly was of filagree metal with bits of coral making splashes of gorgeous butterfly color on the wings. The pretty ornament had a use, for it was in reality a pin, clasping the veil firmly and neatly to the hat brim. Many of these pretty papillons are shown in the shops, some are of gold, others of silver filagree, and not a few are set with tiny rhinestones, as though his butterflyship had brushed against a flower wet with dew.

A WEIGHING STAND FOR THE BATHROOM.

The fashionable woman does not patronize the penny-in-the-slot weighing machines and the occasional taking account of flesh at the Turkish bath is not sufficient. Each day, after her morning bath, miladi steps upon a dainty weighing apparatus which is kept conveniently at hand, and watches jealously lest malicious Father Time shall have added another half ounce in spite of her care. Weighing stands come in white enamel with steel trimmings to match the other bathroom fittings, and on the platform is spread a small square of Persian carpet, that miladi need not put her bare feet upon the chilly enamel.

A NEW KIND OF NECKLACE.

The very newest necklace does not encircle the throat, but hangs in front in two ends heavily weighted by tassels. Such a necklace, made of jet, is worn by Miss Fritzi Scheff in her new comic opera, "Prima Donna." The necklace is worn with a white satin evening gown, and the rich black of the cut jet is very striking against the snowy gown and white flesh above the low corsage. At the ends of the string of small, faceted beads are long tassels, also of jet. Very pretty necklaces of this sort may be made of the colored beads which are a fad just now; but the ends of the necklace must be well weighted by the tassels in order to keep the slender string of beads from slipping on the neck.

VEILS AND SMART VEIL FADS

THE fashionable woman is infinitely particular about her veil, not only as to its pattern and its color, but the matter of its adjustment. The average women does not give half enough thought to this important detail of her costume. The face is the focusing point of interest to the observer; no matter how wonderful a gown or a hat may be, one's eye travels instinctively to the wearer's face to see what that is like. The veil, therefore, coming directly between the face and the critically observant eye, is a most important feature. In fact, a veil may make, or entirely spoil, beauty, as few women realize.

Over a fresh, girlish face almost any kind of veil is becoming; but it is a peculiar fact that though a conspicuously spotted face veil serves to emphasize the brilliancy of bright eyes and the rosy tints of a lovely skin, in some insidious way it renders dull and insignificant eyes that are tired and a skin that is lifeless or colorless. So the woman over 30 will do well to select her veils by the trustworthy aid of the small mirror at the counter, and not depend on the engaging effect produced when the pretty saleslgirl holds the strip of veiling before her own piquant face.

Fine mesh veilings are more universally becoming than the dotted effects, which should be worn only by women of decided coloring in eyes, lips and cheeks. The chantilly net veilings are perhaps the most becoming of the dotted effects, the flat or open "ring" dots on the beautifully fine net having a very softening effect on the complexion. New chantilly veils have dainty allover spray and vine patterns matched by narrow borders. These veils are rather high priced and are not as becoming as the ordinary plain ring dot effects.

Square-mesh veilings are becoming to most women, and one of these square-mesh veils, with an elaborate border, is shown in the photograph. The square mesh veils in black, and with woven spots, also square, are having a vogue at present with the low turbans of the winter.

Of all the square-mesh veilings, the Russian nets are the most becoming, and there is a craze just now for these. The mesh of twisted black and white threads has a peculiar soft gray tone which is extremely flattering to the complexion. At the crossing of the gray threads small woven dots of black give snap and character to the mesh.

Magpie veils are usually most favored in summer time, the daintiness of the white fabric, sprinkled over with black dots, being especially charming with light hats. Fine white maline or French "illusion," with closely set black chenille dots, makes one of the prettiest magpie veilings. White chiffon dotted with black is trying to the eyes, but is ravishly becoming to the skin, giving even a swarthy woman an ethereal look behind the misty whiteness. Magpie veilings are not at all economical, however, as they soil very easily, and a veil that is not immaculate is intolerable. Some women dip their light veilings in a bath of gasoline, pinning the fabric afterward, firmly to a pillow or other flat surface to dry without crenses. The edges of a veil should always be straightened out crosswise and not lengthwise of the material, as the pull on the veil is lengthwise, and every veil in time stretches out and becomes narrower. A good idea is to pleat the veil, or roll it and pin the roll by the edges to a screen or long cushion, counteracting while the veil is not in use the lengthwise strain on the material.

On the arrangement of the veil over the hat depends much of the good style of the wearer's appearance. There are constant changes in the manner of adjusting the veil, and scarcely has one achieved deftness in one method when, presto, the fashion weather vane swings around and another fad comes in.

Just now the veil is pinned around the edge of the large hats, and the ends are carried smoothly to the back of the brim.

The square veil is very easily arranged and is a joy to the woman who frequents the theaters, as it can be adjusted without the help of a looking glass. The big square is simply thrown over the hat, with one straight edge falling just below the chin. The sides are carried back and a veil pin holds the ends daintily at the back. These square veils come in bordered chantilly patterns like the one in the picture, and in light and heavy chiffon for traveling and motoring wear.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS' PAGE

Poor Children.

It is well known that the children of the poor are often made to suffer at the hands of the children of the well-to-do. They are slighted, often insulted, on account of their poverty. Their old and patched clothing is laughed at; their uncouth manners often make them the butt of those whose own manners need mending. But if the children of the poor would turn their faces away from those who scorn them and pursue their way earnestly, bravely, they may see the day when they will look down from superior positions upon those who have but money to rest upon. In the pages of history we find the glorified names of heroes, great geniuses, statesmen, who came from the lower walks of life. One great man has told us that genius is rocked in the cradle of poverty and obscurity. Money may give pleasure, ease, advantages, but it does not always prove advantageous to the youth. Indeed, it often curbs, or smothers altogether his ambition. The poor boy realizes that with himself alone rests his future. He works like a hero to gain his goal. The rich boy too often lets his money work for him. And in the end the child of the poor may prove the master in science, art, statesmanship, becoming a leader of men, while his rich schoolmate may develop into an ordinary man without ability to take care of the fortune which has fallen to him.

Poor children have nothing to be ashamed of. Every path is open to them, and the petty trials attending their earlier school days—the slights and insults of their richer classmates—should be to them simply trifles. Instead of suffering from injured feelings, or holding in their hearts envy or hatred against the children of the rich, they should feel only pity for those who so far forget themselves and their duty toward their less fortunate classmates that they can stoop to such unworthy behavior. The noble boy and girl never allow money to influence them. It is ability, earnestness and worth that counts for everything with them.

HOW A LITTLE LAD BECAME A KING.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

THE story I am about to tell happened a very, very long time ago. And the events took place in a country across the sea—a country that does not now exist, for not only has its name been changed these many hundred years, but its people likewise have become very different in language and custom from those who lived there during the period of which I write.

This country was ruled by a king whose power was unlimited. But he was a good king, and did not abuse his great trust. He tried to be just in his government, making the people happy and prosperous. But as he advanced in years he became very much perplexed and worried regarding the future of his beloved country after he should have passed out of life. His only child, a son of 14 years, was the real cause of the good king's uneasiness over his subjects' future. The boy was selfish and wayward, caring for nothing but his own pleasures. In vain did the royal father try to instruct his son and heir in the lessons he himself had learned so well, the lessons of mercy and justice, but the young prince would have none of his sire's teachings.

"When I am king," he would say boastingly, "I shall change things in this country somewhat. I shall make my subjects build for me a palace of gold, and they shall serve me in a way befitting a king. I shall raise a vast army and make war on my small neighbors, taking their countries for my own, and then I shall be more mighty than any king who has gone before me. I shall be feared and, therefore, obeyed. If one subject oppose my wish he shall be minus a head on the instant that I hear of his disloyalty."

And this bonstful talk of the heir to the throne distressed the king more than his councilors could know. "Oh, the prince is young and indiscreet and proud," his councilors would say, laughing at their king's anxiety. "He will grow out of his foolish, vain way, and become worthy of his great and just sire."

But the king knew his son better than the councilors knew him. And the king feared for the future of his beloved realm.

One day as he sat alone in his private chamber a thought came to him. Was not he all-powerful? Could not he make and unmake laws to suit his own pleasure? Was not he the Unlimited Power of his realm—a vast land teeming with a million souls? And was not he the Father of his people? And was it not befitting that he should do something for their future as well as for their present? Why should not he devise some law by which his beloved country might remain prosperous and happy even after his own death? Yes, that was his duty. And, once seeing it, he must not falter. While his own son was very dear to him, he must not allow the tie of blood to influence him in the matter that was now so vital.

Summoning his councilors to him, he announced to them a strange order. "Let wise men be sent throughout the realm in quest of a youth who is wholly unselfish. Let not the object of their search be spoken of to anyone, but let them go as poor wayfarers who are living on the charity of the people. In this way they will come in close touch with my subjects, and find the way to those of them who have just hearts. And in every way possible let them feel the pulse, so to speak, of the youth of my realm. For from among the youth they shall surely find one lad who is wholly unselfish. When one is found he must be brought to me at once."

The good king's command was obeyed, and that same day twenty of the wisest and best men of the kingdom were sent into the various corners and byways of the realm to find one wholly unselfish youth that he might be taken to the king.

The search lasted for many, many months, one by one of the wise men returning to the king declaring they had not yet found one wholly unselfish youth. And after the last of the twenty wise men had returned disconsolate to his king, declaring: "I have failed in the search, Sire," the king was very sad. But his duty said: "Go you yourself and search for the wholly unselfish boy. You will surely find him."

"Ah, Son," said the king, "what have we here, a sick man?"

Without a word of his intention to his councilors, the king retired to his private chamber, where he dismissed his body servants, saying: "I am very worn with cares of state and wish to have complete rest for a few days. Let my food be brought and placed at my door, but allow no one to enter my chamber till I ring for him. Send me my staff-bearer and the minstrel. Then allow no one to approach my door."

The servants hastened to obey their king, and soon the staff bearer and the minstrel were with him. From one he took his long staff, then dismissed him with the same strict injunction with which he had dismissed his body servants. When alone with the minstrel the king said: "It is my will that you play being king till I return. Do not ask a single question, but do as I instruct you. I can trust you, for you are a good servant. This day it pleases me to wear your garb and to pass out of my own palace as a minstrel. Disrobe and exchange garments with your king. Stay you here in this chamber till I return, which may be tomorrow, or within a week."

Within a few minutes the king was arrayed as a poor minstrel, leaving off the minstrel's insignia which proclaimed the fact that he was of the royal household. Thus he resembled any ordinary roving minstrel one might meet any day on the highway.

As the king approached a little bridge which spanned a tiny brook he beheld a young boy kneeling on the bank. Beside the boy sat an old man in rags, and his face and head were dust-stained from long and constant traveling on foot. The kneeling boy was laving the old man's bare feet, rubbing them softly with tufts of grass to remove the mud stains.

"Ah, I must stop here," murmured the king. Then, in a feeble way, he descended the sloping little bank to the spot where the young boy knelt, washing the ragged man's feet.

"Ah, Son," said the king, "what have we here—a sick man?"

The boy looked up, replying: "Yes, good minstrel, a poor old beggar. He came along just now, very feeble and ill. I was sitting down here to eat my bit of crust when I saw him. I helped him down the bank to this spot where he might rest."

"But is he no relation to you?" asked the king, himself sitting down on the bank beside the old beggar.

"Oh, no, good fellow. I never saw the poor man before. But—you do not seem very well yourself, my good man. Is your back crippled?"

"Much worry cripples the strongest back," replied the king. "But what is the old man eating?"

"I gave him my bread," said the boy, now drying the old beggar's feet with his kerchief. "It isn't very much, but it will help to give him a little strength till I can take him to my master's place."

"And why do you take him to your master's place, lad?" asked the king.

"Because he must have a bed to lie on and a roof to shelter him from the night dews," explained the boy.

"And will your master give these to him?" asked the king.

"I will give them to him," said the boy. "My master is not a very kind man and would not give anything to a beggar, for he says he has no sympathy for one who lives on alms. So he would turn this old man out in the world, ill and starving. But he will not object to my sleeping in the corner of the cowshed and allowing this old man to have my bed in the attic. The attic can be reached by a ladder from the outside, and in going to my bed I never have to pass through the house. So, you see, this old man will not disturb any of my master's family."

"And who are you, little lad, that you can afford to give an old sick beggar alms?" asked the king.

"I am a swine herd from yonder farm," the boy replied, pointing to some roofs that could be seen in the distance over a low hill.

"And have you no parents, lad?" asked the king.

"No, good fellow, my father and mother are in heaven."

"And you have no kith or kin?" asked the king.

"None that I know of, minstrel. But what does it matter about me? I am young and strong and can work my way. But this poor old man cannot go much farther alone. Once I thought of taking him to the palace gates to ask alms for him. You know the king is a good and just man."

"And why didn't you do so?" asked the king.

"The king's servants are not kind, and rudely turn beggars away," replied the boy. "So I have given him my bread—which was to have been my dinner—and shall take him to my master's house tonight. But all the afternoon he must rest here on the grass."

"And you will receive no reward from him for your kindness?" said the king. "See how he eats your bread without offering you a word of thanks."

"I am not helping the old man for thanks," the boy said in very low, feeling tones. "He is old, sick and poor. I help him because he touches my heart to pity. Should I turn my back on him now I would never enjoy another hour while I live. I help those in worse condition than myself because I can't help doing so. It makes me so miserable to see people suffer, and makes me happy to be of help to them. But, good minstrel, will you play and sing a bit to the old beggar to cheer him, before you depart on your way? I suppose you are going to the palace to play and sing for the king. May all good luck attend thee, and may you in your prosperous hours never forget those in distress." And the boy's voice shook with emotion.

"Yes, I am going to the palace, and you and this beggar are going with me," declared the king in a ringing voice. "I know the king, and he will give aid to your old beggar-man. And you—well, the king wishes very much to see you in private."

"Wishes to see me?" asked the boy in surprise. "Why, the king doesn't know I am in existence. And even if he did, I could not leave my work to go to the palace now. My time belongs to my master who pays me for my labor."

"But if the king bids you to him—will you not then go?" asked the king.

"No, for the king is just and good, and he would not ask me to leave my master's work. I am a swineherd, and I must look after the swine and keep them from wandering. And even now I must go to look after them."

The boy was rising when the king laid a hand on his shoulder. "My little lad, you have this hour been talking to your king, and he asks you to come to the palace as soon as your master's work is done. He has a more important work for you to do in future, for you are to become a great man. Behold, I am the king, and as poor in many ways as this old beggar."

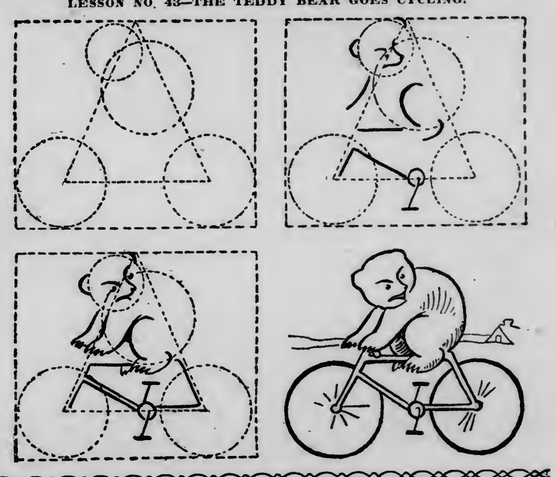

As the king spoke he lifted his minstrel's cap and wig, and the little swineherd recognized the king, whom he had many times seen passing on the highway with the royal hunters. "Yes, I am your king, out to find a wholly unselfish boy whom I may adopt as my heir to the kingdom. And I have found him sitting here at the brook, feeding and soothing a thankless old beggar. And now it is your king who asks for alms—for alms from you, good lad, who have youth, earnestness, virtue, charity, unselfishness to give. Come to me this night as soon as you have completed your master's work. And now I shall depart, and will send a servant with a cart immediately for this old man whom you have tended so tenderly."

The king withdrew while the little swineherd gazed in silence after him, and he could not bring himself to believe he had really been talking to the king till an hour later when a servant from the king's stable came with a horse and cart to fetch the aged beggar. And then the boy knew he had not been dreaming, for the servant handed to him a signet ring with a tablet on which was written: "Do not be unjust to your king; but come to him tonight. He is a beggar, and you can aid him."

And that is how it happened that a little swineherd became a king, and how the king's own son, the selfish prince, was established as the "second son," and therefore not heir to the throne. You see the good king had the power to enact laws to suit himself, and it suited him to adopt the wholly unselfish boy as his "eldest born, and heir to the throne." And never a better or more just ruler lived than did he who was once a little swineherd, washing the feet of an old beggar at the roadside brook.

SALLY MAY AND THE SQUEE-GEE MAN.

BY MAUD WALKER.

SALLY MAY was not so very old nor so very big; but Sally May was often very naughty. One day her mamma gave her ten cents and told her to get some bananas for herself and little brother Tom. Sally May loved bananas better than most anything to eat, and on her way home with the paper bag of fruit she kept smelling into the bag, sniffing her nose and saying: "My, these bananas do smell so good!"

At the corner of the street, just half a block from her own home, Sally May decided to do something her mamma did not tell her to do. She decided to eat one of the bananas before going to the house. And she also decided to hide the peel in the corner of the hedge, so that no one would ever know she had eaten the banana that had been in it. So she ate the banana very rapidly, and it tasted so good that she decided to eat another right down as fast as ever she could. Now, the bag had only contained 10 bananas, for the price was one cent apiece. So, after Sally May had eaten two of them there remained but eight. After eating the two bananas Sally May counted those remaining in the bag. "Only eight," she mused. "Four for me and four for Tommy." Then, closing the bag, Sally May started on toward the house. But before reaching the gate her appetite got the better of her and she sat down behind the trunk of a great tree, which stood just outside the board sidewalk, and opened the bag and drew forth another banana. "I'll just eat one more," she said to herself. "Then there'll be seven in the bag, and I'll divide them between Tommy and me." But as she ate she figured out just how many apiece the seven bananas would make. "Oh, there'll be three for one and four for the other," she said, pursing up her little mouth. "Well, Tommy is smaller than I am and should not have so much to eat. The biggest one should always have the most."

Then she hid the third banana peel under the hedge and closed the paper bag, going into the house and back to her mamma's room. Her mamma was sewing and Tommy was on the floor playing with the old cat and two kittens. On seeing his sister enter with the bag he cried out: "Oh, Sissy. Have you brought the bananas?"

"Yes; I've got 'em in the bag," said Sally May, holding tightly to the bag, lest Tommy might take it away from her.

"Give brother just one and take one yourself," said mamma, looking up from her sewing. "Then put the others on top the cabinet. You must not eat more than one banana at a time, you know."

Sally May did as she was bidden, giving one banana to her little brother and taking one for herself. But, of course, the naughty girl did not say a word to her mamma about having already eaten three of the bananas. No; she simply put the bag on the cabinet in the corner and sat down on the floor and ate the fourth banana. After Tommy had finished his banana he asked his mother if he might have a second one. "No, Sonny; not for half an hour," said mamma. "Bananas are heavy food and hard for little stomachs to digest if eaten in great quantities. One banana at a time is sufficient. You may have one more in half an hour or so. But after that, no more until tomorrow."

Tommy, a most obedient little chap, did not coax or pout, but said: "All right, Mamma." Then he began his game with old puss and kittens, feeling that his mamma knew what was best for him. And Sally May, having already eaten four bananas, had the audacity to ask her mamma for another one, saying: "I'm so hungry, Mamma, and I'm so much bigger'n Tommy; can't I have just one more banana, please?"

"No, dearie; you know I have told you often that you must be very careful about eating bananas. One will do you no harm, but more than that might make you ill. Mother's little daughter must not ask for things which she has been told are not good for her. Now, in half an hour you may have another banana, but not till then."

But at the expiration of the half-hour Tommy had gone out to play snowball with his little neighbor, Toodles Brown, and did not remember his mother's promise of another banana. And Sally May had stolen softly up stairs, feeling badly in her stomach. Into her room she crept, and as the pain increased as she walked she decided to lie down. So upon the little white bed she climbed, not taking time to remove her shoes, which were soiled from having been out in the soft snow and softer mud of the street. But Sally was not in a mood to think of soiled shoes just then. The pains in her stomach were chasing each other up and down, making Sally bend double and almost scream.

At any other time Sally would have called very loudly for her mamma, but just now she felt too guilty to have her mamma question her about herself. She knew she had done very, very wrong in eating so many bananas, and also knew the sudden terrible pains had been caused from the over-eating of the heavy fruit. So, she decided to stand the pain and suffering without letting anyone know about it. And there, doubled up on the bed she rolled about in agony.

After a little while she began to feel a bit better, and grew drowsy. Fixing the pillow comfortably under her head she closed her eyes and fell into a sleep. But hardly had she done so when a tap, tap, came at her bedroom door. "Now, who can that be?" Sally May asked of herself, half waking. "Tap, tap, tap," again went somebody's knuckles on the door. Now Sally sat up in bed and called out: "Come in, and don't make so much noise on my door. Who are you, anyway, that dares to come and wake me up? And I am sick, and need to rest."

The door slowly opened, and the queerest-looking little old man followed by a hunchback who carried a knapsack over his shoulder, entered. Lifting his finger to Sally May, the old man said in very low tones: "Now, don't make a noise, little Miss, when I tell you I am the Squee-gee man, and this fellow here, (pointing to the hunchback) is my assistant. We've come to cut you open. Oh, don't cry out. If you do your mamma will hear you, and she'll come running to see what the matter is. And then I shall tell her you have eaten four bananas, while she thought you ate but one. I'll tell her you ate three of the bananas before reaching home from the fruit-vender's stand at the corner. And what do you suppose she will say to that?"

After his speech the Squee-gee man laughed, and the dwarf imitated him. Then both shook hands and laughed some more.

Sally, still sitting up in bed, asked, in trembling tones: "But why do you wish to cut me open, please, Sir?"

"To remove three of those bananas, my dear Miss. Otherwise, you may die. They'll choke your poor little stomach to death, you see."

Sally threw herself on her face and began to weep, for the Squee-gee man's words frightened her so terribly that for a moment she did not feel the awful pains that chased each other in a mad frolic about in her poor little stomach.

"Oh, I don't want to have my stomach cut open," she wailed. "Oh, I wish I had not disobeyed my mamma. I knew when I ate the three bananas that I was doing wrong, for my mamma had often told me not to eat more than one at a time. But I was such a pig——"

"Pig! Ho, ho, ho! Just hear that, Doctor Squee-gee!" cried the awful hunchback assistant. "Isn't that too funny? A little girl pig! Ho, ho ho! I shall surely die of laughing."

The Squee-gee man also joined in the laugh, and Sally May's wails were drowned by their merriment. "Oh, how wicked they are," declared poor Sally May.

"Better to laugh than to cry over eaten bananas," cried out the Squee-gee man. "But come, I have no time to lose. I must cut you open and take away those three bananas that are about to choke your little stomach to death. Come, lie on your back and be perfectly quiet. You see I am a very busy man. I have to cut up so many disobedient boys and girls. Why, I've got to hurry over to your little friend Ethel's house as soon as I leave you. She has been disobeying her mamma, and the result is I have to cut off one of her fingers."

"Oh, ugh, oh!" shrieked Sally May, hiding her face in her hands. The terrible news that Ethel was to have a finger cut off made Sally May quite ill. "Why are you going to do that?" she cried to the Squee-gee man.

"Well, little Miss, you see, it's this way. Ethel's mother had some very choice spiced pickled peaches. She had put them in the cellar to keep till she shall have a big dinner party. Well, she told Ethel about them, and told her they would have them for dinner when Ethel's aunt and uncle and cousin should come to pay them a visit. But the naughty Ethel couldn't wait for the promised dinner, so she crept into the cellar, tore a tiny hole in the piece of paper that was sealed over the jar of pickles and thrust in her longest finger and drew forth a peach. And every day she did that till at last every peach—though there had been a dozen—was taken from the jar by means of her longest finger. So, I must go and cut off that offending finger. And that's why I'm in such a hurry to get through with your case. Now, Hunchy, give me the knife and the scissors."

The hunchback removed from the knapsack he carried a long, sharp knife and a pair of tremendous scissors. These he handed to the Squee-gee man, who took them in his hand with a merry laugh. "Ah, now little Miss, we'll soon have you cut open!" he said, and, advancing to the bed he placed the point of the long sharp knife against Sally May's stomach and gave it a twist. Cut, cut, right through her pretty white, lace-trimmed apron, then through her pretty, red woolen frock, went the knife. "Oh, oh, oh! Mamma! Come, come, come! The Squee-gee man is cutting me open! Oh, oh, oh!"

Then both shook hands and laughed some more.

"Why, my darling child," cried Sally May's mamma, a minute later. "What on earth is the matter, my daughter. I heard you screaming in such a frightened way, and came hurrying upstairs to find you all doubled up, and crying out in your sleep."

Then Sally May, sitting up on her bed, her hands pressed against a very ill little stomach, told her mamma all about the stolen bananas, and the Squee-gee man and his terrible assistant. And she even looked on her pretty apron to see if the knife had cut a hole in it.

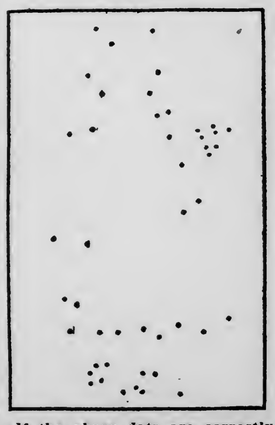

It took several minutes' explaining before Sally May's mamma could make her understand that she had been suffering from nightmare, caused, doubtless, by over-eating of the bananas. Then, calling to the housemaid, Sally's mamma told her to 'phone for the doctor, for Sally May would have to take some very bitter medicine, go without her supper, and lie in bed for two or three days, perhaps, on account of her naughtiness and greediness.

"Oh, Mamma, I'm so sorry," wailed Sally May, still holding her hands over her paining stomach. "Never, never shall I be naughty again, never. And I wanted to play snowball with Brother and Ethel this afternoon. But—I wonder if the Squee-gee man has cut off Ethel's finger!" she cried, excitedly, forgetting for the moment that her dream had not been a reality. Then, recalling the truth, she lay down on her pillow, saying: "I guess naughty children always have to suffer a lot for their naughtiness, don't they Mamma?"

"Yes, darling, and the older they get the more they suffer for their wrongdoing. So, my litle daughter must grow better and better as she grows older."

"I shall, Mamma, I shall," declared Sally May earnestly. "And never shall I forget that Squee-gee doctor, the hunchback, and their terrible knife and scissors. Ugh!" but at that moment the doctor came and Sally May had to be quiet and swallow some very bad medicine.

BOYS.

We all love manly fellows,
Boys that are brave and true;
Boys that are helpful and earnest
And know just what to do.

The boy who can help his mother,
With her weary household work;
The boy who learns well his lessons
And never is known to shirk.

The boy with a heart as gentle
As a girl's, when the case demands,
And the boy who is always ready
To do that which falls to his hands.

Such boys, may Heaven bless them!
One sees most everywhere;
And may they grow in numbers
Is every person's prayer.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA.

HUGE DITCH IS PLANNED

Red Lake and Marshall Counties to Have Big Drainage Canal.

Will be Forty Miles Long and Remove Troublesome Water.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the largest intercounty ditches ever constructed in Northern Minnesota will be undertaken in the early spring in the section of country lying just northeast of this city in Red Lake, and the adjoining county of Marshall.

The proposed ditch will be forty miles in length and will begin on the western boundary of Beltrami county and run due west, without any variation, following the federal survey of two years ago, and will empty into the Thief river, four miles north of this city.

It will be large enough to carry off the water from this long rich stretch of territory and the earth that will be excavated will form a first-class highway the forty miles long, and this last consideration is not the least important in the matter, as a road of this nature is always the highest and driest that can be constructed and will reach a section that is now quite impassable at certain times of the year.

The county board has employed Engineer Hamre of Crookston to begin the survey immediately, and it is expected that this task will be accomplished in twenty-five days. The viewers will then assess the damages and benefits and the contract will be assigned at once, so that the material can be placed on the ground before the frost laves in the spring. If the contract will not permit the completion of the ditch by next fall, several will be granted so that this enterprise may be ready to do business the following spring in the way of draining off the usual freshets of that season.

Schaffer went from Crookston to Blackduck when he secured small amounts of money from two saloonkeepers, Joe Bray and Harry Dahlstul, by leaving certificates as collateral. Schaffer then went to Northome and obtained $35 from Matt Jones by depositing a $1,000 certificate, but the latter became suspicious and an investigation led to his arrest.

When charged with the crime, Schaffer admitted it.

WANTED TO MAKE A PAYMENT HERE

Missing Rugby, N. D., Banker Said He Owed Money in Duluth.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Miller, vice president of the First National bank of this city, is of the opinion that "Andy" Jones, the missing cashier of the First National bank of Rugby, N. D., whose disappearance has been a matter of comment, secured from the St. Paul bank the money with which he fled.

About two weeks ago Jones presented a check for $8,500 to Mr. Miller. He was suspicious of Jones, but investigation showed that the check was genuine. It was drawn by a bank at Long Prairie, this state, on a Minneapolis bank, and was made payable to Jones.

Jones was anxious to secure legal tender for the check, saying he needed to make a payment in Duluth. He asked that he be paid in gold. Mr. Miller suggested that the bank might get its Duluth correspondent to advance the funds, but Jones finally concluded that he had better take the money himself. Consequently, he was given the amount of the check in $50 and $100 notes.

"I remarked that he looked rather shaggy, and as he went out of doors I noticed that his clothes looked frayed at the edges, and instinctively concluded that there was something wrong about him. I expressed this opinion to Mr. Nienhauser, our cashier. A couple of days later I heard that he was missing from Rugby."

Mr. Miller said Jones had been their correspondent at Rugby for the past two years. Because he was suspicious of him he never permitted him to borrow without first-class security.

WISCONSIN

"AD" FOR HUSBAND BROUGHT RESULT

Wisconsin Woman Finds Soul Mate by Using the Press.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 16.—Miss Frances Livingston of Boyd, believed to have received more proposals than any other woman in the world, has chosen Louis Struvanz of Dorchester, Wis., for her husband, and yesterday afternoon the county clerk issued them a marriage license.

Miss Livingston on Oct. 6 last began to advertise for a husband. She stated that she was 36 years old and good looking, that she had a farm in the town of Colburn and money in a bank at Boyd.

She maintained that if it became a custom for women to advertise for husbands there would be greater chances for happiness in married life, because by this means a woman could get out of her narrow home village or city spheres and search the entire world for her affinity. Miss Livingston's announcement was printed in newspapers in all parts of the United States and some Wisconsin, Canadian and European papers also took it up. Consequently proposals came from men in every walk of life residing on two continents.

Up to Dec. 31 last she had received about 1,000 proposals of marriage. She then proceeded to classify and eliminate candidates, and finally decided upon Mr. Struvanz.

LITTLE IS EXPECTED.

Primary Probe in Wisconsin Need Not Worry Stephenson.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—There is very little possibility of a legislative investigation into the amount of money expended in the recent primary election for United States senator.

The action of the legislature in postponing committee and floor business until after next week, has practically made the investigation resolution useless at the present time and as the law provides that the election of a United State senator must take place, so far as the separate ballots of the house are concerned, one week from Tuesday at noon, it is evident that unless the houses meet on Monday evening, Jan. 25, there will be no time to investigate the matter. As a rule, the houses do not meet until 10 o'clock on Tuesday mornings, which would give but two hours for an investigation.

One Democrat, who does not favor the investigation is Assemblyman V. H. Cady of Baraboo. Speaking after the introduction of the resolution he declared he would vote for Neal Brown for United States senator but he did not believe in making a target of Isaac Stephenson.

BANK BIDS REJECTED.

Bayfield County Board Did Not Reach Agreement on Matter.

Bayfield, Wis., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual meeting of the Bayfield county board, it authorized the receipt of bids from the various banks of the county for the county funds, and in response to the call all the banks had bids in, and they ranged from 2½ to 3½ per cent. Only one bank did the high figure and that was the Wisconsin State bank of Iron River. Some question was raised as to the legality of all the bids but that put in by the Bayfield County bank, on the grounds that they were not submitted on time, and the result was that the county treasurer was left free to place the county funds in whatever banks he saw fit, as has been the custom in the past.

An effort was made to retransfer the two sections in township 47-4 E back to the town of Hughes, but this failed to carry.

UPPER MICHIGAN

ASK LESS MONEY THAN IN YEARS

Michigan College of Mines Budget Smallest in Eight Years.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Michigan College of Mines will this year ask the state legislature for the smallest appropriation it has sought for at least eight years, and possibly ten. Outside of the appropriation for regular maintenance there will be but $15,650 asked for permanent improvements, the sum total of the budget for the ensuing two years amounting to $150,650. The legislative committee is expected to visit the institution the latter part of the month, and at this time the needs of the college will be pointed out and the request submitted.

The current expenses of the college per annum for the past four years has amounted to $60,000. This year the college is asking for an increase to $67,500, the growing condition of the institution making the extra sum absolutely necessary. As the budget is made up for two years the total amount for current expenses will be $135,000, added to which there will be $15,650 for permanent improvements, making the total $150,650, as stated above.

When it is considered that two years ago the college asked for and received from the legislature $238,800, and four years ago $160,000, the demands of this year are very likely to be granted.

STATION AGENT CHEWS OFF EAR

Northern Pacific Ticket Seller Said to Have Bitten Victim.

Jamestown, N. D., Jan. 16.—James Irvine, Northern Pacific agent at the little station of Crystal Springs, near here, is being held under $1,000 bonds on the charge of viciously attacking Chris Christianson at Crystal Springs, during an altercation in which he is alleged to have cut his victim and to have nearly bitten off one of his ears. Incidentally the railroad company is facing a $5,000 damage suit for employing a man-eater as its agent.

The fistic encounter and ear eating match resulted after a controversy which Christianson and Irvine got into while Christianson was waiting for the train at the little town to come to Jamestown. It was all over the recent presidential election and the political differences of the two men started the combat on the depot platform of the Northern Pacific at Crystal Springs.

The train was due to be late in arriving and words became hotter and hotter until a few punches were exchanged. Christianson kept within the limit prescribed by the Queensbury rules, but Irvine sidestepped something, and when he found that his opponent was too much for him and drawing his knife, slashed Christianson several times across the body. When he lost the grip on his weapon, Irvine started chewing Christianson's ear and succeeded in damaging that member beyond repair.

When the train arrived, Irvine escaped, but later was arrested here and is now awaiting a hearing.

OLMSTED COUNTY GOOD.

Jail Without Prisoner for First Time in Three Years.

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 16.—For the first time in three years, the county jail is empty. When Sheriff Mitchell unlocked the cell door and released Henry W. Fielder early Thursday the outer door was left unbarred, and the stone-tiled corridor echoed emptily to the retreating steps of the jailor.

Fielder has been serving a term of thirty days on the charge of misdemeanor. He had actually been in prison seven and one-half months, having been arrested as a horse thief. But there were mitigating circumstances, and when the charge was finally preferred it was "misdemeanor," and the sentence was made light in view of the long imprisonment the man had already suffered. Fielder was the last occupant of the jail to serve as a reminder of the Vine regime.

ADOPTED SONS WHO HELP UNCLE SAM DO HIS DAY'S WORK

ROBERT WATCHORN COMMISSIONER OF IMMIGRATION AT ELLIS ISLAND

JAMES WILSON, SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE COPYRIGHT BY WALDON FAWCETT.

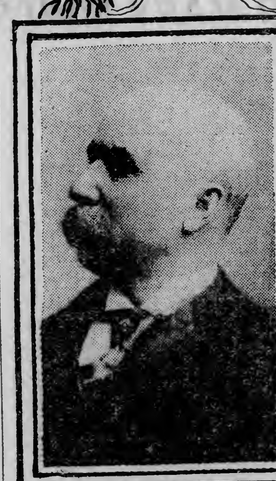

SENATOR GEORGE SUTHERLAND OF UTAH.

CONGRESSMAN JULIUS KAHN OF CALIFORNIA.

SENATOR JAMES H. GALLINGER OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

THE KANSAS "OCTOPUS HUNTER," PHILIP PITT CAMPBELL.

THERE Are Two Adopted Sons In the Cabinet, James Wilson and Oscar Straus—Robert Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, Came to This Country In the Steerage From England, Where He Had Been a Miner's Boy.

AMONG Foreign Born Members of Congress Are Senators Sutherland of Utah, Gallinger of Vermont, and Nelson of Minnesota — Representative Phillip P. Campbell, the "Octopus Hunter," a Poor "Bluenose" Who Has Risen to National Eminence From the Pioneer's Plow.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

(Copyrighted, 1909, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE SAM is assisted in his day's work by a veritable army of adopted sons recruited from all parts of the world. Practically all have won high positions of trust in the federal government through their own efforts. Some of these have been miners, some farmers, while others have painted signs, chopped wood, sold dry goods and broken stones for a living. One member of congress for a time was an actor.

In the appointment of Oscar Straus as secretary of commerce and labor, and of Robert Watchorn as immigration commissioner at Ellis Island, the worth of the foreign-born official has been doubled recognized. Mr. Straus is a Jew as well as of European birth, thus being akin to a large proportion of those prospective Americans over whom his department has supervision.

Robert Watchorn, who is stationed at the main immigration gateway of the New World, was himself an immigrant. He arrived in New York in as humble circumstances as many of the vast throngs upon which he now sits in judgment.

Like the great bulk of aliens who seek their fortunes in America, young Watchorn was willing to begin at the very bottom. And no wonder. He had always been at the bottom of a mine shaft before thinking that America might offer greater opportunities. His parents were honest, hard-working people of the mining country of Derbyshire. When only 11 Robert went to work with his father far below the surface of the earth. Beginning as a trapper boy, he had the job of opening and shutting the ventilating doors of the mine. At 16 he had charge of all the ponies that hauled out the coal and he says there was a good many of them, too. By the time he was 18 he had become a full-fledged miner.

"Bob" Watchorn was not satisfied with this life, however. He attended night school, where he found opportunity to learn of the fame of Washington, Lafayette, Jefferson and many of the other great men who made American history. He decided that the New World offered more chances than the old. So "Bob" saved up his pennies until he had enough to buy a ticket to New York.

The night before the boat was to sail young Watchorn met a Mr. Bone, who had taken the greatest interest in the night school where the "pit lads" attended. Mr. Bone told the boy he would make a great mistake in leaving England. "If there's any climb in you," said Bone, "you can climb at home. If you will consent to study in England for the profession of a mining engineer I will advance the money.

The youthful miner thanked the rich lawyer, adding, however, that he had set his heart on America.

"My boy," said Mr. Bone, "how much money have you for your journey?"

"Twelve shillings, sir, besides my ticket."

Indignantly declaring it preposterous to start out almost a pauper, the lawyer thrust $20 into the boy's pocket and walked away.

Arriving in New York, the future immigration commissioner, having been half starved in the steerage, hurried for a nearby pie counter, where he was initiated immediately into American customs in more ways than he had expected. He gave the pie man a two-shilling piece, only to be told there was no change. The vender of pastry insisted he had received only five cents, following up the statement with a blow.

Watchorn's arms, hardened by long labor, landed the pie man on his back. The two-shilling piece was found in the cash drawer and Watchorn got his change.

From a New York lodging house the youthful immigrant went to work in an Ohio mine at $2 a day. Finding that he would have to wait several months for his wages, he left Jeddo Run for a Pennsylvania coal mine, at a wage of $30 a month. Every month he sent his savings to his mother, and soon was able to bring her and all the rest of the Watchorn family to America.

Allying himself with the union labor movement, he soon became honored with positions of trust. He finally was made president of the miners' union of the Pittsburg district. On entering the immigration service in 1892 he was promoted seven times. He spent several years in Europe, Canada and Mexico, where he studied and helped to perfect the system of regulating immigration to the United States. In 1905 he was appointed to his present position at Ellis Island, where he has made radical improvements. The capacity of the island practically has been doubled as a result.

James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, like Mr. Straus, is a foreign-born member of President Roosevelt's cabinet. As if foreseeing his future office, he became a farmer on coming to this country at the age of 17 from Scotland. It may be said, therefore, that he has worked from the ground up.

Many Adopted Sons in Congress.

Foreign born members of congress form a much greater proportion of the national legislature today than a decade ago. In the upper house may be mentioned Senator George Sutherland of Utah, who was born in Buckinghamshire, England; Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, a native of Norway, and Senator J. H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, a Canadian by birth.

Although not a Mormon, Senator Sutherland is considered a strong supporter of the Mormons. He is a son-in-law of John D. Lee, the Danite chief who was executed by the government for having directed the Mount Meadows massacre. A band of Mormons met a party of peaceful emigrants passing through Utah, and, having assured them of safety, asked them to lay down their arms. Thereupon the Mormons fell upon the men, women and children and killed them. Lee was convicted in the late seventies, some twenty years after the crime occurred.

Although the massacre was perpetrated before the birth of Sutherland, and he always has spoken of it as a great blot on the record of the Morrion church, yet it often has been recalled by those who criticise Sutherland's friendship to the Mormon cause. When he entered the United States senate it was said that the Mormons in his election had protested against their political overthrow. Sutherland's colleague in the senate, Reed Smoot, brought about the downfall of Kearns.

Senator Sutherland achieved political success by his own exertions. Admitted to the bar in Michigan in 1883, he won distinction and wealth as a lawyer. The law firm of Sutherland, Van Cott & Allison has been one of the most prosperous in Utah, being counsel for many large Mormon corporations as well as for the Gould interests.

Of the foreign-born, Representatives Philip Pitt Campbell has attracted special notice as the "Octopus Hunter." In seeking to protect the rights of his constituents in Kansas, he suddenly discovered himself confronted by the long tenacled Standard Oil.

For a long time Kansas citizens had been asking their representatives to investigate the monopolistic methods of the Rockefeller company, but these appeals usually were dealt with perfunctorily.

Campbell already had won the favor of Speaker Cannon, who said that the young member from Kansas was built for big things. Notwithstanding Cannon was taken back somewhat when Campbell told him that he intended taking up arms against Standard Oil with a resolution providing for an investigation by the secretary of commerce and labor of the prices of petroleum, its production and the corporations controlling it.

Cannon drew a long puff from his cigar and puckered his face like a boy after eating green apples.

"All right, my boy," he replied 'you prepare your ammunition, and I'll see you have a chance to explode it.'

Campbell's resolution was introduced Feb. 15, 1906, and passed, and since then its author has been in the national limelight most of the time.

Campbell at one time in his career followed the law book and the plow at the same time. Born in Nova Scotia in 1862, he was taken by his parents to Kansas when he was 4 years old, and has lived there ever since. Then there were no railroads and very few churches and schoolhouses in Kansas. Young Philip had not opportunities for mental training, and his physical burdens were made heavier still when he was only 11 by the death of his father. Seven children were left dependent on the widow. So young Campbell literally put his hand to the plow and, with a yoke of oxen, broke up the raw prairie land. He had to haul the wood and corn ten miles to the nearest town. He worked for neighboring farmers and gave his wages to his brothers and sisters. When 20 he drove 100 miles over the prairie to Baker university, Baldwin, Kan.

Because of his lack of schooling it took him six years to obtain a diploma. He hardly had a spare cent all this time. When he arrived at the university he only had enough money to pay his room rent, his tuition for the first three months, and a bucksaw. With the saw and a few other tools which he borrowed he was able to support himself by doing odd jobs around town. While at college Campbell showed evidence of those oratorical powers which since have won the support of his fellow-repressewatives. His speech on the tariff during his first term was used by the Republicans as a campaign document in the presidential fight of 1904.

From Baker's Wagon to Congress via the Stage.

A representative who left the stage for the rostrum is Julius Kahn of San Francisco, who was born in Kuppenheim, Germany, in 1861. Kahn also had a hard struggle before attaining success. In his school days in the Pacific metropolis he was compelled to support himself by driving a baker's wagon mornings and evenings.

On the advice of admiring relatives, who thought they saw in him another Booth, young Julius chose the stage. He began in melodrama. At 18 he played Shylock. In 1881, when he was 20, he came to New York, and for ten years played prominent parts in the company of such stars as Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson, Salvini the elder, and Clara Morris. Once he was a member of a company in which Maude Adams, then a little child, had a part.

Yet of all the lines Kahn ever recited, the following parody best exemplifies the chief crisis of his own life:

To stick or not to stick—that is the question;
Whether 'tis wiser to remain an actor,
And, growing old, be shoved aside by new ones;
Or to read law and be a politician,
For whom old age brings honors, wealth and prestige.

It did not take Mr. Kahn long to make up his mind to quit the footlights for the law office. He says he never regrets having made the change, although he not only had won recognition as an actor, but also gained a multitude of friends in the profession. Several times he was vice president of the Actors' Order of Friendship, the largest theatrical organization in the country.

While working with his brother in the mercantile business in San Francisco he studied law, and in 1894 was admitted to practice. Two years before this he was elected to the state legislature. In 1892 he also obtained distinction throughout California by taking an active part in the Midwinter Fair. He entered congress in 1898, where he increased his popularity at home by fighting against the co-education of white and Japanese children in the public schools and all proposed legislation that might let down the bars of the Chinese exclusion act. Appropriations of $1,500,000 for the new San Francisco postoffice and $125,000 for the purchase of the Calaveras big tree grove as a federal reserve were obtained as the result of the efforts of Mr. Kahn and his California colleagues.

Duncan E. McKinlay and James McLachlan are two other foreign-born Republican representatives from California. McKinley was a carriage painter. He learned the trade when 12 years old, having come to Flint, Mich., from Orillia, Ont., where he was born in 1862. At 21 he settled in San Francisco. Despite his lack of education, he studied law while painting carriages, and obtained admission to the bar in 1892. His present home is Santa Rosa.

McLachlan read law while teaching in the public schools. Born in Argyllshire, Scotland, he was brought when a child to Tompkins county, N. Y., where he was reared on a farm. By teaching he raised funds to go through Hamilton college and was admitted to the bar in 1880. He went from Ithaca, N. Y., to Pasadena, Cal., in 1888.

This Adopted Helper Was a Street Arab.

An English-born representative who fought his way from the street with his fists is William Lorimer, one of the Republican bosses of Chicago and Illinois. Manchester, Eng., was his birthplace. In 1861, when he was 5, he came to this country. Since 1870 Chicago has been his home.

In his early years Lorimer was a sign painter, a street car driver, a bricklayer and a packer in the stockyards. Once, while working for Armour, he had a job in the glue department. At 5:30 one morning the elder Armour entered the factory and found Lorimer the only workman there.

"Do you get down at this time every morning?" asked Armour.

"Yes, s'r," responded Lorimer, "every morning when I know you are in town." Soon afterward the future political boss got a raise. From the stockyards he went into ward politics, became a contractor, an office holder and a political power. Now he is rich.

John James Jenkins, Republican representative from Wisconsin, at one time chopped down trees as a common laborer in the pine woods of the Northwest. Born in Weymouth, Eng., in 1843, he found a home in Baraboo, Wis., when a lad of 9. Before he had obtained his growth he went to war as a member of the famous "Iron Brigade," commended by Gen. Bragg of Wisconsin.

Long after the war, when Jenkins, by his alliance with trade unionists and victories at the bar, had risen to political power and the office of Representative, he met Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. Lee was talking with Representative McKinley and after heartily shaking the hand of Jenkins, Lee said to Jones, with a laugh:

"Jenkins is a thorough gentleman. He once aimed his gun at me in battle, but missed so that I would have the honor of shooting back."

When a youth of 19, William Bauchop Wilson, Democratic Representative from Pennsylvania, worked in the coal mines of the state of his adoption. Born at Blantyre, Scotland, in 1852, he went to Arnot, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, in 1870. Since early manhood he has been active in the cause of trade unions, and now holds the office of international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America.

John Lauderlale Kennedy, Republican representative from Nebraska, was born on a farm in Ayrshire, Scotland, and for many years after he settled in LaSalle county, Ill., he tilled the soil. Aspiring to political honors, he decided that law offered the right road. After attending Knox college, he studied law at the State University of Iowa, and for the last twenty-five years has devoted himself to its practice in Omaha.

At the age of 10, Martin B. Madden of Chicago, a Republican representative, began work cutting stone. He now is president of the Western Stone company and a director of the Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago. He was born in England and obtained most of his education in public day and night schools.

Many of the early years of Charles Lindbergh of Little Falls, Minn., long before his election to congress on the Republican ticket, were devoted to hunting and trapping. Born in Sweden in 1859, he came to the United States when a year old, his family settling in Melrose, Minn. For the last twenty years he has practiced law.

A clerk in a wholesale dry goods store was Gustav Kustermann of Green Bay, Wis., before he went to congress. He was born at Detmold, Germany, in 1850, and for several years worked in a dry goods house in Hamburg, Germany, coming to this country in 1868. He is a Republican.

Congressman James Anthony Hughes of Huntington, W. Va., early began a business career. Corunna, Ontario, was his birthplace. In 1873, when a boy of 12, he went to Ashland, Ky., entered the lumber business, which grew to such an extent in West Virginia that he moved to that state. In West Virginia, as in Kentucky, he has been active in Republican politics, having been elected a member of the state legislatures of both states.

A Bohemian by birth is Adolph J. Sabbath, Democratic representative from Illinois. He was born April 4, 1866, at Zabori, emigrating to Chicago in 1881. He obtained much of his early education from a business college. When 29 he began the practice of law. He was elected to congress by the Democrats to succeed Anthony Michalek, Republican, also a Bohemian.

Wales was the first home of William Aubrey Thomas of Niles, Ohio, who was first nominated to congress in May, 1904, to succeed Charles Dick, present United States senator, who had resigned. He is an iron manufacturer, like his father, the late John R. Thomas of the Mahoning Valley. Mr. Thomas is 42 years old and a Republican.

Diplomats and Explorers.

The adopted son of Uncle Sam also is to be found in the diplomatic and consular service of the United States government. For example, Hamilton King, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Siam since 1903, is a native of St. John's, Nfld., where he was born in 1852.

Mr. King has been a preacher both of the gospel and of the principles of the Republican party. He has spoken as much from the political platform as the pulpit. After studying at the Chicago theological seminary and Leipsic university, he attended the American school at Athens. Mr. King is an author of a Greek reader and "Outlines of United States History." He was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1896, and was appointed minister resident and consul general in Siam in 1898.

The United States consul general at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Richard Guenther, was born in Potsdam, Prussia, in 1845. In New York city he was at one time a broker in drugs and chemicals, moving to Oshkosh, Wis., he engaged in business as a pharmacist. Entering politics, he became state treasurer, member of congress and consul general to the City of Mexico.

Several well-known explorers in the employ of Uncle Sam are of foreign birth. Henry Biederlick, who was born at Waldbeck, Germany, in 1859, served in the Greely Arctic expedition of 1881-84. Mr. Biederbick has been in the United States customs service since 1887, his present post being in New York city.

Andrew Braid, who has made a name for himself in the United States coast and geodetic survey office, was born at Kirkcaldy, Scotland, in 1846. He came to the United States when a year old. William Elmbeck, a geologist, and also in this branch of the government service, is a native of Brunswick, Germany. Self-educated, he climbed from a draughtsman's job in a St. Louis locomotive works to the professorship of mechanics and engineering at the Washington university. Mr. Elmbeck is the inventor of the invariable reversible pendulum and the duplex base apparatus of the coast and geodetic survey.

Earnest G. Timme, auditor for the United States state department and formerly auditor in the treasury department, who lost his left arm in the battle of Chickamauga, was born in Werden, Prussia, in 1843.

The commander-in-chief of the National Army and Navy Spanish War Veterans is Col. Michel Emmet Urell, who served in both the Civil and Spanish-American wars, and to whom was awarded a medal of honor because of gallantry while detailed as a color bearer. During the engagement he was severely wounded. Col. Urell now holds a position in the war department. He was born in Ireland in 1844.

Among the foreign born sons who formerly served Uncle Sam at Washington are Former Senators J. P. Jones of Nevada, born in England; Thomas Kearns of Utah, a native of Canada; Brigham H. Roberts, also of Utah, English born, and Thomas Patterson of Colorado; Former Representative William Cornell, a native of Nova Scotia; J. T. McCleary and John Lind of Minnesota, the first from Canada, the second from Sweden; Nicholas Muller of New York, German born; George Spalding of Michigan, born in Scotland; John T. Caine of Utah, originally from the Isle of Man; Thomas J. Creamer of New York, a native born Irishman, and Former Delegate Bernard S. Rodey of New Mexico, who was also born in Ireland.

TALE OF THE NORTH.

Salt Tells Why Sailing Vessel Beats Steamship.

Chicago News: The sailor men sat around the little table in the Sailor's Rest drinking, singularly enough, mixtures out of very small glasses, and talking of the passing of the sailing vessel and the corresponding grise of the steamship.

The apologetic-looking lake sailor offered a meek-voiced protest to this state of things. He said it took all the science outof his trade and made sailoring o nthe lakes merely a job of sttevedoring.

The middle-aged sailor with greasy curls, who had been on the salt sea, said it was the best thing that could have happened to the marine service, as the substitution of coal for wind in propelling a ship made it possible to use native Americans from Pennsylvania in the shipping instead of importing high climbers from Novia Scotia and Sweden.

At this the fat old sailor with throat whiskers and brass rings in his ears snorted in supreme contempt.

"You fellows miss the idea a mile," he said. "You deal with the mere outside end of the subject.

"Why," he continued, violently, "it was a crime to humanity, an insult to the law of nater, gents, when old man, Daniel Webster, invented steamships.

Why, gents, when Webster sat under the apple tree and see that apple fall to the ground which suggested to him the power of steam, it would have been a blessin' to the world of the apple had fell on his head and knocked him three ways from day before yesterday.

"I was a deep-sea sailor plownig the ragin' main for forty-odd year, but I quit the service at once and forever when the owners ast me to ship as able seaman on a sharp-nosed punt with masts no higher than a sailboat's an' big red smokestacks stickin' out of her insides. None of that for me!

"I want to live and die with the sound in my ears of the wind singin' through the tight-drawn riggin' an' the polly tars layin' aloft on the swingin' yard arms with their knives in their teeth a-reefin' the sails in the pipin' gale. I could tell you of many an' many a time when we had close calls with our sailin' vessels, an' every time a steamer in the same fix would have sent us all to Davy Jones.

"For example, back in '63 I shipped on the full-rigged brig Rose of the Dawn, a whaler out from Vinal Haven, bound for the Arctic ocean after sperm whale. The captain had refused all applications for the voyage exceptin' the very best seamen to be had in the world, and them's Scandinavians and Nova Scotians. The cap said that a poor man used as much herthroom and et an much grub as a good one, but couldn't be depended on in an emergency. This havin' good men, along with the good spars and sails on our ship, bring us out of the tightest place ever a ship got into.

"We had a mighty successful voyage. We had packed the hold of the ship so full of whale ile that all our supplies of clothes an' grub had to be brunt up an' packed in the deckhouse. We was so far North that we could hear the aurora borealis in its changes and flashes, makin' music sweeter than any pipe organ ever played.

"When the moon was the brightest we could see the North Pole stickin' up in the air an' shootin' electric sparks at the polar star in a most awe-inspirin' manner.

"The sea had been open to a remarkable degree an' when we was loaded we give three cheers to all creation an' turned the Rose of Dawn southward. It was early fall an' the ice was formin' fast.

"When we was off the south coast of Greenland two big icebergs bore down on us in the night. Before we knowed what was up they had closed in on us. The parts of 'em nearest us was not as high as the ship's rail an' when they closed they smashed us flat just below the main deck. Yes, gents, they was nothin' left of the Rose of the Dawn but a deck with the spars and riggin' overhead. The frost bound us in like a week or ten days, and who are not accustomed to beg, but would just now like the price of a cup of coffee, and so I have to watch out when I see people edging toward me and decide quickly.

"Without desiring unduly to exalt my own powers of perception I think I may say that as a rule I guess right; but sometimes I slip a cog, as, for instance:

"Walking across Battery Park this morning I was overhauled by a man who, coming up rapidly, began as he ranged alonside:

"Mister—

"Whereat I threw the clutch, or turned on the carbureter, or did something, whatever the proper thing is, to accelerate your speed, and I thought I was going to be able to draw away from him; but when I speeded up he did too, and in a minute he was again alongside and saying:

"'Mister——' and then I inclined my face and listened; and

"'Mister,' he says, 'can you tell me where the place is where they keep all the different kinds of fishes?'

"'Oh—Oh!' I says. 'You mean the Aquarium! Why, certainly, it's there, over on the other side of the park.'

"And so I got out of that all right, or approximately so, after all. But you have to keep watching out."

preparatory to closing up for the night.

WARY MR. QUILLBACK.

New York Sun: "What between my desire to be polite and my fear of beggars," said Mr. Quillback, "I am sometimes up a tree.

"I don't want to walk rudely past somebody who would only want to know the way somewhere, and I don't want to be held up too often by men who haven't had anything to eat for a week or ten days, and who are not accustomed to beg, but would just now like the price of a cup of coffee, and so I have to watch out when I see people edging toward me and decide quickly.

"Without desiring unduly to exalt my own powers of perception I think I may say that as a rule I guess right; but sometimes I slip a cog, as, for instance:

PROBATION OFFICER AND THE CHILD

Modern Way of Getting at Roots of Juvenile Crime and Checking it---Day's Work With a Chicago Probation Officer.

(By Henry W. Thurston.)
(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

(Mr. Thurston is chief probation officer of the Chicago juvenile court, one of the first organized and generally best equipped juvenile courts in the country. He is author of numerous books on schools, juvenile courts and probation work, and an experience of nineteen years as a teacher makes him particularly fitted to write on any subject dealing with children.)

"Say Mister, is this the Jubiline court?" asked a 13-year-old boy of me one morning the first week of our occupation of our new juvenile court building. "Yes, son, what can I do for you?"

"I want to see my probation officer and have him send an officer to arrest my father to make him stop hitting me."

"But why does he hit you?"

"He says if I take off these pants he'll hit me."

"But why do you want to take off the pants?" I asked, "Aren't they all right?"

"No, they're too short and the boys at school and on the street laugh at me—and I don't want to wear 'em."

I looked at him. His mother had indeed made a mistake in the adjustment of a pair of men's trousers to a boy and had cut them off so short that his red socks showed over the tops of his shoes. No wonder he wanted to take them off. I said: "All right Mr. M. will be here in a few minutes."

The next day I asked the officer what he did about the trousers. He said that at first nothing would do but to arrest the father but, as he talked over with the boy the number of children, how much a new pair of trousers meant to them, how hard his father and mother worked, the possibility of soon getting to work himself—and the bravery that many a poor boy has shown in laughing down and outliving the jeers of thoughtless playmates, he changed his mind and said: "All right, I'll wear 'em. It'll be worse for mother and all the children if I have him arrested. I guess he ain't so mean as I thought he was."

Among the foreign born children who know American ways better than their parents, and among all court boys and girls who are just growing out of childhood toward manhood and womanhood, the probation officer has a great work in thus interpreting the child and his parents to one another.

Many children under probation are of working age and should be looked after. The following report illustrates a picturesque side of a probation officer's work:

A boy was returned from the John Worthy School, Jan. 1, 1907. He was released and paroled to me and I secured a position for him soon after his release. He worked every day, and last winter when the firm was laying off most of its help, and in my anxiety for his welfare I telephoned to his employer asking him to retain the boy if possible, and he pleased me much by saying, "Fire him, I guess not, I keep him if I keep him as a watchman. There is good stuff in that bay." He was earning $8.75 a week and his mother allowed him sixteen cents a week spending money. Rain or shine he walked to work, lived in a poor house, had but little encouragement from his home, but reported to me regularly and although he is now released from probation he comes to see me Saturday nights, telling me his joys and his sorrows and I know that he will be a first-class citizen.

Each day's work of a probation officer is a cross-section of many lives. It is not enough for him merely to call on children under his care. He should have a different purpose to carry out in the case of each child. Each time he sees the child, his parents, friend, teacher or pastor, he should push in the direction of one or more of these purposes. In Chicago, dependent as well as delinquent children are put under probation in order that their parents may be stimulated to care properly for them. A typical day's work might be as follows:

"Left home at 8:30, and after an hour's ride found J. R. at home instead of in school, taking care of the baby because his mother was washing. Made a few remarks that, it is hoped, will carry conviction to both Joe and his mother. Called at the school, to inquire about the N's and V. W. Gratified to see all so clean, which is not always the case. Found T. P. at home because she is out of work. She prefers work in a hotel. Pointed out the dangers of hotel work. Wrote a note for her to take to the South End center.

"Next called on J. D. Saw his mother. J. had just returned to work, been sick a long time. Then went over to the South Chicago Steel mills. Secured promise of work for S. M.

"Had some coffee and rolls in a restaurant. Am entitled to an hour, but seldom take more than half the time. A long walk to the L.'s to find that they had moved that morning. No neighbor knew where. I was confident that I could trace them. Have done so. Now in a slightly better place. Called on Father F. to secure his influence on the K. family so that they will allow little W. to go to the hospital for treatment. Stopped at police station to leave a message for Officer M. A long walk to see the K.'s. Left a pair of shoes for C. Urged his mother to keep him at home nights. He favors the cheap theaters.

"Took Mrs. G. with me to talk to Mrs. P. about A., as Mrs. P. is not only quite deaf, but speaks only Swedish. Also a talk with A. about some girls. Advised her to keep away from them.

"My last call was on Mrs. H., the deaconness, as I was sure she would help about A. We shall probably be obliged to send A. to Geneva."

So far as any child is concerned the care of the probation officer should be continuously directed along any or all of these lines as the child's need directs. So far as any day's work is concerned the probation officer makes a series of visits, giving one kind of impulse in this case and another in that, as the welfare of each individual directs.

GERMANIA AND MARY MINES

Two Thousand Tons of Ore Already Blocked Out in Each---Calumet & Arizona Pays $27,000 on Bond on Mines.

Tombstone, Ariz., Jan. 16.—There was deposited in the First National Bank of Tombstone last week the sum of $27,000 to the credit of William Cowan and the Stevenson brothers. The money was placed to their account by the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, and was for the purpose of making the second payment on the Germania and No. 1 mining claims in the Turquoise district, that are now being worked under bond by the Calumet & Arizona company. The claims in question were bonded by the Calumet & Arizona company in the month of April of last year, the bond to run for a period of twelve months for $65,000. At the time of the signing of the papers the company paid down 10 per cent, and the balance of the $65,000, $31,500 was to be paid on or before April 2, 1909.

The Germania has proved one of the best mines ever discovered in the history of Arizona. The shaft is now down a little over 300 feet, while drifts have been run on the other levels, and nearly 200,000 tons of ore blocked out. The ore dumps on the surface is nearly twice in size that of the waste dump, and when the fact is taken into consideration that no more ore was taken out than was absolutely necessary in the sinking of the shaft ,and in the running of the drifts and cross cuts, it can easily be seen what the extent of the ore bodies in the property is.

The Germania property is between the Casey group and the Mary mine of the Great Western company, in both of which there has already been developed large bodies of ore. Especially is this so in the Mary mine of the Great Western company, a conservative estimate placing the ore blocked out in that mine at the present time at over 200,000 tons and valued at $1,000,000. There never has been in the history of the copper mining of Cochise county such an amount of ore developed in as short a time as has been uncovered in the Mary, and its extent is still unknown, as the ore increases in size as depth is attained.

These two properties promise to astonish the copper world in the amount of ore that they will be able to produce, and will materially help Arizona to maintain its lead as the largest copper producing territory of the United States.

LARGE MILL TO BE ERECTED

Ray Consolidated to Build Mill With Capacity of 2,000 Tons Per Day---Ten or Twelve Million Tons in Sight.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 16.—"We expect to break ground by the first of July for the new mill at Ray, the capacity of which will not be less than 2,000 tons per day and possibly as large as 6,000 tons." This statement was made to a reporter at the Hotel Adams by Sherwood Aldrich, the president of the Ray Consolidated Mining company, when asked concerning the future plans of the company with regard to the Pinal county property.

Mr. Aldrich is a member of a party of wealthy mining men who arrived in the city recently and left for the Kelvin district, where several days will be spent in a trip of inspection, partially to gather facts from which will be determined the capacity of the mill to be erected.

Mr. Aldrich said that the company now had ten to twelve million tons of ore in sight, all very fine, running about 2½ per cent copper, which can be mined very cheaply by the cave-in process. The building of the smelter is a certainty later on, but not immediately. Probably within a couple of years such a plant will be installed. The present mill will be for concentrating purposes. Two hundred men are now employed by the company and the building of the mill will greatly increase that number.

Mr. Aldrich said that he did not look for any sharp advance in the price of copper during the next few months, that it would probably hang around the 15-cent mark. The Ray company can operate at a good margin of profit with copper at this price. Mr. Aldrich was much gratified to learn that Arizona had again held the lead in the production of copper for 1908. Regarding their Utah properties Mr. Aldrich said they were operating with about the usual output.

He would not admit that there was any definite plans for the taking over of the adjoining claims, citing the fact that the Ray already had 1,000 acres, enough for a large mine and extensive investment in equipment. That the Ray has been reaching out for more ground has been a current rumor here and has gained credence by the presence, at the time, of the visits of the Ray people, of those interested in other properties nearby.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Plans Made by Guilt Edge Maid Company for Large Treatment Plant---Work to be Resumed on Golden West Mill.

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 16.—Plans were formulated by the directors of the Bilt Edge Maid Mining company at their meeting held here for a large treatment plant. At the meeting were President John L. Turner of Springfield, S. D.; United States Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, and George B. Laury and William D. Laury of Fergus Falls, Minn., and General Manager Robert N. Ogden of Deadwood. The meeting authorized an increase in the caultal stock from $1,000 to $1,500,000 and a $200,000 bond issue to cover the expense of the proposed improvements. The Gilt Edge Maid has for some time been known as one of the most economically handled properties in the West. On ore that averaged $2 per ton gold a fine screen process is used in the mill, which as 200 tons daily capacity. Both the dry and the wet cyanide processes have been tried. A profit has been made, but the company feels that its ore reserves entitled it to a larger undertaking. It is now proposed to erect a plant capable of treating 1,000 tons of ore daily.

Dr. Vallier, who has been operating on Polo creek, near the city, has found indications of a good ore body. He has been running a series of tunnels on 500 acres of ground and has driven through a porphyry dyke that carries good values. As the tunnel deepens these values increase, and an effort will be made to sink to quartzite.

Work in the Golden West Mining companys' mill near Rochford will be resumed in the spring. For some time past the company has been using a Cyclone drill in the open cut, and although the drill work is not yet completed it has shown that the main ore body is fully 100 feet wide and that there is sufficient ore in the workings to insure the mill for some time. One of the first things to be attended to by the company before the mill work is resumed is the increasing of the capacity of the plant. The present daily capacity is 25 tons, operated by water power.

Adjoining the Golden West and on the same ore trend is the property of the North Star Mining company of Rochford. Mr. Cashron has been operating the property for some time past with success. He acquired an equipment from the old Monarch company in the Two-Bit district and is now handling about twenty-five tons daily. Both tunnels and open cuts are used. The principal ledge from which ore is now being taken is twenty-five feet in width and easily mined. The ore is of fair grade.

Down at Merrit, in Pennington county, George Hughes and associates are operating on the Yellow Jacket property. This is owned by F. W. Foosbe and Frank S. Galloway, both of St. Paul, Minn. While considerable of the ground has been developed in the past, the company is now putting down a new double compartment shaft and expects to be in a position to ship some of its ore by spring. The ground is a mile from the railroad, which will necessitate a short haul, but the property shows up rich in gold, silver and lead ores, the latter of which will prove valuable for fluxing.

MINE STORY LIKE ROMANCE

Rich Claims on the Sierritas Mountains Near Tucson, Arizona, That Have Been Kept From Man by Nature and Indians.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 16.—In an interview with Hon. Sam Hughes on the Sierritas mining district, he stated that he first visited the range in 1872 in company with Dr. Goodwin, Jose Fontes, Jesus Alvares and Jesus Mariungia. They went for the purpose of examining a gold property in Fresno and Ash canyons, and on looking the country over discovered a big dyke of quartsite or lime, and on a further examination came across what was then known as Maj. Stickney's mines, now known as the Purcell properties. Although in the country since 1858 and had grubstaked numerous prospectors, he had not before visited the district.

Maj. Stickney afterwards abandoned the claims and quit the country. They were then located by a man named Juan Diego. This Diego had been grubstaked by Mr. Hughes and Stephen Orchoa. Diego was a miner and he represented the ores to be self fluxing. Working tests of the ore were sent to Arivaca at which place there was a small adobe smelter, and also to Rusini, Sonora, for treatment. These proving satisfactory an adobe smelter was erected at the mine and the ores were treated on the ground. While thus employed the Apaches raided the camp, shot Diego, took all the animals and destroyed whatever property they could lay hands on. Apache raids at that time were of so frequent occurrence that further work ceased and the property was again abandoned.

J. C. McElliott and W. C. Davis took it up and tunneled for the purpose of cutting the ledge which had a surface showing of about sixty feet in width. Shipments of ore were made to San Francisco, but excessive freight rates and the great distance made the working of the property unprofitable and McElliott dying, it was again opened for location, which in due time was done by the Purcells, the present owners.

The property is located in the Sierrita mountains and is by Mr. Hughes, considered one of the most remarkable ore bodies to be found in the country. A great line and quartz dyke cuts into the entire mountain for a distance of two miles. There are two ledges proper, one carrying silver and lead, the other red carbonates of copper, both ledges apparently ending in an immense iron deposit. In early days, notwithstanding its remoteness from Tucson, and the desperate chances one had to take in the country, it was never lost sight of. Because of its great size it was also an object of attention and could be seen from any of the high points in the surrounding country.

Shattuck stockholders as well as to the final disposition of Denn affairs. No tangible information seems to be at hand regarding the affairs of either company, but it is generaly known that all is not running smoothly so far as the heaviest shareholders are concerned. It is unfortunate that the affairs of the Shattuck cannot be adjusted, as the company's mine is undoubtedly one of the richest in the district, and the stock is easily worth considerably more than it is quoted at present on the exchanges. During the month of December several thousand tons of ore were shipped to the Copper Queen smelter, but this ore had been accumulated from the work of development, which is still in progress and furter shipments will be made during the present month, when there is another accumulation of ore. The company is at present working about forty men.

Interesting developments are expected following the meetings of the directors of both the Shattuck and the Denn some time in February. The meetings have not as yet been called, but it is known that they will be held some time next month, and it is probable that they will be held in Bisbee. It is believed that the affairs of both companies will be threshed out, with probably very interesting results. Until that meeting it is not probable that there will be any kind of resumption at the Denn.

It has been given out by officials of the company that nothing will be done until the return from Europe of Morris Denn, who has been making an extended visit to the old country, but no one seems to know when he will return. While his arrival is expected any time, it is not definitely known that he has left Europe.

the largest operator in the district. This company buys the product of several small firms. During the year a wax plant at $110,000 cost was added to a large refinery. The wax product is four cars monthly. The Florence Oil & Refinery company, next in importance, is planning along with the United Oil and other companies to do considerable drilling for new wells in 1909. Operations have been carried on in this field for twenty years.

The Boulder oil fields produced during 1908, 96,000 barrels, worth $75,000, a marked increase over the 1907 record. An important well, No. 13 of the Inland Oil company, has just started up with 250 barrels daily.

The tungsten fields in Boulder county, Colo., have a capacity of $1,000,000 yield yearly, with prices equal to those of 1907, when the product reached $550,000. It is significant that the production already achieved has amounted to 80 per cent of the output for the United States. The only other states producing this ore are Montana, Utah, Arizona, California, Idaho, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming.

In 1906 Boulder county, with slight aid from San Juan, produced $23 tons, worth $252,150. The Boulder 1907 record exceeded that for all the states the year previous.

England, Austria-Hungary, Saxony, Germany and Australia import tungsten into this country.

Oglebay, Norton & Co. of Cleveland. This property is ten miles northwest of Iron Mountain and is adjacent to the same company's old Commonwealth mine, the deposits of which have been worked out. Six miles west of the Buckeye, exploratory operations are to be resumed at the Section 24 property, in 40-17, Florence county, Wis. The tract is under option to W. W. Hodgman of St. Paul, Minn., and will be tested by one of the leading steel companies, it is understood.

M. A. Hanna & Co. of Cleveland are opening a good mine in the Hollister property, in the Crystal Falls district of the Menominee, just as they are doing at the American mine, a Marquette range property, which also had previously been considered of little value. The Hollister comprises eighty acres in 43-32. The ore is a hematite.

The shaft at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s "old established" Hemlock mine at Amasa, north of Crystal Falls, is being put down to another level. The new depth will be 900 feet, which at this property means a distance of 1,100 feet from surface, the shaft being sunk on the plane of the formation. The ore is a non-Bessemer, running about 52 per cent iron, and since being opened in 1891 the mine has sent out a million and a half tons. All the product in stock as well as that mined during the summer was shipped last season, and the mine will be operated with vigor this winter. The company is exploring the Red Rock property, in the Amasa district, and so far with excellent results.

the Isle Royale lode. Like the Isle Royale its mineral is carried largely in the shape of stamp and barrel work, is bunchy, and will be easily milled, but so far as opened is not the equal of that lode in point of riches. A second lode, thirty feet wide, was recently encountered by the crosscut about 150 feet further west carrying copper finely disseminated. No drifting has yet been done at this point. The diamond drill outfit continues in service and has attained a depth of 1,500 feet without disclosing anything of value.

Winona.

Winona is slowly rounding into shape for production. The No. 3 shaft is bottomed at the thirteenth level, and for the time being no further sinking will be done. Ground reserves have been materially increased and first class rock is exposed at several levels. Further opening work at this point has temporarily ceased and operations are now confined to the workings of the No. 4 shaft, where the same excellent results are being secured. No. 4 shaft has reached the tenth level, at which depth a crosscut will be driven to the lode and further sinking resumed. The improved condition of the mine at depth is marked, and though the copper is of the same flaky nature noted in the upper levels, a finer adjustment of the milling machinery and a somewhat specialized treatment of the rock will obviate this condition. The copper content of the rock on the stockpile is estimated at eighteen pounds fine copper, but the average of all rock mined will probably be closer to fifteen pounds per ton of rock.

Superior.

Superior is milling its second consignment of rock from the lower levels of the mine. The rock comes from opening work entirely, with little or no selection. It appears that the drifts are driving through an exceedingly rich copper course, which would account for the phenomenal mill returns of nearly fifty pounds mineral per ton of rock. Results of the second test are not yet given out, but information from unofficial sources indicates that the first test will be equalled, if not surpassed.

number of years by former owners and has yielded a lot of gold.

The Snowstorm.

The annual report of the Butte Mining Stock exchange for 1908 shows a considerable falling off in business, compared with 1907, and it also shows that but one dividend paying stock is actively traded in on the exchange, and that is Snowstorm. It is announced that the Snowstorm will pay another dividend of 3 cents per share on Jan. 20, but no dividend will be paid in February. At the present rate of earnings, the March rate will probably be 4 cents again. The Snowstorm, like many other prosperous companies, had suspended both dividends and operations for some months during the copper depression, but resumed both four or five months ago, since which time it has been paying 3 and 4 cents per share each month. The company is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares at $1 par, and has a big property and a mine that seems capable of continuing the present rate of production indefinitely. It is shipping between 600 and 700 tons of ore per day, and is mining it and delivering it at the railroad at the remarkably low cost of $1.40 per ton. Its net returns during the last two months have been between 3 per cent and 10 per cent copper in addition to about six ounces of silver to the ton. It is expected that the vein will be cut by No. 4 tunnel, at a depth of 2,000 feet, about the first of March. The company has been driving on the tunnel for two years and knows what it is doing, notwithstanding an old geological report in which some government "expert" gave it as his opinion that the vein would not be found far below No. 3 tunnel. The fact is that the company has made numerous diamond drill bores and the results have been entirely satisfactory. If the vein is found as strong as in the upper levels the ore that will be opened will be almost incalculable. The fact that the big stock owners, including the Greenoughs, are not selling any stock, but on the contrary, are buying, having recently paid as high as $2.35 per share, may be regarded as significant. The company owns sixteen patented mining claims and three mill sites, a lot of ranch land, vast timber tracts, water rights, electric and power plants, a 250-ton leaching plant, townsite, etc. Although mining men, who are familiar with the Snowstorm, consider it a wonderful property, practically little is heard of it on the outside. While it is paying nearly 40 per cent on the par value of the company's capital stock, speculators seem to have overlooked it.

Butte Central

Butte Central Copper company is the name of the new corporation that will succeed the Butte Central & Boston corporation, which is now going through the bankruptcy court. As soon as the bankruptcy proceedings are wound up the new company will be control of the Ophir mine and will have clear sailing. The new company has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware and is capitalized for $2,500,000, divided into 250,000 shares of par value of $10 per share. One-half of it is to be issued to take care of the entire indebtedness of the old company and exchange for the old stock, leaving the company free and clear of all indebtedness and with half of the capital stock in the treasury. The Ophir mine has been a good producer of silver ore, and the lower levels are showing up well in copper. Supt. McConnell is confident that he can make the property pay from the "turn lose." There is an immense amount of concentrating ore in sight in the mine, and with a concentrator on the ground there is no doubt that the company could take out enough ore to pay for all the development work that is planned. In the opinion of mining men the Ophir vein is identical with the vein on whch some rich copper ore is mined in the East Butte district. Freeman I. Davidson of Boston has been chiefly instrumental in bringing about the reorganization of the company and saving the property for the stockholders. They will find themselves in a much better position than they were at any time under the old organization. The new capitalization is considered conservative.

Raven.

The Raven Mining company is engaged in cutting a station at the 1,300-foot point of the shaft. The shaft itself has a depth of 1,340-foot incline, which is equal to about 1,100 feet of vertical depth. The shaft will be made 1,600 feet deep and then another crosscut will be run to the veins. It is the general belief that commercial copper ore will be found in the veins at that depth. The Raven vein has been found large and strong on the 1,200, showing a gradual improvement in size and content.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills go direct to the seat of the trouble. They act upon the acid which is formed in flakes about the joints, bones and muscles, resolving it again into a liquid and driving it through the liver and kidneys out of the bowels.

These Pills are Nature's own remedy, being made entirely of roots and vegetables with the single exception of a very small percentage of common baking soda which every one knows is an excellent thing for the stomach.

They could not harm the most delicate digestive organs. On the contrary, they will strengthen the stomach and bowels, put the liver and kidneys in perfect working trim, fill the arteries with new, red blood and tone up the entire system. They are an ideal tonic and body builder.

Write today for the free trial box of Hill's Rheumatic Pills and see if they do not do all we have said and more. Address

THE HERALD'S HUMANE CORNER

Conducted by T. E. GRAE.

THE TERM "CHICKEN HAWK" IS ONE THAT IS TOO OFTEN APPLIED TO AN INNOCENT BIRD.

There are twelve species and subspecies of buzzards in North America, four of which belong to the red-tailed hawk group and three to the red-shouldered family. Without a single exception the buteos, or buzzards, are valuable aids to the agriculturalist, as will be shown later. As a class they are rather heavy, deliberate fliers, much given to soaring in circles at a great height. At other times they are prone to select some point of observation on a dead limb in the tree districts, or a knoll in the prairie regions, where they will remain in perfect repose for a long period, seemingly asleep; however, any attempt to approach them by an observer quickly shows that they are alert and watchful. Unfortunately, the harmless and beneficial hawks are scapegoats of all that is bad in the hawk family, and are made to suffer for most of the sins that a very small leaven of facts, magnified by the ignorance of ages, has swollen to a mountain of crime. Without reason they are called "chicken hawks" and "hen hawks," simply because a farmer from time to time may miss from his flock of barnyard fowls a pullet or hen, or may find their scattered feathers where a tragedy has occurred. The famer does not for a moment consider that this crime may have been committed by a fox, skunk, mink, weasel, cat or some other canivorous animal, but at once attributes it to a hawk, and immediately registers a vow to kill every hawk that he sees without reflecting that by so doing he may be killing one of his best friends.

Farmers are not the only persons that are prejudiced against hawks, for it is unfortunately too true that a large percentage of sportsmen attribute the rapidly diminishing numbers of game birds to hawks, and consequently never fail to kill one when an opportunity occurs. There is really very little doubt but that an increase in the number of hawks of the buteo class would result in an increase of game birds, as the hawks would reduce the number of small mammals that are so destructive to the young of game birds.

It is certainly a very shortsighted policy on the part of anyone to condemn hawks on hearsay evidence. In human affairs no court will permit the admission of this kind of testimony, and why should it be considered when birds are on trial? The proper method to judge of the good or evil that hawks do, is to consider the results of a thorough and scientific investigation of the food of a large number of hawks collected from widely separated sections of the country and at all seasons of the year. Under certain circumstances an individual hawk may be guilty of doing harm, owing to his particular surroundings, but that is no reason for condemning all hawks, any more than it would be for charging with crime every citizen in a village, because one misguided individual was caught robbing the bank.

The subject of the economic status of the hawks is one of great importance and the agriculturist who is not willing to examine all the evidence presented, certainly is not living up to the advanced ideas o fthe twentieth century but is still groping in darkness. The wideawake farmer investigates every problem that will enable him to increase his products a pound or a bushel. If it can be proved that hawks destroy enormous quantities of insects and vermin that are known to be a serious menace to agriculture, should they not be protected as valuable auxiliaries to this industry, which is by far the most important and valuable of all that engage the attention of man?

In 1903 the United States department of agriculture presented the following results of stomach examination. The stomachs of 220 red shouldered hawks were examined, of which only three contained poultry. This is only about 1¼ per cent of the total number examined, showing how very little harm this species of hawk does to farmers' chickens. Twelve stomachs contained parts of small birds, 102 stomachs contained mice of different species, 40 others contained small animals, reptiles were found in 20 stomachs, and frogs in 39, 92 contained insects, 16 spiders, 7 crawfish 1 earth worms, 2 offal, 6 fish and 14 were empty. These hawks were gathered from all over the United States, which is evidenced from the various kinds of food eaten. This evidence, which is indisputable, shows not only the harmless character of these birds, but it also shows most emphatically that they are of the greatest benefit to agriculturists, as nearly 50 per cent of them had been eating mice, which are very destructive to the farmers' crops and trees.

The farmers are not the only ones interested in these birds and their preservation. Every gardener, every owner of a lot or a home is concerned in their preservation

SOCIALISM AND CRIME

It is a peculiarly characteristic attribute among all civilized nations for the people to develop abnormally the brain faculties. Shrewdness, slyness, craftiness, and all the other forms of what polite society dubs diplomacy—a term, which if correctly defined would mean nothing else than a civilized art of lying in a manner that would tend to make others believe one speaks with candor and truth—have been very highly developed. Does it pay to be honest in business—from the materialist standpoint? The true answer would be no. Can one succeed by telling only the truth in business? No. Honesty today is merely a policy—safer to break than to uphold. Churches, law courts, jails, penitentiaries, insane asylums ,poorhouses, all tend to give weight to my proposition when I say that the fault lies not with my every contention. Crime is on the increase; it cannot be checkmated; it cannot be decreased so long as mankind in general upholds the existing economic mode of gaining a livelihood. Deplore the tendency though we may, the facts are everywhere in evidence. Jails are becoming overpopulated, the police forces are being everywhere increased. There are more murders being committed, more burglaries, more robberies, more of all that is abnormal in life pops up all about us. The normal natural real mode of living is becoming a much negligible quantity: the bad, sinister influence seems to be gaining foothold at every man's door. Why? That is a very important and very crucial question; a much mooted problem, hard to understand, and yet easy to solve—like all truths, simple and, therefore, so hard to understand by most of us.

Church adherents tell us that "man is born in sin." That we have all inherited the vices and therefore we are all "going to hell" unless we mend our ways. This is but a half truth. Man is born among sinners. He has not brought sin with him, but has been among and within surroundings that necessitates sin. To assume that he is therefore going to the "demnition bowwows," unless he repents by preparing himself for "kingdom come," is (in my opinion) decidedly a mistaken attitude—it makes no difference whether it is the church or the minister, or the layman who upholds such doctrine—for it tends to make man passive, listless, ambitionless.

The writer is not an athiest nor a church member, and although if I do not bank much on churches and institutions that claim to look after the spiritual welfare of man, I am none the less fervently religious. I hold that God manifests in all things that universal consciousness cannot be comprehended by a finite mind. I am part of God. For me to dare to tell any other being that he must worship as I will—that I alone worship at the true shrine, would be decidedly sacrilegious. I can therefore well afford to let every man solve his own problems when they concern affairs spiritual, but in matters material, no man of reason should say that "God had ordained that the poor you must always have with you." Crime among men has been evolved through the lack of correct knowledge about things material. It has nothing to do with the hereafter, nor has it aught to do with the spiritual realm. The alm of the species—of all beings material—is to survive. It the emergency or the necessity arises that the survival of the one can only be compassed through the destruction of the other, it is inevitable that there will be a struggle for the mastery. He who by right of might—not because of any moral law—but through mere physical prowess is the more powerful, is the one that will eventually survive. That is a law of nature and is readily demonstratable.

Man is an evolution. All things have a tendency to evolve "from the simple to the complex." Primary life was individualized—anarchism in motion—action. The competitive primal cells gradually evolved a tendency for adhesion, cohesion, co-operation, particle to particle. Molecule to molecule where there was close similarity of atomic life. Affinity, harmony of the homogenous has brought about co-operative effort. This principle all forms of physical life adhere to. Especially so does it apply to the human race. This being true, it is inevitable that where conditions have been developed that make it impossible for all the individuals in an environment to which they have been accustomed to make their living through associative effort the natural ultimate will be conflict and struggle between the units for supremacy and power—the basic cause being control of the food supply. As the struggle becomes more and more intense it ultimates in a general division along class lines—the fortunate on the one hand and the unfortunate on the other. During the interval that elapses as these classes are lining up transgressions by individual initiative take place from time to time. Such crime in a community portends an unsettled condition. It heralds the approach of a change—a revolution—an upheaval of the dynamic structure. Even now we are the maelstrom. Can we avoid the change? No. Can we hasten it? Yes. Have we the power to make it a peaceable change? Yes. It all depends on the consciousness of the general citizenship. To summarize: Crime is resultant from lack of opportunity for the individual units to properly develop in the social state It portends disorder—disease—in the social system, just as an eruption of the skin tells the physician that the organism of the patient—the veins are clogged up, thus depriving the blood from freely circulating. So with the criminal. He is the gage that registers societary defects.

MORRIS KAPLAN.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Duluth Citizens Have Discovered It

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Duluth citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

Thomas Veitch, 621 West First street, Duluth, Minn., says: "In 1898 I gave a public statement of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommended them as a cure for kidney trouble. I had suffered a great deal from severe pains in the small of my back and at times it was so sore and lame that I could not find a comfortable position in which to rest. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I began their use and they promptly freed me from my trouble. My kidneys have since given me no trouble and my back has been free from pain. I am very grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Market is Fractionally Higher at End of Short Session.

Flax Drops More Than Three Points in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 16.—The wheat market was rather heavy until the latter part of the session today, when the demand showed improvement and brought closing prices fractionally higher than yesterday's.

There was little news at any stage. Liverpool was weak, but the continental markets were firm. Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d lower. Paris ½c higher, Antwerp unchanged, Berlin ½c higher, Budapest ¼c higher.

The May option closed ¼c higher in Duluth, Kansas City and Winnipeg, ½c higher in Chicago, ⅛@⅜c higher in Minneapolis, ⅛c higher in New York and ⅜c higher in St. Louis. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—The easier American cables yesterday caused some pressure here and values at the start were ¼d lower. Later, the market developed steadiness and part of this decline was recovered. The indications of smaller American shipments this week, together with the steadiness of La Plata offerings, caused shorts to cover. At the close the undertone was steady and values were unchanged to ⅛d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the start. Later the market advanced ⅛d with offerings light, due to the expectations of smaller shipments to Liverpool and colder weather here."

Car receipts at Duluth were 42 against 38 last year, and at Minneapolis 175 against 324 last year, making a total for the Northwest 217 against 362 last year. Chicago received 12 against last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 432,000 bushels last year 729,000 bushels. Shipments 225,000 bushels, last year 292,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 609,000 bushels, last year 913,000 bushels. Shipments 395,000 bushels, last year 466,000 bushels.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c higher, at $1.07½, declined to $1.07¼, rallied to $1.07⅝ and closed at $1.07½, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed ¼c higher than yesterday, at $1.07½ bid.

Flax dropped several points during the session here. May flax opened unchanged at $1.59½, declined to $1.57, rallied to $1.58, dropped to $1.54½, reacted to $1.57⅞, declined to $1.56 and closed at that price, a loss of 3½c from yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bull Leaders Support Wheat, Causing a Slight Advance.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 16.—Bull leaders supported the wheat market at the opening today, causing advances of a shade to ¼c compared with the previous close. Demand however, was not urgent and prices soon declined a trifle in renewed profit-taking by local holders. The Liverpool market was steady despite the severe break here yesterday. May opened at $1.05¾ to $1.05⅞ and sold off to $1.05½. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 229 cars against 226 cars last week and 389 cars a year ago.

The market turned strong late again in the day owing to good demand for the cash grain here and in th Southwest. May advanced to $1.60⅞. The close was firm with May up ⅜@½c, at $1.06⅛.

Increased receipts of corn here today caused a weakening influence on the market for that grain at the start, but an active demand for the cash grain started covering by shorts which caused a mild rally early in the day. Prices at the opening were ¼c lower to ¼c higher, with May at 60⅞@⅞¼ to 60⅞@61c. Later May sold at 60¾c. Local receipts were 389 cars with seven of contract grade.

The market was rather heavy the greater part of the day, but firmed up late in the session on account of the strength of wheat. The close was steady with May at 60⅞@61c.

Pit traders were inclined to sell oats because of larger receipts than had been estimated. The market early in the day was rather weak. May opened unchanged to ¼c lower to 51⅛@¼c. Local receipts were 163 cars.

Provisions were firm, owing to a falling off in receipts of hogs at all Western packing centers. Weather conditions were chiefly responsible for the decreased movement. Prices at the opening were 2½c to 7½ higher.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06¼; July 97@¼c; September, 93⅞@94c. Corn—January, 57c; May 60⅝@61c; July, 61¼@¼c; September, 61⅜c. Oats—May, 51⅛@⅝c; July, 46c; September, 38⅞c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Tone in Wheat Strengthened by Light Receipts—Trade Small.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 16.—Liverpool was ¼d lower. Broomhall said the English market had started weak, but expectation of later American shipments and firmness of La Plata cargo sustained it against more than a slight decline. The local tone was strengthened somewhat by light receipts, but trade was small. Minneapolis got 175 cars against 324; Duluth, 42 against 38; Winnipeg, 54 against 198. Elevator stocks increased 43,986 bus for the week, and the total made a new high point at 14,722,795 bus, but for one day to go int onext week there is a decrease of 50,000 bus. There was a weak start, but near the close the market was strong and higher.

May opened $1.07⅜; high, $1.07¾@1.07⅞; low, $1.06⅞@1.07; close, $1.07⅜; July, $1.07⅜; high, $1.08⅛; low, $1.07⅜; close, $1.08. Fair demand ruled for cash wheat, with 1⅛c over May for selected No. 1 northern, 1¼c over for ordinary, ⅞c under for choice No. 2, and 1c under for ordinary No. 2. Local and outside millers bought moderately. Close: No. 1 northern, spot $1.08⅜, to arrive $1.08¾; No. 2 northern, spot $1.06⅜@1.06⅝, to arrive $1.06⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.03⅜@1.05⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 55¼@55¾c; No. 3 white oats, 48¼c; No. 2 rye, 69¾@71¾c. Barley—Receipts, 77 cars against 73; shipments, 62. The larger receipts made the market soft and ½c lower early. Demand showed some later improvement, but not enough to prevent the market from sagging. Close, 56@58½c.

Flax receipts 28 cars against 78; shipments, 1. The big decline in Duluth May not only put down cash flax, but the premium of 1c over May also weakened to ½c over. Close, $1.56¾.

Millstuffs shipments, 12,860 tons. Millers quote bulk bran $21.00@21.75.

Flour demand was reported better by the country mills, but locals said it was about the same. There is a fair domestic demand, but not much foreign inquiry. Shipments, 34,551 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.25@5.45; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.05.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

John Lamb, of the well known Duluth and Minneapolis house of Lamb, McGregor & Co., was a visitor on the floor during the session today.

For the past three years, Mr. Lamb has been making his headquarters at Minneapolis, but prior to that time he was in Duluth, and when his old "cronies" saw his generous proportions loom up in the door of the trading room this morning, it was a signal for a cessation of trading and a time for enthusiastic greetings.

With the whoops of school boys at play, the traders gathered around Mr. Lamb, slapping him on the back, purloining his watch and otherwise making merry, as is the custom when the market is dull.

Mr. Lamb will return to Minneapolis this evening or tomorrow.

Weekly Bank Statement.

New York, Jan. 16.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $25,588,175 more than the requirement of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $2,995,225 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows:

Loans, $1,559,110,000; increase, $42,074,900. Deposits, $1,464,450,700; increase, $46,105,900. Circulation, $49,431,100; decrease, $820,100. Legal tenders, $83,358,500; increase, $207,500. Specie, $293,344,600; increase, $14,215,200. Reserve, $376,703,100; increase, $14,422,700. Reserve required, $51,114,925; increase, $11,527,475. Surplus, $25,588,175; increase, $2,895,225. Ex-United States deposits, $27,560,475; increase, $2,618,725.

The percentage of actual reserve of the clearing house banks was 27.7.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York, not reporting to the clearing house, shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,148,940,000; total cash on hand, $112,275,400, and loans amounting to $1,036,530,300.

The increase of $46,100,900 in deposits in the national banks this week was the largest ever recorded in the history of the clearing house. A large part of this is believed to have been due to the deposit in New York banks of large sume disbursed in payment of dividends and interest.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 16.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 3 points, the declines in the near months being due to realizing and slightly lower cables than due, while the advances reflect bullish weak end figures, big overnight buying orders from outside sources and continued support from spot interests. LATEST NEWS:—Buy all the Shattuck-Arizona you can get hold of and then buy all the Shattuck-Arizona you can pay for, and then buy some more Shattuck-Arizona. This property has the actual ore in quantities. Shipments during the last month average 10 per cent copper. This is the highest grade of ore of any shipper on the list. North Butte is the highest grade in Butte and runs about 5 per cent. Calumet & Hecla runs about 3 per cent. Nevada mines run about 2 to 4 per cent. In fact you can look the country over, and with the possible exception of the Gibson mine in the Globe camp, you will find that Shattuck-Arizona has the highest grade of ore of any mine in the world, bar none. Understand me, I mean average net results from the smelter, and further the Shattuck has lots of ore that is practically pure copper, so that in the way of picked samples, no mine has a better showing than the Shattuck-Arizona. For quantity, the Shattuck-Arizona has enough ore actually blocked out which can be measured by any expert in the country to last for five years at the rate of 500 tons daily.

The general market is strong today, and I really believe we are going to have from now on our great big bull movement in copper stocks. All stocks will advance, but be sure you have no dead ones. Subscription books to Lake Superior & Sonora will be open Monday.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Close Was Slightly Irregular, But at Generally Better Prices.

Market Was Broader and Trading Took on Much Animation.

New York, Jan. 16.—The opening dealings in stocks did not show much animation. Changes were generally small and mixed. The effects of the Wisconsin Central absorption into the Canadian Pacific group were seen in advances in Wisconsin Central preferred of 1¾, the common 1, and Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred ¾. Tennessee Copper gained 1 and American Cotton Oil ⅝. St. Louis Southwestern preferred declined 1 and Union Pacific ¾.

Eastern soft coal road stocks were extensively bought, particularly Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western. A wide variety of other low priced stocks were also in demand at rising prices. Chesapeake & Ohio, Wisconsin Central and American Cotton Oil advanced 3 points, Norfolk & Western 1¾, Iowa Central preferred, Iowa Central and Colorado & Southern first preferred 1¼ and Minneapolis & St. Louis, Iowa Central preferred and American Smelting 1. Federal Mining sold at 71, compared with 83, its previous price last month. Vulcan Retinning preferred yielded 2.

The market closed slightly irregular but generally strong. The representative railroads and industrial stocks quite generally came into the market, and the trading took on much animation. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred rose an extreme 3½ points, Wabash preferred 2⅝, Union Pacific, Reading, American Smelting and National Biscuit and Erie first preferred 1½. Best prices were shaded on profit-taking, but new buying met the recession.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street. Closing prices are bid.

NORTH DAKOTA LEGISLATURE

House Insists on Majority of the Penitentiary Committee.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature closed the first week of active work this afternoon, but little work being done in either house. The state affairs committee of the house yesterday reported amendments to the concurrent resolution on the state penitentiary investigation, which gave the house a majority on the committee, as well as the power of subpoenaing witnesses and compelling the surrender of books and records.

JANUARY 16, 1909.

Calumet & Sonora had a little setback today from $22.00. This is about the way it acted from $15.00 to $18.00 and then advanced fast again from $13.00 to $20.00. Nothing to it, boys, you can kick, pound and knock, but Calumet & Sonora is worth at least $80.00 to $100 a share, and it therefore has to advance at least to half its value, which is $40.00 or $50.00 a share. You will see this stock sell 20 points higher very soon. Remember this is one of the biggest and richest properties in Old Mexico, and they have about $7,000,000 worth of ore shown up, and therefore it is a hard game to beat. Buy Calumet & Sonora whenever offered down, for it has got to come.

Some of you will find out how correct I am on Butte-Montana. Here is one of the best located mines in Butte, located in the very heart of Butte Hill, and it compares favorably with the Butte-Ballaklava mine, which is now selling for about ten times as much money, or in other words, you are paying about $3,400,000 for the difference in management. Who knows but after today the management on Butte-Montana will be almost as good as that of the Ballaklava Company. Mr. Stone, the superintendent of the Butte-Montana mine, is one in a thousand, and will, I understand, have much to say regarding this big rich property after today.

My customers are going to make big money out of this stock. I will admit, it has not advanced fast, but you have certainly watched some of the stocks I have picked as winners and they generally come along. Butte-Montana may sell at $2.00 a share before some of you expect it.

YOU CAN'T INVEST MONEY BETTER THAN IN DULUTH REALTY.

SIX STORIES TO BE ADDED TO ALWORTH BUILDING

Other Building Projects Are Likely to be Soon Announced—Lake Avenue is Rapidly Becoming a Big Jobbing Center—Superior Street Deals in the Air.

With the exception of two sales of Superior street property and one of Lake avenue property, the real estate market has seen very little action during the past week. There have been a few small sales, but nothing of very great importance. Real estate men uniformly report "nothing doing" and content themselves with showing the genial smile of hope, which has been their principal asset for some three months past.

Not so with things architectural. With the passing of the first of the year, a movement was expected in the building world, and it is coming. Architects are non-committal, for their tongues are tied, but the activity in their offices can mean nothing but plans in preparation and before long there will be many announcements of new buildings to go up during the next year.

The biggest project to come to the surface during the week is the addition of six stories to the Alworth building, just west of the Lonsdale. It is understood that M. H. Alworth, owner of the building, is either to add six stories to the present building if the foundations are strong enough or to erect a new building having eight stories on Superior street and nine stories on Michigan street. It will give the building the same height as the Lonsdale

M. H. Alworth is out of the city, and W. A. Hunt, who is to prepare the plans favor the building, has nothing to say. A well-founded rumor says that Mr. Alworth has been negotiating for the purchase of an additional twenty-five feet to the west of his fifty-foot property, with a view to erecting a building with a frontage of seventy-five feet on Superior street. The deal may yet go through.

Construction of the new building will probably not begin until spring. The present tenants have been notified that their leases will not be renewed and they will be forced to seek other quarters as soon as their present leases expire. Some of the rooms on the second floor of the building are already vacant and new tenants will not be taken.

In connection with the report of the plans for a new building, it is said the main floor will be occupied by the Northern National bank, the former Duluth Savings bank, which now has quarters in the old Herald building. Officials of the bank say that they have not even considered the proposition, but it is said the bank is outgrowing its present quarters, and the new building is the logical place for a new location.

Lake avenue is gradually moving to the center of the stage, and demanding attention as a district for new jobbing houses. Two big buildings are already under construction, and four more are said to be in contemplation.

Lake avenue is the logical place for the location of new jobbing houses. Michigan street and Fifth avenue west are crowded. Lake avenue has plenty of unoccupied property, and those who have faith in the district say that before many years jobbing houses will line the avenue from Superior street to t he aerial bridge.

Outside inquiry is strong, and the indication is a good one. When Twin City and Chicago jobbing houses think of investing money in Duluth for branch houses of their own, the indication of outside confidence in the future of Duluth is a reassuring one. Several Twin City and Chicago houses are said to be negotiating for Lake avenue property, with a view to erecting branch houses, and people interested are pleased with the prospect.

One sale of Lake avenue property was made during the past week through the firm of Burg & Hawkins. Deetz & Co. have purchased the lot north of the Bethel for $15,000, and it is said they will erect a building immediately. Their present quarters are too small, and the new building will be adequate for their needs for years to come.

The cold weather of the past two weeks has not retarded building operations very much. Most of the big buildings now under construction are under cover and supplied with false fronts, so that the interior work may go on undisturbed by the weather conditions. Interior work is going on in the Christie, Ordean, Elks', Y. W. C. A., MacDonald and Folz buildings and all will be ready for occupancy soon.

Residence construction is also going on rapidly, regardless of the weather. The building boom in the residence districts, which will assume great proportions in the spring, is springing into life, as the number of permits issued by the building inspector indicates. The permits issued during the past two weeks have been mainly for residences, most of them on a modest scale. The permits issued during the past week and involving over $1,000 are:

William Pasquala La Panta, frame addition to dwelling on north side of First street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues west, $1,500.

D. C. Barr, frame dwelling on the south side of Second street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues east, $5,000.

D. C. Barr, frame dwelling on the north side of Woodland avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues east, $2,500.

Carl Lund, frame dwelling on the south side of Sixth street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues east, $2,000.

Bernard Olson, frame dwelling on the south side of Exeter street, between Winnipeg and Michigan avenues, $2,000.

The sale of the Wieland block and a 25-foot lot near Lake avenue, are the only big deals to be pulled off in business property during the present month, it is reported. Several other big deals are in the air, real estate men say, but they have not been closed, nor have they progressed far enough along to give them publicity. The inquiry from the East continues strong, and Eastern holders of Duluth property continue to hold on with renewed expressions of confidence in Duluth property. Holders of property in general are not anxious to part with their holdings and that fact, more than any other, is responsible for the beginning quietness in the market.

H. W. Cheadle has sold to Fred Lundquist the 100x140-foot property at the southwest corner of Third avenue east and Sixth street for $1,200.

Catherine Herzeg has sold to Joseph Laskewitz a house and lot on the south side of Seventh street between Fourth and Fifth avenues east for $2,300.

ATTRACTIVE COTTAGE WOULD COST $2,200 TO BUILD IN DULUTH

FIRST FLOOR PLAN — SECOND FLOOR PLAN

The above illustration shows a small cottage design of distinct individual charm as to interior arrangements, and exterior appearance. The arrangement of the living room, fireplace, stairway, and hall is particularly unusual and attractive. In this plan the living room is all that the name implies, serving as sitting room, dining room, and reception room. Being placed in the recess and thus forming an inglenook, the fireplace does not rob the living room proper of any floor space. The nook is one step above the living room floor, and tiled, and forms an attractive feature of the plan. The kitchen and pantry arrangement is complete, compact, and convenient. Space is economized in both stories by the simple arrangement of the stairway. The stairs to the basement lead down from the passage between the hall and the kitchen which also forms a side entry. In the second story plan, are provided two light and airy sleeping rooms, ample closet space, and a well arranged bath room.

This house is designed for frame construction, finished on the exterior with shingles for the lower part, and stucco with imitation half timber work above. The foundation is of concrete, forming a basement under the entire house. An economical feature of construction is a single chimney, serving for the fireplace, heater, and kitchen range.

With a good grade of finish, hardwood floors, hot water heat and plumbing, a home as above described, would cost to build in Duluth and vicinity, $2,200.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Question of Giving Credit for Student Enterprises Undecided.

Girl Students Taking Active Interest in Dormitory Movement.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A committee of the faculty has been inquiring into the advisability of giving credit for student enterprises for over a year. In their report to the faculty, they recommended that no credits be given for music, journalism or dramatics. This much of their report was accepted. The committee further recommended that credit be given in intercollegiate debate and to representatives in the Northern Oratorical league, provided that no student may receive more than three credits toward his degree in this work. This recommendation was returned to the committee for further investigation.

Great excitement reigned at the university late last week over the reported ruling of the medical faculty, that extra quizzes would be conducted on Sunday morning. It was announced in the papers that Minnesota stood in the foremost ranks of colleges adopting a seven-day week course of study. However, when facts were revealed, it was shown that the faculty was less at fault than had been insinuated. Doctor Stuart and Wilcox announced yesterday that the work in surgery had to be caught up, and they left it to the discretion of the class as to when the extra hours could be sandwiched in. Sunday was chosen as the only convenient day.

When Dean Westbrook heard of the action, he immediately took a hand in the affair and shortly decided that Sunday should be treated as a day of rest and that the two extra hours would have to be sandwiched in at some other time.

As a result of correspondence between Dr. Raymond Phelan, department of economics, and Prof. John R. Commons, secretary of the American association for labor legislation, Minnesota is to have a state branch of this important association. The aims of the American association for legislation are to serve as a section of the international association, to encourage the study of labor legislation in the United States. Minnesota and its university show their progressiveness in becoming closely identified with this work.

A mass meeting was held Friday noon in Shevlin hall, for the purpose of acquainting all the college girls with the progress made in the dormitory movement, and the outlook pictured was very encouraging. Considerable active work has been done among the state legislators during the Christmas vacation. The request for appropriations for the dormitory, to be presented at this session of the legislature, and it is hoped, in view of the fact that the regents are heartly in support of the movement, that sufficient funds will be granted. An active campaign among prominent men of business and wealth was carried on last summer by college girls, but the result was discouraging, nearly every one refusing, because they did not wish to give to a state institution. James J. Hill was particularly interested and, though refusing funds, for he said, "The state is not a pauper," and promised his hearty support when the question was presented to the legislature.

The final improvements on the armory are nearing completion. The construction work on the running track is done and all that remains is the laying of the cork supertrack. The track is one of the largest indoor tracks in the West, there being sixteen laps to the mile. The swimming tank will be done by the latter part of the week. It is to be 60 feet long, 27 feet wide and 4 feet deep at one end and 8 feet deep at the other end. It is to be lined with white enamel brick and have four brass stairways into the water. A spring board will be at the lower end and rings over the center. The entire eastern end of the armory has been remodeled. New shower baths have been put in near the pool. Four new handball courts, a rifle range and a new locker room have been put in.

Litchfield will be the first stop on the University orchestra trip the first week in February. Definite dates have not yet been booked for other towns, but it is asured that a three-night trip will be taken. This is the first of the mixed "U" orchestra and is arousing unusual interest. Mr. and Mrs. Rose will act as chaperones. February 26, the band will invade the wilds of St. Paul to play at the indoor track meet. The Glee and Mandolin clubs are also awake and are planning a trip through the southern part of the state during the Easter vacation.

On Feb. 1 regular practice will begin for the girls' basketball tournament, which comes off Feb. 20. The tournament will be the great basketball event of the year, for as yet no college team has been formed and no intercollegiate basketball will be played. Each class will have a section of the armory, decorated with the class colors, and class yells and songs will be composed for the event. After the tournament a girls' basketball team will be organized, which will probably play the city Y. W. C. A. team. Class teams may also be organized. The girls' gymnasium classes will have the use of the track and the swimming pool.

C. MacDougall, Duluth; vice archon, James A. Wharton, Duluth; orator, William R. McKinnon, Minneapolis; scribe, Jesse H. Neal, St. Paul; prelate, B. G. Johnson, Minneapolis; guide, Burd P. Johnson, Minneapolis; warder, J. C. O'Keefe, Minneapolis; sentry, G. W. Campbell, Bemidji.

At 6 o'clock Monday evening a banquet will be served at the Commercial club to the state officers and delegates, to be followed by a dance and social session at Elks' hall. James A. Wharton will act as toastmaster at the banquet and toasts will be responded to by Supreme Scribe Piper, Advisory Scribe Neal, E. D. Boyce, Cass Lake, County Attorney E. E. Sharp of Moorhead, who represents the youngest council in the state, Mayor Walter J. Smith of Eveleth, Hon. H. M. Stark of Superior, the oldest member in the jurisdiction, W. G. Shane of Chisholm, Andrew Nelson and W. S. McCormick of Duluth.

During the past year twelve new councils have been organized in the state, of which ten have been in the northern part and one in Minneapolis and one in Buffalo. H. H. Stone of Duluth organized the ten lodges in the northern jurisdiction at the following places: Crookston, Fosston, Bagley, Akeley, Park Rapids, Sebeka, Staples, Wadena, Detroit and Moorhead.

Organizer A. W. Sharpe of Minneapolis, besides organizing the two new lodges in the southern jurisdiction, has added many members to the Twin City councils.

The St. Louis hotel has been selected as headquarters for the delegates and officers, and the attendance will probably reach a hundred from outside points.

Ladies' Auxiliary.

A ladies' auxiliary of the Sone of Veterans of the G. A. R. was organized during the week. The mothers, wives, daughters, nieces and granddaughters, and daughter-in-laws of the old soldiers, sailors and marines who fought during 1861 to 1865 are eligible to membership. A charter membership of twenty-three was enrolled, and the installation of officers took place Tuesday evening at the Kalamzoo hall, with the Sons of Veterans as guests. Commander Harrison installed the following officers: President, Mrs. E. Huot; vice president, Mrs. Smith; past president, Mrs. Keller; chaplain, Mrs. Levene; treasurer, Mrs. Kilgore; color guards, Mrs. Linton and Mrs. Hazen; secretary, Miss Robinson; guides, Miss Riley and Miss Donahue; patriotic instructor, Mrs. N. A. Gearhart; judge advocate, Brother Holcombe and guards, Mrs. Hillis and Mrs. Hurd. Frank Kilgore was installed captain of the Camp Sons of Veterans.

A musical program by Miss Gruneau, an address by Clarence B. Miller and an informal talk by Dr. Hilson followed.

Presented With Jewel.

At the annual installation of the Royal Arcanum, last night, the installing officer, Charles Huhn of Minneapolis, presented the retiring regent, Dr. W. A. Kaake, with a past regent's jewel, on behalf of the local council.

The auditing committee's report showed the affairs of the lodge to be in excellent condition, and in recognition of excellent services performed, the members of Duluth council, 1483, thought this recognition appropriate.

Mr. Huhn is the man who missed being mayor of Minneapolis by only 256 votes. He has many friends in Duluth, and last evening he was kept busy shaking hands with those who had heard he was in the city.

Officers Installed.

A joint installation of Duluth lodge, Degree of Honor, and Duluth lodge, A. O. N. U. W., was held Wednesday evening at Eagles' hall

HOUSE STOPS WILLETT IN MIDST OF A FIERCE ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

Votes by 78 to 126 Not to Permit Him to Continue.

New York Congressman Gives the President a Tongue Lashing.

Cites Riding Incident in Which Duluth Girl Figured.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A scathing arraignment of President Roosevelt by Representative William Willett, Jr., of Brooklyn, a Democrat, was stopped by a 78 to 126 vote of the house today, after Mr. Willett had been speaking for some minutes. The house denied him the privilege of continuing.

Several times Willett was called to order by Mr. Hughes of West Virginia. Mr. Butler of Pennsylvania, in the chair, ruled that Willett was speaking under license of general debate and that he was not called upon to indicate in advance the subject of his remarks. Mr. Willett then proceeded and frequently elicited applause from his Democratic colleagues.

Mr. Willett's reference to the "defamation of Admiral Schley," called Mr. Gardner of Massachusetts to object. After a good deal of sparring, the chair ruled that the words were offensive.

By this time the house was in a furor. Above the babel of voices, Mr. Gardner was heard to make the point that a member having been found out of order in debate he was no longer entitled to the floor. Messrs. Hepburn of Iowa and Mann of Illinois, with copies of the rules in their hands, appealed for recognition. Mr. Hepburn insisted that Mr. Willett should take his seat. Mr. Mann in the meantime reading some rules on the case. The chair directed Mr. Willett to take his seat, which he did with reluctance.

Mr. Willett's Speech.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Characterizing President Roosevelt as a gargoyle and as a "pigmy descendant of Dutch tradespeople," and charging him with having "established a court in the White House, which would have delighted the heart of his admired Alexander Hamilton," William Willett, Democrat, of New York, in the house of representatives today, made one of the most bitter attacks on the chief executive ever heard in that body.

Mr. Willett took for his theme "The Passage of Roosevelt," and in a speech of great length dealt with a number of the president's acts since he came into office, and scathingly denounced them. After declaring that in the face of all sorts of conditions, Ameri-

CAUCUS PLANNED ON SENATORSHIP

FRANK LOWDEN.

RICHARD YATES.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—Interest in Springfield centered today in the inaugural ceremonies which inducted the newly elected state officers into office.

The senatorship situation and the possibilities of difficulty in selecting a senator in a joint session was a leading topic of discussion through the day in spite of the inaugural activities. Talk of the probability of a caucus to settle the position of the Republican members of the house on the senatorial situation was revived today and the general opinion was that a caucus might be called. Officers inaugurated today were:

Governor, Charles S. Deneen; lieutenant governor, John G. Oglesby of Elkhart; secretary of state, James A. Ross of Colconda; auditor of public accounts, James McCullough of Champaign; attorney general, W. H. Stead of Ottawa; state treasurer, Andrew J. Russell of Jacksonville; clerk supreme court, J. McCan Davis of Springfield.

The senatorship contest is growing red hot, with Senator Hopkins, Frank Lowden and ex-Governor Yates leading, although it looks as though Hopkins would surely be one of the losers.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS WATERS-PIERCE OIL FINE AMOUNTING TO $1,623,000

Washington, Jan. 18.—The supreme court of the United States today affirmed the decree of the state courts of Texas imposing a fine of $1,623,000 on the Waters-Pierce Oil company of St. Louis and ousting it from the state on the charge of violating the Texas anti-trust law. This is the closing chapter in a long series of attempts on the part of Texas to defeat the oil trust. H. Clay Pierce, head of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, who lives in St. Louis, testified in some of the Texas hearings, and it was afterward charged that he had perjured himself. He was called back to Texas, but, refusing to go, was finally forced there by extradition. His case is still hanging fire in the Lone Star state courts. In the meantime, the state of Missouri, through its supreme court, has declared against the Waters-Pierce company and has ordered the Standard oil, of which the Waters-Pierce is a branch, to do no more business, either in refining or selling, within the limits of that commonwealth.

DULUTH GRAIN SYSTEM PRAISED BY GOVERNOR DENEEN, TO LAWMAKERS

CHARLES S. DENEEN.

Illinois Governor Tells Them of Improvement in Inspection.

Urges Prompt Action on Lakes-to-Gulf Plan.

Legislature Is Asked to Lay Aside Bias, and Boost.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—In his message to the legislature today Governor Deneen urges that prompt and vigorous action be taken in the matter of a deep waterway from the Lakes to the Gulf. The governor says:

"The attitude of the representatives of the Federal government is now more friendly to a broad policy of waterway development than ever before, and should Illinois show a disposition to enter vigorously upon the work of waterway construction, it cannot but affect favorably the federal situation.

It seems to be now an established fact that the Canadian government is seriously considering the construction of the Georgian bay canal which will give to Canada a deep waterway to the Atlantic seaboard and a great advantage over the United States in the matter of commerce. There should be speedy beginning on the part of the United States and the states interested in the construction of the Lakes to the Gulf waterway, in order that this country may stand upon an equality in all commercial advantages with

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 18.—That the change in the circuit of the Wisconsin-Illinois league was brought about by the traction interests of Eastern Wisconsin, who intend to employ the organization as a feeder for the car lines, is the statement of President Rooney of the LaCrosse club in regard to the change.

It is expected that a new league will be formed to be made up of La Crosse, Winona, Eau Claire, Wausau, Superior, Duluth, Ashland and Stillwater. Negotiations for that purpose were started today. This organization will be the successor of the disbanded Northern league and will be a class C organization.

BISHOP M'QUAIDE DIES, AGED 86

Head of Catholic Diocese of Rochester Passes Away.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Right Rev. Bernard J. McQuaide, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Rochester, died early today, aged 86 years.

Bishop McQuaide was the first bishop of the diocese of Rochester, being consecrated on July 12, 1868, in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, by Archbishop Hughes.

He was born on Dec. 15, 1823, in New York city, and went to school at Chambly, near Montreal, and attended St. John's college at Fordham. He finished his classical course in 1843 and remained a tutor at Fordham for three years, studying theology. He was ordained on Jan. 16, 1848, and assigned to a parish in New Jersey. He founded and was president for ten years of Seaton Hall college and seminary. For a time he was pastor of the Newark cathedral. The bishop was probably one of the foremost advocates of parochial school work in the American church.

There was always contention between the Buffalo and Rochester dioceses in the days of Bishop Stephen Vincent Ryan because the Rochester prelate always sought to enlarge his see at the expense of the Buffalo diocese. The year after Bishop Ryan died Bishop McQuaide succeeded in his design and the counties of Steuben, Chemung and Schuyler passed under his jurisdiction.

Assessor Hurt; Threat to Stop Payment of Checks.

A Prominent Kentuckian May Die From Wounds He Received.

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 18.—County Assessor Boyd Wagers was probably fatally and W. D. Oldham seriously wounded in a duel with knives, following a game of cards.

Oldham is one of the leading merchants of this city and, according to the story told by the police, his threat to stop payment of some of his checks, issued during the game, was the cause of the fight.

In addition to his county office, Wagers is one of the most widely known cattle buyers in this section of the state.

BIRTHS EXCEED DEATHS, AT LAST

France Rejoices Over the Report of Vital Statistics.

Paris, Jan. 18.—The vital statistics for the first six months of 1908 show a gratifying decrease in the proportion of deaths in France, a condition attributed to the more stringent application of laws of hygiene.

During this period the births exceeded the deaths by 11,000, against an excess of 5,500 for the corresponding period of 1907.

A NEW SHORT LINE FROM DULUTH TO WINNIPEG BY CANADIAN PACIFIC ROAD

Building of New Line Expected in the Near Future.

Duluth Will be Center of Railroad Activity for Years.

The purchase of the Wisconsin Central railroad by the Canadian Pacific interests means much to Duluth. A Minneapolis business man, who has been for many years largely interested in Duluth, and who is in a position to learn accurately what is going on "behind the scenes" in the railroad world, writes to The Herald as follows:

"The invasion of Canada by the lines of the Great Northern railway, and

TOWN HAS SPASM, SUPPOSED QUAKE IS FALLING MINE

Latrobe, Pa., Jan. 18.—Snydertown, near here, and the surrounding vicinity is in a highly nervous state today as a result of an earthquake fright. Accompanied by rumbling noises, several hundred yards of the Derry township road, suddenly dropped about three feet, and deep fissures appeared in the adjacent ground. A number of residences and barns were damaged. The people were thrown into a panic; first fleeing from the scene and then cautiously returning to view the damage wrought by the supposed earthquake. An investigation, however, showed the depression to be due to the collapsing of an abandoned coal mine.

If the bill becomes a law, it will take effect June 1, and apply to foreign vessels on Dec. 31, of this year.

Judge Ward Against Too Easy Grand Jury Summons.

Newspaper Men's Lawyer Makes Fight on Subpoenas' Form.

New York, Jan. 18.—The nature of the proceedings which have been instituted against the New York World and the Indianapolis News because of their criticisms of the methods by which the purchase of the Panama canal property was made, was not disclosed in the hearing in court here today. Acting under instructions believed to have been issued by authority of the United States government, United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson had subpoenaed William B. McLaughlin, sporting editor of the World, and J. Angus Shaw, secretary of the Press Publishing company, to testify before a federal grand jury in an action which was not described in the supoenas. It was believed, however, to be the outcome of President Roosevelt's message to congress, in which he protested against the linking of the name of Charles P. Taft, brother of the president-elect and J. Douglas Robinson, the president's

MESSINA SAFE AND $50,000 FOUND; FIRST REGGIO MASS SINCE QUAKE

Messina, Jan. 18.—During the excavations steadily going on among the earthquake ruins here, a safe containing $50,000 was found yesterday on the site where the municipal building stood.

Mass Held at Reggio.

Reggio, Jan. 18.—For the first time since the earthquake disaster of Dec. 28, mass wa ssaid in Reggio yesterday under conditions that recalled the earl ydays of the church. Processions passed through the streets of the city ringing bells and calling the people to the service which was held in an orange and lemon grove near the shore. The altar set up under the picturesque and pastoral surroundings, was formed by a table covered with a white cloth, behind which was huna a cheap chromo print of Christ. Around this were arranged several candles, a crucifix and some sacred vessels, all protected from the wind by a cloth screen. There were present many women and children, all of whom knelt before the improvised altar, while the men stood with uncovered heads behind them. On the outskirts of the crowd were several shepherds in the midst of their flocgs, standing erect in their characteristic dress, with hansd crossed over the tops of their crooks, upon which they rested their chins. The whole scene might have been taken from one of the early bibblical pictures of a primitive religious service. The crowd followed the ceremony with gerat interest and much fevor was shown in carrying out the forms of their religion.

Slight earthquake shocks continue to be experienced here at brief intervals. The quakes are not being registered by the observatories in the immediate vicinity, which is evidence that the movement is local only.

Gen. Mazza has given instructions that all papers, documents or property found in the ruins of the American consulate be turned over to Stuart K. Lupton, vice consul of the United States.

STRIKING HATMAKERS MAPPING OUT AN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—The striking hatmakers of this city, who number nearly 1,000, are in session today mapping out a plan of campaign. It is understood a picket system will be established and efforts made to induce men who may be imported from taking the strikers' places.

Manufacturers Are Firm.

New York, Jan. 18.—The open shop and a fight to the finish was the action decided upon by the Hat Manufacturers' association at a meeting yesterday to discuss the situation growing out of the strike. An effect of the strike, according to the manufacturers, will be a rise in the price of hats, as the trouble occurs in the busy season.

Twelve members, comprising the board of directors of the Hat Manufacturers' association, attended the meeting. President Samuel Mundheim, who was in the chair, made the announcement after the meeting that the manufacturers had declared for the open shop and were prepared to fight to a finish. He said the number of strikers was between 15,000 and 20,000, but that there were many non-union hatters out of employment, and that eventually the places of the strikers would be filled.

Unfair, He Says.

"The manufacturers feel that they have not been treated fairly," he said. "The strikers should have given us notice, according to their agreement, and the action should have been taken by a vote of the union."

Mr. Mundheim, in discussing the discontinuance of the union label by the manufacturers, which precipitated the strike, said:

"The label is of no advantage to the manufacturers, and indeed is not wanted. Very few people who buy hats notice whether the label is in it or not."

The manufacturers' president ridiculed the report that the union had $400,000 with which to make the fight. He said, however, that the hatters' union was one of the strongest labor organizations in the country.

The Working Agreement.

A statement was issued by the manufacturers containing parts of the working agreement entered into with the union. This was done, the statement continued, in order to set at rest any misunderstanding regarding the attitude of the manufacturers' association. The agreement, in effect, was that there should be no stoppage of work until a final decision of arbitrators had been rendered and that the union label should not be removed until due notice is given the manufacturers.

"The United Hatters of North America," the statement concludes, "flagrantly violated the foregoing articles by withdrawing the men and refusing the use of the union label to the Geyer Hat company, one of our members, without notice. Upon their refusal to restore the label and the men to the Geyer Hat company, the manufacturers' association, by a unanimous vote, directed all their members to discontinue the use of the union label in all their factories. The order was not intended to change any other existing condition or agreement between the manufacturers and their employes."

NORTHWESTERN GETS THE NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD

Hill Thus Prevents Building of Another Line to the Coast.

New York, Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Has the Northwestern road obtained control of the Northern Pacific?

The story is widely circulated, and is vouched for in quarters that are generally regarded as well informed on all new moves on the railroad checkerboard, that such a deal has been completed.

This may explain why the Northwestern has stopped work on its extension toward the Pacific coast.

It is said that James J. Hill, who has been virtually in control of the Northern Pacific, viewed with alarm the building of another road to Puget sound, as proposed by the Northwestern, and that in order to stop it he offered to give the Northern Pacific to the Northwestern, thus making the building of the latter's coast extension unnecessary. At the same time he secured the controlling interest in the Colorado & Southern in order to throw additional traffic to the Burlington. With the Great Northern, Burlington and Colorado & Southern under his control, Mr. Hill can well afford to let the Northwestern have the Northern Pacific and thus prevent a further diversion of the coast traffic by the extension of the Northwestern into that territory.

BIG VARIETY IS OFFERED

A Queer Assortment of Cases on Municipal Court Calendar.

Horses, Cows, Tents, Loans and Sample Cases Involved.

The reading of the municipal court calendar this morning brought out complaints in damage suits against railroads for the death of two cows, and a damage suit against the city for injuries said to have been sustained by a horse, owing to the bad condition of certal nstreets. There was also a suit against the Lenox Hotel company over a missing sample case, for $385, and a suit brought by N. E. Lugoff against J. C. McFadden for money loaned.

Malmia Hayden, in her complaint against the city, states that while her horse was being driven along Ramsey street, it stepped into a hole at the corner of Fifty-third avenue west, and was injured so badly that medicine and medical attendance had to be procured, at an expense of $15. Even when doctored up and in commission again, the horse was worth $65 less than it was before, according to the complaint. Therefore damages in the sum of $80 are asked. The accident is said to have occurred on July 29 last.

Charles Ellson is suing the Omaha road for $150 for damages to a circus tent while it was in transit between Duluth and Jordan, Minn., where it was consigned to D. L. Dolson. This was on May 12, 1908.

Marla Latinen is suing the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road for $65 damages as a result of the alleged untimely death of a cow on the tracks belonging to the railroad company in question, north of Duluth.

Farlelde DeMeyer is suing the Northern Pacific for $75 damages for the alleged death of a cow in front of one of the railroad's locomtives on July 24 of last year. He says it was a valuable cow and easily worth the amount asked for. It is a fact often noted by railroad attorneys that locomotives are exceedingly particular and always refuse to run over any cow that is not of a fancy breed, and therefore worth a fancy price.

N. E. Lugoff, in a complaint against J. C. McFadden, says he loaned the latter $375 during April, May and June, and that $92.75 of this amount has not been paid. He asks judgment in the sum of $92.75, with costs and interest.

A traveling man who claims to have left his sample case in the care of the Lenox hotel on May 1, 1907, says he never has been able to get it since, owing to its having been lost. He values the case and contents at $385, and asks judgment for the full amount. The biggest item in the list is $278 for plans, specifications and materials for advertising, which it took him years to collect.

HOUSE STOPS WILLETT

cans were possessed of a universal sense of humor, Mr. Willett said that to such a people "it must be confessed, a chief magistrate, who has himself no sense of humor, moving like a horse-tedder, over the hayfields of American activity, stirring up every drying blade of once green grass, to let it fall drier than before, quarreling one day with the practical politicians, then with the part-your-hair-in-the-middle reformers, then with the Socialists, then with the great industrial corporations, wrestling in agony of spirit with Noah Webster and our glorious English tongue, taking a fall out of nature fakirs; exhorting our women to avoid race suicide, cannot be an unmixed nuisance.

"He plays the tyrant, to be sure, but he is a tyrant who fears the carnival tickler. He sees things that have a bad smell, but the fresh breeze of capitol hill doesn't let the odor linger."

"He tries our patience, but he is always good to laugh at. Willett gave a brief biography of Roosevelt's life, and accused him, in his early manhood of having had preposterous notions, of having "knifed" Secretary Long of being a "warrior alone in Cuba," of having won the governorship of New York by a mere fluke "when the false halo of San Juan Hill was above his head; the beneficiary of assassins, and the last and crowning piece of luck, the nominee for president when all the aggressive elements of passion wanted to see their own candidate defeated, the mammoth jocularity' has got to laugh with every appearance; the gargoyle has been funny from the hour it left its native quarry."

His "Irish Blood."

Continuing, Willett said:

"And Mr. Chairman, should the gentlemen who view this curious figure with feigned admiration ask me how any son of Adam could be at the same time, a hay tedder, a jocularity and a gargoyle, I can only answer that this particular hero is an exception to all rules, a solemn sui generis, a mixed-metaphor-vivant, an impossibility, a comet that roves at will regardless of the limitations of order and law, that apply to earth and moon, to stars and planets.

"He boasts of Irish blood, but no historic Irishman would have treated an ally as he treated Mr. Harriman.

"He exults in a strain of the old Huguenot, but the French gentleman does not fly into a passion and lash the horse of a timid young girl whose only offense is inadvertently passing the 'royal party' in a public highway. (This is a reference to the horseback riding incident along one of the roads to Washington, in which Miss Edna Munsey of Duluth, Miss Violet Hatch of Sioux City, Iowa, and other young woman students of a Washington seminary figured.)

"He tells us that Southern aristocrats were among his polyglot ancestors; but I can inform him that if the wife of a Robert Toombs or of a Jefferson Davis had been treated by him as Mrs. Minor Morris was, he would have been called out and branded as a coward if he had been a thousand times a president.

"He is proud to insist that the family whose name he bears comes from Holland; but his ready surrender to the politicians of his own party makes it clear enough that fat burghers who put up their shutter at the first beat of the war drum must have been his progenitors. He beats the Dutch, however, as even his severest critics must confess.

"Are you shocked that a chief magistrate should justify such a characterization? I am shocked too. Do you say that the place he holds should make us all dumb before him? Hear what this fountain of Billingsgate has said of his predecessors in that high office, and own that no man's tongue should be stilled by such a consideration."

He quoted from President Roosevelt's books, in which the president is alleged to have attacked Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Pierce, and others, and said that the president had "toleration only for the Adams who stood for Federalist aristocracy and admiration for Alexander Hamilton, the defeated champion of a limited monarchy."

Also Charges Jealousy.

"Jealousy you can read in the gargoyle's distorted features. You look on those twisted lines and it is easy, oh, so easy, to understand the insolence toward Dewey, the one great figure of the Spanish-American war, the hero who took Manila with the worst ships, a rotten bureaucracy could find for him, the persistent defamation of Admiral Schley, who really fought the battle of San Diego Bay, the insults heaped on Gen. Miles, whose counsel was ignored—in the expensive blunders of the land campaign at San Diego."

Willett charged that the president had bulldozed President Castro of Venezuela, had seen the Filipinos brutally treated, had marooned Col. Stewart, whom he did not like, had kept a young woman from earning an honest living by telling the truth, had allowed "scandalous conditions" to exist in the army and navy, had compelled his subordinates, "to act as hunting dogs for the czar of Russia in trailing down men who had fought for liberty," had practically re-established the John Adams alien and sedition laws, had forced desertions from the navy by allowing intolerable treatment of sailors "at the hands of the aristocracy of Annapolis officers," had permitted the degrading of soldiers at West Point who had been put to menial work and had given a Scotch verdict in connection with the Panama canal scandal.

FOREST WARNS OF FIRE DANGER

Pinchot Asks for Increase in the Patrol Officers.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Clifford Pinchot, United States forester today, issued a retrospect of the work of the United States forest service for the fiscal year, 1908.

At the en dof the last fiscal year, when business was heavier than at any other time, the 182 national forests were cared for by an executive and protective force of twenty-nine inspectors, ninety-eight forest supervisors, sixty-one deputy supervisors, thirty-three forest assistants, eight planting assistants, 941 rangers, 521 forest guards and eighty-eight clerks.

The average area to each officer theoretically available for patrol duty was 116,665 acres, but more than three-fourths of the time of these forest officers is required by the fast-growing volume of national forest business, so that in point of fact the force on duty at the close of the year provided about one patrol officer to each 500,000 acres of forest.

This is considered inadequate for protection of the forests. Until provision is made for a large increase of force it is necessary either to curtail the business arising from the use of the forests or to neglect the proper safeguarding of government property against fire.

ASKS BONAPARTE ABOUT THE SUIT

Resolution in the Senate Seeks Information in World Case.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A resolution was introduced today by Senator Rayner of Maryland calling on the attorney general for information concerning the bringing of a suit for libel against certain newspapers.

Mr. Rayner asked for immediate consideration, saying the only purpose was to get information whether this suit had been ordered, whether it was brought at the instance of the president, under what statute, by whom ordered and by what power and authority the courts are being used to forward this suit.

C. P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of W. H. Taft will appear before the grand jury here tomorrow, in connection with the Panama canal libel proceedings. Mr. Taft reached Washington today from Augusta, where he has been visiting with his brother, and at once called upon President Roosevelt for a short conference. He said he did not discuss the details of the matter with the president, and did not know the inside of the case. Mr. Taft said he had received a request from the district attorney to appear here tomorrow afternoon, and that he had not been formally subpoenaed. He did not know, he said, whether Douglas Robinson, the president's brother-in-law, also had been requested to appear before the jury. The names of Mr. Taft and Mr. Robinson were mentioned in the publications about which President Roosevelt complained.

Attorney General Bonaparte had nothing to say today regarding the subpoenaes, and the same reticence was observed at the office of United States District Attorney Baker.

The fifth escaped.

REGISTER ON TUESDAY

Those Expecting to Vote in February Must Come to Front.

The Third and Last Registration Day Next Saturday.

Tommorw is registration day for citizens who expect to vote at the municipal election, to be held Feb. 2.

There will be another registration day next Saturday, Jan. 23. Any one not down on the lists after Saturday will not be entitled to a vote, unless he voted at the December primaries.

The total registration this year will not be large, owing to the fact that there is no mayoralty election. Eight aldeman, a municipal judge, a city treasurer and a city comptroller are to be elected.

The greatest interest centers in some of the aldermanic contests, for there seems to be no doubt as to the outcome in regard to the other three offices.

Friends of City Treasurer F. J. Voss say his splendid record in office give him a cinch so far as re-election is concerned. B. F. Howard is opposing him on the Republican ticket. Friends of City Comptroller McCormick are making equally enthusiastic claims for him. W. L. Windom has no opposition for municipal judge.

In the Fourth ward Alex J. Lyle, who was formerly an alderman, and who was succeeded by Joseph Shartel, Democrat, is again a candidate on the Republican ticket, and is putting up an active campaign. Alderman Shartel is taking care to see that his fences do not get out of repair, and the friends of both are doing what they can to help their favorites along. Both men are optimistic over the outlook.

In the First ward there is no Democratic candidate for alderman, and in the Eighth there is no Republican candidate. W. S. Moore is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket in the First, and W. B. Getchell is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket in the Eighth.

A lively contest is anticipated in some of the other wards.

Precinct polling booths will be open at the usual places tomorrow and Saturday from 6 a. m. until 9 p. m. Today is the last day upon which the election judges can receive their supplies.

DULUTH SIXTH IN THE LIST

Only Five Recruiting Stations Furnished Larger Number of Soldiers.

In the army records for November, the latest figures to be compiled upon the recruiting of the entire country, Duluth is given sixth place among the cities of the country in the matter of furnishing recruits to the army.

New York stands first among the cities. Chicago comes second and third, because it has more than one recruiting division, San Francisco fourth, St. Louis fifth and Duluth sixth.

The fact that Duluth comes ahead of such cities as Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Boston and other cities much larger than Duluth, is a feather in the cap of the Zenith City. This record, too, was made after many of the outside stations had been closed. Ashland is the only outside station at the present time.

Seventy-two recruits were secured from this city during the month of November. New York, the leading city of the country, as far as the number of the recruits go, secured 441 recruits.

According to the army figures, there are approximately 74,000 soldiers in the army at the present time, including the Porto Rican and Philippine scouts. Congress has appropriated for 83,000 men. The army is, therefore, short about 9,000 men at the present time.

The army record shows that recruiting is very dull all over the country at the present time. This fact, and the additional fact that the army needs 9,000 more recruits, may lead the government to open additional branch offices in the Duluth district.

Sixth position is the highest position that Duluth has ever occupied among the cities of the country. This fact may lead the officials at Washington to consider this city one of the most important recruiting points in the entire country. Another point in favor of Duluth is the fact that the men recruited from here are invariably of very high physical standard.

SIX MONTHS ADDED TO TERM.

William Delahunt Will Have to Spend Year at Reformatory.

William Delahunt, 19 years old, who last week pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing an overcoat from the Superior curling rink, Saturday had six months added to his sentence of half a year in the reformatory at Green Bay.

According gto a provision of the 1907 statutes, one year is the shortest term that can be served at the Green Bay school. Through some oversight this was overlooked by Judge Smith in imposing the sentence. The judge was much interested in the boy's future welfare, and when he was giving him a few kindly words of advice, the tears came to his eyes.

Kramer was arrested on the charge last July, and has been held in the county jail since then.

The next case scheduled to come before the superior court is the trial of Clyde Sawyer, who with Mamie Adams, the proprietor of an evil resort on the range, is charged with inducing a young girl to enter the place for immoral purposes.

The normal school team defeated Shell Lake on Friday evening, without much trouble.

Ten Women Arrested in Raid on Red Light District.

Four white women and six negresses were arrested Saturday night in a raid on the old St. Croix avenue district, charged with being occupants of houses of ill-fame.

Marguerite DuBois, who has been running the resort at 211 St. Croix avenue, was among those arrested and three women were taken with her from the house. She was bailed out two or three hours after her arrest, by Madame Mary Gain, who formerly owned two houses in the district. The DuBois woman is charged with conducting an immoral house. The girls gave their names at Lucille Demars, Gladys and Mamie Cooper.

The six negro women were taken from a house on the east side of St. Croix avenue, which is across the street from the former line of houses of ill-repute. They gave their names as Helen Johnson, Anna Carter, Ella Lewis, Stella Scott, Mamie Chase and Anna Brown.

Chief of Police Troyer has been securing evidence against the place for some time past, and when his evidence was sure enough to convict, he gave orders directing the raid. It was made by Capt. Fiskett, Lieut. Fritz, Detectives Schulte and Kline, and Patrolmen Bartlett, Ek, Gilbert and Rothie.

Marguerite DuBois' bail was fixed at $100. The three white women with her were unable to get bail. The six colored women were all released on bail.

In municipal court this morning Madam DuBois pleaded not guilty. Her trial was set for Saturday morning and her bail was fixed at $100.

The girls who were arrested in the same raid also pleaded not guilty. Their hearing was set for the same time and their bail was set at $25.

Minnie Cooper pleaded not guilty to selling liquor without a license. Her bail was set at $100 and her hearing will take place at the same time as that set for the other women.

There will be new flat houses built in New York city during the next year to accommodate 82,000 families.

Eveleth Mass Meeting Urges Spending $10,000 in This County.

Resolutions Are Adopted Telling of Needs of St. Louis County.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mass meeting yesterday afternoon at Vail hall closed the local anti-tuberculosis exhibits and discussion here of the white plague. A very large crowd attended. Ephraim Johnson was chairman. Dr. J. J. Ecklund of Duluth spoke in Swedish and then in English. He said that the lodging houses were some of the worst breeding places for tuberculosis. Tuberculosis is not hereditary, but the children of parents having tuberculosis are more susceptible to the disease, and living with their sick parents are more liable to get it.

George A. Perham spoke of the natural resources of the state for curing tuberculosis; the woods and the lakes and rivers all afford a place where one can spend at least some of his time in the open, making him less liable to get the disease. At 4 o'clock a second meeting began, with Dr. More of the More hospital as chairman.

Eveleth is Complimented.

Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, complimented Eveleth on its fight against the white plague, and for being the only town in the state having school inspection. The state he said spends more money on fish and game than it does to save human lives. He said that there were four classes of people, the well, the somewhat sick, the medium sick and the advanced sick. All these have to have care; the well to be protected, the others to get rid of the disease.

He said that the Walker sanitarium was too far away and that a tuberculosis hospital for all cases should be established in this county.

Father Floyd compared the "white plague" to the Black death that ravaged Europe some centuries ago.

Neil McInnis said that the tuberculosis cases ought to be treated nearer home. J. H. Hearding spoke of the great need in caring for tuberculosis cases was to see that the families of the sick should be taken care of as worry has much to do in the early death of one having tuberculosis in its advanced stages.

The following resolutions presented by Dr. Harwood of the Fabiola hospital were unanimously adopted:

Need of County Sanitarium.

Whereas, the death rate in St. Louis county is higher than in any other part of the state, and whereas St. Louis county contains an unusually large proportion of the floating element of population, among which classes the greatest number of cases, and the most dangerous kinds of cases are to be found, and,

Whereas we recall the fact that there must be in the neighborhood of 1,000 cases of tuberculosis in St. Louis county, and that the present means of taking care of these cases is absolutely inadequate; that last year the whole amount appropriated for the care of such work was about $600, which amount was spent on institutional work through the county poor board, and that at least two-thirds of these cases are chronic advanced ones, many of which are dangerous to their immediate surroundings; and,

Whereas we realize that something more than a mere adaptation of existing buildings is required, and that in order to cope with the situation and do something for humanity, St. Louis county should appropriate a substantial sum through its board of county commissioners, and that such sum should not be less than $10,000, which amount would mean $8,000 for a building and equipment and about $2,000 for maintenance; now therefore, be it

Recommend $10,000 Appropriation.

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Eveleth in mass meeting assembled, do and we hereby recommend the setting aside of $10,000 by the board of county commissioners for the building of such a sanitarium for St. Louis county, and that such appropriation be made at the earliest possible time. Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the board of county commissioners at Duluth, and also a copy sent to the Anti-Tuberculosis society at Duluth; be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be taken to Duluth and presented to the convention of the numerous clubs to be held in Duluth on the 22nd of this month.

Whereas overcrowding and other insanitary conditions are known to exist in boarding houses and hotels, particularly in mining locations and lumber and construction camps, therefore be it

Resolved, by the citizens of Eveleth, in mass meeting assembled, that legislation should be enacted, giving the state board of health full power of inspection and regulation of sanitary conditions in all boarding houses, lodging houses, camps and hotels, and be it further

Resolved, that copies of this resolution be presented at the meeting of the Commercial clubs in Duluth on Jan. 22, and be sent to each of the representatives of St. Louis county attending the legislature now in session at St. Paul.

After the meeting those interested in local relief work appointed the following as a committee on relief and care of tuberculosis cases: Dr. Brown, George A. Perham, Messrs. Turnquist and Aho, Mrs. W. J. Smith and Mrs. Ephraim Johnson.

The meeting held Saturday evening at Urania hall was attended by all the teachers in town, as it was teachers' night. Dr. Boyer of Duluth spoke on "The Teachers' Duty in Stamping Out Tuberculosis," touching on the need of drinking cups, proper ways of sweeping, all matters pertaining to cleanliness, and that no consumptive teachers should be employed. Dr. Longstreet Taylor of St. Paul had a paper on "Tuberculosis in General."

Late Famous Ruling of Supreme Court Bears on Contest.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent ruling of the supreme court in the wide-open tax amendment case will be invoked by counsel for the contestee, Riley, in the Riddell-Riley contested election case which is dragging along in the district court before Judge Cant. Alfred Thwing of counsel for Riley in discussing the bearing of the supreme court decision on the case at bar said: "We shall contend that the decision, in so far as we interpret it holds that a contestant alleging irregularities in every precinct cannot prove irregularities in every precinct cannot prove irregularities in a few alone and claim the benefit of a presumption he has disputed, as to the others, but must prove his votes in all of them, applies to the case now on trial here."

The case was resumed this morning after a late session Saturday night which did not conclude until nearly midnight.

The most recent testimony related to the precinct of Crooked Lake, which was created, it is claimed illegally, a good many years ago out of unorganized territory, and now comprises parts of two organized towns, as well as some unorganized townships. Voters came to the polling place, apparently in entire good faith, from the organized, as well as the unorganized portions, but it is claimed by contestant that, because they did not go to the polling places established by the town boards of their respective towns (in one case some fifteen miles distant) their votes should not be counted. In this precinct, as in Sand Lake, an interesting question arises as to the legality of the votes of men employed in lumber camps, but having no fixed homes elsewhere.

Evidence was also received of three votes cast for Riley at Keewatin by persons who were not citizens.

The contestant's attorneys announce that they will in all probability close their case early in the week, possibly today. When they do so, a motion will be made to dismiss by the contestee, based in part on the recent supreme court decision, in the wide open tax amendment, also on other questions such as the burden of proof as to the legality of the lumber camp votes cast at Sand Lake and Crooked Lake. Considerable time will undoubtedly be taken in arguing the motion; and, if it is denied, it is probable the trial will occupy at least a week or ten days longer.

VIRGINIANS LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

Visions of Suitable Courthouse Site for New County Seen.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected that at tomorrow evening's meeting of the council the park board will ask that body to again take up the matter of the establishment of a public park, and will urge the selection of block 43, opposite the Roosevelt high school. They will endeavor to have the council pass a resolution for the appointment of a board of five appraisers to condemn the property. The mayor, it is said, does not favor this site, but the board hopes to be able to set aside his objections and get him to indorse the resolution and get him to indorse ahe favor the establishment of a park on Lake boulevard, and says that the filling in of the lake front can be accomplished at very little cost to the city. He says the dirt for that purpose can be secured from the Oliver Iron Mining company free of cost, and that the company would gladly haul its strippings to that point without cost to the city.

Many people favor the boulevard, but a larger proportion favor block 43, from the fact that it is thought at some future date the city will be obliged to offer such site for the building and erection of public buildings which Virginia will seek to secure in the not far distant future. Business men in general are of the opinion that block 43 ought to be purchase, if for no other reason than to hold it with a look into the future, when the new county that may be carved out of the northern part of St. Louis, may went a site for the new courthouse here.

Scarlet fever is said to have been raging amid the poorer class of settlers living about ten miles north of Bear River, which, combined with the destitution of many, has made the cases deplorable in the extreme. KILLS TWO AND SELF

This is the Police Theory; in Seattle Tragedy.

Bodies of Three In One Family Are Discovered.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 18.—W. L. Seeley, an attorney and former national bank examiner for Illinois, his wife, Mrs. Kate M. Seeley, and his daughter, Miss Rene Seeley, were found dead in a bathroom of their home in the fashionable Capital Hill district.

The victims have been dead since last Thursday. The women, each of whom was clad in a night robe, had been murdered by being struck on the head, evidently with a hammer.

There was no mark of violence on Seeley. He is believed to have been partially chloroformed and then drowned in the bathtub. All three were kneeling at the side of the bathtub with their heads submerged in the water. A steamer trunk was on the bodies of Seeley and his wife.

That Seeley killed his wife and daughter while insane over financial worries and then committed suicide is the theory of the coroner and the police. He was clothed in his underwear, shoes and trousers. His night gown was bloodstained from the bodies of the two women, and was found beneath a clean pillow in the room occupied by him and his wife.

The pillow on which Mrs. Seeley had been sleeping was saturated with blood.

Detectives searched the house for weapons, but were unable to find any bloodstained implements.

FREE CONCERT.

Hungarian Numbers Are Featured at Twelfth Masonic Program.

A fine program of organ music pleased the audience at the twelfth concert given by the Scottish Rite Masons at the Masonic temple yesterday afternoon.

The lecture of A. F. M. Custance, explanatory of the music, interested them and the rendition of the vocal selection by Walter B. Smith delighted them.

The selections of the first part of the program were Hungarian, consisting of the well known Second "Rhapsodie" by Liszt, and a typical folk song and the celebrated Csardas dance for the organ which brought out the frenzied, whirling, strains in fine style. Mr. Smith sang Hadyns "Austrian National Anthem," and a Hungarian song by a composer of that nationality, which depicted the characteristics of the people very pronounced. As an encore Mr. Smith gave is German, a folk song called "Lebewohl." The fourth number, sung in German, "Die Beiden Grenadieren," gave Mr. Smith an opportunity to show the excellence and strength of his rich tenor voice, especially in the upper registers, and to the vigorous encore he gave "Der Lenz," another German song by Hildach.

The rest of the numbers were for the organ and consisted of selections from the fourth portion of the Niebelungen Ring of Wagner, "Gotterdammerung." This was one of the finest selections of the series, and its beautiful combinations of sounds and expressive chords thrilled the audience, even those who did not thoroughly understand the meaning.

The "andante con moto," from Beethovens' "Fifth Symphony," marked the commencement of a series of selections from that great composer. The program was brought to a close by Carters "Commondery" march, in which "Onward, Christian Soldiers," figures as the leading motive, and the ever popular, brilliant and tuneful overture from Suppe's "Pique Dame."

For the next Sunday the music will be that of Latin America, introducing Mexican, Porto Rican and Filipino folk songs, with the probable addition of a Chinese "lack of melody." Charles Helmer, the cornetist, will be the soloist, and on the Sunday following that the music will be Norwegian with the Normanna Singing society taking charge of the vocal numbers.

CLUB WOMEN

Urged to Adopt Interests As a Profession.

The last admonition of Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker to her followers among the club women, when she was president of the general federation, was for them to became professional club women. Her special pleas and directions may be read with profit by every woman. Condensed, her suggestions are as follows:

Art—Are there any public art works or possible opportunities of teaching genuine art to the children of your state?

Civics—Have you parks and public grounds in every city and large town? How about sanitation? Are any measures taken to prevent tuberculosis?

Education—How many illiterates in your state? How about a compulsory law, truant laws, proper schoolhouses, women on school boards, etc.? What is the condition of your rural schools?

Forestry—Is your state losing its trees?

Household Economics—Make work at home a science to be studied and loved, instead of drudgery to be dreaded. Spread abroad the doctrine of good homemaking through kitchen gardens, individual teaching and cooking schools for the many who have no opportunities.

Industrial and child labor—How many child workers are there in your state? What laws prevail? How are your workig women paid and cared for? What special work is needed in your state along these lines?

Legislative—Work for human and just legislation, indorsing very few measures and bending all energies to the enforcement of laws.

Library extension—How many free libraries have you? How many are needed for proper progress in intellectual growth? How many lonely people have you who are without means of obtaining the simplest reading matter?

Literature—Make your programs fine and harmonious. Give genuine study, not only to the literature of our own language, but to that of foreign countries, so that we may rank with educated women of other lands.

Pure food—For the sake of our children and children's children, and for the saving of the race, this subject should be of vital interest.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE

That of Being Called Rudely From Sound Sleep.

There can be no hard and fast rules set for the length of time one should sleep. All depends on the person and temperament, says an exchange.

We are told that brain workers and those of a nervous nature need more sleep than others, yet some of the greatest thinkers in the world sleep only four or five hours a night, with no ill effects.

A good rule to follow is to sleep until one awakes refreshed, whether that is in five hours or ten.

If possible, do not be called. This is particularly important for growing children. Some parents make a fetish of early hours for their children, and think so much of getting them out of lazy habits that they do not consider their nervous systems.

Even when you must go to work at an early hour, do not train yourself to depend on alarm, which gives a shock to the nervous system. Go to bed with the fixed idea in your brain to awaken at a certain hour, and it rarely fails that your eyes pop open at that minute.

It is well to sleep until refreshed, but it is not restful to indulge in the habit of turning over for another nap.

ABOUT JEWELS.

Instinctive Good Taste Will Dictate Their Use.

It takes instinctive good taste to know when jewelry is allowable and in good form. Very often, however, women knowing perfectly well that they are violating the laws of good taste, persist in the promiscuous wearing of jewels at all time of the day, says an exchange.

Jewels, excepting rings, should never be worn except when the costume is at least semi-dressy. Necklaces and bracelets are most distinctly out of place with a strictly tailored gown, although rings are allowable.

It is conservative to say that ornaments should never be worn before 12 o'clock midday, and it is better to avoid them until after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. One bangle, or several plain ones, a few rings and a watch chain, may be worn at any time, no matter how early the hour.

Just as men always wait until after 6 before wearing evening dress, just as no one would ever wear a watch with a ball gown, these little laws of fastidious fashion are quite universally obeyed.

Girls before 18 should never wear precious stones unless it be one handsome ring. When school days are over and long skirts are adopted, they may wear what jewels they see fit, providing they do not deck themselves in a conspicuous way.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Parsnips, 40 cents a peck.
Beans, 7 cents a lb.
Pork, 17 cents a lb.
Beef stew, 8 to 12½ cents a lb.
Lamb, 8 to 15 cents a lb.
Veal, about the same.
Ox tails, 8 cents each for a yard length.

It's so discouraging ordering groceries. You order a pound of coffee, a pound of butter, and a dozen of eggs, and, bang! there's a dollar gone. Nothing left of it, not even car fare home. The endeavor was honestly made to find something reasonable, cheap and desirable and palatable, that everybody might like. Stew and parsnips are it, and after economizing on the first course of dinner that way, of course, one could afford to splurge a little at the end, and finish with expensive cheese and bar le duc currants. And by that time, of course, the average cost of the meal is about the same.

How much money one could save if one didn't have to eat. Which original thought has been probably thought many times before by the men who make the money, and the women who try to make said money go three times as far as it will.

THE EVENING STORY

A PETITION

By Kit Dealtry.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

I am not mad. Why will they not let me die?

Twenty-four hours ago they brought me here from the prison and shut me up within four padded walls, because they believe that I am insane. I was tried for murder and found guilty, though I made no secret of the crime from the first, because I wished to die. And then they brought me here.

But you will see that I am not mad when you hear my story, and you can judge then whether they have any right in keeping me here.

I killed this man because, through him, she, my angel, died—she who had trusted him with the gift of her beautiful young life.

It was six months ago when these eyes were blessed with the sight of her, my angel lady. It was in June, and she came with him into the restaurant where I served.

Before that night the restaurant had seemed a poor, tawdry place to me, but all in a moment she transformed it into something quite different.

I hastened to wait on her, and busied myself at the table while he looked the bill of fare through.

How sweet and fair she was—and so young! There was a broad, bright wedding ring on her finger, yet she looked like a little child. He was older—years older, and his face was stern and cruel. I knew from the first that he was cruel. I knew it from the instant he pushed over the bill of fare to her and asked her what she would have to eat.

And when she answered—ah! what a frightened little voice!—that it should be as he wished, he frowned and said something that brought the tears to her dear eyes.

I hated him then, and the blood began to boil in my veins. I wanted to strike him for being cruel to the poor, pale little girl. But I was only a waiter—a foreign waiter—and I fought down my feelings and hastened to get the dishes he had ordered.

After he had eaten a little, he was kinder to her, and then she smiled. So beautiful was she when she smiled that I could hardly take my eyes off her, and once she laughed. Then the whole place seemed to ring with music. It was a dream—her laugh. It sang in my ears I thought of it all night long. I lay awake in my little attic room and pictured her face. It seemed to shine out in the darkness like a star. For her I could have died. For her I wish to die now.

She came again next night. They sat at the same table as before, and as she took her chair I helped her to take off her cloak. She was dressed in white, and there were violets at her throat. The scent of them made me dizzy. I wanted to take them from her and crush them against my lips because they had touched her throat. But I was only a common waiter, and I had my duty to do.

I handed her the bill of fare. She looked up at me and tried to thank me in my own tongue. He took it from her and told her roughly not to be stupid, and her little face clouded over. I felt like striking him then, but I set my teeth and waited.

Presently she was laughing again. It was so easy to make her happy—so easy, yet he was ever cruel to her. And why? Because he was cruel? cruel, and he was not fit to breathe the same air with her.

That night as she left, the violets fell from her, and I placed them next my heart.

Every night they came, and I grew accustomed to watch for her. I grew to worship her. Day and night, I thought only of her. I would have given all the rest of my life to hold her in my arms for one hour. But no one knew, no one guessed. I was only a common waiter, and she was a lady—an angel come down to earth. But her violets were always next my heart.

I am not mad or wicked, I have done what men call murder, but shall I be punished by him who knows? Shall I not find pardon for killing the man who took her life?

Week after week went by, and always she came; and always he was cruel to her. Now he ceased to bring one smile to her dear lips. She was perfect in her loveliness, but daily she grew quieter and sadder. It was his fault—he who had robbed her of her smiles, and me of the music of my soul.

Slowly, slowly, there grew within me the desire to avenge her. I wanted to take that dark cloud from her life, to give her back her freedom and her youth again. Why had she trusted the jewel of her life to so hard, so cruel a man!

Sadder and paler she grew, and then one night he came, alone.

I gave him the bill of fare. I asked after the signora. He answered, curtly, the signora was sick.

I could not speak. The signora was sick—sick perhaps—ah! God, perhaps she would never be well again. I wanted to reach out my hand and strike him down, dog that he was! I thirsted to cry out to the world: "It is he who has made her sick, he who has taken the sunshine from her life!" But I was only a common waiter, and I dared not speak.

He ordered his dinner. The dishes were luxurious; he took wine, also liqueur and coffee. On the preceding night, she had asked for a liqueur, but he had refused. Liqueurs were only for the wealthy, he had said. But tonight he was alone, and he was dining as he never had dined with her.

All that night through the next day, I was tortured with fear. I imagined her lying in her little white bed, moaning in pain; and I thought of him dining there in the restaurant in luxury while she lay suffering alone at home.

And when the evening came and brought him again alone, I was cold with the dread that had come over me. What if I were never more to behaold her? What if she were to die?

I dared not inquire how she was. I was afraid that my lips would utter more than the question, afraid that my hands would seize hold on him and shake him for the dog that he was.

He ordered champagne with his dinner that night. I clenched my fists. How dared he sit there and drink wine while she lay in pain at home? His place was at her side. She had given him her dear young life to cherish and love—and he sat there drinking.

When he left the restaurant, I followed him. To a variety theater, to a supper room late in the night, I followed him like a hound at his heels. But he did not guess. I followed him home to his apartment in One Hundred and Fortieth street, and waited as he unlocked the door. It was then 4 o'clock in the morning—and all those hours she had been lying in pain alone.

Up and down the street I walked till daylight came. Then I found the woman who tended to the rooms, and paid her to tell me all she knew. Yes, the poor little lady was very sick, and the husband was a brute. She did not think the lady would live.

I did not go back to my work. I did not leave the street, but paced up and down outside her rooms, aching in heart and tortured in brain.

When the sun went down that evening, I learned that she was dead. She had died in her sleep—alone.

A great calm came over me. I walked steadily and quietly back to the restaurant. I had not eaten for over twelve hours—I had not slept. But I was neither tired nor hungry. I was only cold.

I was questioned. Why had I not come to my work all day? I answered that my wife was ill—that I had waited for the end. They believed me, and said no more.

"He had no wife," they said at the trial. "It is another proof that he is mad!" But they were wrong. She was my wife—the wife of my soul, the only wife I could ever know. She was my wife, and he had murdered her.

I waited for him. I knew that he would come, even though she lay there at home, white and cold and still. And when he sat down, I looked at him steadily as he glanced through the bill of fare. I was not mad. When he gave me the order, I went to fetch it, just as I had always done before.

It was a dinner fit for a duke. I remember every detail of it, and ah! how he enjoyed it! For the delight he took in that meal, it might have been his wedding dinner, and she his bride there opposite him.

I waited till he had finished. I watched him drain the last drop of the green liquer. I saw him fumble for the coins with which to pay his bill. I was quite calm, quite cold. Only, against my heart was the faded bunch of violets which she had worn at her throat, and they were burning, burning, till the agony grew too great to bear.

And in my pain, I seized a knife from the table and plunged it in his neck. He fell forward with a groan. People rushed about us, and some clutched my arm. But I only laughed—laughed with sheer joy that he had died like the dog he was!

Let me go to her. I am not mad. Let me die.

FIGHT FURIOUS FOR PROHIBITION

Anti-Liquor Forces in Tennessee to Build Schoolhouse.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 18.—By a peculiar coincidence, the Cooper murder trial, which was caused indirectly by the Prohibition question, comes up for hearing just as the fight for statewide Prohibition is at its height. The Red Ribbon forcers, by breaking the Democratic caucus, forced a state wide bill through the legislature and it now awaits the governor's action. The Prohibitionists are now trying to pass another bill prohibiting the manufacture of alcoholic, malt or vinuous liquors in the state of Tennessee. The measure known as the state-wide law simply prohibits the sale of liquor within four miles of any schoolhouse. The Prohibitionists say that if there is a spot in the state which is not within four miles of a schoolhouse, they will see that a schoolhouse is built.

SCHOONER SINKS WITH HER CREW

Lumber Laden Swallow Lost Off Long Island Shore.

New York, Jan. 18.—In the biting, driving snowstorm of early Sunday morning off the Long Island shore, another vessel, the schooner the Swallow of St. Johns, N. F., and her crew were buried beneath the great sea waves.

The story of the wreck was told by the sea itself, as it strewed the beach east of Fire Island for several miles with bits of wreckage from the ship itself and her cargo. Of the crew, probably five or six men, judging from the schooner's size, there was no trace.

At 2 a. m. a beach man from the Blue Point life-saving station saw some black objects bobbing about in the tumbling surf close to shore. He hauled some of them in, and finding that it was new wreckage, hurried back to his station to report and to secure aid. Other beach men soon were on the scene. There were timbers, new lumber, frozen herring and fishing tackle, and finally they came to a sign board which told the unfortunate vessel's name.

The life-savers stood by and patrolled the beach all day in the hope that they might find some trace of the crew, but nightfall came and their quest had been vain.

It is supposed that the Swallow, presumably a fisherman, was bound from New Foundland to New York with a cargo of frozen herring, and that she carried a deckload of lumber.

THIRTY IROQUOIS CASES SETTLED

Man Who Lost Family in Theater Fire Gets $3,000.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—After five years of hotly contested litigation, settlement has been made in the cases of thirty deaths caused by the Iroquois theater fire.

It is said $750 a case is to be paid by one of the firms responsible for the construction of the theater, the prosecutions against the companies in these cases having been withdrawn from court.

In one instance a man who lost his wife and three children in the fire received $750 for each death.

Many other suits against firms and individuals interested in the work are still pending. The number of unsettled cases is estimated at over 400.

PULPIT AND PLATFORM

REPLIES TO AGNOSTICS

If Man Made God, Christian Life Is Lie, Says Dr. John.

Finite Has No Power to Judge Infinite, He Contends.

Replying particularly to the agnostic contentions of Robert Ingersoll and generally to all agnostics, who doubt the infinite nature of God and attack the Bible as a work without divine inspiration, Dr. John P. D. John, former president of De Pauw university, delivered a strong address at the Sunday afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A yesterday.

"If man made God, the inequalities of life will never be made equal, the soul will cease to be in the act of beginning, faith will disappear, hope will wither, love will die, and and man will rot forever in the grave," he said in defense of the Christian beliefs of man.

Dr. John's subject was "Did Man Make God or Did God Make Man?" and the two questions ran all through his discussion, "Is the character of God repugnant to the Twentieth Century Conscience?" and "Is Belief in the Revelations of the Bible Consistent With Twentieth Century Intelligence?"

Dr. John took the agnostics to task for attempting to judge the infinite when they were not able even to judge the finite. A man cannot even judge the motives of man in all his acts and it is not for a man to judge the motives of the Almighty. "Life is a gift of God in trust," he said, "and God has a right to ask its surrender at any time. There is no justification for the charge that God is unmerciful, unjust and partial in his treatment of humanity.

"The fires of hell in the life to come are kindled by sowing and reaping, and they exist only because sin exists," said Dr. John. "Sin and suffering are inseparably connected, and as man is responsible for sin, so shall he account to himself for his suffering through it."

Dr. John ridiculed the idea that the Bible and science are inconsistent. Science has made mistakes, he said. Though the Bible might be inconsistent with some hypothesis of science, it is not inconsistent with discoveries of science, and discoveries tomorrow may uphold the Bible in respects in which it may appear inconsistent with science today. He said science has no right to charge miracles with being fraudulent and unscientific. Miracles are insignificant compared with the miracle of the universe, with which science is concerned, he said. Whatever may have been the origin of life, it was miraculous.

The doctrine of self-sacrifice, as taught by Christianity is not impossible in this day and age, any more than it was during the early Christian ages, said Dr. John. If the world had exercised self-sacrifice in the beginning of this century, the social evils, which now beset the world, would disappear. He called attention to the great increase in the number of Christians in the world, and said that there will be war on earth as long as right and wrong exist, and Christianity is on the side of right.

"If there were no God other than that made by man," said Dr. John in closing, "there wouldd be no future for man or the race, no decree of emancipation for nobility suffering under injustice, no undoing of oppression, no restoration of the wrecks of hope, and no resurrection of spirit to eternal life. The impulse of the soul looking toward immortality would have no significance, and the slow preparation of the earth for man no meaning. But if we have had our origin in God, we shall return to Him. If God has taken infinite pains to bring us here, He will not desert us, and we may look forward to an infinite extension of the soul's experience, and to an eternal existence with Him."

THE "EVER WOMANLY."

Force Which Will Ultimately Bring Kingdom of God to Earth.

"Civilization is ceasing to be merely the expression of man's ambitions and struggles," said Rev. George R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday. "Gradually the spiritual side of man is coming to its rights. I know of no better word by which to designate this new force in humanity than Goethe coined, when he speaks of the 'ever womanly.' It is not merely a sentiment of love; it means an attitude of mind, a temper of soul, an atmosphere of regard for man as man, which is 'womanly' in its essence. It is that force which makes the most womanly woman in spite of her yielding, the master of man, the ruler of the home.

"Woman embodies that higher all inclusive love to which all else must bend if individual or nation would rise to highest culture.

"But though the 'ever-womanly' is in all its richness in the heart of woman, it is also in the soul of man, for man shares in the nature of woman. And it is to man that we owe its most glorious proclamation in word and in deed. The Son of Mary raised high the standard of the 'ever-womanly;' he put it above nation and race.

"It is the spirit of the 'ever-womanly' which today reaches hands across the sea to comfort the afflicted in Sicily; it turns the nations' warships into vessels freighted with love flying proudly the flag of humanity on its mast. It is the spirit of the 'ever-womanly' which has brought about the international tribunal of peace at The Hague. It is this spirit which will sooner or later do away with capital punishment and turn penitentiaries into moral hospitals. It is this spirit which even remembers that the beast in the field and the bird in the air are our kin and shields them from ruthless destruction.

"When this spirit will completely fill the world, completely possess the hearts of man, then the kingdom of God will be among men."

WILL CONSIDER PLANS.

Those Interested in Forming Symphony Orchestra Will Meet.

At a meeting to be called some time during the present week of those interested in the forming of a Duluth symphony orchestra, it is believed that definite plans will be completed.

T. W. Hugo, who is greatly interested in the project, will call the meeting. At the present time Mr. Hugo is arousing interest in the movement among the business men of the city. If the Duluth musicians of all classes are solidly behind the movement to form the orchestra, and if the business men and others interested in the formation of the orchestra, will come to its aid with financial support, there will be nothing to stand in the way of Duluth having the orchestra.

St. Paul annd Minneapolis give $75,000 annually in support of their symphony orchestra, and these cities have found that these organizations are valuable to the cities, not only from a musical educational standpoint, but also as a means of entertainment well within the reach of the people.

KILLED WHEN HE ATTEMPTS TO GIVE CASH TO ROBBER

Union, Iowa, Jan. 18.—While getting money to hand to a robber, L. Trimball, a restaurant keeper, was shot twice through the head and instantly killed. Mr. Trimball had been counting his cash when a pistol was thrust into his face by an unknown man, who demanded money. Trimball gave up his silver and was about to hand over his bills when the robber, thinking Trimball was reaching for his revolver, fired the fatal shots. A posse is searching for the murderer.

LURED BY WOLVES INTO DENSE WOOD

Homesteader Is Lost During Bitter Cold, Both Legs Frozen.

Spooner, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Olson, a homesteader located on the Rapid river, suffered the loss of his two feet, which had to be amputated above the instep, because of being frozen. Olson left his claim shanty on the look out for wolves during Christmas as the animals had been howling around his shanty nights. He followed tracks leading into the dense forest and he kept on going until he lost his bearings and wandered three days and four nights. When he was found by some homesteaders he was exhausted from hunger and cold.

FLAMES IN BOSTON DESTROY AUTOMOBILES.

Boston, Jan. 18.—A puff of flame shot up from the rear of the most extensive automobile storage and repair plant in the city, located near Park square, yesterday, and half an hour later over 348 automobiles, valued at $750,000, were a mass of tangled steel and iron. The damage to the building will bring the total loss to above $500,000.

All the large sightseeing automobiles in the city, numbering upwards of a dozen, were burned, as also were between thirty and forty expensive cars of the limousine type. Out of the 350 automobiles stored in the building, only two were saved. The twenty workmen in the building managed to get aawy safely, although several had narrow escapes.

ARKANSAS WRECK CAUSES DEATH OF A FIREMAN.

Little Rock, Jan. 18.—Rock Island passenger train No 43, westbound, from Memphis to El Reno, Okla., ran into an open switch and crashed into a switch engine, killing the fireman of the swith engine, J. M. Woods of Argenta, and partly demolishing the engines yesterday. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train jumped before the crash. Both were hurt but not seriousiy.

HOPKINS LIKELY TO LOSE SENATORSHIP.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—The general opinion is that Senator Albert J. Hopkins will not receive a majority of the votes in the house tomorrow, and that the election will be thrown into joint sessions, where there are chances for the final election of another candidate.

Among others who have been spoken of as for the candidates for senatorial honors are Congressman W. B. McKinley, Congressman William Lorimer, Former Governor Richard Lates, Lieut. Governor L. Y. Sherman and Frank O. Lowden.

RED TAPE WAIVED IN QUAKE RELIEF PLANS.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Secretary of the Navy Newberry was at his desk yesterday completing the administration program for sending to Italy building material for the construction of a large number of small houses to shelter earthquake sufferers.

All red tape has been waived so that all vessels may be sent out at the earliest possible moment, with loads of material. The first to be loaded will be the Eva. It is estimated that she will hold enough material for about 500 houses.

In addition to the Eva, four or five other vessels will be chartered, as the government intends to send enough material for from 2,500 to 3,000 houses.

James Edmund Dunning, American consul at Milan, who arrived in this city yesterday, declared that the calamity is knitting Italy closer together than the various parts of the kingdom have been for years.

SEEKING SON'S SLAYER.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. J. Albring of Spokane has arrived in Grand Forks to look for a man named Cook, who is believed to be the slayer of Albring's son. Cook had been corresponding with a girl employed in a Grand Forks laundry and it was said last night that he had been traced to Grand Forks. A reward of $1,000 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the accused.

BURGLARS ARE ACTIVE AGAIN

Office of Brewing Company Broken Into---Safe Attacked.

The G. Heileman Brewing company's office was broken into Saturday night and the vault tampered with. It stood the sledge hammer test, however, and the would-be burglars got nothing.

The same methods were employed, as were used at a number of places last week, in different parts of the city. A sledge hammer was used and the vault nearly battered down, but it held. Even though they had been successful in gaining entrance to the vault, they would have fared no better, for the funds had been removed Saturday at noon and placed in the bank.

That an organized band of robbers is working in the city is now the belief of the police and every means is being employed to round them up.

GOVERNMENT'S ACTION IN NEW YORK WORLD'S CASE TEMPORARILLY CHECKED

brother-in-law, in criticisms of the canal purchase.

The proceedings were halted by an order obtained by counsel for the World's editors, calling upon Mr. Stimson to show cause why the subpoenas should not be quashed.

Brief argument was heard by United States Circuit Judge Henry G. Ward today on the motion to quash the subpoenas after which an adjournment was taken until 4 this afternoon.

Argument by Bowers.

John M. Bowers of counsel for McLaughlin and Shaw, argued that the form of the subpoena was illegal inasmuch as the following concluding words of the subpoena: "In a certain cause now pending and undetermined in this said court between the United States—" were crossed out making the subpoena read to "certify to what they may know generally."

Mr. Bowers held that the subpoena was illegal inasmuch as it did not state the nature of the inquiry or the person accused and that the proceeding was an abuse of process.

District Attorney Stimson, speaking for the United States, argued that the form of the subpoena had been used in practice in this district for fifty years and was recognized by the United States. Mr. Stimson said:

"The same situation arises in a corporate examination to find out who is responsible. It is often impossible to find out who is responsible in a corporation. How can we name the man accused until we know who is to be indicted?"

Judge Interrupts.

Judge Ward interrupted to say that this was a case of practice and that no one should be given an opportunity to bring a man before a grand jury and rake him over about his affairs to make him appear a criminal.

William Nelson Cromwell, who is mentioned as a possible complainant in the proceedings, has returned to New York, from Washington. All attempts to see him failed.

DULUTH GRAIN SYSTEM PRAISED BY GOVERNOR

Canada and Great Britain. Our state, therefore, should take a leading part in the present movement for waterway development and set an example of prompt and vigorous action will command the attention and elicit the co-operation of the other states and the national government.

Should Bar Prejudice.

"The benefits to follow the building of this great way and the development of water power incident to its construction of such a momentous character that the interest of the people demand the laying aside of all differences, bias or prejudice on the part of the members of the general assembly in an effort to frame a law under which the work can proceed with celerity, while affording the amplest guaranty of the honest and efficient conduct of the enterprise."

On grain inspection, the governor said:

"From 1871 when our state, for the first time in this or any other country assumed control of the classification into standard grades of the grain arriving at the principal primary markets within the states, the work of the grain inspection department has been carried on with hardly any change until within the last two years. Up to that time, it was the custom to inspect the grain in the cars on the track. This method, which left the determination of the grade of the grain to a single inspector, subject to an appeal involving delay, has, especially in recent years, proved unsatisfactory. The essential elements of satisfactory grain inspection are uniformity and accuracy. Under the old system, neither uniformitly nor accuracy could be obtained.

"To remedy the defect of the old system the department, about two years ago, began an investigation of the systems of inspecting grain in Minneapolis, Duluth and Buffalo, where modern and progressive systems of grain inspection had been adopted with great success. Under the system thereafter adopted by the Illinois grain inspection department, grain is no longer inspected on the track, but all of the grain received from the twenty-three railroads engaged in the Chicago grain carrying trade is inspected at a central point by three expert inspectors who pass judgment on representative samples drawn from the cars by experienced grain examiners.

Met With Approval.

"The new system has met with the approval of both shippers and grain dealers as well as of the railroads, because of the fairness, promptness and cause of the finality of its inspectors which have done away with delays in unloading and releasing cars arising from appeals taken from former unsatisfaction inspections.

The business of grain inspection is steadily increasing. During the period of 1901-04 there were inspected at the Chicago grain inspection office, 805,395,470 bushels while during the period 1905-08 there were inspected 996,693,477 bushels; an increase of 191,298,007 bushels. Along with the great increase in business has gone on a steady improvement in accuracy and uniformity of inspections. Under the old system the reinspection of 300 to 400 cars per month was necessary while at present the average number of reinspections has been reduced to fifty per month."

A NEW SHORT LINE FROM DULUTH TO WINNIPEG

the making of rates to Duluth the same as to Port Arthur, have brought the Soo and Canadian Northern roads to Duluth, with their extensions in the United States, much sooner than intended or expected. The acquisition of the Wisconsin Central by the Soo railway is the most important move ever made in the Northwest for the benefit of Duluth. It must result in a new short line being built from Duluth to Winnipeg. With three great lines from Duluth through the Canadian Northwest, it seems the territory for all time. Trade lines will prove stronger than boundary lines. All future railroads of Canada will not be complete without a line to Duluth. It is logical, and what we have all dreamed would come true some time, but is now a fact. Railroad activity, with Duluth as a center, is certain for several years. You can thank Mr. Hill for it all."

To Shorten Line.

A Milwaukee dispatch says: Six million dollars will be expended by the Canadian Pacific railway in the construction of a new Wisconsin Central cutoff on the route between Minneapolis and Chicago. This announcement, made authoritatively today, is the first concerning plans for the improvement of the Wisconsin Central property acquired Friday by the Soo and Canadian Pacific interests.

It is intended to make the new line of the Central one of the shortest between the Twin Cities and Chicago, instead of the longest, as it is at present. The construction of the proposed cutoff will be one of the most important railway projects to be undertaken in Wisconsin the approaching summer. The line will be an extension of the Stevens Point-Portage division to a point on the present Chicago line, probably striking the old main line at Burlington in Racine county. It will be about 140 miles long.

Surveys for the new road have been made. They call for a line extending from Portage, in Columbia county, in a southeasterly direction across the northern corner of Dane county, touching Dodge county at the southwestern corner, passing diagonally across Jefferson county, southeast and northwest, cutting the northeast corner of Walworth county and into Racine county. At Burlington it will encounter the present main line of the Wisconsin Central. Several important towns will be touched by the proposed new road. It will pass through Waterloo, Jefferson, Palmyra and many smaller places.

The Wisconsin Central has labored under a disadvantage in bidding for business for the far Northwest, in that its line between Chicago and Minneapolis is longer than the lines of competing companies.

Before Buying a Heater

Please Note the Flue Contruction and Increased Heating Capacity of the Universal.

This cut, illustrating a sectional view of the back of the Universal, shows how the heat travels down the two descending flues around both sides of the bottom of the stove to the extreme front, there uniting and returning through the center bottom flue and up to the ascending back flue, thus being equally distributed over the entire back and bottom, and giving more direct radiation than any other base burner made.

In purchasing a stove, don't let anybody talk you into believing that they can sell you a heater giving as much radiating surface and as great economy of fuel as the UNIVERSAL, for there is no stove made that does it.

Come in and let us explain to you the various exclusive advantages of the Universal over other stoves, any of which should be of greater consideration to the prudent stove buyer than the mere matter of price. But during our GREAT JANUARY CLEARANCE IN ALL LINES

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO BOOST THE ART OF THE ARCHITECT

Washington, Jan. 18.—Quick to appreciate the plea that the fine arts have been denied that governmental consideration accorded by other nations, as suggested by the American Institute of Architects, President Roosevelt has taken the first step looking to their recognition by this government.

As the initial move, in response to a request from the institute, the president announces he has asked the institute to designate the names of thirty men representing all parts of the country, to compose a council of the fine arts. The object of the council, which is to consist of architects, painters, sculptors, landscape artists and laymen, of which the supervising architect of the treasury is to be the executive head, is to advise upon the character and design of all public works of architecture, paintings and sculpture; all monuments, parks, bridges and other works of which the art of design forms an integral part, and to make suggestions and recommendations for the conservation of all historic monuments.

Approval is given by Roosevelt to the recommendations of the Institute of Architects. The president says he will direct members of his cabinet to refer to the proposed council of fine arts for their expert advice on all matters in their charge embracing architecture, selection of sights and landscape work, sculpture and painting. "Moreover," declares the president, "I shall request the council to watch legislation and on its own initiative to make recommendations to the executive and congress with regard to proposed changes in existing monuments, or with regard to any new project I earnestly advise your body to take immediate steps to secure the enactment of a law giving permanent effect to what I am directing to be done. The course you advocate and which I approve, should not be permissive with the executive; it should be made mandatory upon him by act of congress."

BECLOUDING THE ISSUE.

The fury into which the house of representatives has lashed itself and the ridicule and recrimination which have accompanied the discussion of that section of the president's message relating to the secret service have completely obscured the real facts in the case as well as th vital matter of the president's recommendation. A very brief investigation will show what the facts in the case are.

The portion of the message to which the house of representatives objects and which it has finally refused to spread upon its records is as follows, and refers to the action of congress at the preceding session in providing that the secret service shall confine its work to the detection of counterfeiters:

> It is not too much to say that this amendment has been of benefit only, and could be of benefit only, to the criminal classes.
> The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret-service men.
> But, if this is not considered desirable [the repeal of the law] a special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the secret-service force in investigating members of congress. It would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done and strive to prevent or at least to hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the government.

So touched in its honor was the house by these statements that it immediately demanded of the president proof of his assertion that "the chief argument in favor of the provision was that congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men." The president replied in a special message and said that his evidence was contained in the Congressional Record for May 1, pages 5553 to 5560. A reading of these pages shows that the arguments advanced in favor of limiting the sphere of activity of the secret service were just what the president said they were—that congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated. In these pages Mr. Sherley states that "the private conduct" of members of congress ought not to be investigated by the secret service, that the secret service should not investigate "member of congress," and that "the secret service was at one time used for the purpose of looking into the personal conduct of a member of congress."

If this is not proof positive of the president's statements it is difficult to conceive of the character of the evidence which would be proof.

So much for unessentials. Now as to the statement of the president that "It is not too much to say that this amendment (confining the work of the secret service to the detection of counterfeiters) has been of benefit only, and could be of benefit only, to the criminal classes." This statement has not yet been called in question by any member of the house of representatives or by any newspaper in the country so far as The Herald has been able to learn. It seems to be admitted without debate that the president's criticism is undeniably true.

If it is true, what is the congress going to do about it? Is it going to remedy the wrong it has done or is it going to continue its protection to the criminal classes? This is the only point in the whole business that really matters. The real issue has been beclouded and neglected by the silly clavering of the house about its honor. If the house will do its duty as it plainly sees it, its honor will need no defense whatever.

WHAT IS A MESSAGE FOR?

The length of Governor Johnson's message, some 30,000 words, has been generally remarked by the press of the state, and in some few instances with adverse criticism. The St. Paul Dispatch, in particular, has been quite grouchy about it and has been led, finally, to moralize at length upon the uselessness of the long message from the executive.

This gives rise to the thought, What real purpose does the executive message serve, what is its actual effect?

Primarily the executive message is supposed to inform the legislature of the recommendations for legislation made by the executive. The message has grown long because of the desire of the executive to set forth as fully as may be his reasons for his recommendations.

In actual fact the executive message fills quite another office in our scheme of government. It does not so much inform the legislature as the people. It is a digest of all the information which the various bureaus of the executive branch of the government have been able to gather from experience and investigation together with the deductions and recommendations of the various heads of these bureaus as sifted, tested and finally approved by the chief executive. It consists of the conclusions formulated from the study of many different minds dealing with the many different problems of government. The executive department of the government submits these conclusions in as readable form as possible, ostensibly to the legislature, actually to the people.

In the submission of the message the newspapers of the country play no small part. They print it, analyze it, present its recommendations in tabular form, emphasize its vital points, put a copy of it into every man's hand in a form which enables him to get quickly to its essential points and to study at greater length, if he so desires, the particular recommendations which appeal to him as the most vital. It is a storehouse of information, gathered by those most experienced in the things of which they speak, which may be easily referred to and which will furnish exact and reliable information concerning practically every question of government with which the public mind is then concerned.

In such form, so complete and so readily got at, the message provokes immediate and prolonged discussion, with the result that the people are informed and the recommendations of the executive are tested in the court of public opinion. Upon the final verdict of that court, as the legislature reads its decisions, laws are made.

The messages of the executive are not likely to grow shorter. The Dispatch suggests that it would be better to have the executive submit his recommendations briefly and baldly, without advancing any argument in their support, leaving all details to special reports to be presented from time to time by the different bureaus of the executive branch of the government. All the good effect of the executive message would be lost in this way. Instead of having the affairs of state considered at one time as a unified whole, we should be obliged to glean our information from many different sources and at many different times. Instead of exact information and wide discussion, the public would have but a hazy notion of public affairs and public interest and public discussion would languish.

Few people attempt the task of reading a message of 30,000 words, but under the present system, practically every one quickly informs himself of the actual needs of the government, the test of public opinion is applied to every policy of state and the legislature is enabled to act far more intelligently than it otherwise could.

REGISTER TOMORROW.

Two days remain in which to register for the general city election to be held Feb. 2, tomorrow and Saturday of this week.

Put not off until Saturday what you can do tomorrow. Get your name on the poll lists at once and then there will be no mistake about it.

There is only one thing wrong with American citizenship today and that is its neglect of the right of suffrage. If every man voted at every election there would be fewer things to find fault with in the government. The only way to set things right is for every man to take thought to do his duty, and to do it at the first opportunity. That's tomorrow.

It doesn't matter whether there are grave or minor issues at stake. Register anyhow. Vote every time the opportunity offers. A big registration and a big vote is notice to the people's servants that the people are taking an interest in their business. It means better government every time, no matter what the issues may be.

If a man is really interested in a thing he does not wait until the last moment to attend to it.

Register tomorrow!

SYMMETRICAL REFORM IMPOSSIBLE.

Reform has many crudities, many oddities, many vagaries. It is impossible that reform should be symmetrical, for it is achieved a little at a time and is made up of such portions of the truth mixed with error as we are able to wrench from buttressed habit and long established custom.

The results of reform are never entirely satisfactory for the reform is never complete, but we should not on that account reject it as a failure. The only real failure is our failure to make the reform complete in all its details. But the opponents of reform make the most of this opportunity and the attacks against reforms are always directed not against the reform in itself but against its limitations. Because the temple is not complete the whole building is condemned.

There is the primary election law, for instance. Very nearly everybody believes that the people should be given the largest possible voice in the management of their government and nearly every one concedes that the primary law does this. But the reform is most viciously attacked because it has not yet been made perfect. Those of us who have battled for primary law reform have been glad that we have wrested so much from entrenched bossism and we are pressing forward to attack its other strongholds. We admit that our assault has not been successful as yet at all points, but is that any reason for surrendering the ground we have gained?

The Roundhead who fought in the name of liberty and conscience in the days of the Stuarts proved in the end almost as intolerable a despot as the pleasure loving Cavalier. Reform sometimes carries its victory to unwarranted and oppressive lengths and so in a measure defeats itself. Minnesota is apparently finding this to be true with some of its railroad legislation. It has, for example, prohibited state officials from riding upon railroad passes and it has so unreservedly denied passes to public servants that their service, in some cases, has been materially interferred with. Louis Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, has been chosen chairman of the state highway commission, a position in which his services would be of peculiar value to the state, but it is possible that Mr. Hill will refuse to give his time and labor to the state because he might not then be able to ride upon his own railway and travel in his own private car without paying himself and the other stockholders of the Great Northern 2 cents a mile for the privilege. The delivery of mail in the big cities of the state has been greatly facilitated by an arrangement by which mail carriers paid a lump sum for yearly transportation. In making their regular delivery of mail they often boarded the street cars several times for short rides at various points on their route. Under the rigid provisions of the anti-pass law effective Jan. 1 of this year, the mail carriers must pay the usual fare for every time they board the street car. The result is that the additional expense compels them to walk and the delivery of mail is much retarded.

Reform is not completely accomplished in a single effort any more than Rome was built in a day. There were muddy streets in Rome while the city was building, building material lay about in piles and obstructed the way, the builder's scaffolding shut out the view and prevented temporarily the use to which the finished building was eventually put. Such things are the inevitable accompaniment of growth. Our reforms are clogged with the machinery of their making, they are more or less unfinished and some of them have not been builded well, but unfinished Rome was better to the people who lived in it than no Rome at all, and the progress we have made in our reforms is better to us than no reforms at all.

Is your name written on the poll lists?

Is the South just playing 'possum with Mr. Taft?

The Brownsville affair can't look any too black to suit Foraker.

Tillman and Foraker may not be able to ride ninety-eight miles in one day but they can talk forever.

Governor Johnson's message would not have been so long if he had left those good recommendations out.

Do not think that there will be plenty to vote even if your vote is not cast. If you would have a thing well done, "you must do it yourself, you must not leave it to others." Register tomorrow!

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The biggest dam in the world. A state that has a great future ahead of it."

These statements were made by Charles Wertz, a mining engineer, at the St. Louis Saturday evening. He was referring to the Roosevelt dam, upon the Salt river, near Phoenix, Ariz., and to the future of the state of Arizona.

"I know of no other state that has a greater future for the young man," said Mr. Wertz. "I will tell you why. In the first place the land in Arizona, some of it very cheap at the present time, is steadily increasing in value. Some day, and not in the far future either, thousands of acres of Arizona land will be made fertile and the value of this land will be more than trebled. The man who secures land at the present time will realize a handsome profit.

"The Roosevelt dam, which is under process of construction, only a few miles west of Phoenix, will revolutionize farming in that section of the country. Land that at the present time is about as fertile as a billiard table, will be turned into the most fertile soil in the entire country by the process of irrigation.

"The Roosevelt dam is one of the largest dams in the world. During the wet season, when the water in the Salt river is high, the water will be held by the dam and for miles the water in the river will be backed up and held in one of the greatest natural reservoirs in the world. Then during the dry season, when the Arizona ground looks like brown paper, the water of the reservoir will be let through the dam gates and the land for hundreds of miles will receive the advantages of this system of irrigation. This one great project alone is going to change the state of Arizona from an indifferent farming state into one of the great producing states of the West.

"The soil in sections of the country where the waters from the Salt river will irrigate, has never had its vitality drawn upon. Any product that is grown in the states further to the east can be grown in Arizona, under the irrigation scheme. They are growing wheat in Arizona at the present time. Are you aware of the fact that today Arizona oranges are bringing more upon the market than the Florida oranges? That is a fact, and the people who have eaten the Arizona oranges say they are the best tasting fruit they have ever eaten.

"Thousands of acres of land will be opened to the farmer. A young man who secures land there at this time will be assured of a profit. Before this Arizona has been chiefly known for its mineral deposits. My prediction is that in the future Arizona will be one of the best agricultural states in the West.

"As for the mines, this year promises to be a very good year in development and exploration. Eastern capital is being attracted to the state by the belief that in Arizona is one of the best investment fields in the world. You know that there are many mineral deposits in Arizona that have not been developed. There are many valuable properties that have lain idle during the past year. Lack of money was what prevented these mines from being developed. With the investment of Eastern capital, there promises to be a new period of activity in both the development of the mines and the exploration work, which has also been sadly neglected the past year.

"Taking verything into consideration, I know of no other place where the advantages are more attractive and promising to the settler or man who has a little money to invest, than out there in Arizona. It is only a question of time, anyway, when the arid lands of the Western states will be reclaimed."

Following out the suggestions of the men interested in dairying, who spoke at Virginia the week before last, the farmers in the vicinity of that little city have about come to the conclusion that a model creamery will be the best investment they can possibly make according to the statement of A. L. Westguard, who was at the St. Louis yesterday.

Mr. Westguard says the farmers will co-operate in the building of the creamery, and that it will be erected upon the most modern lines. The various farmers will hold stock in the creamery, and it will be run by some one who has a thorough knowledge of the darry business. The farmers around Virginia believe they can realize a handsome profit from their investment, according to Mr. Westguard.

As pointed out by Prof. T. L. Haecker, when he spoke to the farmers of Virginia, the milk there is in a very poor condition, and the move of the farmers is an effort to remedy the evil.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday and today, Duluth has enjoyed mild winter weather, and most of the people seem satisfied. As a matter of fact the weather was mild almost everywhere last night, the coldest temperature of all having been experienced at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where theremometers registered 10 degs. below zero. It was 10 degs. above zero in Duluth last night.

More mild weather is predicted, with snow flurries. It was sprin-like and war min Duluth a year ago today. The sun rose this morning at 7:48 and is scheduled to set at 4:50.

Mr. Richardson says the weather conditions:

"A bormetric depression of considerable strength is central over Saskachewan. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused much warmer weather throughout the Northwest, and rain or snow in the Pacific states, the Eastern lake region and the North Atlantic districts. A strong high pressure area overlies the lake region, attended by colder weather from Michigan eastward to and including the New England states and the St. Lawrence valley. Zero temperatures prevail in the northern portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan, Eastern Canada, Northeastern Michigan and Vermont. The easterly movement of the Saskatchewan storm will be attended by occasional snow flurries at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Tuesday, followed by falling temperature Tuesday afternoon and Tuesday night."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago Daily News: The upper ten never lives in the top flat.

A woman is never younger than she says she is.

No, Cordelia, all makers of crazy quilts are not lunatics.

The chicken-hearted man is sometimes inclined to crow.

The bigger a man is the less his wife is afraid of him.

Some girls flirt with homely men merely from force of habit.

It doesn't take very swift retribution to overtake some swift men.

A genius would be all right if his folks didn't expect so much of him.

Try to drown trouble and you'll discover that it has more lives than a cat.

It isn't the abuse that millionaires get that keeps most of us out of that class.

The easiest way to flatter a girl is to congratulate her on her prospective engagement.

It is a waste of time to grasp an opportunity unless you know what you are going to do with it.

When a young married woman has a friend come to spend a few days with her she is apt to call it a house party.

It may not cost any more to keep two than one, but the father of a marriageable girl cannot always see it in that light.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The only thing that can try a woman's patience more than being married is not being.

Most people are more concerned with keeping out of hell than with getting into heaven.

A woman is always proud to say she has a fashionable dressmaker especially if she hasn't.

The first time a man makes love he's afraid the girl won't believe him; ever afterward that she will.

Practically every man has a sneaking suspicion that there is something disgraceful in being useful.

Penrose, That's All.

Indianapolis News: We find, to our regret, that we have omitted saying anything about the re-election of Penrose as senator from Pennsylvania. But after all why say anything? What is there that can be said? Pennsylvania being what she is and Penrose being what he is why should the latter not represent the former in the senate of the United States? Of course it would be easy to say hard things about the new senator, and the state which has honored him. But what's the use? Pennsylvania knows Penrose and Penrose knows Pennsylvania, and there is a mutual pride in the mutual acquaintance. The state paraphrasing a well-known trade label, may proudly say: "Penrose, that's all." And that's all for us.

A Rare Day.

Petsburg Dispatch: What is so rare as a day in June? One without a presidential message to read.

Year's Astronomical Event.

New York Globe: The coming of Halley's comet will be the astronomical event of the heavens of 1909. For thirty-eight years it has been traveling toward us at the rate of 2,246,000 miles every day, and is now about 460,000,000 miles away. By the middle of May, 1910, it is expected to reach its perihelion—the nearest point it will reach—which will be about 65,000,000 miles away. Then it will turn back and travel out beyond the confines of the solar system, to reverse its course only after 3,000,000,000 miles of wandering has been undergone. It comes once every seventy-five years, but loses some of its brightness. Universe-trotting seems to put the stains of travel upon it.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Cannon Falls Beacon: This is a good time to change your mind on those subjects, on which you have for a long time known you were wrong, but were too stubborn to admit it.

Border Budget: In Germany a man's taxes are decreased as his family grows larger. In this country his taxes are decreased as his pile grows larger.

Coleraine Optic: If one wants a good lesson in self-control, let him try to save one hundred dollars out of his wages. The devil himself will conspire to make him spend it ere he gets half of it together.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: If everyone would do his best or her best, would be cheerful and courageous, the coming year would surely be a happy and prosperous one.

Red Wing Valley Republican: It is not the maker of New Year resolutions who should be ashamed, but the breaker of them. Abraham Lincoln at a slave market in New Orleans in 1831 saw sights that made him resolve "if ever I get a chance, I'll hit that traffic and I'll hit it hard." It was thirty years before his chance came, but he never forgot his resolutions, and the world looked on with awe and admiration as he "hit it hard."

Floodwood Broadaxe: Everybody knows how to fight a fire—to suit himself.

Itasca Iron News: There is a rumor that Governor Johnson has set his foot down on prizefighting, particular attention being paid to the range. The governor has probably heard how rotten some of the affairs held in this corner of the state are, and means no harm to the bonafide sport.

Aurora News: One of the greatest trials that a girl has to encounter when she marries, is that she has to discharge her mother and depend on a hired girl.

Le Sueur News: John Johnson of Minnesota achieved greatness, Tom Johnson of Ohio achieved fame, and Jack Johnson of Texas is the third of the name to secure a pedestal from which he will not fall rapidly.

Wabash Herald: Governor John A. Johnson was on Wednesday for the third time inaugurated as governor of Minnesota. This is an honor only held before by one previous governor. Governor Johnson is also the second Democratic governor to occupy that position, and a third term in a state strongly Republican is a fitting tribute to one of our best governors.

The New Canadian Treaty.

Cleveland Plaindealer: The general treaty just concluded between the United States and Canada, which now awaits formal confirmation by the senate at Washington and the government at London, is one of those stepping stones to better things, whose increasing frequency in recent years leads inevitably to hopes of universal peace. It is difficult even to imagine these countries engaging in war over comparative trifles like those concerned in the Root-Bryce treaty, yet disastrous conflicts have resulted from smaller differences than these. It is not, however, because the matters settled by this treaty ever threatened or ever would threaten hostilities that its conclusion is a matter for congratulation, but because of the universal spirit of conciliation which it emphasizes.

The United States and Canada are today the best of comrades, friendly rivals in the race for national greatness, but in no sense antagonistic. The dominion looks forward to years of greater happiness, strength and helpfulness, as the United States does, and each finds a sympathizer and example in the other.

Pugilistic Etiquette.

Boston Herald: Ought we to meet Jack Johnson? That is the question of etiquette now agitating pugilistic circles.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Punch: Kind Lady (at children's party)—Well, my little man, what are you going to be when you grow up?

Little Man)—Somefin' what don't wear a collar.

Judge: "What is the size of your large men's handkerchiefs?" asked the shopper.

"They are just the same size as the small men's handkerchiefs, madam," explains the affable salesperson. "The size of the man doesn't make any difference in his handkerchief."

New York Sun: Stella—Do you do your Christmas shopping early?

Bella—Of course, but I never buy till the last minute.

Chicago News: Gyer—Lightning recently struck a man in Kansas and cured him of dyspepsia.

Tactful Salesman—Certainly, madam. What shade does your friend wish?

Pick-Me-Up: Father—Do you mean to tell me you didn't say a word when that young man kissed you?

Daughter—Why, dad, how could I?

St. Louis Republic: Visitor—Is this lake in your garden artificial?

Child of the house—No, sir-ee. It's real. I fell in and got as wet as anything.

Tit-Bits: Did your ancestors have a family tree, Mr. Maguire?"

Houston Post: Why didn't he wait until New Year's to swear off?"

"The last time he came home swizzled his wife painted a snapping turtle red, white and blue and turned it loose in his room."

Boston Transcript: Young Mother—I'm sorry, Mr. Topfloor, if baby's crying annoyed you. He's been cutting his teeth.

Topfloor (a crusty bachelor)—That's it! The idea of letting a young child have a knife to play with!

The Secret Service Necessary.

St. Joseph News-Press: Much rot is being printed in the hysterical press anent the controversy between the president and congress over the secret service. "Are we to be Russianized?" "Are we to be subjected to the system that Napoleon employed?" The espionage on congressmen is an outrage upon American liberty." These are the usual forms of protest that greet the reader. Now these expressions do little credit to the good sense of those who utter them. The secret servic is fully as necessary to the government of the United States as is a detective force to the government of a municipality. Federal law reaches over the entire territory of the union and necessarily has to do with interests far greater than those of a city or state. Crimes against it are likely to be of great magnitude and the criminals of the more astute and daring kind. It would seem, therefore, that to limit the activities of the government detectives to a single department is, as the president has tersely said, of benefit to the criminal classes only. Certainly such a course is prejudicial to the interests of the nation at large, inasmuch as it hampers the authorities in their efforts to ferret out those who have violated federal law. Congress cannot prescribe who shall and who shall not be investigated or "shadowed." All that congress can do, is to provide the means for making the secret service perfect.

In a Secure Position.

New York Times: The present governor of the state can afford to be suave. He is in an exceedingly secure position, and he won it by precisely the course he points out, in the exercise of his "privilege to justify his position to the people, to whom he is accountable." He appealed to the people over the heads of a hostile legislature, and his victory was notable.

Standard Unperturbed.

Pittsburg Dispatch: That difficulty about finding a judge to retry the Standard Oil case at Chicago is endured by that corporation with its usual calm philosophy. If the case should never be tried again, it will smile and make the best of it.

STREET IS TOO NARROW

Big Obstacle to Plan to Move the County Jail.

Building is Four Feet Wider Than Third Street.

The question of providing a jail near the new St. Louis county courthouse is evidently in for a great deal of discussion. The committee appointed by the county board to look into the matter will probably meet some time this week, and they will take the different suggestions made thus far and consider them with a view to making recommendations to the board.

Since the suggestion was made that the jail be moved from its present location to the new courthouse grounds, that phase of the question has been most freely discussed. The idea appeals with considerable force to those who believe a jail should be in close proximity to the courthouse, and are somewhat averse to the heavy expenditure necessary for a new structure there.

There is one great obstacle, however. The jail is fifty feet wide, and Third street, which would be the only available street for the moving, is only forty-six feet from curb to curb. There are trees and telephone poles in the street, so that, from present indications, the jail cannot be moved down that street. Second street would accommodate the building during the moving process, but that cannot be used on account of the street cars. Traffic would necessarily be completely blocked during the moving process.

Mr. Erickson, the superintendent of construction for Lanquist & Illsley, the contractors on the new courthouse, is now in Chicago and he will confer with people who make a business of moving big structures. It is possible that some solution of the problem will yet be reached and the jail may be moved.

The old jail is one of the best county jails in the state, as far as safety and accommodations are concerned. County officials would be glad to find some means of moving it, as it would serve the county for years to come. It would not be out of place in the group of public buildings with a sheriff's residence of the same construction as the courthouse on the front of it. It would mean a big saving to the county, and economy is considered necessary now, on account of the heavy expense the county is meeting in putting up the new courthouse.

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb of Washington, N. C. WOMAN IS ARRAIGNED

Mrs. Hargraves Indicted on Charge of Grand Larceny.

Chas. Aiken Charged With Entering Building With Malicious Intent.

Two more prisoners, indicted by the January grand jury and just taken into custody, were arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court this morning. Charles Aiken is charged with entering a building with malicious intent not amounting to burglary, and Mrs. Minnie Hargraves is charged with grand larceny in the second degree. Both were out on bonds and their bonds were continued.

Aiken is one of the three men discovered in the Sterling wine room in the Lowell block on East Superior street on the morning of Dec. 8. A patrolman saw a light in the place and went in, two of the men being captured and the third getting away. The circumstances were such that no burglary chargo was brought against the men, Aiken being indicted on the lesser charge.

Mrs. Hargraves conducts a boarding house on West Michigan street, and she is charged with appropriating $46 owned by C. H. Smith to her own use. Smith was a boarder in Mrs. Hargraves house and lost the money. It is charged that a servant found the money and turned it over to Mrs. Hargraves, who put into a molasses jar and didn't turn it over to Mr. Smith. She entered a plea of not guilty to the charge.

FOR STATE UNIVERSITY

North Dakota Legislature Asked for $227,000 for Improvements.

Bill Introduced to Prevent Marriage of White and Blacks.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state university permanent improvement appropriation carries a total of $227,000, while that of the agricultural college carries $220,000 for permanent improvements. The biggest item on the university bill is $100,000 for a teachers' college building. The institute for feeble minded located at Grafton asks $10,000 for the coming two years, while there are two measures appropriating moneys for the state hospital for the insane, one carrying $184,000 for improvements and another carrying $228,000 for current expenses for the coming two years.

There are really two contests, one against Heroiz and one against Tuttle, the latter having filed objections to the contest against Heroiz.

Senator Maynard Crane on Saturday introduced a bill the object of which is to prohibit the intermarriage of whites and blacks. The bill makes it a criminal offense in cases where judges issue licenses for such intermarriages, and also makes a parson performing such a ceremony liable. Senator J. L. Cashel will introduce a bill this week providing for primary caucuses, doing away with the present primary election and going back to the old convention system under new restrictions. He would have the counties pay all expenses of delegates to conventions and makes it a criminal offense for any person to approach a delegate for the purpase of influencing his vote. In fact, Senator Cashel would throw about the delegate in a convention all the safeguards that are thrown around a juror.

Bank deposit guarantee bills are very numerous already, Senator Purcell and Senator Pierce having introduced such measures in the senate, while Representative Doyle of Foster has a similar bill in the house. They all provide for a levy being made on state banks for the purpose of creating a state guarantee fund, and also gives national banks the privilege of coming in under the benefits by making such tax payments as are levied.

Senator McArthur has presented a bill extending the time that persons who join irrigation projects may pay the expense of the government irrigation work to twenty years. The present law allows them ten years in which to make the payments, and the change is suggested because it is believed that many more would join propects if twenty years were given in which to make the payments. An extension of the time limit would make the cost only half as much per year.

Bills have been introduced in both branches of the legislature providing for a constitutional amendment whereby a normal school will be established in Minot. Two years ago the legislatuer passed such a concurrent resolution referring it to the present assembly. In case the present session passes the resolution, it will go to the people for a vote.

Representatives Sheils of LaMoure and Doyle of Foster have introduced bills in the house providing for the limiting of expenses of candidates in elections. Mr. Sheils would limit the expenses of all candidates in all elections to 15 per cent of the annual salary of the office aspired to providing that no candidate be limited to less than $100, whiel Mr. Doyle would limit the expenses of candidates in primary elections only. Both bills provide that itemized accounts of expenses shall be filed with the county auditors and state secretary.

The house by amending the concurrent resolution providing for an investigation of the charges made against the administration of the affairs at the state penitentiary, makes it possible for the committee to go ahead and dig out all the information needed. The amendments give the committee the power of subpoeaning witnesses and compelling them to furnish whatever records, books, etc., they may have. The report shall be made back to the legislature of the work is completed before the adjournment of the session, otherwise it shall be made to the attorney general, secretary of state and the governor

The bill intended by Representative Sorlie of Traill, giving the governor the power of removing certain officials is not different in any respect from that introduced two years ago with the exception of the officers included. The bill before the Tenth assembly gave the governor the power of removing clerks of courts, register of deeds, county treasurers and judges but the bill now proposed takes those officials off the list and substitutes instead city and village officials whose duty it is to enforce the law. The measure is one that Governor Burke favors and which he paid considerable attention to in his message to the legislature.

Under the present law the national guard of the state is allowed an annual appropriation of $19,000, but bills troduced in the house by Representative Price and in the senate by Senator Purcell, amend the statute by giving the guard $25,000 annually. The guard has grown considerably within the past two years, and it is argued that more money is needed to take care of its maintainence.

Bills introduced in the senate are as follows: Pierce, investigation of carrying charges on grains to terminal points; Pierce, prohibits religious or charitable organizations holding property valued at more than $200,000; Pierce, appropriates $12,000 for state experimental farms; Leutz, establishes county teachers' schools; Neal, authorizes boards establishing free kindergartens; McArthur, prohibits throwing of glassware in the streets or highways; Martin, amends method of collection for care insane patients; Bessessen, authorizes employment clerk in offices of state's attorneys.

Bills introduced in the house are as follows: Ployhar, does away with publication insurance statements; Thoreson, to prevent spread of noxious weeds; Brusletten, requiring threshers giving bond to protect farmier against loss by fire; Skulason, extending term supreme court judges to ten years; Sheils, fixing assessments at one-third true value of property; Burns, prohibiting sweeping of passenger coaches while passengers are in it; Linde, authorizing counties to purchase seed for needy farmers; Skulason, releasing cities from liability in cases where persons are hurt on ice covered sidewalks.

WANTS MORE TIME TO COMPLETE ITS CANAL.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Lake Erie & Ohio Ship Canal company has asked congress for a three-year extension for the time granted under the act of June 30, 1906, to construct a canal from Lake Erie to the Ohio river. Under that law three years were allowed for this purpose, but in its petition the company represents the financial crisis of 1907 so interferred with its operations that it has been impossible to make progress. The senate committee on commerce has made a favorable report on a bill granting the extension.

WILL STAND BY THE SOO

City Will Fight Great Northern's Attempt to Secure Approach.

Would Give Road the Privileges Refused by Council.

Mayor Haven has been served with two notices by the Duluth Terminal company, notifying him that condemnation proceedings have been begun by that company to secure a right-of-way for the construction of a railroad approach to the Interstate bridge, in opposition to the Soo railroad, which already has been granted a franchise by the council to build an approach.

"What will the city do in regard to the claims of the Terminal people?" the mayor was asked this morning.

"I think we should fight these claims to the last inch, and I believe that is the sentiment of most of the aldermen, if not all of them," he said.

The Terminal company, which is a subsidiary to the Great Northern, which refused to accept the city's terms in applying for a franchise to build the approach in question, bases its alleged right to start condemnation proceedings on a supreme court decision affecting the construction of a certain railroad in the outskirst of Minneapolis. The court held that the railroad had the right to condemn a right-of-way across city streets, where there seemed a necessity for such a crossing.

It is claimed the circumstances surrounding the Minneapolis case differed materially from those surrounding the Duluth case, and City Attorney Wilson is of the opinion that the city will be able to defeat the Great Northern, represented by the Terminal company, should the matter be taken into the courts, and that it will be taken into the courts there seems to be no doubt.

The Soo road agreed to all the requirements set forth by the city, and offered a franchise that was drawn up under direction of the city attorney and council committee on ordinances and resolutions. The franchise was granted by a unanimous vote of the council, and now it looks as if the aldermen and mayor would stand by the Soo as long as there is any fighting to be done.

If the Great Northern should succeed in carrying out its plan in regard to the condemnation proceedings, and secure a right of way for building the approach, the city would have no power to regulate the operation of the approach, or to compel railroads using it to stand their share of public improvements, or do other things provided for in the Soo franchise.

CONTRACTORS HAVE BIG CLAIM AGAINST CITY

Offer to Settle Suit for Infringement of Patent.

Want City's Good Will and Twenty-Five Cents Per Yard.

The Warren Bros., company has has offered to compromise with the city in the two suits over patent infringements and pavement work which have been pending for a long time past. The matter will come before the council at its regular meeting this evening.

The Warrens have just won out in the United States circuit court of appeals, the decision being handed down at Cincinnati, Ohio, in two similar suits which were brought in a Michigan city. The circumstances in the Michigan cases were almost exactly similar as those in the Duluth cases, and from this fact the company expresses the belief that if the Duluth suits are carried to the United States circuit of appeals, the highest court in patent cases, they would meet with the same fate as the others.

The company, with its evident advantage, seems disposed to be reasonable, and offers to settle on a royalty basis of 25 cents a square yard for all pavement laid by the city in alleged violation of the Warren patent right. This is the same royalty now being paid by various large cities through the country for the privilege of using the Warren patent rights.

One suit brought against the city of Duluth was for infringement of patents on a tar macadam mixing plant, which the municipality made and operated without saying anything about it to the Warrens, and the other was for infringement on patents said to cover tar macadam turned out by the Warren mixer, West Superior street, East Superior street, except that portion between Lake and Nineteenth avenues east, Second street and Robinson street, are some of the thoroughfares upon which the contested pavement was laid. There were also several other streets and avenues paved with tar macadam, in alleged opposition to the Warren patents. The aggregate royalties, if paid, would mount into a good many thousand dollars.

The Warrens are anxious to adjust the matter outside of the court, if they can, on the plea that they would like to retain the good will of the city, and it will be up to the council to decide tonight, unless the question is laid over for a week or two, to allow the city attorney further time in which to investigate and report on the claims of the Warrens.

HOW TO SERVE WINES.

Proper Temperatures—Caution is Needed in Decanting.

The choice and the care of wine are matters on which the average person is profoundly ignorant. A writer in the Queen refers to "the elementary wisdom" which dictates that claret should be slightly warmed before serving and champagne should be iced.

The article gives the following list of temperatures at with various wines should be served: Sherry and Marsala at 40 degs.; sauterne or other white claret, 50 degs.; claret, 65 degs.; burgundy, 70 degs.; chablis and other white burgundies, 45 degs.; champagne, 35 degs.; port, 55 degs., and madeira, 65 degs.

"Champagne," says the writer, "should be placed in a basin, a handful of broken ice placed over and around it, and then covered with a damp piece of flannel, an hour before the wine is to be served. Claret and burgundy should be placed in hot water or near a fire to warm gently. These general facts having been recognized, the next step is the decanding.

"Claret does not require more than the ordinary care, but with those old wines which have been kept long enough in bottle to have sediment, great care is really necessary, or they will be thick and cloudy when decanted from the sediment being disturbed.

"In the beginning port should be placed in the wine bin at a slightly inclined angle, always being kept in the same position, and when taken out the bottle should be carried still in the same position, taking care not to shake or jar it in the slightest degree when decanting it.

"Burgundy, again, should be left for a day in an upright position before decanting, and an hour before it is required the cork should be carefully drawn and the wine poured into the decanter. If during this process, on holding the bottle up to the light the sediment is found to be mixing with the wine, no more should be poured.

"It should be remembered, too, that with the best will in the world, ordinay claret and burgundy are practically useless after they have been decanted for twenty-four hours, as they deteriorate and become sour, while on no account should the outrage be perpetrated of adding fresh wine to that already in the decanter.

"In former years a fresh wine was served with practically every course, but this is quite a thing of the past, and as a rule no more than two wines make their appearance throughout the dinner, for the habit of wine drinking is decreasing greatly, due in great measure to the greater popularity of whisky. Usually a really good old pale sherry is handed around with the soup, but afterward champagne or a hock is served right through, though sometimes claret or burgundy and champagne are handed around, port and old claret making their appearance at dessert.

"There are some, however, who still prefer to cling to the old methods, and they should remember that the following is the correct order in which the wines should be served: Hors d'oeuvres, chablis or sauterne; soup, sherry or marsala; fish, hock or sauterne; entrees and removes, claret or burgundy; roast and entrements, champagne; dessert, port, claret or madeira. Bordeaux or burgundy are especially suitable for drinking withm game, while with oysters, chablis or hock is usually seen."

MILLINERS MULTIPLYING.

Millinery Trade Review: Millinery ranks fourteenth among the pursuits in which women are engaged as breadwinners. It is a distinctly woman's occupation, 94.4 per cent of all milliners in the United States being women.

Only two occupations have a larger proportion of women; dressmaking, with 97.5 per cent and housekeeping with 94.7 per cent. Seamstresses are 91.9 per cent of them women. These four occupations were the only occupations in which women constitute over nine-tenths of all persons employed.

Almost nine-tenths of the women milliners are native whites. In the large cities more than half the milliners were under 25 years of age. Probably when they exceed that age they marry and if they remain in business it is done in the husband's name and census credits him with being a merchant. In 1890 there was one milliner to every 823 women 15 years of age an dover. In 1900 one to every 285.

This change is thought to reflect the advance in the prosperity of the country, since milinery to a certain extent is a luxury, and in family budgets forms an item that probably responds quickly to fluctuations in income. If the manual training schools and technical institutions continue to run out milliners in the next ten years as they have in the last decade there will be one milliner to every hundred women, and in the not far distant future.

ALROTH IS CHAMPION

Duluth Man Takes Highest Honors at Western Skating Meet.

Wins Three Out of Five of the Big Races.

Carl Alroth of Duluth is Western skating champion of the United States.

He was first in three out of five championship races at the annual tournament of the Western Skating association, held last week at St. Paul.

Mr. Alroth returned this morning from the scene of his triumphs and enthusiastically declared it was the most successful meet the association ever held, and in the finest rink in the world, he says. The races were held at the Hippodrome, at the state fair grounds, St. Paul.

CARL ALROTH,
Who Claims the Western Championship in Speed Skating.

"I was successful in winning three out of five championship races during the meet, Charles Fisher of Milwaukee and Caad of Chicago capturing one each," said Mr. Alroth this morning.

"The half-mile and five-mile races were held Friday night. I won the half-mile race, and Fisher was first in the five-mile event. I was third in the five-mile race and in the three-mile race.

"Saturday evening, the one-mile two-mile, and three-mile races were held. I won the one-mile event, and the two-mile event, while Caad was first in the three-mile. Fisher was second in the three-mile contest.

"The winning of three first prizes in the championship races gave me more points than any of the other individual skaters, and entitles me to the Western championship.

"Yesterday afternoon a number of the races were raced in the down-town rink in St. Paul, but these were not the association's championship events, which concluded Saturday night. I won a one-mile race yesterday and Charles Rankin was first in a half-mile event.

"Large crowds witnessed all the championship races and there was a great deal of enthusiasm. Allan Blanchard of Chicago, president of the Western Skating association, and other officials, were present. The rink is said to be the largest covered one in the world. It certainly is a dandy; not a post in it.

"I would like to see a big rink erected here, and I wish some enthusiasm over the project could be aroused. If one is built, I think the next Western tournament can be secured for this city, otherwise it will probably be held at Calumet, Mich."

DUNBAR HAS FINE RECORD

St. Paul Veteran Defeats Tucker in the Duluth Event.

Most of Prizes in Big Bonspiel Remain in Saintly City.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bob Dunbar defeated Tucker of Pardeeville this morning in the finals of the Duluth event, thereby winning the grand average and two trophies. This gives St. Paul the victory in five events as well as the first two places in the grand average.

The score was: Dunbar, 18; Tucker, 5.

In this morning's game Tucker played with three men, while for the first time in seven games Dunbar had a full rink. Thus Tucker evened up the disadvantage Dunbar had when Tucker beat him on Thursday. Tucker has won warm praise all week for his fine work, his superb generalship and most of all by his good nature and sportsmanlike spirit. His rink merits the highest praise.

Dunbar never had a finer record in any bonspiel. When it is considered that he went into half his games with three men, Lambert Defiel being out of the play, his success is wonderful. Too much credit cannot be given to Dick Huntsman and L. A. Nelson. They were new men up against a hard test and made good. Nelson's play as lead could not be improved upon and Huntsman stood up like a hero under the big job of playing both second and third. Defiel, in the games he was in, played like a master and surpassed anything he ever did in his previous career. The rink deserved to win.

Saturday night Rees got sweet revenge on Tucker. In the morning Tucker had put him out of the Duluth event, 15 to 4. In the evening Rees put the Pardeeville man out of the Minneapolis event, 14 to 6, and won it.

Dunbar defeated Ordway, 17 to 11, and won the Canadian Soo trophy.

In the St. Paul event, Bill Carson won the finals, beating Ordway 15 to 5. In the International event, Stewart beat Reedal, and Griggs beat Murray. The finals will be played Tuesday night. Stewart and Griggs will also play for the consolation prize.

WHIRLWIND MILL IS PROMISED

Walter Whitehead Will Meet Billy Heller Thursday Night.

What will probably be one of the best bouts ever arranged in Northern Minnesota will take place Thursday evening on the range between Billy Heller, the Chicago stockyard whirlwind, and Walter Whitehead, the Duluth colored boxer.

Heller and his manager arrived in the city Sunday on their way to the range, where they will train for the few days before the fight. They were introduced to Whitehead and after looking the colored boy over, Heller is quoted as saying that it was too easy and that he had money to bet on himself. The Chicago fighter even went so far as to say that five rounds would be all the time needed.

Whitehead is a little more conservative. He said that seven rounds would see the pride of the stockyards taking the count.

There is much betting on the outcome.

Heller has fought twenty-four battles and it is claimed he has won every glove contest he has ever entered and he has nineteen knockouts to his credit.

The mill is sure to be a fast one, and a large crowd of Duluth men are going up to take it in.

MORE COKE OVENS.

Zenith Furnace Company Will Have to Increase Output of Gas.

Owing to the big increase in the amount of gas used during the year 1908, the Zenith Furnace company is planning to increase the capacity of its coke ovens.

At present at the plant there are fifty ovens with a 250-ton capacity per day, giving employment to from 150 to 175 men. More gas is being used by the city every day, and the plant will soon be forced to build more ovens to supply the demand.

A dock will have to be built out into the bay on which to erect the new ovens an dthere will also have to be a new coal dock. The work on the dock, it is expected, will be started next spring, which will give employment to about 300 more men.

There are about 10,000 tons of coke in the plant's stockpile now, which the ovens have been unable to increase owing to the consumption of the furnace, which equals the output of the ovens. About 300 tons of pig iron is being made daily.

Complain of Blasts.

A number of complaints have been made to Mayor Haven concerning the blasting that is being done along the Missabe tracks at Fortieth avenue west. The mayor has requested that the police look into the matter.

COURT WHEELS MOVE SLOWLY

Trial of Criminal Case Will Probably be Begun Wednesday.

With Judge Cant still holding court at Grand Rapids, the disposition of the January term calendar in district court eproni doce cmf cmf cmf cmf cm cm sign and Judge Dibell. The election contest in progress at Grand Rapids is expected to end within a few days, when all three judges will be active in the local court.

The trial of the criminal cases will probably begin before Judge Ensign Wednesday morning. Several of the smaller cases are ready for trial, and they will be taken up first. The more important criminal cases will be heard later in the term.

The case of Carlo Mainello vs. J. Eaton Bowers was taken up before Judge Dibell this morning. Mainella, who is a fruit and confectionery dealer, is suing for $2,500 damages he claims to have sustained through a breach of lease by Dr. Bowers. He says he signed a lease with Dr. Bowers for the rent of a storeroom on West Superior street, June 10, 1907, he to take possession Aug. 1, 1907, the lease to run for eighteen months. He claims when the time to take possession came, Dr. Bowers refused to give him possession, and had leased the building to another party.

On that account, he claims, he was put out of business for a month, and was forced to take a room too small for his business, paying a bonus of $400 for the lease. He sues for the bonus, the loss in profits and the damage to his stock.

In the answer, Dr. Bowers claims that Mainella refused to take possession, and they made an agreement, making the lease void.

Before Judge Ensign, the suit of G. G. Chamberlain vs. A. M. Balfany is still on. Chamberlain sues for $900, he claims to be due him in unpaid salary. Balfany denies the claim, and puts in a counter claim for $230, he claims Chamberlain collected and failed to turn in. Chamberlain was a traveling salesman for Balfany, who conducts a wholesale cigar business.

HOCKEY LEAGUE NOW ORGANIZED

The Amateur Association Draws Up Schedule; Ray Johns Is President.

Ray Johns heads the newly organized Duluth Amateur hockey league.

Mr. Johns is, at present, manager of the Zenith team and last year was successful in the management of tthe Northern Hardware team. He was elected president of the amatur league at a meeting held Sunday.

A schedule was drawn up and bylaws adopted at the meeting, which was an enthusiastic one and largely attended by those interested in the project.

The schedule calls for three games to be played each week, on the ice of the Central ice rink located on Third street near Tenth avenue west. The first game will be Friday between the Northern Juniors and the team representing the Bryant school.

The teams at present in the league are: Northern Juniors, Lester Park, Adams, Bryant and Irving Tigers. A number of teams are clamoring for admission, and it is probable that eight teams will be entered soon after the playing has begun.

ICE KING MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP

Roy Kent's Fleet Boat Finishes First in Two Races.

The Ice King, sailed by Roy Kent, Saturday took the last of the first series of ice boat races on the bay held under the auspices of the Duluth Yacht club.

She was sailed over the entire course of ten miles in 22:10. This is the second race of the series taken by this fleet boat, and it is likely that she will be declared the winner of the first series, although the points have not as yet been figured up.

The weather was so favorable after the first race had been run Saturday afternoon, that a second race of six miles was run off, and the Ice King again showed her superiority over the other boats by nosing out ahead in 10:10. This was the more interesting race, as all the boats finished within three minutes, some of them coming in very close together.

The summary follows:

First Race.

Boats. Skipper.	Time.
Ice King, Roy Kent	22:10
Blue Bell, Peterson Brothers	26:20
Snow Bird, Lawrence	27:00
Meteor, Clemmens	28:15
Arrow, Roberts Brothers	28.25
Dart, Williams	36:05
Hare, Roth	37:35

Second Race.

Ice King, Kent	10:10
Arrow, Roberts Brothers	10:25
Hare, Roth	11:35
Dart, Williams	11:45
Meteor, Clemmens	12:00
Snow Bird, Lawrence	12:20
Blue Bird, Peterson Brothers	13:35

FIRST RACING OF THE SEASON

Bumble Bee Walks Away From the Field in 2:20 Class.

Good races were the order at their track, located at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west, Saturday afternoon.

In the 2:20 class, Bumble Bee, driven by Phillips, finished first in two straight heats, winning over Tomango and Captain C. The latter, driven by William McCullough, did not finish the second heat. Tomango, driven by Randall, finished second in each heat.

In the green class, J. T. Armstead's Essick, Jr., driven by Stanley Brooks, took the race in straight heats. These were the only two races run, as the free-for-all entrants did not put in an appearance.

It is probable that the cup offered by James Henderson in the free-for-all class, will be hung up for competition in the 2:20 class, as the free-for-all men do not seem to have the right amount of interest.

FOREIGN TURF IS ON THE SQUARE

Absence of Graft Makes Horse Racing Popular Abroad.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 18.—Popularity and success of horse racing abroad is entirely due to the absence of grafters in the sport, declared Jockey Charley Korb of this city, who is home after five money-making seasons on the German turf. There is no sport in the world conducted any cleaner than horse racing in the German empire, and this, Korb says, is due to the permanent dam placed on grafters by foreign racing authorities years ago.

Races are conducted in Germany only three days a week and Sunday is always the biggest day of the week. Berlin, the German capital, he says, is the center of racing and the Sunday crowds there reach from 30,000 to 50,000, while the other tracks draw 20,000 to 30,000.

There is lots of betting, according to Korb, the Paris mutual system being in vogue exclusively. This department of the sport, he says, is conducted by honest men. A man with the least suspicion resting on him is ruled off the track for life. The races are quite largely attended by the poorer classes, especially on Sundays. The prices of admission are cheaper than in this country, and made to suit all classes. They range all the way from 12 cents to $3.

Although he has been riding regularly only five seasons, Korb has amassed a fortune of $100,000. He is under contract to ride for Count Henckel next season at a salary of $15,000.

BANTAMS ARE MATCHED.

Jimmy Walsh and "Emergency" Kelly to Fight in Boston.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 18.—Negotiations were concluded here yesterday for a match between Jimmy Walsh of Boston, holder of the world's pugilistic bantam-weight championship and "Emergency" Kelley of New York, for the bantam honors. The fight is to take place in Boston in February.

Kelley was matched to meet Tommy Kilbane of Cleveland for the feather-weight championship of Ohio in a 25-round bout here yesterday, but the sheriff burst in the doors and dispersed the spectators just as the men entered the ring.

Boston Man Wins at Golf.

CURLERS ARE HOME

Didn't Win Many Medals, But They Enjoyed the Trip.

Surprise of the Bonspiel Was Strength of the Country Rinks.

Without having captured an event, but after enjoying "the best time of their lives," the members of the Duluth Curling club who attended the bonspiel in St. Paul last week, returned to Duluth Sunday.

The surprise of the 'spiel was the strength of the country rinks. A number of those who were hardly counted in the race for the different events at all, showed up surprisingly strong, and were in at the finish in a number of events.

Bradley of Duluth got down to the finals in the St. Paul consolation prize, but as the men who formed his rink were forced to be in Duluth to attend business this morning, he had to come away without finishing.

The Duluth rinks at all stages of the game played in good form, and were in at the finals in nearly every event, but at the critical moment they fell down.

In the St. Paul jobbers' event A. H. Smith's rink stuck to the winning side for a long time, but was finally put out of the running by Ordway of St. Paul.

In the Duluth Curling club event McLeod got down to the semi-finals, and was at this point defeated by Dunbar. Bradley won twice in this event, finally losing to Tucker of Pardeeville, who is down to the finals in the event with Dunbar.

Jones won three games in the Minneapolis event, being put out by Neil of Winnipeg.

Brewer got down to the semi-finals in the Canadian Soo event, being defeated by Ordway of St. Paul.

In the international event, Brewer, Jones and McLeod got down to the eights, where they were defeated.

FEIRING WINS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Duluth Man Regains Old Form; Evenson Took Third Place.

Ole Fiering, formerly champion ski jumper of the United States, carried off the honors in yesterday afternoon's tournament of the Twin City Ski club held in Minneapolis, winning the meet by four points. Ole Larson of Minneapolis took second place, while John Evenson, present national champion, won third prize. Ole Mangseth of Coleraine was fourth and Ole Gunderson fifth.

While Fiering of Duluth carried off the first money and was declared the winner on points, Ole Larson of Minneapolis made the longest jump of the day and incidentally the longest jump ever made in Minneapolis. Larson leaped over 108 feet of ground, bettering his former record by two feet. Fiering also got into the long jumping, making 106 feet on his first trial.

The day was the best that could be wished for by the skiers, and a large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to witness the contest. The recent snowfall proved a great help to the jumpers and the slide was in the best possible condition. Another tournament will be held this afternoon, and about twenty skiers will compete.

One of the big features of today's meet will be the appearance of an Irish ski jumper, the first son of Erin to ever enter the great game. Barney Riley of Coleraine is the "Turk" entered in today's meet and he is a mere boy, being only 16 years of age.

Yesterday's prize winners:

	Points.

Ole Larson, Minneapolis	245½
John Evenson, Duluth	239½
Ole Mangseth, Coleraine	237
Ole Gunderson, Eau Claire	235½

INDIANS CLAIM PART OF STATE

Good Portion of Northern Minnesota Involved in Appeal Taken.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fifteen counties in Northern Minnesota will revert to the Mississippi, Pillager and Chippewa tribes of Indians, should the United States supreme court uphold the claim made by these tribes in a complaint filed by Gus H. Beauleu, a Chippewa, who for years has been recognized as a leader of Indians residing in Minnesota.

The claim of Beaulieu is an offshot of the case brought by the court of claims at Washington, D. C., by the Minnesota state auditor, in which Minnesota steps up its demand for title to 147,000 acres of swamp land in the Leach lake nd Winnibogisish lake districts. This at present is federal land, and the auditor demands it for the state under the congressional swamp land grant enacted in 1860. Various phases of this claim have been in controversy for some time past.

Beaulieu goes back, however, to the treaty of Feb. 22, 1855, when the Indians ceded a great amount of Minnesota territory to the federal government. This treaty included what now comprises the counties of Clearwater, Beltrami, Mahnomen, Becker, Wadena, Todd, Otter Tail, Morrison, Koochiching, Itasca, Crow Wing, Aitkin, Mille Lacs and Hubbard.

Beaulieu says that in passing title to the government, the Indians in turn were to receive certain concessions, and certain money payments. He charges that the government failed to fulfill these conditions, and that therefore the title must revert back to the Indian tribes.

The ruling of the lower court at Washington on the claim of Minnesota was in favor of the state, but the opinion recited that it might be possible the conditions of the Indian treaty had not been fulfilled by the federal government. The lower court, however, refused to rule on this point, explaining that it was entirely oueside of the record in that case. Beaulieu has brought the matter up again in his appeal to the court of last resort.

Mr. Iverson expresses the belief that there is little danger of the Indians winning out in their claim of title to this vast tract; that their point is farfetched.

"THE CHORUS LADY."

Rose Stahl Delights a Large Audience in New York Success.

Theater-going Duluth has lived in pleasant anticipation of Rose Stahl's Lyceum engagement for the last three or four weeks. Memories of that engagement will be even more pleasant. Miss Stahl and a splendid company played in Duluth Saturday afternoon and evening, and both performances were greeted by audiences that completely filled the house.

The success with which James Forbes' delightful comedy has met with everywhere else, was repeated here. The story of the Irish chorus girl is full of emotional thrills, and keeps the audience keyed to a high interest all the way through.

Miss Stahl, the original in the part of Patricia O'Brien, has created a role that has justly entitled her to lasting fame. Her work is a delight. Natural and unaffected, she wins the admiration, as well as the attention, of her audience from the time of her first appearance on the stage, and this admiration increases until the curtain falls.

The company is a well selected one, and the individual members acquit themselves with considerable credit. Alice Leigh as Patricia's mother was clever, and Giles Shine filled the bill as her father.

Earl R. Williams was handsome as Dick Crawford, and didn't look as villainous as he was made out to be. He did good work. Wilfred Lucas was a likeable Dan Mallory, and it was a pleasure to watch the work of Eva Dennison as Nora O'Brien. Madeline Travers made a stunning show girl, and the reading of her lines was very acceptable. Amy Lee provoked several laughs as the wardrobe woman. The chorus girl would stand a good show of winning a high place in a popular beauty contest, and some of the gowns brought wondering sighs of admiration from the feminine portion of the audience.

The "Three Twins."

"The Three Twins," which will be the attraction at the Lyceum all this week, except Saturday, is offered as the most pretentious musical comedy on the road. It had the honor of receiving universal press commendation on its opening in New York at the Herald Square theater. It also had a run of five months at the Whitney opera house in Chicago. It is claimed to be the most elaborate staged production in America, and is said to contain more novel features than all the other musical comedies combined. The faceograph and the electrical aerial swing are distinct novelties, the latter being one of the most wonderful pieces of stagecraft ever made. It is a steel structure, weighing over 4,000 pounds and illuminated with 2,000 electric lights. It requires three machinists, which the company carries, to handle this one wonderful electrical effect, and takes three large scene trucks to transport it from the baggage car to the theater. This is only one of the many novelties.

Mr. Gaites has spared no expense in staging the attraction, and the New York Telegraph said that it was the handsomest costumed company on Broadway. It requires two baggage cars and three coaches to transport the "Three Twins" company, and they generally travel by special train. The company is headed by Victor Morley, who was associated with Richard Carle in "The Spring Chicken" until he created the title role in "The Three Twins" at the Whitney opera house, Chicago. Others in the company are Richard Bartlett, Georage S. Trimble, Eva Fallon, Maud Demarest, Della Niven, Ruby Ray, Frank Smith, Florenz Kolb, W. H. Woodside, E. P. Bower, Ada Bateman, Marie Maskow and a large chorus.

"The Land of Nod."

The advance sale of seats for the big musical extravaganza, "The Land of Nod," which comes to the Lyceum Saturday matinee and night, opened this morning.

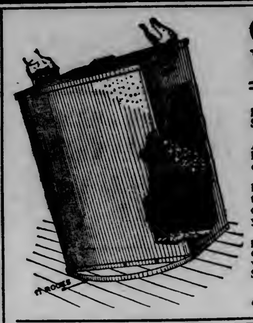

The presenting company numbers seventy-five people, including the ballet and specialists.

ENGINEER, SURVIVING FEARFUL WRECK, NOT YET ABLE TO SPEAK

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Jan. 18.—The confusion following upon the wreck at Dotsero is gradually getting straightened out. The track has been entirely cleared and traffic resumed. The debris resulting from the work thrown to one side while searching for bodies and clearing the track, is to be searched carefully a second time for bodies.

There have been no deaths among the injured and hope is entertained for the recovery of those whose condition is serious.

There were 136 passengers on the train and most of them are accounted for. It is known that a number proceeded on their way without being reported. Some of the unknown dead were identified yesterday.

No statement has yet been obtained from Engineer Gus Olson of the passenger train. He will not be well enough to talk for several days and until the nthe investigation as to the blame is at a standstill.

JENKINS PICKS FLAWS IN ANTI-TRUST LAW

Washington, Jan. 18.—Speaking to the question, "Can the So-Called Sherman Anti-Trust Act Be Amended," Mr. Jenkins, chairman of the judiciary committee in the house says there are important portions in the law diametrically opposed to other portions which demanded that the act be amended. He says the statute is both prohibitory and penal and contended that the power to penalize in the statute was ample.

Congress, he insists, could not abrogate its functions and delegate to any person, corporation or state, its functions in that regard. Commerce he maintains would not be free if regulated by the fluctuating uncertain, relative and elastic term, "not in restraint of trade." No standard, he said, could ever be judged or defined. One case, he added, would not be a precedent for another subsequent case.

Summing up his conclusions Jenkins said: "Congress cannot interfere with any private contract unless it is one made in restraint of regulation of commerce between the states. As its power is exclusive, congress cannot affirmatively permit the making of any contract that on its face or in its performance will regulate or restrain interstate commerce. No prohibitory legislation is necessary as the power of congress is exclusive and any attempt to interfere with or usurp the power of congress is void. Without any legislation the courts can nullify any contract made in violation of the exclusive power of congress is a crime and punishment if such a violation is necessary to prevent farther violations. The power of congress is limited to protecting interstate commerce in transit. Congress cannot legislatively permit any interference with commerce between the states or with foreign nations.

"It is superfluous legislation to declare illegal every contract, combination, any form of trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce between the states. It does not need an act of congress to declare illegal what is void by the Constitution. Congress does not possess the power to legalize contracts regulating commerce between the states or with foreign nations if the contract is a regulation, it is void. If not, it is not within the power of congress to affect it.

"It is for the courts to say without the aid of legislation whether a given contract is void for usurping congressional power to regulate commerce, If the trust mentioned in the act is not regulating or restraining commerce between the states or with foreign nations, congress is powerless to operate or affect the trust mentioned. As the power of congress is limited to regulating commerce between the states and with foreign nations, congress cannot do anything other than what may be necessary to carry this power into execution."

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is in reality an internal inflammation—a diseased condition of the blood cells which supply the nourishment and strength necessary to sustain our bodies. Uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, gets into the circulation because of physical irregularities, and then instead of nourishing and invigorating the body, the blood irritates and inflames the different nerves, tissues, muscles and joints, because of its impure, acrid condition. The pains and aches and other disagreeable and dangerous symptoms of Rheumatism can never be permanently cured until every particle of the cause is driven from the blood. S. S. S. does this because it is a perfect blood purifier. It goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, purifies and cleanses the circulation, invigorates the blood, and completely drives Rheumatism from the system. Plasters, liniments, soothing lotions, etc., may be used for the temporary relief and comfort they bring, but a cure cannot be effected until S. S. S. has removed the cause. It frees the blood of every impurity and makes it a rich, health sustaining fluid, to bring permanent relief and comfort to those who suffer with Rheumatism. Constipation Caused By Indigestion

Is Cured by Helping the Stomach Do Its Work As It Should.

All forms of constipation, bowel or intestinal trouble owe most of their origin to the improper digestion of food. The bowels measure 30 feet. The inside walls or surfaces are wound tightly about with millions of nerves. These nerves give life and control millions of little mouths or suckers which are supposed to take nourishment from the food as it leaves the stomach and passes along this 30-foot human canal.

When indigestion, dyspepsia or stomach trouble occurs, the food being undigested, passes over these millions of mouths, it is a fermented decaying mass and holds no nourishment as it should.

The little mouths suck it up, impart these impurities to the blood, impregnate the little nerves with poison and so the work of constipation and bowel trouble begins.

A natural juice or secretion belongs normally in the little cells and glands along the mucous membrane of the 30-foot canal or bowel. When indigestion occurs this juice is lacking and so the mass of waste matter cannot pass along as it should and is piled up and caked in the bowel thus bringing pain and misery.

After a while the nerves and nerve centers which give vigor and life to the bowel become paralyzed, thus forever prohibiting the bowel from performing its natural duties.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, when taken after meals, digests the food properly even though the stomach is sick and it passes to the bowels nourishment and juices, which help the intestines not only to do their work at once, but builds them up, restores vitality to the nerves, brings new secretion to the glands and cells, helps bowel action and enriches the blood.

The stomach is the cause. Common sense and science are one on this point. You see it yourself. One little grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will perfectly digest 3,000 grains of food. The assimilation of a meal by one of these tablets is an easy matter and it keeps the stomach clean and sweet so that in a brief time this organ is restored.

Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

TOLD IN NEWSPAPER.

North Dakotan First Learns He is Heir to Estate.

Lansford, N. D., Jan. 18.—A neighbor of James Jerde noticed in a Chicago newspaper an advertisement asking for information as to the whereabouts of James Jerde, as he was wanted ot look after the estate of a brother who died at Morris, Ill., Dec. 6, 1908. Mr. Jerde at once placed himself in communication with the Illinois authorities with the result that he left soon after for Morris to administer the estate, which it is thought to be an extensive one.

It seems that the Jerde brothers lost track of one another after coming to this country, and had it not been for the observant neighbor the United States courts would have been called upon to hunt up the heirs of the one who died in Illinois.

SECRET REVEALED

Said to Have Benefited and Cured Hundreds of Chronic Dyspeptics—Clip and Save This.

It is seldom that a great specialist will give away the secrets of his profession, but occasionally we find one who is liberal.

A noted medical man says: Always prescribe the following with the greatest success for indigestion, acute or chronic; dyspepsia, sour stomach, distress after eating, such as heart palpitation, shortness of breath, constipation, depression, headache and biliousness. These simple but powerfully blended ingredients can be relied upon in every case. Mix in a bottle two ounces of syrup of ginger, one ounce compound essence cardiol and two ounces essence of pepsin. Shake well and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal; or before, to excite the appetite, if necessary. For costiveness, a dose at night will do much good. Let children who have stomachache take this freely. Adults can find nothing that will do so much permanent good and, at the same time give prompt relief from distress.

ADVERTISE THE STATE

Only 34 Per Cent of Land Has Been Cultivated.

The $100,000 Appropriation But One Per Cent of Taxes.

Curtis L. Mosher, manager of the Consolidated Publicity bureau of St. Paul, who is in Duluth, has some statistical facts that are of paramount importance to the business men of this city and to the farmers of St. Louis county.

These facts have been gathered in the movement to have the state legislature appropriate annually $100,000, the money to be turned over to the resources of Minnesota. Perhaps, more vitally than any other section of this state, is the northern part of Minnesota affected by this movement, which, in the opinion of Mr. Mosher, should have been started ten years ago.

First of all, Mr. Mosher says, there are 84,000 square miles in the state of Minnesota. Of this area only 34 1-10 per cent has been touched by the plow. These figures were secured some time ago, and, as some of the land of the southern part of the state has been abandoned, it is probable that at the present time the greater percentage of the land of the state is not under cultivation.

There are 20,000,000 acres in the northern part of the state which have not been broken by the plow. Of this amount, but 5,100,000 acres is in the hands of private owners. The state owns the rest of the land, which means that one-fourth of the land is a vast amount of swamp land, which could be reclaimed and made into fertile farming land.

Exodus to Canada.

Mr. Mosher states that figures will show that the number of pupils in the rural schools of Minnesota has decreased within the past five years. Mr. Mosher tells the reason of this. He says many of the farmers of this state are every year going to Canada, where the advantages to the farmer are set forth in glowing type. The Dominion has appropriated a $1,000,000 for advertising it's resources, and as a consequence Mr. Mosher states that yearly 150,000 farmers pass through St. Paul on their way to the farm lands of Western Canada.

The state of Minnesota receives annually $10,000,000 in taxes. The Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs has asked the state legislature to set aside annually 1 per cent of this amount, $100,000, to advertise the resources of Minnesota, so that in the end farmers and settlers from other states may be attracted to this state.

"Wholesale houses and other business houses," says Mr. Mosher, "are in the habit of setting aside from 1 to 3 per cent of their gross income for the advertising of their products. We simply ask the state to appropriate 1 per cent from its tax income for the advertising of the mineral, land and other resources of this state.

"At the present time the state immigration bureau has an annual appropriation of $12,500. Last year 60,000 inquiries were received from those interested in farm lands of this state. Owing to the limited funds of the immigration office, the great majority of these letters remained unanswered. It was simply a case of not having money to pay the postage and provide the assistance to manage the correspondence.

"The Peruna company spends annually $1,250,000 for advertising. The Ivory Soap company spends a fabulous amount in letting the public know of the merits of its goods. When you come to think of the amount private companies spend for the advancement of their business, it does not seem very much to ask the state of Minnesota to appropriate annually $100,000 to let the outside world know of its resources."

Mr. Mosher says, as an example, that 100 farmers in the vicinity of Virginia would mean that approximately $100,000 would be spent each year in Virginia. The same statement, of course, applies to this city. Mr. Mosher makes the prediction that the future growth of this city will depend largely upon the farming community.

Mr. Mosher believes that there is a very good prospect of the present legislature appropriating the amount asked for by the federated commercial clubs. This money would be in the hands of the immigration bureau, as stated above, but the federated commercial clubs would act in an advisory capacity in the expending of the money. There are 10,000 business men represented in the federated clubs. They have awakened to the fact that Minnesota needs advertisement, and Mr. Mosher says they are thoroughly in earnest in their efforts to secure the appropriation.

While this money would result in great good to all of the state, Mr. Mosher states that the northern part of the state, owing to the fact that it has millions of acres of land that are not under cultivation, because there are no farmers to cultivate the land, will derive the most benefit from the advertising of Minnesota.

"There are many people in the East who, to this day, believe that Minnesota is in the arctic region," said Mr. Mosher. "They do not believe that there are fertile farming lands here. They are passing through Minnesota to Canada, because that country has placed the value of its resources before the public, and in doing so they are passing squarely through one of the garden spots of America. They are doing this, simply because they are in ignorance of the facts. The fault lies with Minnesota, not with the people who are seeking homes."

However, he says that the Duluth Commercial club has been doing valiant service, and that he is of the opinion that the people of the northern part of the state have, in a measure, awakened to their own needs.

The state federation has also the good roads movement under its guiding influence, and Mr. Mosher also suggests that this is another movement that is of the greatest importance to the northern part of the state. He asks that the people of the northern part of the state, and especially of St. Louis county, to take up this movement and assist the federation in every way in securing the appropriation that means so much to the state.

"There's a Reason"

CAT WAS IMPRISONED FOR THREE DAYS IN PILLAR

There was great commotion in the lobby of the St. Louis hotel last evening. There came the mewing of a cat, loud and pathetic, and everyone in the lobby looked to see where the noise was coming from. No one knew. Then someone sitting near the big pillar of the lobby, put his ear close to the hollow support and shouted that the cat was imprisoned inside the pillar.

Tilton Lewis, in the rescue role, ran for a saw. He pried up some of the tiling from the floor, bored a hole in the pillar, inserted the saw and began to saw. When the first rays of daylight, or rather electric light, came through to the imprisoned cat, she set up a gladsome mew that brought tears to the eyes of the rescuer.

Finally the cat was rescued. In its delight it ran straight for the cafe. On its way through the cafe it scented a piece of meat, and giving a spring landed square upon the table, grabbed the succulent morsel and was off again, continuing its flight through the kitchen door of the cafe to the basement.

The cat had been imprisoned in the pillar for three days. A carpenter was sawing a hole in the second floor of the hotel, the cat fell in and remained in the hole.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"The market for copper continues quiet, with prices firm. Lake is 14⅝ to 14¾ cents, and electrolytic is 14½ cents per pound. Some copper is moving all the time, sales recently having aggregated quite a number of million pounds weekly. At present consumers are buying sparingly for advance account. As a rule they are expecting lower prices. The increasing stocks of copper abroad and the tremendous growth of production in the country make them believe that the metal will sell lower soon. As a result practically all the surplus stocks of copper in existence are held by producers and speculators.

"I have made an extended inquiry into the metal situation this week, and what I have learned convinces me that the position is much stronger than generally believed. To illustrate, while there were some interruptions to production in the first half of the year, the copper mines of the world made high record outputs for at least nine or eleven months of 1908. Notwithstanding the general depression in business, it appears that more than the total amount of copper produced within the year went into consumption, as the total visible and private supplies of copper were about 50 per cent smaller on Jan. 1 than they were a year previous. After the termination of the October, 1907, panic the world's copper surplus approximated 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 pounds. At present the world's surplus stocks do not exceed 200,00,000 pounds. Therefore, consumption must have exceeded production.

"A year or more ago I frequently assured the readers of these letters that when general business begun to improve copper would be one of the first commodities to feel it. While it was necessary to curtail the iron, steel and coal business to from 40 to 65 per cent of their normal output to avoid a surplus accumulation in 1908, the world's copper mines practically maintained their output at full volume and it was absorbed by the world's trade.

"As business goes on improving the demand for copper will grow more rapidly than the demand for other commodities, and when confidence has been restored in consuming circles the surplus now existing will be absorbed very quickly, and the price will advance.

"I am told that there are between twenty-five and thirty different points on the railroad map of this country where electrical power is to supersede steam in the comparatively near future. In the great number of cases the power will be obtained from streams, and on all the mountain lines the overhead trolley system will be used instead of the third rail. This means a tremendous consumption of copper, not only in the generating plants and for the local equipments, but also for the long transmission and trolley lines.

"An electrical engineer who has charge of the work of equipping a piece of mountain railroad with electricity says that among other advantages it will increase the carrying capacity of this single line road 50 per cent. If this is true it is of almost incalculable importance. When the big business boom was on two years ago the railroads of this country were crowded to the full limit of their capacities, and there was congestion at every transfer point. Talk was heard of double-tracking a great many of the trunk lines. If electrical power will increase the carrying capacity of a railroad 50 per cent, it will defer the necessity of double-tracking for years, and will greatly increase railroad gross and net earnings per mile of track.

"It must be recognized that the coming demand for copper, consequent upon the equipment of steam railroads with electrical power, will be an entirely new demand. The copper mines of the world have been able to sell their production at a very handsome profit heretofore, without selling it to steam railroads installing electrical power systems. I believe this new demand will very much more than take care of the increased production, and that it will cause the price of copper to average higher than 15 cents for several years to come. There is every reason for the belief that copper consumption will continue to grow more rapidly than production."

GUGGENHEIM IN DIVORCE SUIT

Wife Brings Second Action Against the Smelting Magnate.

New York, Jan. 18.—Application for counsel fees and alimony in the supreme court here today disclosed the fact that Grace B. Guggenheim has brought suit for divorce a second time against William Guggenheim, one of the several brothers prominent in the smelting industry.

The first divorce was obtained in Illinois about eight years ago and counsel for the plaintiff in the present suit, argued before Justice Gerard today, that the decree was illegal because Mrs. Guggenheim's residence visits of two days each to Chicago at that time for the purpose of getting the decree did not constitute permanent residence there.

Since the first divorce, Guggenheim and his former wife have married, but the marriage of Grace B. Guggenheim to a young Frenchman was annulled by the French courts in May, 1908.

Arguments on the plaintiff's application for alimony and counsel fees was postponed until Monday.

NEW YEAR IN CHINATOWN

Seven Day Celebration Will Begin Next Thursday.

Duluth Celestials Are Too Busy to Celebrate This Year.

A Chinese New Year's feast would make the most elaborate American banquet effort look trivial and highly uninteresting.

It is impossible for the white man, who has the opportunity to attend one of these Chinese banquets, to decipher the menu card, which is written in the Chinese language, but as the dishes and wines make their appearance upon the banquet board, one's eyes grow big with wonderment.

They have bird's nest soup. They have wonderful concoctions made from crabs. They have prepared fishes which you wouldn't know where to index in the natural history dictionary. They have chicken in various forms. chop suey in many different disguises, and wines, the brilliant color of which, would make an Italian sunset look like a sombre bas relief.

The Chinese new year begins on Thursday. In China the celebration is continued for seven days. In Chinatown in San Francisco and New York, and some of the other large American cities where there is a large Chinese population, they celebrate the full week of celebration. In Duluth, however, it is probable that the celebration of the birth of the Chinese new year will be perfunctory. Possibly a few of the local colony will get together, but outside of that there will be no formal celebration of the turning of a new leaf in the Chinese calendar.

One of the reasons why the Duluth Chinamen do not celebrate more elaborately is because they are too busy. There are about seventy Chinamen in the local colony. Most of them are employed in the restaurants. This year some of the more patriotic of the colony tried to get up a celebration, and going among their brethren, they found that little enthusiasm was expressed in favor of the celebration, so the matter was dropped.

No Chinese celebration is complete without fireworks. When the Chinese citizen starts out to have a celebration, he can introduce more kinds of noises into his style of entertainment than were uncorked at the battle of Gettysburg.

They eat and drink those vari-colored wines. They don't seem to get intoxicated; at least their Oriental lack of expression doesn't disclose the fact to the white observer. They eat and they drink, and then comes the big noise. They sit unmoved through it all, though once in a while, when the white brother will jump at some unusually loud explosion, the celestial will give a knowing grin. The grin means so much and yet means so little.

It is the custom of the Chinamen to clean his house from top to bottom at the beginning of the new year. It is probable that this part of the custom will be followed out in Duluth. But, according to the statement of one of the leading restaurant keepers of Duluth, the Chinese here will not give much outward show to the celebration of the new year.

In China, there will be big doings, according to the statement of one of the local colony. This will be the first new year for the little emperor, since he has ascended to the Chinese throne, and they are going to celebrate the event in grand style.

Day Shift Claims Victory.

Over the honor of being the first to break through the western end of the new Wing mine, or central tunnel, a dispute has arisen between the night and the day shifts, and both claim the victory.

According to the day shift men, they worked one-half hour overtime Thursday night to accomplish the much-sought end. At 8:30 o'clock they claim to have broken through, Bob Johnson being the first man to crawl through the small opening.

IRONWOOD MINING CAPTAIN IS KILLED.

Ironwood, Mich., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. John Shea was killed while blasting in the Hennepin mine. He was a resident of this city, married, having a wife and five children. It is thought two miners were killed also. Capt. Shea was 50 years old.

The Woman's Civic League of Atlanta has just passed a resolution asking the city council to allow women to vote on a proposed bond issue of $1,500,000. The league points out that Atlanta has many women property-holders who have the good of their city at heart; that in many instances their property is the result of their own efforts, and that if women know how to make money and how to take care of it, they certainly should have the right to say for what purpose and by whom their taxes should be expended.

Julius Caesar left an estate in England valued at $6,675. He was a chemist, carrying on business in London. His ancestor, Caesar Adelmare, an Italian doctor, attended Queen Mary and was paid the record fee of $500. She styled him her Julius Caesar. This name he begged her to authorize him to use, and she granted him letters of naturalization. The Italian doctor's son became Sir Julius Caesar and was a prominent physician in his day. Many of his family bearing the name have been doctors and surgeons of distinction.

ENGLISH WOMEN'S WRONGS.

The Present Laws Work Grave Injustice to Wives.

The suffragettes over in England are commonly supposed in this country to be fighting more for an abstract principle than for any practical personal advantage to women. That there are still on the statute books laws which are astonishingly unjust to women was proved no longer ago than August of this year.

Two wills proved during August, says the London Illustrated News, have reminded us of one of the rights that a British husband possesses in excess of those enjoyed by the less fortunate married men of most other countries, the right of leaving the partner of his life penniless at his own discretion.

One of the testators in question had a grim sense of humor. He commands his widow "to enter a convent and spend the rest of her life in prayer," in which case he pays for her board with a legacy of £1,000 to the superior of said convent; but if the widow refuses this disposition of her future existence then she is to have no provision at all but is to face the world with only "her wardrobe and jewelry."

The other husband certainly utterly lacked humor, for his wife died before him, and yet we are informed he resisted the entreaties of his friends to erase from his will a clause leaving his poor spouse, who now wanted no more in this world full of wants, one single shilling out of his fortune.

It is surely doubtful if the law ought to sanction the enormity of a woman who has given up in her married life all other prospect of providing for her own old age being left at last destitute by her husband's will. This possibility is the more cruel because it is further the case that under English law a wife may not save the merest pittance for herself out of money received by her from her husband; all such savings belong to the husband's estate.

In France, Belgium and some other countries a testator is compelled in the first place to leave a certain provision to wife and children before disposings of the balance as his own whim or reason may suggest; and surely this is just, under the circumstances in which marriage places a woman.

But a man—an Englishman—does not have to wait until he is dead for the privilege of pauperizing his wife. Another English publication, the Gentlewoman, contains some interesting information about what John Bull can do to his wife while he I salive.

Not only may a man refuse his wife any money at all to put in her pocket and use as she chooses, is says, but he may legally keep her in a most meagre fashion as regards food and clothing, without reference to his means.

The magistrate at the Southwestern London police court stated the law to be in a case heard as recently as July, 1908), that a man who had an income of five pounds a week might allowance his wife to only one shilling a day to provide her own food.

"If the husband took exception to his wife having meat more than two days out of the seven," said this exponent of the laws of London, "that was not a matter in which the court could interfere."

It is only a year since the workingmen's wives were thrown into consternation by a women court judge ordering some £40 that a woman had laboriously saved during many years of thrifty housekeeping out of the money allowed her by her husband for the household expenses to be paid out of the savings bank to the husband.

The judge explained to the astonished woman, and thereby to all other married household workers, that if a wife had had no other source of income, except money handed to her by her husband, not a farthing of that even belongs to her as her earnings or returns for her work in the home or for her child nurture, the case was still her husband's absolute property, and, therefore, anything that she had saved out of it was also his, not her own.

This home maker, therefore, was stripped of her little provision for a rainy day, and all the other hard working women who have little investments in co-operative stores, or what not, were thus made to understand that as wives they are held by the laws of the land to esern and own not a shilling, and that any little hard saved treasure they have stored can be spent at any time by their husbands when and as they choose.

Another case followed still more recently to emphasize the position of a wife and her home tasks from the economic standpoint. In this case the man had been abroad for some years, and had sent his wife for the family support such sums as he thought fit. The wife, choosing to devote her energy and ability to the economical conduct of her home rather—as she had been doing—than earning an income in a profession, saved some of the allowance.

As in this case, at any rate the husband being out of the country, could not have been deprived of any home comforts, the county court judge was rather doubtful if the law deprived the wife of her small savings. But the high court of justice, when appealed to, put the matter beyond all doubt. The judges repeated that the law is that if a wife has no outside source of income she can own nothing.

A lady had a dozen photographs taken at a cost of a guinea, and had paid for them out of her housekeeping allowance. The husband claimed that he could suppress the negative, as it was paid for with his money, and it was paid for with his money, and this case (so trivial in one point of view, but so dreadfully important to women in another point of view) was settled in the husband's favor, on the ground just recounted, namely, that a wife has absolutely no rights to any money at all as earned by home-making and child-tending labors.

Finally, not only does a wife not earn a single penny by her household work, but she may be left by will absolutely a pauper on her husband's death, though he may have quite a fortune to leave behind him, and she have been a faithful wife during the whole of her days of strength and earning capacity. Even if a husband die intestate, the law does not give his widow his property—though it does give a widower all the property of a wife who dies intestate.

It was represented as a great act of grace when the house of commons quite recently ordained that the widow might have what was left by an intestate up to £500 in cash. In landed property also a wife has certain rights in intestacy, but she has none in case her husband makes a will and chooses to leave her penniless in her later days after a life spent in the service of her home.

It is the laws that are unjust, in the way the position is regarded of women who could have, if they trained in youth and kept to work, made good professional incomes, but who have accepted wifehood, motherhood and home making for their occupation in life's heyday.

I urge that these women actually do earn their living—that a husband has no more right to refuse a wife an independent income, in proportion to his means, than the office partner in a manufacturing business who actually gets the money in hand has to refuse the proper share of it to the partner who overlooks the internal arrangements of the factory—and that the wife has a just right to spend or to save as she pleases from her portion, her wages for her home-making work.

SHE'S AWAY.

Chicago News: "My wife's up in Michigan with the kids," explained the convivial-looking citizen. "I was up with them for a couple of weeks, but that was all I could spare from business."

"Of course," said the man with the scattered and retreating hair, with a jocular wink. "Business has to be attended to, doesn't it? How much longer do you suppose you'll be able to keep her up there?"

"She'll have to come back now so the children can go to school," said the convivial-looking citizen. "I expect her in a day or two. I'll be mighty glad to have her back."

"I know it," said the man with the retreating hair, grinning. "You'll be tickled to death, won't you? It's awful lonely sitting in the house by yourself evenings and listening to the clock tick—what? How long have you been in solitude?"

"About two weeks," replied the convivial-looking citizen.

"Dear me!" sighed the man with the retreating hair. "I suppose you relieved the pangs of absence mainly by going back to the office and working till 1 or 2 in the morning. I know how it is."

"It's fierce!" said the convivial-looking citizen. "All the same I haven't been doing any late office work. I can generally find enough to do between 8:30 and 5 to satisfy my conscience and take the edge off my energy. No; what I've been needing has been a little evening relaxation of some sort. As you say, it's not very lively sitting alone and listening to the clock tick. There's nothing meaner than staying in the house by one's self."

"Even when you can get a few good fellows to drop in and help you while away the weary hours it isn't like having the gracious presence of a woman in the house, is it?" said the other man.

"It is not," replied the convivial-looking citizen, gravely. "But I haven't had any friends over in the evening, if I had I wouldn't be alone, would I?"

"How true!" said the man with the retreating hair. "Where are you going to whoop it up tonight?"

"At home," replied the convivial-looking citizen. "I eat downtown, of course, but I go home to spend the evening. I generally read and smoke a pipe or two and then toddle to bed. Sometimes when I'm feeling particularly giddy and reckless I start up the phonograph for a while."

"What are you doing—rehearsing?" asked the man with the retreating hair.

"I don't understand," said the convivial-looking citizen.

"Is that what you're going to tell your wife? See here, you take my advice and don't try it. You tell it pretty well, but the madam must know you just a little bit by this time. No use in trying how much you can get sense in trying how much you can get her to swallow. There might come a time you'll want her to believe something that's really so."

"I think I catch your meaning at last," said the convivial-looking citizen. "You suppose that I'm taking advantage of my wife's absence to conduct myself in a manner unbecoming a sober, respectable married man. You think that I'm painting all the old roumers I've ever known to join me in a mad whirl of dissipation."

"A little harmless recreation after the cares of the day, I should call it," said the man with the retreating hair. "You've got the idea, all right, though. We'll say 'hitting her up pretty lively' if you prefer it."

"When I want to do that I'll do it when my wife's at home," said the convivial-looking man. "Then she'll know the worst and she won't worry to speak of. I do like a little evening out once in a while, but not while she's away, thank your all the same. What I do then is to catch my regular train to town and get back in time to sprinkle the lawn. I haven't missed an evening since I got back."

"You are a noble character and a pattern to your sex," said the man with the retreating hair. "I would that there were more like you, but I fear you are in a class by yourself."

"Don't you ever think it," said the convivial-looking citizen. "I'm not the only fellow that's got observant neighbors."

OREGON JUSTICE.

On April 8 of last year at Baker City, Or., two men beat a woman on the public street, says Collier's, with the usual kind of heavy strap. One of these men held a revolver in his hand so as to compel the woman to stand and take the beating, while the other brutally beat her.

The men were convicted by a jury. They were convicted under a statute that provided that "if any person shall assault or assault and beat another with a cowhide, whip, stick or like thing, having at the time in his possesson a pisol, dirk or other deadly weapon, with intent to intimidate and prevent such other form resisting or defendinf himself, such person, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years."

The district attorney in his information charged the fact that the defendants held a gun while they beat the woman with a leather strap. The case was reversed on the ground that the information "contains nothing to bring the strap within the class of instruments mentioned under 'cowhide, whip, stick or like thing.'" "Where the instrument used is not one of those named in the statute," says the court, "then it must be so described as to bring it within the term or 'like thing,' and it is not sufficient to refer to it as a leather strap. Therefore, the information is insufficient to charge the crime defined by the statute."

The remarkable thing about this decision is that a leather strap, according to 'most any of the standard dictionaries, comes within the definitions of a whip. Nothing was said by the supreme court about the gun. As a matter of fact, the very presence of the gun alone, without the strap, levelled at the woman, with intent to do her injury constituted an assault in the first degree, the minimum punishment for which was equal to that which had been imposed by the trial court.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Markets in America Are Fractionally Higher at the Close.

Flax Is Two Points Up at End of Quiet Session.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 18.—Wheat was higher at the end of an uneventful session in the American markets today. The wheat sold within a range of nearly a point, but there was no particular news during the day.

The demand was quite insistent at times and a better tone than Saturday's prevailed all of the time. Cables were strong, which fact had something to do with the strength on this side of the Atlantic. World's shipments were about as expected.

Liverpool closed ½d to ⅝d higher, Berlin ½c higher and Budapest 1½c higher.

The May option closed ½c higher in Duluth, ¼@⅜c higher in Chicago, ⅝c higher in Minneapolis, ⅜c higher in New York, ¼c higher in St. Louis, ⅜@½c higher in Kansas City and unchanged in Winnipeg. The July option closed ¾c higher in Duluth and New York, ¼@⅝c higher in Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City, ⅛c higher in St. Louis and Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛@¼c higher in Chicago and unchanged to ¼d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed a shade higher in Chicago.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm, Due to Moderate Support by Bull Leaders.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—Desulte the bearish character of weekly statistics, the wheat market today was firm, owing to moderate support by bull leaders. The demand was based chiefly on liberal decreases in stocks of wheat at important grain centers in this country, and on the improvement in demand for the cash grain. World's shipments were fairly liberal, being 7,904,000 bushels for the week, compared with 6,992,000 bushels the previous week, and the amount on passage increased 1,000,000 bushels. Prices at the start were ¼@¾c to ¼@⅝c higher, May opening at $1.06⅜ to $1.06½. After touching $1.06¼ May advanced to $1.06⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 363 cars, against 297 cars last week and 732 cars a year ago.

The market held firm all day, the high point for May being reported at $1.06¾. The close was firm with May up ¼@⅜ at $1.06½@c.

An official forecast of unsettled weather for the corn belt caused moderate strength in the corn market. The fact that local receipts were less than had been estimated also had a bullish effect. May opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 61c to 61@⅛c and sold at 61½c. Local receipts were 351 cars, with six of contract grade.

The market was steady the remainder of the day with prices a trifle above Saturday's quotations. The close was firm with May ⅛@¼c at 61⅝c.

Although trade in the oats market was quiet, a firm tone prevailed owing to the strength of wheat. May opened a shade lower, at 51¼c, and advanced to 51½c. Local receipts were 125 cars.

Provisions were strong on buying credited to local packers. The demand was based on smaller receipts of live hogs here and on a decrease in average weight of the arrivals. The prices at the start were 5 to 10c higher.

Close—Wheat: May, $1.06½; July, 97⅝c; September, 94¼c; December, 94½c. Corn—January, 57⅜c; May, 61¼c; July, 61½c; September, 61⅝c. Oats—May, 51⅜c; July, 45⅞c; September, 38¾c. Pork—January, $17.07½@17.10; May, $17.17½; July, $17.25. Lard

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Liberal World's Shipments Prove an Offset to Wheat Strength.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 18.—Cables came ½d higher at the opening of the week and they gained another ½d shortly. Liverpool firmness was due to smaller offerings of Argentine wheat. Liberal world's shipments, however, were an offset to strength. The feature of the day was the posting of 328 cars for Minneapolis receipts against 627 a year ago. The local elevator stocks increased 100,000 bushels for two days. Duluth got 24 cars against 51, Winnipeg 152 against 232. The market was firm in tone, but in narrow price range. Liverpool close ½d higher made strength here, but selling appeared and it was a choppy market. May opened $1.07⅞; high, $1.08⅜; low, ..07⅝; close, $1.08. July opened $1.08¼; high, $1.08⅝; low, $1.08; close, $1.08¼@¾. Fair inquiry was noted for cash wheat on the basis of 1⅛c over May for No. 1 northern. Millers were buyers of top of grades. Close, No. 1 northern spot $1.08; to arrive, $1.09; No. 2 northern spot, $1.07; to arrive, $1.07; No. 2 wheat, $1.03¾@1.05¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 55½@⅝c. No. 3 white oats, 47⅞@⅝c. No. 2 rye, 69¾@71⅝c.

Barley—Receipts, 109 cars against 159. Shipments, 45. Better demand appeared and prices averaged about ½c; close, 55¾@58c.

Flax—Receipts, 53 cars against 116. Shipments, 2. The largest receipts so far this year were in today. No. 1 sold at ½c over Duluth May. Close, $1.58¾.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,539 tons. Millers quote bulk corn at $19.00@19.75.

Flour remains quiet. Locally a fair inquiry was noted for top grades, but low grade flour is dull. Country millers report trade better than do the Minneapolis millers. Shipments 39,716 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.50; second patents, $5.15@5.45; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.05.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

The "failure" of Spencer, Moore & Co., is now actually a thing of the past.

Saturday night, the firm sent out checks in settlement of all out-standing trade, fulfilling the promise made by the members the day after the failure was announced, that every claim would be paid in full and the firm would resume business at once.

The issuance of the checks covering the embarrassed firm's indebtedness, wipes out the stringency completely and restores Spencer, Moore & Co., to its place among the Duluth board of trade firms regularly doing business on the floor.

Jesse G. Strang of Alexandria, Minn., was a visitor on the floor during the session today. Mr. Strang was formerly connected with the state grain inspection department and has been in the grain business for many years.

THE DENTAL BARKER.

Who Stands in Front of the Dentist's Office.

The average citizen may not be able to see how his employer could derive a profit from the work of the dental barker, but there he still stands on the sidewalk, perhaps in civilian attire or it may be in a more or less gorgeous uniform, chanting in a low tone the name of the dental parlor for which he barks and handing out cards to such of the passersby as will take them, says the New York Sun.

If a man has a toothache he is apt to know it, and in such a case he is likely to go to a dentist without solicitation, but even in these days of advanced dental surgery one would scarcely be likely to go to the dentist unless he needed to, however much he might be solicited, and so who are the clients that the dental barker pulls in?

Are they strangers who have developed toothache in the train or boat coming here and who, not knowing where to go in the city, are caught in this opportune moment by the barker? Two or three hundred thousand strangers come to the city every day. Do enough of these have a toothache spring on them here to make it profitable to keep a man on the sidewalk to tell these chance sufferers where to go?

There must be some strangers thus pulled in for the relief of toothache, and there must be some drawn in to get work done. But are these chance customers from among the strangers enough to pay for keeping the barker going?

It would scarcely seem so. Then whom else does the barker get?

Customers, maybe, from among city dwellers who have no toothache or teeth needing tinkering but take the cards he offers as they would take cards offered by anybody because they are offered. Such a card taker may throw the card aways in the next step or he may put it in his pocket and carry it home to put in on his bureau or his table there to catch the eye when he does want to go to a dentist and then this dental parlor may get him.

Something in this, perhaps, and still on the face of things there doesn't seem to be much. And as for drawing anybody in right of the reel that is something one never sees done. You may see a man stop and talk with a dental barker, but you do not often see a man or a woman in response to his chant stop and turn in to the dental parlor.

And so the use of the dental barker is a mystery. He doesn't seem actually to pull in people and yet the dentist would not keep him there if it didn't pay, and he ought to know. Anyway, he keeps him there.

There are dental barkers who have been following this work for years, doing this steadily just as they might follow any other employment. You pass that way and there they stand month after month and year after year, chanting in the same low monotone the name of the establishment for which they bark. So it must pay to keep them there.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Opened With Gains, But Fell Off on Realizing.

Acute Weakness of Amalgamated Copper Had Depressing Effect.

New York, Jan. 18.—Opening prices of stocks showed a number of striking gains, which were mostly amongst stocks not of the greatest prominence. Norfolk & Western advanced 1½ New York Central and American Cotton Oil 1⅛, Kansas City Southern 1 and Wabash preferred, Third avenue, Colorado Fuel and Sloss-Sheffield large fractions. Amalgamated Copper declined ¾.

Opening gains were reduced when the traders sold to realize. Some of the strong low-priced stocks were notably weak and few of the representative stocks fell below Saturday's closing. Later support of the general market and a brisk advance in New York Central pulled prices up to about the opening figures. Ntw York Central advanced 2⅛ points, Northwestern and Iowa Central preferred 1¾, and Hide and Leather preferred 1. The Wisconsin Central preferred fell 1 to 1¼.

For a time United States Steel was in large demand but at 53 offerings were in excess. Prices fell back a fraction all around. Western Maryland rose 2 ,Cleveland C. C. & St. Louis 1¼ and St. Louis Southwestern preferred 1. Chesapeake & Ohio, Atchison and American Agricultural Chimical declined 1 and Consolidated Gas and New Haven 2. Bonds were firm.

The copper stocks monopolized the limited amount of speculation attention and also went to the widest fluctuations, Amalgamater falling 1¾ and American Smelting 1 account the reduction in the price of the metal. Delaware & Hudson and Erie first preferred also sagged a point, but otherwise the market was featureless.

Prices dropped on small dealings, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred losing 2⅛, American Chemical 2, Wisconsin Central 1¾ and Utah Copper 1. United States Realty rose 1½.

The market closed easy and dull. The acute weakness of Amalgamated Copper, which dropped 6 2⅝ had a depressing effect on the general tone, but movements were not wide. Erie first preferred fell 1⅝, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Wabash preferred, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Metropolitan Street Railway, Anaconda and International Pump preferred, 1. Western Electric first preferred sold at a decline of 5.

JANUARY 18, 1909.

Calumet & Sonora is now beginning to tighten hard at the $20.00 mark. Here is a stock worth at least $80.00 a share. The company owns one of the very richest properties in Old Mexico, and the mines belonging to this company are about 800 times as big as some of those we read so much about. Sell your Calumet & Sonora if you do not think that the real big value is back of this one, and the other fellow will have your stock the same as on North Butte and Calumet & Arizona, for one of these days in the near future a 100-share certificate of Calumet & Sonora will be worth at least $6,000. Remember what I say in this ad today.

Look at Butte-Montana that I have advised the purchase of so strongly. The wind has turned on this issue and Butte is now buying the stock. It has been a hard fought game, but we have the stock now, let them pay some decent price for the shares, which of you questions what you have been told about this property, and which of you now questions whether or not these same shares that are trading today at 54 cents are not worth $2.50 in real value. Buy Butte-Montana at this low level, for it is the greatest low-priced proposition on the board to make real big money on; it should easily advance at 1¼. Watch it, for the officers of the company after this will be some of the very best in the country. We should hear some time today from Butte.

Ballaklava closed $16.75 bid, and is one of the very best stocks on the board.

Calumet & Corbin, always good, closed 1¾ bid.

You can not find a better buy in the country than Calumet & Sonora at $20.00, and Butte-Montana is also an absolute clinch.

Give us your business, we will give you service.

WEST END

BIRTHDAY OF CHURCH

Twentieth Anniversary of Organization of Bethany Lutheran Congregation.

Clergyman of Early Days Here to Tell of Its History.

The twentieth anniversary of the organization of Bethany Lutheran church was celebrated yesterdaw and the services will be continued until tomorrow evening

The principal speaker at the exercises yesterday was Rev. C G. Collins, the first Swedish Lutheran clergygan in the city of Duluth. He told of the formation of Bethany parish twenty years ago and remarked on its progress until the present time.

Twenty years ago Mr. Collins was the pastor of the First Swedish Lutheran church .

Members of the First Swedish Lutheran church, which occupies a handsome building at Sixth avenue east and Third street joined the members of Bethany church in the services there last evening.

A special anniversary program will be given in the church tomorrow evening.

When Bethany church was organized, the names of eighty-four members were enrolled on the books. Now the church has a congregation of sometwo hundred like 567, and owns property valued at about $35,000.

Rev. Carl G. Olson, who come here about three years ago from Nebraska, is the present pastor of the church.

Guilds Will Merge.

The Altar guild, otherwise known as St. Agnes guild, and the This-and-That guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church, will hold a joint meeting this evening in the vestry rooms, and the two organizations will be consolidated.

The guilds are composed of the young women of the parish of different ages. In the past they have been separate organizations, but it has been decided that there would be a greater efficiency in an amalgamated society, so they will be merged this evening.

Will Get Signatures.

The West End Hillside Improvement club will probbly hold a meeting within the next ten days to secure remaining signatures necessary to petition to have Piedmont avenue graded to permit of an extension of the street car line.

With the signing of every petition goes an agreement to bear a share of the expense of the work as the combined appropriations of the city and the council will not quite pay for it.

Members of the club anticipate no trouble in getting the necessary signatures.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Nellie Horgan left Saturday for Marquette, where she will make her home with her sister.

Rev. Nils Ek of Thief River Falls, Minn., conducted the services in the First Swedish Baptist church yesterday, the pastor, Rev. A. Edstam, being at Grand Lake.

Rev. James Sanacker, district superintendent of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church conference, preached yesterday in the First Norwegian-Danish church. Rev. Mr. Sanacker is making his home now at Minneapolis.

Nels Solmquist of Long Prairie, Minn., is spending a few days with friends in the West end.

The choir of the First Swedish M. E. church will give a cantata in the church Wednesday evening.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church, held last week, it was decided to give a social Friday evening in the vestry rooms. The Altar Guild will assist the ladies. The social will be free, and is designated to promote good fellowship among the members of the parish.

Rev. J. Wilfred Loughridge preached a sermon in memomry of the late Guy Webb, who went to his death on the ill-fated steamer Clemson, in the Central Baptist church yesterday.

Miss Cloie Swenson, Peter Olson, J. C. Wesenberg and C. T. Bush have gone to Grand Rapids, Minn., to attend hte district convention of the Modern Brotherhood of America.

J. D. Stevens of Grand Rapids, Minn., is visiting his sister, Mrs. D. R. Scott, of Twentieth avenue west.

Mrs. H. F. Davis of West Fourth street has as her guest, Miss Mattie Breen of Minneapolis.

The Bema club will hold its regular weekly meeting tomorrow evening in Dr. Oredsons's office. Five-minute talks will be given by the different members.

The club of West end young men, composed of Arthur Shalin, Iver Wohlin and several others, is planning to enlarge its bungalow, near Woodland.

Frank Swanstrom has been elected president of the Luther League of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church. Miss Hilda Miller has been named secretary and Peter Stenberg, treasurer.

The Spi club of Grace M. E. church held an interesting session Saturday evening. The work of fitting up the basement as a gymnasium was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Henderson of Twenty-first avenue west have gone to Minneapolis to visit their daughter.

LURED TO DEATH BY FALSE NOTE

Murder of Former Miner's Union Chief Baffles Helena Police.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 18.—The police are working on a murder case which has proved most baffling. Early Saturday John Hancock, a well-known mining man and former president of the Miners' union, was found unconscious in the front yard of the St. John's Catholic hospital.

Friday night Hancock received a note purporting to be from the secretary of the Miners' union, who stated that he was in the hospital and wanted Hancock to come to him. Hancock responded, and his body was found lying in a snowdrift at 5 a. m. Saturday, near the hospital door. Death ensued a few hours later.

The supposed author of the note was not at the hospital and was in entire ignorance of the affair. There is absolutely no clue to the perpetrators.

CASES OF INTEREST

INTERRUPTION OF SERMON BY RIVAL PREACHER.—In the case of Woodhall vs. State, 62 Southeastern Reportter, 485, it appeared that defendant, a negro preacher, had been indicted for the disturbance of a congregation assembled for divine worship. The evidence showed that defendant, to keep the ears of his flock unsullied by doubtful doctrines of a rival minister, arose, interrupted, and himself began an harangue. No force or violence was indulged in. The court of appeals of Georgia held that as the purpose of defendant was to carry on divine worship, and not to prevent it, he was not guilty. It remarked also that it is beyond the power of the courts to settle by criminal prosecutions the respective rights of contesting claimants to a benefice, even in a negro church.

SLEEPING JUROR.—During the trial of a case one of the jurors closed his eyes and appeared to be slumbering. The attorneys for appellant made affidavits that he was asleep. The opposing attorneys made affidavits that he was not asleep. The juror himself swore that he was not asleep, but that he had a habit of closing his eyes when listening to others, and that he heard all that was said by both witnesses and lawyers. In Continental Casualty Co. vs. Semple, 112 Southwestern Reporter, 1122, the Court of Appeals of Kentucky decided that the circumstances did not warrant a discharge of the jury from the trial of the case.

CAN SECRET SOCIETIES DESCRIBE ACT VIOLATING A STATUTE?—A Montana statutes provide that any person who shall wear or use the insignia or ceremonials of any society, order or organization of ten years standing in the state, unless entitled to use or wear the same under the constitution or regulations of such organization, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. In State vs. Holland, 96 Pacific Reporter, 719, appellant contended that this law was unconstitutional as it enabled the organization to fix the offense, thus delegating to it the exercise of powers rightfully belonging to the legislature. Thus a citizen was unable to ascertain from the statute what he was prohibited to do, but had to gain such information from the regulations of a secret society which were closed to him. To avoid the penalty of the statute he had to keep himself posted as to the changes in such societies. The supreme court of Montana held that as the legislature declared the prohibition and provided the penalty for its violation, but left it to the societies to supply the description of the violated ritual, the statute was unconstitutional.

SERVANT UNABLE TO COMPREHEND ENGLISH IS INCOMPETENT.—Plaintiff was engaged as feeder of a machine for making pasteboard which two men were required to operate. The assistant of plaintiff was called the "catcher," whose duty it was to turn off and on the power in starting or stopping. While plaintiff was cleaning this machine his fingers became caught and he called out to the catcher to shut off the power. Owing to his inability to comprehend English, the catcher turned on the power. The fingers of plaintiff were amputated. The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts in Beers vs. Isaac Prouty & Co., 85 Northeastern Reporter, 864, held that his inability to understand English rendered the catcher incompetent, and that the employer was liable to plaintiff for the injury.

ILLEGAL SOLICITATION OF CAMPAIGN FUNDS.—Defendant was indicted under the federal statute for soliciting in the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., a contribution of money for a political purpose from the postmaster. It appeared that defendant was the Republican committee chairman of the county, and that he was conducting a political campaign there. He wrote letters in his office to a number of persons, including the postmaster, soliciting contributions, and after putting them in envelopes, and sealing and addressing them, took them to the postoffice to stamp and mail.

While stamping the letters in the postoffice, the postmaster came into the room and spoke to him. Defendant thereupon handed him the letter addressed to him, saying: "This will save a stamp." He took the letter, and defendant, without advising him as to its contents, immediately left the postoffice not having in any way solicited any contribution, except by the sealed letter. In United States vs. Smith, 163 Federal Reporter, 926, the United States district court held that a verbal solicitation was not necessary to constitute the offense. The illegal solicitation may be by letter. The statute forbids the solicitation in "any manner whatever." The solicitation was complete and the statute was violated when the letter was handed to the postmaster

TURNTABLE DOCTRINE. — The plaintiff, in Cahill vs. E. B. & A. L. Stone & Co., 96 Pacific Reporter, 84, a youth 12 years of age, was injured by a push car left standing unguarded on a railroad track in the street. The supreme court of California in reviewing the case holds that it is not distinguishable from the "turntable cases," and affirms the doctrine therein laid down.

SENTENCE FOR CRIME NO BAR TO CONVICTION OF MISDEMEANOR ON DIFFERENT CHARGE.—Mose Coleman while under sentence of twelve months to the chain gang for assault with intent to murder, was convicted of the disturbance of public assemblage. It appeared that he had snatched a would-be preacher from the pulpit, telling him that if he attempted to preach he would give him the worst whipping a man ever got. Mose was duly convicted. In Coleman vs. State, 62 Southeastern Reporter, 487, plaintiff in error denied the jurisdiction of the city court for the reason that at the time of his conviction of disturbing public assemblage he was under sentence of a superior court on another charge. The court of appeals of Georgia held that the former conviction did not present a bar to his trial for misdemeanor before the city court.

EXTRATERRITORIAL EFFECT OF DIVORCE LAW.—Appellant in Lanham vs. Lanham, 117 Northwestern Reporter, 787, secured a divorce from her husband on Sept. 15, 1905, for the purpose of marrying one whose worldly goods and extreme antiquity tempted her. The Wisconsin law provides that one year must elapse between a change of spouses by a divorcee. Undismayed by the discouraging aspect of the law, this couple went into Michigan and were married there by a justice of the peace on Oct. 10, 1905, and immediately thereafter returned to Wisconsin. The man, being no longer able to ward off the visitation of the reaper from this meadow of connubial bliss, died on March 13, 1907. A few days prior to his death, appellant had applied to the county judge in Wisconsin for a permit to marry him, but his illness prevented the ceremony. The supreme court of Wisconsin held that the marriage in Michigan for the purpose of evading the statute was invalid, as against public policy; that, although the parties had cohabited together for six months subsequent to the year of prohibition, the cohabitation was illegal in its inception, and was insufficient to establish a common-law marriage.

JAPANESE NEITHER "WHITE" NOR OF "AFRICAN DESCENT."—An act of congress provides for the naturalization of aliens who are free white persons, and of aliens of African nativity, and of persons of African ascent. In re Buntaro Kumagai, 162 Federal Reporter, 922, it appeared that a Japanese gentleman, holding a certificate of honorable discharge from the army of the United States, applied for naturalization. There appeared to be no objection to his admission to citizenship on personal grounds. The United States district court, in refusing the application, remarked that the statute limits the privilege of naturalization to white persons and those of African nativity or descent. The use of the words "white persons" clearly indicates the intention of congress to maintain a line of demarkation between races, and to extend the privilege of naturalization only to those of the race which is predominant in this country.

FRAUDULENT REPRESENTATIONS MADE TO PART OF JOINT PURCHASERS.—A number of farmers, some of whom were induced by false representations as to his potency, purchased a stallion for breeding purposes. The note given for the price was indorsed to a third party. The horse proving unsatisfactory, the purchasers sought to escape payment. In City National Bank of Columbus, Ohio, vs. Jordan et al., 117 Northwestern Reporter, 758, an action was instituted by the indorsee to recover the amount of the note. Plaintiff contended that the representations were immaterial; that they did not appear to have been made to all of the makers of the note, and were therefore insufficient to constitute a defense in favor of any of them. The supreme court of Iowa held that the note was a joint contract, on which all of the buyers, if liable at all, would be bound either as principal makers or as sureties for their co-makers, and in either case the false representations were a good defense to an action on the note in the hands of any person charged with notice, and that, as it was tainted with fraud in its inception, the presumption of good faith ordinarily attaching to the purchase of negotiable paper before maturity no longer obtained, and the burden was on the indorse to show that he received the paper in due course without notice of the fraud.

SURGICAL MUTILATION OF CORPSE. —Plaintiff's wife, being ill, was taken by her family physicians to the charity ward of a hospital where she was intrusted to the hospital surgeon. In a few hours she died. It was necessary to ascertain the cause of her death to make a burial certificate. The hospital surgeon made a slight incision in the side of the corpse, which was sewed up and was not perceptible. In Rushing vs. Medical College Georgia, 62 Southeastern Reporter, 563, the court of appeals of Georgia held that the plaintiff's contention that the body of his wife had been unlawfully mutilated to gratify professional curiosity was unjustified, and that, while the husband is entitled to the laws of health, duly enacted in order that the living may be protected, are salutary and should be observed.

USING POSTOFFICE TO ESTABLISH BOYCOTT.—In United States vs. Raish et al., 163 Federal Reporter, 911, the following state of facts was brought to the attention of the United States district court for the southern district of Illinois: A corporation, pending the enlargement of its planing mill, in order to retain its employes, employed them in the construction. Some of the men belonged to various labor unions. Pending the work, officers of the Carpenters' union requested that all the men be compelled to join their organization. Upon the corporation's refusal, a time was fixed against it, and a boycott threatened. Letters were sent to the corporation's customers urging them not to handle its products. The union officers were indicted for an attempt to defraud, by use of the postoffice in establishing the boycott. Both were found guilty.

DEFECTS OF MORTGAGE REGISTRY TAX LAW TO BE CURED, IF POSSIBLE

Bicknell of Morris Introduces Bill With That Object.

Gross Earnings Tax System for Street Railroads Proposed.

State Banks Want All Deposits of State and County Funds.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—An interesting attempt to make the mortgage registry tax law more just than it is now is involved in a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative W. C. Bicknell of Morris.

In a manner very similar to that attempted in California, he seeks to make the lender of the money pay the tax. The chief trouble with the working of the law as it now stands is that, in practically every instance, it is the luckless borrower who is stuck for the tax, and that is true, thus far, of every attempt made to tax mortgages. If the tax is not paid directly by the borrower, as the case has been with the mortgage registry tax law, it is paid indirectly through higher interest charges.

Mr. Bicknell's proposal is to compel the lender by law to pay the mortgage registry tax and to make that effective, he adds to his bill a provision that if the lender attempts to put the tax off upon the borrower, by contract or otherwise, the note and mortgage shall be void.

That is exactly what California tried to do, and at first it worked. Then the

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The abolition of the death penalty in Minnesota, with the proviso that there shall be no pardon for those convicted of murder in the first degree, is proposed by Representative C. M. Bendixen in two bills introduced in the house this morning. One abolishes the death penalty, leaving imprisonment for life as the punishment for murder in the first degree, and the other provides that the pardon

CHANCES BRIGHT FOR PASSAGE

Bill Will Prohibit Manufacture of Liquor in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 19.—The bill to prohibit the manufacture of liquor came up in the senate this afternoon as a special order. The committee on liquor traffic has recommended the measure for passage, and it is understood the advocates of the measure will insist on disposition notwithstanding insistence of opponents to postpone action.

It seems certain the bill will pass the senate by the same vote by which the Holladay bill to prohibit the sale of liquors passed, 20 to 13.

The governor will send a special message to the two houses and it is believed it will be a veto of the Holladay bill.

ROOSEVELT TAKES HAND

Asks That California Anti-Jap Legislation be Halted.

Governor Gillette Stays State Lawmaking Machinery, Pending Letter.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 19.—President Roosevelt has taken a hand in anti-Japanese legislation before the California legislature, and has asked the governor to have all legislation held up until the president can be heard. In a telegram this request was embodied, and a letter is en route to Sacramento which will give the chief executive's views and wishes in the matter of legislation against the "little brown men."

Governor Gillette telegraphed in reply that he has caused the bills to be held up until he can hear further from the president.

The Drew measure prevents ownership of property for more than seven years by aliens, and this measure was today reported out of committee favorably and was to have passed the assembly at once, but was held up until Wednesday, when it was to be made a special order of business, but, according to Governor Gillette, it will be postponed again.

JOHNSON GETS SENATORSHIP

Receives Entire Republican Vote in North Dakota Legislature.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. N. Johnson was elected United States senator this afternoon on the first ballot, receiving the entire Republican vote in both branches of the legislative assembly. J. L. Cashel, the Democratic nominee, received the support of his party, the division being along party lines. Johnson was nominated in the senate by Jud Lamoure and in the house by B. G. Skulason. Cashel was nominated in the senate by W. E. Purcell and in the house by S. J. Doyle. The joint assembly at noon Wednesday will declare the official vote.

CHINESE CAPTAIN HELD BY BRITON

Is Arrested After Firing at an English Steamer.

Hongkong, Jan. 19.—The Chinese harbor gunboat Samstui fired two shots at the British steamer Chenpo for fouling a wood raft.

This angered Capt. Lewington of the Chenpo, who, arming himself with a revolver, boarded the Samstui in a small boat, arrested the commanding officer, and turned him over to the capital nof the British gunboat Robin.

The occurrence is being investigated by the captain of the Robin and by the British consul.

UNITED STATES AND VENEZUELA SETTLE DISPUTE BY PROTOCOL

Caracas, Jan. 19.—A protocol for the settlement of the disputes between the United States and Venezuela has been agreed upon by W. I. Buchanan, special commissioner of the United States and by the Gomez administration.

The final form of the protocol is awaiting the consent of Secretary Root to certain modifications in the claim of the New York & Bermudez Asphalt company.

Rudolph Dolge, local representative of the Orinoco corporation, one of the claimants, has cabled the company to send to Caracas an attorney to aid him in a settlement.

President Gomez will give a banquet at the Miraflores palace in honor of Mr. Buchanan after the signing of the protocol.

The battleship Maine has left La Guaira for Guantanamo, Cuba. She came down with Mr. Buchanan, but returns north with the practical conclusion of the negotiations.

CLAUSE IS DEFENDED

Bonaparte Argues Commodities Case Before Supreme Court.

Railroad Lawyers Again Attack Part of Hepburn Law.

COMMODITIES CLAUSE.

From and after May 1, 1908, it shall be unlawful for any railroad company to transport from any state, territory or the District of Columbia, to any other state, territory or the District of Columbia or to any foreign country any article or commodity, other than timber or the manufactured products thereof, manufactured, mined or produced by it or under its authority or which it may own in whole or in part, or in which it may have an interest, direct or indirect, except such articles or commodities as may be necessary or intended for its use in the conduct of its business as a common carrier.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Argument in the "commodities clause" cases was reached today in the supreme court of the United States. Attorney General Bonaparte and Solicitor General Hoyt appeared for the government and John D. Johnson of Philadelphia and Robert W. Deforest and Walter D. Hines of New York for the railroad companies.

The cases involve the constitutionality of the clause in the Hepburn rate law of 1906 prohibiting railroads from carrying their own products in interstate commerce.

The United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania decided against the law and the government is asking the supreme court to reverse that decision.

There are twelve of the cases and all of them are directed against the anthracite coal roads.

MACARONI PLANT IS DYNAMITED

Black Hand Gang Are Blamed for Explosion in Scranton.

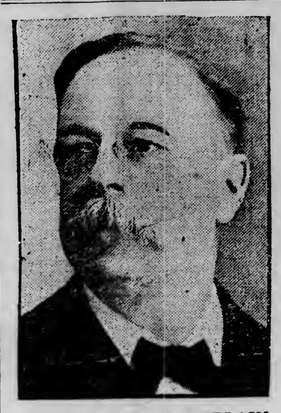

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 19.—The macaroni factory of Nicholas Fazio in this city was blown up by dynamite early today, presumably by a Black Hand gang, the front of the building being wrecked.

Fazio, his family and four employes, who occupy rooms above the factory, were thrown from their beds and buried in wreckage, but escaped serious injury.

Windows were blown out of the Arlington hotel and several adjoining buildings.

Seven Italians are under arrest. Three years ago the same place was dynamited after Fazio, who is wealthy, had ignored Black Hand demands for money. The men are serving long terms.

REED SMOOT.

Election of Governor Chamberlain, Popular Choice, Seems Assured.

Alleged Opposition, From Taft Down, of No Avail.

Blind Senator Gore is Rechosen—Hughes From Colorado.

Salem, Or., Jan. 19.—Governor George E. Chamberlain, Democrat, will be elected United States senator today by a Republican legislature. Although Chamberlain is the people's choice for United States senator, and there are enough members of the legislature pledged to elect him, a determined effort has been made for months to defeat him. Senator Charles W. Fulton, whom Chamberlain succeeds, has, it is alleged, repeatedly urged the legislature to elect a Republican instead of a Democrat, despite the fact that a majority of the members are pledged to the people to vote for Chamberlain.

Eastern political influences are alleged to have interfered in the Oregon senatorial situation, and even the as-

GRAND JURY HEARS TAFT

Brother of President-Elect Testifies in Libel Suit.

Douglas Robinson, Roosevelt's Brother-in-Law, Also on Stand.

Washington, Jan. 19.—When the federal grand jury, which is investigating the libel case against the New York World and the Indianapolis News, met today, Charles P. Taft, brother of President-elect Taft, appeared as a witness in answer to a subpoena served on him in Augusta.

Others summoned are a former Washington correspondent of the World and men now connected with that paper's Washington bureau, Jeremiah A. Matthews, now of the New York Sun bureau in this city, but formerly Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News, appeared yesterday before the jury.

Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, is here, in answer to a subpoena to appear. Delevan Smith, publisher of the Indianapolis News, was in the city yesterday, but went to New York.

Libel, where malicious intent to injure is supposed to exist, is a criminal offense in the District of Columbia. District Attorney Baker is basing this case on the ground that an alleged crime against citizens of the United

A North Dakota Farmer Cuts Wife's Throat and His Own.

Their Six Young Children Witness the Murder and Suicide.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Bentley, a farmer living on a claim near St. John, Rolette county, killed his wife with a razor and then cut his own throat with the same instrument. Mrs. Bentley died instantly, but the man lived several hours.

The couple had been separated, but were living together to comply with the law in reference to proving up a claim. Bentley entered the house and engaged in a violent quarrel with his wife, during which he drew a razor and slashed her throat. She fell across the bed dead. The only witnesses were the six children of the couple ranging in age from 6 to 13 years.

The crime was discovered by people passing along the lonely road, who heard the children screaming, and made investigation.

FIVE THOUSAND MEN MAY STRIKE

Canadian Coal Miners Demand an Increase in Pay.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 19.—There is great unrest and dissatisfaction among the coal miners engaged in the Southern Alberta and British Columbia mines and before the renewal of the two years' agreement April 1, 5,000 men may go on strike.

This would mean a great shortage in the coke supply in the Montana and Washington camps, at Spokane, Great Falls, Helena and the Butte smelters, besides tieing up the steam coal supply of the Great Northern, Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern railways. The men demand an increase in pay.

EIGHT PRISONERS GAIN FREEDOM

Warden's Wife Beaten and Left in Serious Condition.

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—Early today four prisoners escaped from the jail at Weston, W. Va., two from the jail at Moundaville, W. Va., and two from the jail at Charleston.

The Weston prisoners beat the warden's wife and she is in a serious condition.

OIL FINE CASE DELAYED A DAY

Judge Anderson Unable to Reach Chicago When Expected.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 19.—Hearing of testimony in the suit brought by the United States government to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, was resumed before Special Examiner Franklin Ferris today. The Chicago hearing will conclude the taking of testimony in the case, after which it will be submitted to four judges of the United States circuit court sitting in St. Louis. The documentary evidence accumulated in the various hearings, which will be submitted to the jurists for final consideration, will fill thousands of typewritten pages.

The first witnesses heard today were W. H. Isom, former general manager of the Cudahy Oil company of Kankakee, Ill., and G. E. Fulton, chairman of the Ohio River Freight committee. Mr. Isom told of shipments of crude oil, piped from the Indiana oil fields to St. Louis and other points. He declared he had not a distinct recollection of the freight rates, but declared that no special rates had been obtained.

The other Standard Oil case, the $29,240,000 fine case, did not come up as expected. Federal Judge Anderson, who is to retry the case, was detained in Indiana, but telegraphed Judge Landis that he would be here tomorrow and set a date for the new hearing.

NEW AID FOR FORESTRY WORK

Representative Steenerson Introduces Bill to Provide Money.

Washington, Jan. 19. — A new method by which it is proposed to provide additional funds for reclamation and forestry work by the government is embraced in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Steenerson of Minnesota. This measure gives the secretary of the interior the authority to dispose of merchantable timber on the unreserved and unappropriated public domain in the various states named in the reclamation act of 1902. Half the proceeds would go to the reclamation fund established in the act of 1902.

One quarter of the moneys thus obtained would be used for a forestry reserve fund to be used by the secretary of agriculture in the establishment of forest reserves. The remaining quarter would be used as a drainage fund to be used by the secretary of the interior in the examination and survey for the construction, operation and maintenance of works for drainage or reclamation of swamp and overflowed lands belonging to the United States.

SHURTLEFF MAY WIN ILLINOIS SENATORSHIP, DEMOCRATS AIDING

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—Adherents and opponents of A. J. Hopkins in his struggle to succeed himself in the United States senate gathered today with conflicting hopes, those who believed that the expression of the summer primaries should rule expecting that the separate ballots in house and senate would each show a clear majority for their candidate. Under the law, if one man does not obtain the requisite number of votes a joint session of the two houses must be held Wednesday.

The main cause for worry among leaders was the possibility that the Democratic votes would be thrown in a body for Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff. If a deadlock resulted it was felt that other things might happen, one of them being the propulsion of Governor Deneen into the arena in spite of himself. The program for today's balloting is for Senator Hopkins to be nominated in the house by John L. Flannigan of East St. Louis and seconded by Frank W. Shepherd of Elgin, and in the senate to be named by Senator John C. McKenzie of Peoria.

The first ballot in the senate gave Hopkins, 26; Foss, 10; Stringer, 13; Mason, 2. To elect a senator on the separate house ballot there must be 77 votes cast in the house and 26 in the senate for the same man. The house failed to give a majority to any candidate.

WORSE THAN BACK WOODS

Park Point Badly in Need of Better School Facilities.

Children There Cannot Go Beyond the Fifth Grade.

Park Point is sadly lacking educational facilities. The smallest country school districts in Northern Minnesota are better off in this respect than the Point, for pupils there may take studies at least as far advanced as the eighth grade, and often farther, while the Park Pointers are limited to the fifth grade.

Several attempts have been made to remedy the situation, but they have been without avail, the school board, according to Mayor Haven, refusing to provide grades above the fifth in the school building across the canal. The distressing situation was brought to his attention again this morning by Mrs. C. B. Lawrence of 324 Minnesota ave-nue, who has one daughter who has not been to school for fifteen months, and a son who has not attended school for over a year, because she cannot afford to pay their car fare up town.

Mrs. Lawrence appealed to Mayor Haven for assistance in getting her children an education, but the mayor says he is powerless to act, although he forcibly expresses himself as believing it a shame to the city that better educational facilities are not provided on the Point.

"I cannot understand," he said this morning, "why the school board should refuse to establish at least eight grades in the Park Point schoolhouse. There are two teachers there now, each with about twenty pupils, and they could easily handle more. If necessary, I see no reason why one or more teachers should not be sent down there, and additional school room provided. If necessary.

"I have heard it said that school board members have expressed themselves as believing that people should not live on Park point, if they are not satisfied with school facilities furnished. That is a mighty poor argument. They are there, and proper facilities for educating their children should be given. The matter has been before the board of education at different times, and in each case requests have been turned down. Before Christmas they did promise to send down some books for higher grades, but they have not appeared as yet. It is peculiar, to say the least.

"The Lawrence family is not by any means the only one, but it is a striking instance of the need of higher grades. Mr. Lawrence has been ill for some time past, and financially the family is not any too well off, although able to live comfortably. They simply cannot afford to pay the car fares of these two children to the uptown school, a distance of forty blocks, which would mean an expense of 28 cents a day, and even if they were in better circumstances, it would be unreasonable to expect them to do this, in a progressive city like Duluth. It is too far to ask the children to walk.

"The two children in question are both in the II seventh grade. An older child is attending the high school, and the parents are paying car fare. Fares for three children every day is more than they can stand. I am going to look into this and see what is the matter with the truant officer. It is his duty to see that children of school-going age attend school, and yet here are two cases where children in the seventh grade have not attended school for more than a year, and he has done nothing about it. If the school board refuses to do anything else, it might at least pay their car fare. The situation is a disgrace to the city. Personally, I haven't the power to do anything about it, but I should think the school board would do something to remedy the existing state of affairs."

INSISTS ON COURT RULE

Witness in Suit Against World Refuses to Produce.

Only on Order by Judge Does Taff Show Copies.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The corridors and witnesses' room in the United States courthouse swarmed today with newspaper men and others, summoned to give testimony before the grand jury in the government's libel suit against the New York World. In addition to the Washington correspondents subpoenaed, there were on hand A. W. Tracey, assistant to Mr. Hornaday of the Indianapolis News; Douglas Robinson, the president's brother-in-law; H. E. Taff, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company; J. W. Dunbar, John H. Becker and J. O. Spangler, local news dealers, and William Smith, a newsboy.

Mr. Robinson was the first witness. For a long time preceding the giving of his testimony he was closeted with District Attorney Baker. He was in the grand jury room only five minutes. He declined to give any information regarding his testimony.

Mr. Taff refused to produce copies of any telegrams or give any testimony without an order of the court. In consequence the grand jury, accompanied by District Attorney Baker and with Mr. Taff in custody, proceeded to the criminal court, where Justice Gould issued the necessary order. Mr. Taff explained to the court that the Western Union Telegraph company held all messages to be confidential and privileged and that he would not make any statements unless the court so directed him. The jury then went back to its room and Mr. Taff underwent his examination.

Otto Carmichael, head of the Washington bureau of the New York World, was subject to a rigid examination and was on the stand some time. He identified certain editions of the World and stories in them referring to the canal purchase. His assistants, Messrs. Albert and Conway, were called and gave corroborative testimony.

Rigidly Examined.

The district attorney offered proof to the jury that Carmichael, Albert and Conway are salaried employes of the World, engaged in the gathering of and writing news for that paper.

William Smith, a newsboy and three newsdealers testified to having received numerous copies of the New York World of the date named in the subpoena and to having sold them to the public.

Charles P. Taft, brother of President-elect Taft, against whom some of the libelous articles are said to have been directed, arrived at the courthouse at 12:30 and after a brief conference with District Attorney Baker entered the grand jury room. When Taft made his appearance a number of photographers had their cameras ready to take his picture, but several detectives, acting under orders of Baker, prevented them from doing so. The testimony of Taft consumed but five minutes time.

The examination of James P. Hornaday, lasted but a few minutes. His testimony was confined to the fact that he is the Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News and to the identification of files of his paper. The grand jury then adjourned until tomorrow.

Senator Rayner's resolution calling on the attorney general for information concerning a report that he is proceeding to bring suits charging certain newspapers for libel in connection with the purchase of the Panama canal property by the United States was today laid before the senate and Mr. Rayner spoke further in advocacy of its passage.

Engelman Gives Testimony.

New York, Jan. 19.—E. N. Engelman was the first witness called into the grand jury room today in the case of the government's libel suit against the New York World. He is said to have instituted in Paris an investigation of the negotiations for the purchase and sale of the Panama canal property and to have submitted a report of this to the Democratic national committee during the last national campaign.

WILL HAVE A FAST MOTOR BOAT

LaSalle Brothers Will Install New Engine in the "Ranney."

Never was there so much motor boat talk as there is at the present time.

Every few days announcement is made of another entrant for motor boat honors, and it is at this time that the owners vie with one another in claims for their respective crafts.

The latest claimants of speed honors are the LaSalle brothers. They own a fast boat called the "Ranney." She was not raced last summer, because her owners considered her engine too small to compete with the heavier type used in the faster boats.

The coming summer will, however, see their boat equipped with a Doman engine of the most approved type, and as many horsepower as she can carry.

They expect to race their boat against the other boats in the harbor.

Representatives of the various engine companies report that the inquiry for boats and engines never was so brisk, and one agent went so far as to say that there would, when spring finally came around, be no less than thirty fast motor boats in the local harbor.

MILL BEING OVERHAULED

Virginia & Rainy Lake Company Preparing for Operations.

Charles Mattson of Ashland to Superintend West Duluth Mill.

It is evident that the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company does not intend to waste any time in putting its West Duluth mill into commission, so that it will be turning out boards before the middle of next month.

Charles Mattson, who is to be superintendent of the mill, is in West Duluth supervising the work. He comes from Ashland, where he was employed by the Blines Lumber company. Formerly he had charge of a mill at Mason, Wis. The machinery at the old mill is all being overhauled and put into running order. Steam connections for the hot pond are being fitted, and everything necessary for winter work at a sawmill is being arranged for.

It was stated this morning that the mill would be running night and day shifts not later than Feb. 10. By that time it is expected that the mill will employ 300 hands.

Victor Method, who for some time has been connected with a mill at Bemidji, is in West Duluth, and it is understood that he is to be day foreman at the mill. It is also reported that Lyle Staples will have charge of the yards.

It was learned this morning also that the Mullery mill in the West end will soon be put into operation by the Virginia & Rainy Lake company. Double shifts will also be employed there and the mill will be worked to its full capacity.

ENGINEER IS KILLED

Boiler Explodes on Missabe Tracks at Ore Docks.

Engine Is Wrecked and Fireman Also Badly Injured.

With a report that could be heard for blocks, the boiler on a locomotive on the tracks leading from the Missabe ore docks, exploded at about 6:30 o'clock last evening, fatally injuring William Chapman engineer and badly wounding, Charles Stevens, the fireman, and completely wrecking the engine. Chapman died at St. Mary's hospital during the night.

The explosion was so violent that it threw the engine from the tracks and hurled its crew from the cab. It was a miracle that both men were not killed. One of Chapman's legs was broken and he was badly cut about the head and face, besides being internally injured. Stevens though he had no bones broken, sustained some ugly cuts and body bruises. Both were taken to St. Mary's hospital.

When the accident occurred, the locomotive was pulling a long train of flat cars from the dock, and had just started up the hill. How the engine came to blow up has not been explained, although it is stated the men allowed the boiler to go dry.

Mr. Chapman was one of the most reliable engineers employed by the road, starting in as a wiper fifteen years ago. He is survived by a wife and three daughters.

GAIN WOMAN IS DISCHARGED

Witnesses Fail to Appear and the Case is Dropped.

This morning in the United States district court, Madam Mary Gain was given her freedom and her bondsmen discharged for lack of evidence and witnesses.

When the woman appeared before Judge Morris shortly after 10 o'clock, the courtroom was crowded with people who knew that her hearing was set for today and who expected sensations.

None were to come, however, as the whole affair had been cut and dried beforehand. The chief witnesses have left the city since the closing up of the red light district, and it is said that not one of the witnesses counted upon, could be found.

The charge against the woman was that of harboring alien women for immoral purposes. She said that the Dailly woman was an inmate of the house at 239 St. Croix avenue while she was proprietress of the one located at 219. She said also that the house at 239 was rented out to another woman who has since died and that she had no hand in the management of its affairs.

As there was no evidence against her and no witnesses could be found Judge Morris discharged her and relieved the bondsmen of their responsibility.

REGISTRATION IS VERY LIGHT

Voters Are Turning Out in Very Small Numbers.

This is registration day, but the voters are very slow in turning out.

The registration places opened at 6 o'clock this morning, and will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening.

Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon the list of names in the possession of the different election judges was discouragingly small, but it is hoped the men will turn out better this evening.

Today and next Saturday are the last of opportunities for registering for the February municipal election. Anyone who does not register on one of these days, if he did not vote at the December primaries, will not be entitled to vote Feb. 2.

The man who does not advertise because it costs money, should quit paying rent for the same reason.

MAY CHOOSE WISCONSIN SENATOR NEXT WEEK.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—An attempt to bring up the joint resolution for investigation of the senatorial primary election in both houses of the legislature today failed because of the lack of quorums and the general understanding that only business pertaining to the introduction of bills was to be considered. It looks now as though a United States senator will be elected next week before there is chance to make an investigation.

Mr. Gates, Mrs. Gates and others of the party, have frequently been scratched and bitten by the animal in play while on the car.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"The Three Twins." (See notice below).
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill. (See notice below).

"THREE TWINS" IS A BIG HIT

Bright Musical Comedy Delights Big Audience at the Lyceum.

"The Three Twins" is the best musical show that has been seen in Duluth since the famous original "Prince of Pilsen" company came out of Chicago five or six years ago, to delight the lovers of musical comedy in the West.

The public has yet to see the perfect musical comedy, where every song will be worth whistling, every joke funny, every bit of horseplay amusing, every girl pretty, and every principal a singer. Like the wonderful one-horse shay, it would probably run for "100 years and a day," if it could be found. But at a typical modern, musical play, with songs, pretty spectacles, and "fooling," "The Three Twins" is close to the top of the heap, and furnishes about as good amusement as Duluth has seen this season. It is clean, new and snappy, and there is a strange quality to the music that makes it positively haunt the person who has heard it. In fact, it is hard to get away from "Cuddle Up a Little Closer," for at least twenty-four hours after hearing it through its numerous encores.

The two big hits of the show, of course, are the "Cuddle" song and the "Yama Yama Man." The "Cuddle" song is sung by Miss Elgie Bowen and the chorus. "The Seven Stages of Cuddling," from the infant in arms to the old gray-haired couple, are shown in very effective tableaux on a darkened stage, with the yellow spotlight. The aerial swing setting of the "Cuddle" song is the finale of the first act and by the time the curtain goes down, the whistling accompaniment of the gallery boys has worked its way pretty well toward the parquet, and nearly everybody in the house finds himself or herself, either whistling or humming the caressing little melody.

"The Yama Yama Man" is somewhat reminiscent of "The Goo Goo Man" from "The Isle of Spice," which had such a vogue a few years ago, but it is, if anything, more catchy. The big audience last evening couldn't get enough of Bessie Clifford and her eccentric dance, and kept calling her back as long as she could respond to encores.

Miss Clifford's dancing was also shown to good advantage in the hypnotic dance, with Victor Morley, the chief comedian of the production. She is a natural dancer light and graceful, and her gesturing and posing are eccentric and attractive.

Another novelty is the faceography, which is introduced in the song number, "The Girl Up There."

The slender plot deals with the adventures of twin brothers and a young man who made himself up to appear like them. The "twin brothers" naturally get into many difficulties, or at least the imposter has most of the difficulties. The author has gone Shakespeare one better in this respect.

Victor Morley is featured in the play, taking the part of the bogus twin, and providing most of the comedy. He is a slender young man, with a very agile pair of legs, a facile manner, and a very good line of stage "business."

George S. Trimble is one of the many bright spots in the play. His Gen. Stanhope is a never failing delight.

Elgie Bowen as Kate Armitage, is a comely miss with a good soprano voice, which is heard to splendid advantage in several of the important song numbers.

The chorus is large, and not the least striking figure in it is Charles Dorrance, formerly of Duluth. He was recognized by many old friends in the audience last evening. If faithful work, good appearance, a good voice, and careful attention to detail, bring any reward in the musical comedy field, "Charlie" should be singing a part when he makes Duluth again.

The girls are, for the most part, pretty, and their singing and dancing are above the average. In fact it is one of the best trained choruses from a musical standpoint, heard in Duluth in some time.

"The Three Twins" will be in Duluth all this week, with the exception of Saturday evening, playing a matinee Wednesday.

Duluthians do not get an entertainment of its class often enough to afford to miss it.

AT THE BIJOU.

Clever Vaudeville Program Pleases First Audience of the Week.

Patrons of the Bijou theater are enjoying this week a real Orpheum circuit act in Mareena, Nevara and Mareena, novelty equilibrists. These people are very clever, and some of their tricks seem almost superhuman. All sorts of acrobatic stunts have been pulled off on the Bijou stage, but this trio outclasses anything in that line that has performed there.

Isadore Silver this week sings "Honey Dear." It is very tuneful, and he had a hard time to get away from the audience after singing it.

Hetty Urina, who did English and German character impersonations, made a distinct hit. She is graceful, pretty, is possessed of a sweet voice and does a wooden shoe dance that is far above the average.

Stanley and Cogswell have a laughable playlet entitled "The German Professor." During their act the professor introduces imitation clarinet music.

Elmer Tenley does a deal of talking and manages to raise a laugh with almost every line. He has a fine Irish face and he uses it well. He was well received.

Don Leno's Happy Youngsters are back again this week "bigger, brighter and better than ever," as the billboards say. They have enrolled several new characters since their last visit. Their act has been lengthened, new musical numbers introduced, and two of the very small boys have learned to dance. Their act is a lively one all the way through, and appeared to be the most appreciated on the program, from the way it was received last night.

The moving pictures this week tell a pretty love story.

Taken as a whole, the bill this week is one of the best furnished for some time.

"The Land of Nod."

There was an extraordinary advance sale of seats for "The Land of Nod" at the Lyceum yesterday morning. It was one of the largest first day sales of this or any other season, and it indicates that the big extravaganza production will be witnessed next Saturday, matinee and night, by crowded houses.

"Little Johnny Jones."

Musical comedies may come and musical comedies may go, but it is doubtful if any of them will obtain the vogue that has been vouchsafed "Little Johnny Jones," that ringing, swinging, joyous, jingling musical comedy from the pen of George M. Cohan, now in the third year of its successful career. It comes to the Lyceum on Jan. 25, 26 and 27.

There is something about everything that Mr. Cohan writes that seems to please all classes. His "Running For Office" first brought him into prominence. "The Governor's Son" added more to his popularity, and then "Little Johnny Jones" placed him on the pinnacle of success as a native playwright. Mr. Cohan manages to inject a plot into everything he writes, and there is a rhyme and reason for things, and around the whole he weaves a delightful web of melody.

MISTAKEN FOR A DEER

Defense In Kramer Murder Trial Springs a Surprise.

Claims That Shooting of Erick Young Was Accidental.

The defense in the case of Matt Kramer, now on trial for murder in Superior, will be that he mistook his partner, Erick Young, for a deer after dusk on July 3, and accidentally shot and killed him. Then fearing that the shooting would be thought intentional, he buried him and endeavored to keep his partner's death a secret.

This form of defense, when announced yesterday by H. W. Dietrich, attorney for the accused, in his opening address came as a total surprise.

The case was called yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Some difficulty was encountered in selecting a jury, which took the greater part of the day.

The first witness for the prosecution was John Johnson, a farm hand, who claimed that he first discovered the grave in which Young's body was buried. He said that he was on his way to Kramer's shack, which is situated about ten miles from Dedham, when he came upon the grave beside the road near the shack. This aroused his suspicions and he asked Kramer if he had killed Young. Kramer denied it, and said that Young had gone to Foxboro. Then he told Kramer about the grave, and Kramer is said to have stated that if there was anything in it, it should be hidden.

The witness next told of later finding a fresh grave in the woods. He then again accused Kramer, saying that it was strange that Young should have gone to Foxboro without his clothes.

The clothes belonging to Young were then exhibited. Further examination brought out the fact that both Kramer and the witness had guns, the former a rifle and the latter a shotgun. It was developed, also, that deer often passed the shanty, and that the witness had seen venison hanging there.

Upon questioning, the witness admitted that he sometimes drank too much, which caused a general laugh. Even the accused man smiled. Kramer was arrested on Aug. 17 and has been in jail ever since. He was neatly dressed in a black suit yesterday, and was cool and composed during the session.

The witness further testified that he had known Kramer for the past fifteen years, and that Kramer and Young had lived some time together, apparently good friends. After the disappearance of Young, Johnson stated that while he was sleeping at the shack, he heard Kramer say in his sleep that he "must keep quiet, or he will kill you and kill me, too." In the morning Kramer said that he could not remember what he had been dreaming about.

The body was not found until a month after the shooting.

Through the testimony of state's witnesses today, County Attorney Foley endeavored to combat Attorney Dietrich's defense of the accidental killing of Young, and to prove that the dead man had been deliberately murdered by Kramer.

The evidence thus far introduced stated that the body of young had been terribly mutilated either before or after the shooting. Dr. H. J. O'Brien was the first witness on the stand for the state. He testified that he had been present at the disinterment of Young's body, and that his examinations showed that the body had been cut and hacked.

Mr. Dietrich in his answer to this, stated that the body had been in the grave for over a month and that decomposition had probably made such inroads upon it that the marks were mistaken for mutilation. He also stated that such mutilation may have been made by the spade used by Kramer in his shanty covering the body.

New Building.

Plans for the erection of a two-story brick building, to be built on the southeast corner of Tower avenue and Thirteenth street, have been completed. The new building, according to W. M. Prindle of Duluth, will cost $30,000 and will be used for mercantile purposes. It is understood that Mr. Prindle secured the property through G. G. Newton agency of Superior for a consideration of $7,500.

LETTER FROM ITALY.

Joseph Rich one of the best known local Italians, today received from his cousin, who lives in the vicinity of Messina, Italy, the first letter written since the great earthquake.

A queer thing about the letter is that not one word is said relative to the disaster.

Mr. Rich has been on the anxious seat for some time, and wrote to the cousin for information regarding relatives and how they fared in the great catastrophe.

He has evidently not yet received the letter for he mentioned nobody but himself, saying that the letter left him in good health and making no mention of the earthquake.

MAINELLA IS GIVEN DAMAGES

Jury Holds That Dr. Bowers Violated His Lease.

After a little over an hour's deliberation, a jury in district court this morning returned a verdict of $715 in favor of Carlo Mainella and against Dr. J. Eton Bowers.

Mainella sued for $2,500 for damages he claimed to have sustained by Dr. Bowers' failure to turn over to him premises at 509 West Superior street under a lease. The lease was made June 10, 1907, and was to run for eighteen months from Aug. 1, 1907.

Mainella claimed that on Aug. 1, 1907, he was refused the use of the premises, and was forced to pay a $400 bonus for a smaller place in which to conduct his grocery, fruit and confectionery business. He claimed his profits have been injured by his being forced to use the smaller quarters. Dr. Bowers claimed that Mainella had voluntarily surrendered the lease.

RAILROADS

GOOD YEAR EXPECTED

Canadian Roads Preparing for Heavy Season's Traffic.

Big Rush of Settlers to Northwest is Anticipated.

Robert Creelman, agent for the Canadian Northern railroad, makes the prediction that the business of the Canadian roads during the present year, will be the heaviest in the history of the dominion. His reason for this prediction is the belief that the dominion is entering upon one of the most prosperous years in its history, and the anticipation that during the present year 500,000 people will go to Western Canada.

Last year the Western Canadian provinces enjoyed one of the biggest wheat crops in their history. Further, the railroads of the Dominion moved these crops without delay. The fact that the past crop season was a very good one, is calculated to bring thousands of farmers into the wheat-raising provinces, according to the belief of immigration agents across the line, states Mr. Creelman.

"All of the railroads of the dominion have enjoyed a prosperous year," says Mr. Creelman. "The Canadian Northern at the present time is enjoying a very good business between this city and Winnipeg. The other roads of Canada are also enjoying a very profitable business. With the increase of wheat acreage, and the great increase of population in Western Canada, which it is expected will occur this year, there is every reason to believe that the business of the Canadian railroads will materially increase.

"We are going to have competition from this side of the boundary line. The Great Northern railroad is at the present time at work upon it's terminals at Winnipeg. That road will extend from Emerson, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern using the same tracks from the boundary to Winnipeg, and the same terminals at that city. But with all the competition, which will come from the American railroads and the extensions of different Canadian roads, the great increase of business should provide enough traffic for all.

"It is expected that the Great Northern will be running trains into Winnipeg some time this summer. Then, too, the engineers are at work upon the Pacific Coast extension of the Great Northern from Vancouver to Winnipeg. The Grand Trunk, the Canadian Pacific, and the Canadian Northern will make extensions during the present year, and although it looks as if the year will be a busy one in railroad construction in the Dominion.

"As to immigration, the Canadian government will probably spend $500,000 in this country during the course of the present year, for the purpose of advertising the resources of Canada. This is in addition to the advertising that the various Canadian roads will do.

"The extension of the Canadian Northern to this city will place the cities of Duluth and Winnipeg in closer relations. This road has opened up a new country upon both sides of the boundary line, that will help both Duluth and Winnipeg."

WILL REPAIR ROADS.

Railroads of Northern Part of State Will Require Many Laborers.

According to the statement of an employment agent today, there will be hundreds of laborers employed upon railroad work in the vicinity of Duluth next spring. The information in the possession of the employment men, is that there will not be much construction work, but a great deal of repair work upon the railroads of the northern part of the state.

Further west, this man states, there will be a demand for additional men for construction work. The Milwaukee will increase its force of laborers with the opening of spring, it is said, while the work upon the Hill extension in British Columbia will require many additional men, some of whom will be supplied from the Duluth market.

MANY HERE RELIEVED

Tells of a Fine Mixture Easily Made at Home.

No Sufferer of Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism Should Leave It Untried.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well-known local pharmacy supplied the ingredients for the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well-known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It can not be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first-class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week. If taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

CHEF PLEADS GUILTY.

Admits Forging the Name of Principal Smith to Check.

Cooper was formerly chef at the high school lunch room, and he signed a check with Principal Smith's name. He gave it to a boy to cash, but the forgery was so crude that it was turned down. Cooper has a young wife depending on him, and Judge Ensign took his case under consideration.

HANDS AND FEET ITCHED 12 YEARS

Suffered Terribly from Eczema which Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw—Arms Affected, Too—Gave Up Hope of Cure.

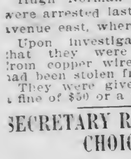

USED CUTICURA AND WAS QUICKLY CURED

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell, sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve and ointment without success, only got temporary relief. As soon as I would leave off using them I would be as bad as ever. I tried several doctors, took arsenic for two years and at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies but, supposing they were the same as other 'cures' I had tried, I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I used several bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. This was over a year ago and have had no trouble since. I think I am entirely cured. Charles T. Bauer, R.F.D. 65, Volant, Pa., Mar. 11, 1908."

INSURGENTS SAY STRENGTH IS 48

House Members Rebelling Against Cannon's Rule, Count Noses.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Definite action was taken last night by the house insurgents in their fight against the existing rules of the lower branch of congress. At a caucus of twenty-four members two principles were agreed upon—first, that the house and not the speaker should select all committees, including the committee on rules; and that there should be a meeting of the committees at least once a week.

A committee consisting of Representatives Gardner of Massachusetts, chairman; Madison of Kansas and Cooper of Wisconsin, was appointed to so revise the house rules as to conform to these principles, and report next Monday night, when another caucus will be held. Representative Pollard of Nebraska was appointed chairman of a committee on procedure, and Murdock of Kansas chairman of a committee on publicity.

Counting those present at the meeting and those at former meetings, the insurgents claim a strength of forty-eight. Those present last night were: Hepburn and Hubbard of Iowa, Lovering and Gardner of Massachusetts, Esch, Cooper, Morse and Nelson of Wisconsin; Waldo of New York; Anthony, Scott, Madison, Murdock and Campbell of Kansas; Pollard, Norris, Hinshaw and Kinkaid of Nebraska; Steenerson and Lindberg of Minnesota; Hayes of California, Pearre of Maryland, Howland of Ohio and Foster of Vermont.

WEST END HOTEL IS SCORCHED

Clarendon, at Garfield Avenue, Threatened by the Flames.

Street Cars Are Tied Up During the Morning Rush.

Great consternation among the guests of the Clarendon hotel, Garfield avenue and Superior street, and considerable delay to the patrons of the West Duluth car lines, was caused this morning by a fire which threatened at one time to cause great damage to the hotel.

Shortly before 7 o'clock, a blaze was discovered in the basement of the hotel, and the alarm sounded at once. By the time the first apparatus arrived the flames were crackling merrily in the basement.

In a short time another company arrived, and the menacing flames were quenched before reaching the ground floor of the hotel. The damage was confined to the basement and the barroom, which suffered quite a little. It is thought, however, that $1,000 will cover the total loss.

Many of the guests of the hotel were in bed when the alarm wasc given, and some of them made for the outdoors in the scantiest of night robes.

The fire came at a time when the West Duluth cars, both on Third street and Superior street, and the Superior cars, were crowded with people on their way to work, and the tying up of traffic caused a great deal of inconvenience.

The origin of the fire is something of a mystery. The hotel people are at a loss to explain how it started.

States has been brought to his attention and that it is his duty to investigate and bring to trial the person or persons supposed to be guilty.

Still Unidentified.

New York, Jan. 19.—With both the complainant and the defendant in the main issue involved still unidentified, Judge Ward in the United States circuit court today received briefs from the attorneys who are engaged in the preliminary skirmish here over what are believed to be criminal libel proceedings by the Federal Government as the result of recent newspaper statements in connection with the Panama canal purchase.

The fight began in the federal courts here yesterday when attorneys for the New York World asked Judge Ward to quash subpoenas which had been served upon two of its employes to appear before the federal grand jury for examination. The nature of the proceedings was not specified, and on this ground the validity of the subpoenas was contested. The briefs filed today followed extended arguments before Judge Ward yesterday. A decision on the point involved is not expected to be handed down before tomorrow.

In the meantime witnesses who have not attempted to question the regularity of the methods used to secure their presence were present in federal court today. Only two such witnesses were examined yesterday. Four others who were present then, but did not testify were on hand again today. They were John E. Weir, a New York newspaper man; A. C. Rousey, another Boston newspaper man; Harris M. Christ, Washington, correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle and E. N. Engelman, employed by a news association. All efforts to ascertain the exact nature of the proceedings in the federal courts have so far been unavailing.

WOULD CURTAIL FOREST BLAZES

Bill Compelling Loggers to Burn Slashings Is in Favor.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much interest is shown by the loggers and lumbermen of this vicinity in the hearing to be held Wednesday before the house committee on forestry when the proposed law to prevent forest fires will be considered, and loggers and lumbermen will be given an opportunity to present their views on the measure introduced by Representative Holmberg of Renville.

One of the provisions makes it imperative on those engaged in cutting timber to pile and subsequently burn the tops and slashings. As there is no state law at present governing the disposal of slashings and tops, the new measure has created much intrest in this part of the state.

The terrible forest fires that raged through nearly all parts of Northern Minnesota during last summer and early fall has caused a general sentiment for the enactment of some kind of law making it compulsory to destroy all timber refuse and thus abate the danger of fire.

"The state has thousands of acres of cut-over lands that should be immediately cleared of all slashings, tops, etc., that have laid on the ground for many years until the stuff is like powder during dry weather," said a well-known logger of Bemidji who is thoroughly posted on the condition of Northern Minnesota timbered and cut-over lands. "The pine on much of these lands was cut many years ago, and the slashings have been left unpiled, a standing menace not only to the timber belonging to the state, but also endangering the property of persons owning adjoining lands, and who are attempting to make homes in the timber country.

"The question of burning slashings and tops has been affirmatively settled by many lumber companies operating in the vicinity of Bemidji, and a large percentage of those who are cutting timber this winter are piling their refuse preparatory to burning the same at the very earliest opportunity.

"It is different with the men who are logging cedar and other timber which abounds largely in swamps. Most of the cedar is cut from among large stands of other timber, and in swamps, where the underbrush and other vegetation is green the year around, and they contend, with much merit, that fire would not run through the small amount of refuse left in these localities."

Feels Animal's Loss More Than That of His Home.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While W. M. Downie and family were absent from their home at 209 North Fourth street, Sunday evening, the house caught fire from the heating plant and was partially destroyed. Mr. Downie places his loss at about $2,000, partially insured. Mr. Downie said he did not regret the loss of the house and contents as much as the suffocation of a cocker spaniel dog of which his children were very fond. The animal was left in the kitchen, but his dead body was found upstairs, indicating that aroused by the smoke the faithful canine had ascended the stairs to awaken the family and perished.

SUES RANGE PHYSICIAN

Patient of Doctor Lenont Says Arm Was Poorly Set.

Seeks to Recover Damages After Nearly Five Years.

Claiming that Dr. Charles B. Lenont failed to set his arm properly after it had been broken and subsequently violated his contract by refusing to have anything more to do with the fracture, Christ Christopherson seeks to recover $932.50. The case was taken up before Judge Dibell in district court this morning.

Both parties to the suit live at Virginia. Dr. Lenont is a physician and conducts a hospital in the range town. At the time of the accident to the plaintiff, Dr. Lenont had a contract with C. R. Ash, under which the doctor was to care for all of Mr. Ash's employes, receiving $1 a month from each, under the contract. Christopherson was employed by Mr. Ash in the sawmill and on Feb. 18, 1904, sustained an injury by which both bones of the right arm were broken just above the wrist.

Christopherson claims that the bones were improperly set in the first place, and were negligently cared for by Dr. Lenont and his assistants, up to December, 1904, and when he claims Dr. Lenont refused to have anything more to do with him. He claims he was then forced to come to Duluth for treatment at considerable expense.

Dr. Lenont claims that after he had taken care of Christopherson for about two months he decided an operation was necessary. He says Christopherson failed to keep the appointment for the operation and he did not see anything of the man for seven months. After that period, he says, Christopherson came to him and wanted him to take up the treatment again and he refused.

The case has been in the courts for about three years and is of some local interest at Virginia.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Police Almost Certain They Have Three Safe Crackers.

Trio Roomed Together at the Rex Hotel in Superior.

In the persons of William Morgan and Tom Larkin, who were arrested last night by Detectives Schulte and Walsh, and Chief Troyer in the Rex hotel, Superior, and in Frank McAllister arrested earlier in the evening by Chief Troyer, the Duluth police department think they have at least two of the men connected with the many burglaries that have been committed from time to time during the past few weeks

In the room occupied by the men, the detectives found a complete burglar's outfit.

They were assisted in making the arrest by Lieut. Scoon and Sergt. Osborne of the Superior force.

How many men there were in the gang is yet to be determined. The police, however, are satisfied that they have made a good start.

Chief Troyer had arrested McAllister earlier in the evening. Officer Bartgiving his name as Frank C. McAllister, last night, and he is looked upon as a suspicious character. Officer Bartlett, while on his way to Lakeside at a late hour last night, saw the man on the car, and thought he acted suspiciously. He watched him after he left the car, and noticed that he seemed much interested in the Lakeside postoffice.

The policeman, unknown to McAllister, observed all his movements, and when the man boarded a car for his return trip to the city, Bartlett reached Chief Troyer on the telephone, and the chief, acting on the suspicions of the officer, boarded the car in the East end, became engaged in conversation with McAllister on the car, and arrested him when the police station was reached. The man could not give a satisfactory account of his movements, and he is being held.

McAllister said he was staying at the Rex hotel in Superior, and Chief Troyer immediately decided it would be a wise plan to look over the list of other boarders at the Rex. The Duluth officers named, hired a team and drove to Superior at 1 o'clock at night, with the result above noted. It developed that McAllister and one of the men arrested, roomed together.

The police have the photograph and Bertillon measurements of Larkin, who has the name of being a professional safe cracker. Morgan's real name is said to be Welch. It is believed both are wanted in some other Northwestern city for burglary, and the same is believed to be true of McAllister. If nothing can be proven against them here, information leading to their being taken somewhere else for trial probably will be received.

McAllister was arraigned in municipal court this morning, charged with being implicated in the safe cracking at the Fifield-Shea Shoe store, 115 West Superior street, the night of Jan. 12, at 10 a. m. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

The other two men refused to come to Duluth last night, and it will be necessary to secure extradition papers to get them to this side of the bay.

WRANGLE AMONG MINE WORKERS

Lewis and Anti-Lewis Factions Likely to Cause Dispute.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19.—The twentieth annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America opened in Tomlinson hall today with 1,200 delegates. The convention will be plunged early into a factional dispute, led by Mr. Lewis and his opponent for the presidency, John H. Walker of Illinois, over the administration of the affairs of the organization. The anti-Lewis faction declares itself determined to restrict the powers of the president, while the present rulers assert that the miners can never progress toward better contracts with the operators unless they adopt a stringent rule that joint contracts shall be inviolable and that the national executive board's judgment shall be supreme.

HOT FIGHT HAS OPENED

In North Dakota Legislature Over Normal School Location.

Bill Providing for Admission of Kansas Oil to State.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A hot fight has opened in the state legislature over the location of the new normal school provided for in concurrent resolutions introduced in both the senate and the house. The resolution introduced provides that the school shall be located in Minot, but the people of McHenry county have decided that they have a good location for the school at Velva and a good sized delegation from that city has arrived here to assist the McHenry county delegation in the fight for an amendment that would give them the school. The concurrent resolution provided for the establishment of the normal at Minot was passed by the assembly of 1907 and referred to the present assembly. The Velva delegation consists of Mayor W. E. Byerly, I. L. Berge, E. J. Morrow, N. O. Dolve and C. B. Swanson.

The object of a bill introduced by Representative Shiels of La Moure county is the admission of Kansan oil to the state. Under the present law such oils cannot be admitted for sale in North Dakota. The Shiels bill provides that the oils shall be labeled as coming from Kansas. The fact that gasoline from the Prairie state is cheaper than the Pennsylvania product, and that the state department has made tests showing it to be as good in its powers, has led to the introduction of the measure now before the assembly.

The initiative and referendum fight is on in earnest. When S. N. Putnam introduced in the house a resolution calling for an early vote on the proposition he started trouble. There is now before the assembly, by virtue of the fact that such a resolution was adopted two years ago, the Ueland initiative and referendum and it is claimed by its opponents that enough have lined up against it to make its defeat certain. A new initiative and referendum bill has been introduced by B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks, that carries out the principles of the old measure, with the exception that it does not make it applicable to the Constitution of the state. It also requires that petitions initiating a measure must be signed by not less than 8 per cent of the voters of the state from at least one-half of the counties.

Louis B Hanna of Fargo, who was in the last general election named as congressman from North Dakota, made a visit to the state senate, of which he is a former member, and was given a very gracious ovation. He was called upon for a short address and in his remarks, which were entirely clear of politics, Mr. Hanna related a number of his experiences as a member of the legislature that proved very interesting.

The joint committee that will draw up resolutions of respect for Former Governors John Miller and E. C. Shortridge is composed of Senators Talcott, LaMoure and Purcell, and Representatives Hale, Ward and Hanley.

Senator Gunderson's measure, providing that in cases where trial by jury is given a verdict agreed to by three-fourths of the members of a jury shall stand, is creating some little interest. The bill leaves out capital cases, in which a unanimous verdict is necessary.

A bill now before the house releases cities from liability in cases where persons are injured by falling on snow covered or icy sidewalks. This bill was introduced at the suggestion of the North Dakota municipal league and incomes as a result of the numerous suits that have been instituted against cities of the state recently by persons so injured.

The bill introduced by Representative White against the giving of passes by railroads is practically the same as the measure introduced by him two years ago. The bill at that time was coupled with the rate bill and was defeated. There is not a great deal of anti-pass sentiment evident about the hotel lobbies as yet, and it is not believed that there will be a very great fight on the proposition.

Came Near Choking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

FISHERIES WILL BE DECIDED ON

Conferences at Washington to Settle Newfoundland Issue.

Washington, Jan. 19.—During the present week, important conferences will be held between the state department officials, Ambassador James Bryce of Great Britain, Attorney General Kent, representing the premier of Newfoundland, and A. B. Aylesworth, Canadian minister of justice, on the Newfoundland fisheries question, which is to be referred to The Hague for arbitration.

Secretary Root and the British ambassador have agreed on the terms of the questions to be submitted, but they have not yet decided the approval of the Canadian and Newfoundland governments.

The points at issue touch the rights of American fishermen in the waters of British North America under the treaty of 1818. The American authorities are anxious to get the fisheries treaty ratified by the senate at the present session, this being necessary before the disputed questions can be submitted to The Hague court.

COUNTRY PAYS HOMAGE TO POE

Remembered in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 19.—Exercises in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edgar Allan Poe will be held at McCoy hall, Johns Hopkins university, tonight in this city, where the poet died and was buried. The celebration will be held under the joint auspices of Johns Hopkins university and the Edgar Allan Poe Memorial association.

Poe's rank among the poets of the world will be discussed, as well as his influence on literature. Dr. William P. Trent of Columbia university will make the principal address.

EXPERIMENTAL SHIP FAILS TO ARRIVE.

Old Rochester Citizen Dead.

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 19.—Mrs. J. A. Leonard, one of Rochester's oldest and best-known pioneer women is dead at 67, of edema of the lungs, and will be buried by the side of her husband on Wednesday. She was preparing to visit her sister, Mrs. E. E. Adams of Fergus Falls, when stricken with fatal illness.

Next Night Rider Case.

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 19.—The selection of the jury in the case of Ed. Marshall, an alleged night rider, began today. Marshall, who is one of the wealthiest men in the county, is charged with the murder of Capt. Ranken at Walnut Log.

"How are your bowels?" This is generally the first question the doctor asks. He knows what a sluggish liver means. EDGAR ALLEN POE.

"In Heaven a spirit doth dwell
Whose heart strings were a lute;
None sang so wildly well."

Today is the birthday of Edgar Allen Poe; to be precise, the hundredth anniversary of that birthday. "None sang so wildly well," as he. This bit from "Israfel," slightly changed for our purpose, is as truly descriptive of the actual Poe as of the imaginary Israfel.

One hundred years after his birth, the world is more keenly appreciative of Poe than it was during his life or at any time in the sixty years that have elapsed since his death. While he lived the sweetness of his melody and wonder of his exquisite prose held the public captive although it shuddered at its gloom. When he died, they wrote a cruel life of him, and the world thoughtlessly accepted its slander of his manhood and dismissed him from its mind. But there is that in Poe that cannot die;

"The glory that was Greece
And the grandeur that was Rome" touched his pen; he sought some of the beauty of heaven, he plumbed some of the depths of hell, and he wrote it down; a few, even, of the eternal truths of God, he found, and he wrote them down.

Poe believed that there are on long poems, that a poem is simply the product of an ecstasy of passion; when the daemon of his genius possessed him he labored and travailed and brought forth a poem. But his daemon was a most melancholy daemon and the child of his passion was, for the most part, sad and sore oppressed and mournful, given more to sitting by tombs and sighing by sepulchers than to frolicking in the sunlight. His fits of melancholy, relieved too infrequently by mere flashes of light, drove him at times to those physical excesses which have somewhat clouded his name and obscured the real man. They ruled his pen and kept it from the usefulness it might have had.

"We cannot call his materials the noblest or purest, but we must concede to him the highest merit of construction," says James Russell Lowell. "None sang so wildly well," as he, in fact. He dwelt in night, but his "harshest idea" would "to melody run," and in the beautiful "Ligea" he says that which again perfectly describes himself:

"Ligea! Ligea!
My beautiful one,
Whose harshest idea
Will to melody run,
Say, is it thy will,
On the breezes to toss,
Or, capriciously still,
Like the lone albatross,
Incumbent on night,
As she on the air,
To keep watch with delight
On the harmony there?"

The years have taught us to know Poe better and to value him higher. Some of the most beautiful things of language are his; it is a pity that melancholy denied life to so much that was noble in him.

Poe's memory was honored by his alma mater, the University of Virginia, by a fitting centennary celebration and tributes to him as one of America's most brilliant writers have been arranged for in other centers of learning in this country and in foreign lands.

IN EARNEST ABOUT IT.

That something definite is going to be accomplished in St. Louis county for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis is certain; the matter is exciting comment and stirring discussion everywhere. At Eveleth this week the anti-tuberculosis exhibits, and the meetings and discussions that accompanied them, brought out the people in large numbers and provoked the most general discussion. The same interest and earnestness has marked the progress of the exhibits throughout the county. The Eveleth meeting went on record for the adequate and immediate establishment of a county sanitarium which shall be a center of action for prevention of the dread disease and a hospital for the segregation and care of the most dangerous cases. The resolution was referred to the convention of commercial clubs to be held in Duluth Friday, when further action will doubtless be taken. The public generally seems aroused to the most active interest in this matter, which is the best augury of action that will bring results.

A BLOODLESS REVOLUTION.

The most hopelessly despotic nation of the world has suddenly accomplished a measure of constitutional liberty without the shedding of a single drop of blood!

Here is something worthy of comment. How did it come about that Turkey, the Sick Man of Europe, sodden in absolutism, the by-word of the nations for the abjectness of its political slavery, should suddenly and peacefully achieve that which other peoples have fought and bled and died for? No other nation in Europe has achieved constitutional liberty without the loss of a single life, with never the shedding of a single drop of blood. How could Turkey, so submerged in political slavery, accomplish it?

Strictly speaking Turkey has not accomplished it. There has been a great deal of blood spilled in the Ottoman empire, not perhaps primarily in the name of political liberty, but for the cause of religious liberty. The Armenian massacres are still fresh in our minds. But Turkey has suddenly adopted a constitution and has entered upon an era of constitutional government and there is hope that the Turkish people may yet be free. The agitation for the constitution and the formality of its final adoption was brought about in perfect peacefulness, not a life lost, not a drop of blood shed. How came it so? The church says that it was the result of the political teachings of the Christian missionaries, and doubtless they had very much to do with it. For years Christian missionaries have been teaching in Turkey. They could not preach Christ without at the same time taking notice of the political bondage of the people they had come to help, without also telling them of the blessings of political freedom. This was a thing that the Turk knew nothing about. He could not comprehend its meaning. It took him generations to understand. Gradually the conception of political liberty has been unfolding within him and the desire to be free was finally born. So gradual was the growth, that it was hardly noticed as a new thing until the plant was ready to flower. Then it was found to be a strong and hardy plant, too firmly rooted to be dug up, its branches so entwined with the life of the people that few could be found who desired to attempt the impossible task of disengaging them.

So constitutional liberty came to Turkey as the result of the life and teachings of the Christian missionaries. So it is coming to all the world for that matter. Peace has its victories far greater than war.

MISSOURI BELONGS.

Missouri has completed her initiation into the ranks of the states in which the people have determined to think for themselves in political matters instead of allowing partisanship to think for them.

For the first time in its history Missouri has a Republican governor. Governor Hadley, by his great services to the state as attorney general has fairly earned the honor which has come to him, and Missouri having tried him, knows that he will not be found wanting. Missouri has not elected Hadley in a sudden freak of Republicanism, however; it has been thinking and acting independently of party plans for several years. It elected Folk governor by the aid of the Republicans and it went for Roosevelt by the aid of the Democrats.

Missouri is now sure of itself; it will never again go back to blind, unreasoning partisanship; it "belongs." The number of states in which people are thinking along the lines of reason instead of along the lines of party policy is constantly increasing. Indiana has "belonged" for many years, Minnesota has taken its third degree, Ohio and North Dakota are growing independent. Kentucky and Maryland and Tennessee can no longer be counted an integral portion of the Solid South. Even in other Southern states, where there is far more reason for being a Democrat than there is in the northern states for party allignment, there are signs of uneasiness. If the time ever comes when Republicanism does not mean to the people of the South poor white trash, the iniquity of the reconstruction and negro government the South will be just as independent as the rest of us.

Speed the day! A state that is bound to one party beyond all human probability of being carried for the opposite party is a breeding ground for political corruption. The fewer such states we have the worse for party power, the better for the people.

WHERE TO RETRENCH.

The nation is confronted today by the largest postal deficit in the history of the postoffice.

We have been very proud of the wonderful services which the United States postoffice department has rendered us. They are the most wonderful of their kind in the world, stimulating business, disseminating knowledge to a perfectly marvelous degree and bringing the hopes, sympathies and interests of all our people closely in touch with each other.

We have been proud, too, of the honesty, intelligence and enterprise of the nation's management of this great business enterprise. The wonder has been that it could be so free from politics and so efficient in administration.

But granting all this it has serious faults, to which its increasing annual deficit is forcing our attention. The abuse of the second class mail privilege is one of these and the department is now issuing the most radical and stringent rules for the reformation of these abuses. Some of its recent rulings show signs of an excess of zeal and are bearing down too hard upon the country publisher whose influence for the uplift of the masses is one of the most potent and far reaching in the nation. The department is in danger of overshooting the mark in this respect.

But what of the unjustifiable and immoral and unlicensed franking of mail, merchandise and freight by congressmen? The department is not lacking in wit and it knows the excesses to which this abuse is carried. It knows them better than any one else. The claim is made that a proper correction of this evil would wipe out the postal deficit and show a balance instead. Congress, which is so jealous of its honor in things that are not essential, is disgracing itself daily by tenaciously clinging to this petty graft—for to frank typewriters by mail is nothing but graft.

Habit dulls the moral sensibilities of the best of us and the franking habit has made congressmen singularly thoughtless of the wrong they are doing themselves and the nation in this matter by gradually extending what was meant to be a means of informing their constituents to a practice which enables them to compel the country to pay a constantly increasing share of the congressman's private expenses.

This is one place to retrench. There are others which congress and the department can discover if they are sincere in their desire to abolish the abuses and the deficit of the department.

Now they are even planning to take the lid off the lid business.

Joseph Pulitzer might reply that he is no worse than the rest of the World.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

They are beginning to take to skiing up at Grand Marais, or rather the citizens of that village are making efforts to get together and hold informal ski meetings. That is the information brought down from the north shore town by Ole T. Bergquist, who was registered at the Lenox yesterday.

"In time we will have ski jumpers who will make the Ole Fierings and John Evensons of Duluth look to their laurels," said Mr. Bergquist, who is himself a ski rider of no mean ability.

"You see we have all the natural advantages u pthere. We have some natural hills that are beauties. While ski jumping hasn't been practiced very much up there, yet this winter we have held two or three little gatherings of some of the best riders, and some of the jumpers have showed an ability that would suprise some of the riders of this city.

"You know that many of the settlers who are coming to the north shore are of Scandinavian nationality. Some of these settlers have been used to ski riding in the old country. It is their national sport. They take to it like the American youth takes to baseball. The result will be, that in time we will be holding our local ski tournaments up there near Grand Marais.

"Some people in this city have gained the impression that there has been some suffering among the settlers, who went through the fire. There has been no suffering that has come to the attention of the citizens of Grand Marais. The fact of the matter is, that not so many homes were lost in the fire that raged along the north shore. It was chiefly timber, and the crops that were destroyed. In this way the fire differed very much from the fire that destroyed so much personal property among the settlers. No serious cases have been reported to the local committee at Grand Marais.

"The fact that my native state, Missouri, once repudiated some bonds, which northern capitalists were interested in, in my opinion retarded the development of that state fully twenty years," was the statement made by George W. Strathenberg of Louisiana, Mo., at the St. Louis hotel last night.

Mr. Strathenberg was discussing the economic upheaval that is taking or rather has been taking place in the South, during the past decade. He ascribed the increase of business activity to the fact that Northern capitalists were gaining more confidence in the South, were investing more in the Southland were being revolutionized by the Northern business men.

"Missouri had a very heavy bond issue which the state was obligated to pay," continued Mr. Strathenberg. "The state refused to pay this bond. That was some years ago. The fact that other Southern states have done things like this, has hurt the business reputation of the South and has resulted in keeping capital from being invested in the various industries of the South.

"When you come to understand that a man with $25,000 down there in the South was considered a rich man, you can understand the scarcity of money. A man with $25,000 could, with wise investment, make this money bring him an annual income of from $5,000 to $10,000. That is one example of the scarcity of money in the South about ten years ago. Today it is different, and the difference is due to the fact that the northern capitalists have seen profitable fields of investment and are bringing money to the South.

"If the men of the North had possessed this same confidence in the South twenty years ago, there would have been rapid development of the industries at that time.

"However the economic upheaval has come, and with it has come the greater prosperity of the South. Today they are doing business upon a more businessike basis, are farming their land upon a more scientific basis. In the old days the southern farmer was never out of debt. He paid all the debts he could when he sold his crops, but he was always a little behind his debts. Today the farmers of the South are farming their land on the rotation system, are not growing cotton exclusively, and the big planters are not the only ones that are making money. The small farmer of the South is making some money, and he is beginning to learn the first principles of scientific cultivation of the soil.

A man who will admit that he is helplessly homely is difficult to find. There was one at the Lenox hotel yesterday. This man candidly says that when good looks were given out, he was either playing hockey or he was dreadfully tardy. Anyway he has been endowed with a few of the adornments that caused Adonis to be the forerunner of the matinee hero, back in the days when maidens fair wore fillets in their hair.

This man was sleeping tranquilly in front of the Superior street window of the Lenox hotel yesterday afternoon. Occasionally he gave a snore. But it was only occasionally, so no one awakened him.

Then there was a sudden boom from the Wisconsin Central tunnel that startled every one in the lobby of the hotel. The homely man who had been sleeping, awoke with a start. He gave a wild look around. Then his gaze wandered to the window. It was cracked clear across, from the explosion.

"By—! exclaimed the homely man, "did I do that?"

They have placed a beautiful oil painting in the lobby of the Spalding hotel. It represents an ancient scene, where changing smiles were clothing styles. However, the picture is a truly artistic piece of work, and Miss Pearl Petz says it is of the highest art. "Andy" Perrin, who has a picture with nothing more exciting than trees and mountain scenery in it, is intensely jealous over the reception given to the new work of art.

THE WEATHER.

Last night was very mild in Duluth, one of the mildest the city has enjoyed this month, the temperature being 22 degs. above zero. The weather today is not very cold, but colder tempeartures are expected tonight, though the weather man says the mercury will not go below zero. Northfield was the coldest place on the weather map last night, it being 26 degs. below zero in that town. Battleford was the only other place which reported a below zero temperature.

A year ago it was spring-like and warm in Duluth. The sun came up this morning at 7:47 and is destined to set at 4:51

Mr. Richardson says of the weather:

"The Saskatchewan disturbance has advanced its center to Lake Superior while the lake region high pressure has moved to the North Atlantic coast. The eastern high pressure has caused colder weather in the North Atlantic states and a cold wave in the Adirondacks. From the lake region southward to the Gulf of Mexico the weather is somewhat warmer, due to the influence of the disturbance central over Lake Superior. During the past twenty-four hours this depression also caused snow in Northern Michigan. A rise in pressure over Alberta and Montana is attended by colder weather in those districts. Another depression has developed in the extreme Northwest attended by rising temperature and rain or snow in North Pacific districts and the plateau region. Somewhat colder weather will prevail at the Head of the Lakes tonight, followed by rising temperature Wednesday."

The Governor's Message.

Marshall News-Messenger: The inaugural mesage of Governor Johnson was the most comprehensive document yet given to the state legislature, and has won the state hearty commendation of all of the metropolitan daily press, none of which agree with the governor politically, save one. The only adverse criticism by the opposition press is the unusual length of the mesage, which comprises some 30,000 words, and would require three solid pages of a newspaper to present it in its entirety. The only paper in the state printing the document in full was The Duluth Herald, which presented it in such a comprehensive manner that features of special import to different interests were readily available. Aside from The Duluth Herald, the only way to secure the full message of the governor will be to wait for the usual publication in pamphlet form. Beyond the special interests recommended for legislation, the public value of the message lies in its able and most comprehensive exposition of the state's vast resources and opportunities, of which the governor apparently has made a far greater study than any of his predecessors, and affording a fund of information that should be possessed by every newspaper and public and private interest that has to do with promoting the growth and prosperity of the state.

TALKING OF TAWNEY.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: Barley Jim Tawney has been invited to a seat in President Roosevelt's Annanias club. Jim manages to keep in the public eye some way.

Waverly Star: And the latest member of the Ananias club happens to be Jim Tawney of Winona. Jim is surely with the big ones now.

Glenwood Gopher Press: It really looks as though President Roosevelt had stirred up a hornets nest when he attacked the house of representatives and impugned the motives of congressmen for their restructive measure as to the treasury secret service men. Congressman Tawney's reply is on so distinctly a higher plane than of the president's message, and so fully explains the action of his committee and the house of representatives that the chief executive is put in an unfavorable light.

Le Sueur News: Tawney, Tillman and Theodore. Well, the latter seems to be "it" with the people.

Stillwater Daily Gazette: Winona "should doff her hat to Congressman Tawney" says the Winona Independent, "as but few cities in the United States can boast of having one of her citizens mentioned in a president's message." That isn't the only reason. He is one of the strongest and most influential men in the house of representatives and a credit to Winona, the state of Minnesota and the country at large.

Monticello Times: Congressman Tawney has put President Roosevelt in a class of liars all by himself.

Sauk Center Herald: If you heave a rock into a bunch of dogs and one of them turns tail and scurries away yelping like mad, it's a safe bet that one was hit. What's the matter with applying the same reasoning to the outcry raised by congress—especially by our dear Jimmie Tawney—relative to the president's message on the secret service?

Cannon Falls Beacon: In its controversy with Mr. Tawney two years ago the Beacon indicated that gentleman's attitude toward the president and his policies with an accuracy confirmed by every official act and utterance by the gentleman from the "first" since that time. Mr. Tawney in Minnesota and Mr. Tawney in congress are contrasting and contradictory characters. In Minnesota, among his constituents, he would fain be a Roosevelt reformer, but at Washington he is a hostile of the hostiles, a standpatter, and a faithful and obedient servant of a corporate power.

Todd County Argus: Brother Tawney very likely drove the last nail in his political coffin when he got mixed up in that matter of cutting down the appropriation for secret service men.

Tough Luck.

Indianapolis Star: Indiana has a Democratic governor, a Democratic lieutenant governor and a Democratic speaker of the house. A Democrat has been elected to congress from this district, and a Democrat will be elected next week to represent the state in the United States senate. But of all these prizes, the popular favorite, John W. Kern, draws not one. He has been twice his partys' candidate for governor, once for vice president and now for senator, and without offense on his part he has lost every time. Misfortune seems to have marked him for its own, and his tough luck is deeply taken to heart by a multitude of friends in this city, this state, and all over the Union. A more lovable man, or kinder neighbor, or better citizen, or more loyal friend does not live. It is too bad; but apparently there is no help for it; and it will be exactly like John Kern to brace up and go about his business as if nothing had happened. We can not join in the explanation that jealousy of Indianapolis combined to beat him. Such feeling exists, but it would probably be impossible to find any member of the legislature whose vote was prompted by that motive.

Mr. Rockefeller's Taxes.

Chicago Journal: John D. Rockefeller is assessed for $2,500,000. Treasurer Tilford of Standard Oil testified Sept. 18, 1907, that Mr. Rockefeller owned 256,854 of that company's 972,500 shares, which, at present quotations, are worth almost $170,000,000. Since 1899 his average annual dividends have been $10,021,650. Yet he is taxed on less than one-quarter of one year's income from one of his scores of investments, while the middle-class home owner is taxed on the full value of his home. Is this fair?

Union Labor.

Washington Star: The decision of union labor leaders to press the appeal from the opinion of Judge Wright in the case of Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison is well taken. No question is more interesting, either to union labor or to the general public. Let us have the whole matter out in the courts, and after that we shall all know where we are. The delay is to be regretted, but it is unavoidable. It need not be protracted. Legislation of some kind is likely, but it can hardly with safety precede the settlement of a point vital to general interests. The necessary funds for this appeal will, of course, be forthcoming.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Woman enjoys, man suffers, correct conduct.

When a girl says she never kissed men, she means they always did it.

When a man isn't always trying to tell funny stories, it's a sign he may have a sense of humor.

You can never make a man believe that when you don't agree with his politics, it isn't because you are deliberately trying to insult him.

If men could get as excited over how well their wives ought to be treated as their dogs, the world would be full of good husbands.

Safer in the Army.

Cleveland Leader: Thirty thousand American workingmen killed last year. A lot of our laborers may decide to join the army and be on the safe side.

Kansas City Star: What a great improvement the Red Cross is over Red Tape.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Kansas City Journal: Wealth's Aftermath—"After a man has made millions, you'd think his wife and daughters would let him rest."

"And don't they?"

"Naw. Then he usually has to buckle down to correct his grammar and table manners."

Boston Transcript: "Do you believe that the world owes us all a living?"

"Yes, but the smarter fellows are collecting the debt for us on an 80 per cent commission."

Detroit Free Press: "You seem very anxious to have Mr. Roosevelt go to Africa."

"I am," answered the statesman. "It will be interesting to have him over yonder where he will have to pay cable tolls on any messages he may volunteer."

The Circle: Benevolent Old Citizen (to little fellow shoveling snow)—Well, little man, you're working hard!

Little Fellow (indignantly)—No, I ain't; nobody told me to do it!

Puck: "De po' child died fum eatin' too much watahmillion."

"Huh! Dar ain't no sich uh thing as too much watahmillion."

"Well, den, dar wasn't enough, boy."

Birmingham Age-Herald: "Are you also a stranger in town?" asked the recent arrival.

"No; I merely feel like one," said the well-known citizen. "My wife is giving a little dinner at the house to a party of suffragists."

Boston Transcript: Mrs. X. (away from home)—John, did you leave out anything for the cat before you started?

Mr. X. (who dislikes the beast)—Yes, I left a can of condensed milk on the table with the can opener beside it.

Washington Post: "I would be willing to work for you," he declared, "until my fingers dropped off."

"I haven't any doubt of that," she replied, "but what I want is a husband who will be able to do a little brain work for me."

Louisville Courier-Joirnal: "The average family in America comprises 4.6 persons."

"I guess I'm the .6 of this family," murmured Paw Hoptoad, a trifle acridly.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Do you know the burglars who broke into your house?"

"Know them! Certainly not," replied the society light. "I would refuse to know them under any circumstances."

Washington Herald: Only Possible Occasions—"What would you do if a band of brigands should suddenly confront you?"

"Light the gas if it was a dream, and talk to my neighbor if it was a comic opera."

That King Pinchot.

Montana has a little lamb,
It's fleece is white as snow,
And everywhere that cosset goes
It has to ask Pinchot.

It went upon the reserve one day,
Just strolled across the line,
When a ranger said, "Upon your head
There is imposed a fine.

"You must observe that we conserve
The waters of these streams;
If you graze hers, then disappear
The fondest of our dreams."

Wyoming has a lamb or two,
And so has Idaho;
But everywhere those woollies roam
They butt against Pinchot.

If they stroll upon the arid plain
And face the northern breeze,
Pinchot's shout is heard, "Get out,
You are eating up the trees.

"And when you pass across the grass,
Destruction is alarming;
I want the land of sage and sand
To perpetrate dry farming.

"You must not roam near the settler's home,
You naughty little friskers;
Go and recline across the line;
Let the wind blow through your whiskers."

Arizona also has a lamb,
As does New Mexico;
And everywhere those boregettoes roam
They meet with King Pinchot.

He's taken all the mountains good,
The canyons long and deep,
And is calling them the "nation's wood,"
And keeping out the sheep.

The stockmen gaze through misty haze
Upon their sad, sad fate;
They have lost all hope of having scope
Enough for one small state.

What makes Pinchot despise sheep so?
The eager shepherds cry;
It's as he said, "He's a friend of Ted,"
That's the reason why.
—BOREGARIO, in Butte, Mont., Miner.

Don't be so Rash!

A little brook,
A little boy,
A little skate
A little joy;
A little hole,
A little splash—
Oh, little boys,
Don't be so rash.

It is an old story now that nervous people tell of how the blood became thin and poor and then the nervous symptoms followed.

How many correctly guess that the thin blood was responsible for the nervous disorder?

The nerves get all their nourishment through the blood and as thin blood is deficient in nerve-building material, the nerves become starved. Pain and nervous breakdown result.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic for the blood that supply it with the necessary elements to nourish and tone up the nerves and, the cause being removed, nature does the rest and health is restored.

At all druggists, or direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50.

WEARY OF THE DELAY

Red Tape Has Kept Man Prisoner for Two Months.

Has Been Confined in County Jail Since Nov. 9.

The law's delay is proverbial. The red tape of the government is always a subject for comment. When the two are put together, the victim, who is enmeshed, usually has a troublous time.

Richard Kauna has been in the county jail since Nov. 9. He is charged with being insane and, not being a citizen of the United States, he is a subject of deportation. The charges against him were taken into consideration by the immigration officials when Kauna was first placed in the county jail, but he has not yet been deported or discharged, and he is beginning to tire of the irksome life behind the bars.

The man isn't violently insane. To all appearances, he is perfectly harmless, but he has a few notions of great wealth somewhere, and they prove the unsoundness of his mind. He was in an insane asylum in Toronto for a time, but was discharged shortly before he came to the United States.

Kauna was taken into custody at Proctor, where he was working. It appears that he spent last winter at Vermilion Bay, Ont., where his family of a wife and five children now reside. He came to the United States last summer, coming through Sarnia. The immigration officials failed to detect him until he came to Proctor, where W. H. Dean, the local inspector in charge, discovered him. Kauna is a German, but has failed to establish a residence in this county.

Kauna doesn't take to his imprisonment at all. He wants to go out on the chain gang with the short term prisoners, but being a government prisoner, he cannot go out to work. The confinement is telling on him and he is restless for some action to be taken by the government officials. Mr. Dean has taken the matter up with Washington, but has no orders yet to deport the man.

STUDIED BY LOMBROSO

Great Alienist Says That Mme. Steinheil is Hysterial Degenerate.

Cupidity the Motive, and Desire for More Favorable Marriage.

Turin, Jan. 19.—Cesare Lombroso, the famous criminologist, has made a study of Mme. Steinheil, whose connection with the mysterious deaths of Felix Faure and her own husband and mother has engaged the attention of the world.

Prof. Lombroso pronounces the woman a hereditary degenerate with unusual powers of fascination and great intellectual ability which enabled her to charm high society.

"She seemed," says Lombroso, "to have a liking for the unhappy, the poor and the aged, people quite outside her own family circle; while on the other hand, she hated with an extreme hatred and without any corresponding reason, her mother and her husband, who nevertheless put up with her every excess and consequently was no obstacle to the full enjoyment of her bent. She had no love for her sisters, and showed herself absolutely devoid of shame.

Crime Peculiar to Woman.

"The manner in which the crime was committed, in so far as the circumstances of the case have come to light, is that which is found to be peculiar to woman.

"For want of physical force and, perhaps, also by reason of moral weakness, women scarcely ever commit a crime direct, but induce others to do so, and prepare by exaggerated entanglements the impunity of others and themselves, and she therefore had herself discovered gagged, bound and delirious—a handy expedient, this latter, so as not to refer to the events which had taken place.

"She most probably invited her hated mother to the fatal house so as to kill her in greater comfort.

Planned Whole Affair.

"It is certain that she it was who engineered and facilitated the crime by giving one or two keys of the house to accomplices and removing the watchdogs from the premises. By hiding or pawning false or real jewels several days before the committal of the deed and leaving the caskets empty, she found a means of diverting the march of justice and gaining credence for a murder for the sake of robbery, ravaling (as is the custom of women subject to hysterics) of three masked assassins and the woman in red, and then ending by placing her own pearl in Coulliard's pocketbook, thus devising a means of rendering more credible the calumny against the latter and drawing attention away from the real accomplice—in which comes into play that tendency to mendacity and that entanglement of crimes peculiar to hysteria. The motive for the crime is that of the commonest delinquents, cupidity.

Wanted the money.

"In the first place (at a time when her resources, not too honorable, be it said, were beginning to fall off) in order to lessen the expenses which she had not seldom to defray for both victims, and above all, for her mother (who niched her money from her), and in order to enjoy the fortune which was to fall to her from both sides; and, secondly, that she might throw off the yoke of their presence, which had become insupportable in consequence of that species of ferocity baseless hatred for those around them, which animates women criminals, in whose paroxysm enter into play that so-called hysterical antipathy which often reaches such seemingly impossible proportions.

"I have had cases of men subject to hysteria who, at the sight of a letter from the wives they hated, were seized with vomiting and had even got so far as to hate the whole female sex.

"Let us add, however, the delight at cutting the bonds, which, however much they had been slackened, still served to impose some reserve, for if these women enjoy the liberty of five, they wish to have that of fifty.

Hoped For Better Future.

"Finally must be added the vanity and the hope of contracting some brighter prospects in a fresh matrimonial start, having found in Borderel, a rich man, at once respected and credulous, who had thought her ingenuous, like the good country gentleman that he was, and who, so she ruminated in her own mind, would perhaps marry her and certainly rehabilitate her, once she became a widow.

"There is also a certain trace of sexuality brooding in the motive spring of such women, and it is consequently probable that the author of the crime is to be found in one of her vile lovers who do not at all despise the erstwhile favorites of great personages."

SNUBS THE PRESIDENT.

Lincoln Farm Association Postpones the Dedication Until May.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 19.—The executive committee of the Lincoln Farm association, which owns Lincoln's birthplace in Larue county, has snubbed President Roosevelt.

Using the possibility of there being bad weather in February as an excuse, Robert J. Collier, chairman of the committee, has wired Governor Willson that the committee at a meeting in New York yesterday decided that the proposed popular demonstration would not be given Feb. 12, when President Roosevelt was to have been present to dedicate the Lincoln monument, but that it has been decided to postpone the event until May, when President Taft will be asked to lay the cornerstone for the Lincoln memorial hall.

NEW DIVORCE WRINKLE.

Involuntary Servitude is Charge Made by the Woman.

New York, Jan. 19.—Mrs. W. Edward Strong, 21 years of age and the mother of a 15-months-old baby, has just had papers served on her husband for the annulment of their marriage on the unusual ground of "involuntary servitude." She has nothing to say against her husband, but complains of drudgery.

The involuntary servitude on the ground of which little Mrs. Strong makes her demand for the annulment of her marriage is covered in the XIII amendment to the Constitution, which says:

"Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

Mrs. Strong's attorney, Mrs. Harriette Johnston-Wood, will endeavor to obtain an annulment of the marriage under this article. There is no state law covering the point at issue, but Mrs. Strong thinks she will be able to get her remarkable case before the United States supreme court.

Mrs. Strong feels sure that she could support herself and her baby, but she would not be able to support more children. She believes that if the state will not favor the breaking of a marriage contract, held unwillingly, it should support the children born of the marriage.

Another Protest.

The following resolution has been adopted by the Butchers' union of Duluth:

"Whereas, in rendering his decision in the case of Brothers Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, Justice Wright has held that, through alleged violation of the injunction issued by Justice Gould, by the above-named officers of the American Federation of Labor, that, the laws have been made to fail; and

"Whereas, it is apparent that the court took no notice of the constitutionality of the injunction, but instead added insult to injury by hurling a tirade of abuse at our brothers, at the time of announcing his decision; therefor, be it

"Resolved, that the Butchers' union, local No. 12, at a regular meeting convened, do hereby enter an emphatic protest against said decision, and also that we hold that no decree of any court can be violated when that decree is in itself a violation of the Constitution; and be it further resolved, that we condemn the abuse hurled at our brothers as uncalled for, entirely out of place, and far beneath the dignity of any court in this United States; and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the president, a copy given to the daily press and a copy spread upon the minutes of this meeting."

ROOSEVELT, ADDRESSING NEGROES, FORETELLS A "NEW WORLD" IN AFRICA

Washington, Jan. 19.—In his address last night at the diamond jubilee celebration of the African Methodist Episcopal church, President Roosevelt said in part:

There is one feature of the expansion of the peoples of white, or European, blood during the past four centuries which should never be lost sight of, especially by those who denounce such expansion on moral grounds. On the whole, the movement has been fraught with lasting benefit to most of the peoples already dwelling in the lands over which the expansion took place. Of course, any such general statement as this must be understood with the necessary reservations. Human nature being what it is, no movement lasting for four centuries and extending in one shape or another over the major part of the world could go on without cruel injustices being done at certain places and in certain times. Occasionally, although not very frequently, a mild and kindly race has been treated with wanton, brutal and ruthless inhumanity by the white intruders. Moreover, mere savages, whose type of life was so primitive as to be absolutely incompatible with the existence of civilization, inevitably died out from the regions across which their sparse bands occasionally flitted, when these regions became filled with a dense population; they died out when they were kindly treated as quickly as when they were badly treated, for the simple reason that they were so little advanced that the conditions of life necessaray to their existence were incompatable with any form of higher and better existence.

Evacuation of Cuba.

Cuba we are at this moment leaving for the second time, to work out a destiny which we now hope and believe will be one of stable and orderly independence and prosperity. In the Philippines we are constantly giving an incerasing measure of self-government. Of course, in one sense of the word self-government can never be bestowed by outsiders upon any people. It must be achieved by themselves. It means in this sense primarily self-control self-restraint, and if those qualities do not exist—that is, if the people are unable to govern themselves—then, as there must be government somewhere, it has to come from outside. But we are constantly giving to the people of the Philippines an incerasing share in, an increasing opportunity to learn by practice, the difficult art of self-government.

The responsibility of America for the moral well-being of the people of Africa is manifest. Our wealth and power have given us a place of influence among the nations of the world. But world-wide influence and power mean more than dollars or social intellectual, or industrial supremacy. They involve a responsibility for the moral welfare of others which can not be evaded.

This responsibility is to be met in cooperation with the Christian forces of other nations. So vast is this problem of redeeming a continent, which has lain for thousands of years in darkness, that all sections of the Christian church must have a hand in this great work. The few score of missionaries who are now on the field from America should be multiplied in the near future, and the money contributed to Africa should be doubled over and over again year after year. It is a joy to learn that among the misionary forces in Africa, from different lands and representing different branches of the church, there are fraternal and mutually helpful relations.

Responsibility of America.

The responsibility of America toward Africa is emphasized because of our past history, and because of the number of our citizens who are of African descent.

As a result of the African slave trade, that crime of the ages, and of two and a half centuries of slavery in America, the United States has nearly 10,000,000 of colored people as a part of its citizenship. No other country ouside of Africa has so large a negro population; and, what is more, there are no other 10,000,000 of negroes in the world who own as much property and have as large a per cent who are intelligent, moral and thrifty.

The twentieth century will see and is now seeing the transformation of Africa into a new world. Within a few years its vast domain has been partitioned among various European nations. These nations are expending enormous sums of money and utilizing their best statesmanship and colonizing abilities in the development of colonial empires of wide extent and extraordinary material possibilities.

SENATE VOTES TO RAISE SALARY OF SPEAKER CANNON.

Washington, Jan. 19.—By a vote of 37 to 27 the senate yesterday fixed the salary of the speaker of the house of representatives at $15,000, instead of $12,000 as at present, and instead of $20,000 as proposed by the committee on appropriations. A vigorous speech against any increase was made by Senator Bailey, and numerous addresses were made in support of the proposition.

MAYOR ADVISES THAT CITY FIGHT THE WARRENS

Offer to Settle Suits Referred to Council Committee.

Former City Veterinarian Wants to be Investigated.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Referred Warren Bros.' proposition to settle patent infringement suits against the city to the city attorney and committee. Mayor says fight in courts.

Former City Veterinarian John McKay asks that committee be appointed to go over the books of his firm and otherwise investigate sale of horses to the city, to prove that only a reasonable profit was made in the sale of fire horses.

Voted to ask for bids for both concrete and steel bridges over Tischer's creek on Superior street.

Adopted resolutions urging legislature to support public utilities bill.

Voted Park Point one fireman to serve during winter months.

Accepted bid for old fire hall property at Glen Avon.

Settled Lakeside quarrel over stopping place of street cars at Forty-seventh avenue west, deciding in favor of east side for westbound cars.

In a communication accompanying the proposition of the Warren Bros. company to compromise the two patent infringement suits against the city, Mayor Haven last night recommended to the council that no settlement be arranged until a decision either for or against the city has been obtained in the highest court of the country.

He recommends that the council direct that every effort be made to defend this very important point, to the end that the city of Duluth may furnish to the property holders a pavement at actual cost. Mayor Haven expresses the opinion that the two Michigan cases, decided in favor of the company in the United States court of appeals at Cincinnati, are not identical with the Duluth case.

The Warrens claim the city has laid about 81,000 yards of tar macadam pavement in violation of the Warren patents, and ask a settlement on a basis of 25 cents a square yard, a royalty which is being paid by several other cities, it is claimed. On this basis it would cost the city about $21,000 to settle the two suits. The council last night referred the whole matter to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, the finance committee and the city attorney.

It took the aldermen as much time to decide a neighborhood quarrel over the stopping place of street cars at Lakeside as it did for it to transact all the rest of the business of the evening. The decision was in favor of the east side of Forty-seventh avenue east for west-bound cars. A waiting room has been provided there in a candy store, so the people can wait where it is warm, and buy candy and cigars while waiting, if they are so inclined.

Alderman McKnight presented a petition, signed by 112 men, women and children, asking that the street car company be instructed to stop its cars on the east side of the avenue. A. L. Kingman lives on the west side of the avenue, and it is he who first objected when the car company, in compliance with the wishes of some of the residents of Lakeside, directed that their cars stop on the east side. On his complaint the order was reversed, and then the other people objected, and the car company said it would do as the council directed.

Mr. Kingman, last night, addressed the council, saying he did not care whether the car stopped on the east side of the avenue or not, as long as it also stopped on the west side, when he or any member of his family wanted to board it. He said he had paid taxes on the corner for the past twenty-two years, and objected to having street cars pass him up on the west side of the avenue when westbound cars stopped on that side of the avenue at every corner in town.

Quite a delegation of Lakesiders appeared against Mr. Kingman, and several of them spoke in favor of the east side of the avenue. W. A. Hicken, Frank Crassweller and Frank Fleishman were some of the speakers. A motion to refer the matter to a committee was lost by a vote of 7 to 7. A motion to postpone action one week for further investigation was lost by a vote of 8 to 6. A motion to direct the company to stop its cars on the east side of the street carried by a vote of 9 to 5.

Dr. John McKay, who recently resigned as city veterinarian, as a result of the investigation which brought out the fact that he had sold horses to the city in violation of the city charter, addressed a communication to the council last night, referring to the suit which the city has brought to secure a refund of the money paid him for the horses, and asking that a committee of aldermen be instructed to look over the books of his company, and satisfy themselves that the city had received full value in horses for all money paid him. His request was carried out, and the matter was referred to the fire department committee, which will report its findings to the council, although it is not expected this report will have any particular bearing on the suit which has been brought, calling for a refund of the cash.

Joseph Ray offered $701 for a quit claim deed to the old fire hall at Glen Avon, and his bid was accepted, with the understanding that he remove the structure within the next two months. There was another offer of $750 for the structure, but a warranty deed was required, and the city council could not very well furnish it. The price of Mr. Ray includes the lot upon which the hall is situated.

The council voted to employ a fireman on Park Point during January, February March and April. His headquarters will be at the street car barn.

A resolution was adopted urging the Duluth legislators to bend their every energy in securing the adoption of a public utilities bill, authorizing cities like Duluth to acquire, own, operate and lease public utilities. Alderman McKnight will go to St. Paul and urge the immediate introduction of such a bill.

City Engineer McGilvray reported that the bridge on Superior street over Tischer's creek is not in a very safe condition, and has directed the placing of a sign advising automobile and team drivers to be careful in crossing the structure, and to use only the center of the the bridge. The council voted to ask for bids on both concrete and steel as material for replacing the bridge.

Neither of the two applicants for the position of clerk in the city clerk's office passed the recent civil service examination, and another examination was ordered, with the understanding that it be open to girls as well as to men. At the last examinations, four of the applicants for a position in the water and light department passed. Four also came up to the requirements of the position of clerk in the police department. An examination for city clerk's clerk will be held Feb. 1.

On motion of Alderman Foubister, the request of the local employment agents, made two or three weeks ago, that a city inspector of employment offices be employed, was referred to a committee for investigation.

A resolution was adopted warmly thanking R. D. Crane of Chicago for his donation to the city of the collection of Eastman Johnson paintings, depicting historic scenes in Duluth, also thanking the Masons for their kindness in providing temporary quarters for the collection.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used.' For sale by all drug gists.

state supreme court held that if the contract by which the borrower is compelled to pay the tax is made at a different time than the mortgage, the law does not apply. And now dealers in legal forms sell an agreement by which the borrower binds himself to pay the tax, the paper taking such a form as to show that it was executed prior to the execution of the mortgage. And the borrower pays the tax in California, just as he pays it in Minnesota under the registry tax law, and just as he paid it in this state when mortgages were supposed to be taxed upon an ad valorem basis.

Another change proposed by Mr. Bicknell in the same bill seeks to remedy another obvious defect in the law. Now the tax is 5 mills on the dollar, no matter how long the note may run. The Bicknell bill makes the tax 1 mill on the dollar each year, and if no time for payment is named, it is to be presumed that it is for five years, making the tax just what it is now.

In another bill Mr. Bicknell adopts another California idea. It provides that debts secured by mortgage on real estate shall be deducted from the value of the property in assessing it for taxation. In other words, the owner of the mortgaged property will pay real estate taxes only on his equity, instead of paying full taxes on the value of his property, and paying the tax on the mortgage in addition.

Clearly, not the least interesting feature of the session is going to be the consideration of what to do with the vexed problem of taxation of mortgages. There are those who would make all credits exempt from taxation on the ground that the burden inevitably falls upon the borrower, thus constituting a penalty upon enterprise; there are those who like Mr. Bicknell, would make another attempt to compel the lender to pay the mortgage tax; and there are those who would let matters stand as they are, not to mention the very few who would return to the old system of ad valorem taxation of mortgages.

The legislature is going to be asked to pass a law requiring that state and county funds shall be deposited only in state banks, and that national banks shall be barred from participation in this privilege.

No bill to that end has yet been introduced, but some of the members are being approached on the subject by their local bankers, and are being uregd to declare for the plan.

The reasoning advanced is plausible enough to make the national bankers sit up and take notice, and no doubt they will be in later with reasons why the proposed law should not be enacted.

The state bankers reason this way: The government puts all of its deposits into national banks, and cuts out state banks entirely. Therefore, why shouldn't the state government come to the aid of the state banks with a counter provision that state money cannot be put into national banks, but must be deposited in state banks?

Furthermore the state bankers believe that congress is about to pass a bill providing for a postal savings bank system. Congress hasn't yet exhibited any violent intent to do this thing, but the party in power is pledged to it, and probably the postal savings bank will come ultimately The pending measure provides that the money put into postal banks shall be redeposited in national banks, and here the state banks think they are likely to be hit again. They fear that the establishment of postal savings banks will cause some diversion of deposits from them to the postal banks, and thus again the national banks will have an advantage.

To protect themselves the state banks want the legislature to enact the law described above, so that they may be assured of at least getting the state and county deposits. At present a very large proportion of state and county money is in national banks. What proportion this is has not been figured out, but it is believed that of late national banks have increased in number more rapidly than state banks, and that national banks are now getting a good deal more public money than state banks.

A gross earnings tax system for street railways after the plan proposed by the Minnesota tax commission is provided for in a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis. In his bill the rate of taxation is not fixed, but it will be graded according to earnings, and the percentages of taxation are left blank in the bill, to be agreed upon by the tax commission and the committee of the house when they get ready to consider the bill.

The tax is to be paid to the county, and is to be divided between the state, the county and the communities in which the street railroad property lies in the same proportion as other taxes are distributed. At present, street railways are taxed just as other property is taxed. Their real estate is not extensive as a rule, and their heaviest tax is on personal property consisting of the franchises and rolling stock.

Representative Rosenwald of Madison got a resolution through the house yesterday afternoon calling upon all the surveyors general of logs and lumber in this state to report forthwith to the house the amount of logs and lumber, laths, shingles, posts and poles scaled in the years 1905, 1906, 1907 and 1908, together with the amount of fees received by each during the years named.

The extension of the powers of the state railroad and warehouse commission to include supervision of all public utilities like street railways, gas and waterworks, etc., is the possible objective of a resolution introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative Carl L. Wallace of Minneapolis. He proposes that the speaker appoint a committee of three house members to go to Madison and investigate the public utilities law of Wisconsin, where the plan of putting public utilities under the railroad and warehouse commission has been adopted and is, it is said, working well. Representative Brady of St. Paul put the resolution over today on a notice of debate, stating afterwards that he wished to inform himself about the nature and objects of the inquiry.

The extension of the supervisory powers of the state over public utility corporations has had considerable recent growth in this country, and it has been along two lines. One, represented by New York, puts the public utilities of a municipal nature under one commission and the railroads under another. The other method, illustrated by the Wisconsin law, is to broaden the powers of the railroad and warehouse commission to include all public house commission to include all public utilities. The chances are now that if Minnesota adopts the system it will broaden the powers of the existing railroad and warehouse commission, instead of creating a new body to govern municipal public utilities.

Representative Rosenwald of Madison got through the house yesterday afternoon a joint resolution providing for the appointment of five senators and six house members, to investigate the feasibility of canalizing the Minnesota river, in order to prevent a recurrence of the disastrous floods, such as prevailed last spring.

Representative John Saugstad of Climax introduced yesterday afternoon his bill extending the primary election system, to include the nomination of state officers and United States senators, thus doing away altogether with the convention system. It is provided that the nominated candidates shall get together after the primaries and prepare party platforms. The primary election is to be held in June.

Two years ago Mr. Saugstrad introduced a similar bill, but it was defeated, partly through opposition to the June primaries from city members, who feared the expenses of a long campaign, and partly through the general opposition to the extension of the primary election system. This time, in order to separate the two proposals, he has introduced a separate bill, providing for the June primaries, and while he will also work for the extension of the system, he will make his chief fight on behalf of the farmers for the June primary.

Another turn was given to the fight for a new Northern Minnesota normal school when Representative Hinds of Hubbard county yesterday afternoon introduced a general bill leaving the selection of the site to the state normal school board, and providing only that there shall be a new normal school in some community of Minnesota "north of the main line of the Northern Pacific, extending from the city of Brainerd west, and being west of the meridian passing through the city of Brainerd." This would include not only Cass Lake, Bemidji and Thief River Falls, but also Park Rapids, from which community came a similar bill two years ago. The other communities will probably insist upon the legislature selecting the site if it is agreed that a school should be located.

Representative Burdette Thayer of Spring Valley will make his chief fight this winter for the revival of the state board of equalization, which went out of existence the first of the year under the law creating the tax commission. He introduced a bill reinstating the board of equalization yesterday afternoon, and while there seems to be a general belief that the board of equalization is unnecessary now that the tax commission has been created, he will have considerable support for his bill. The country districts have always looked upon the state board as giving them the whiphand over the cities, and upon the tax commission, with its limited membership, as giving the cities too much power. The present tax commission contains two members from Southern Minnesota, one from Red Wing and one from Kasson, and a third from Minneapolis, so that its membership rather undermines the chief argument in behalf of the board of equalization.

Representative George W. Rodenberg of St. Paul yesterday introduced a drastic anti-bucketshop law, modelled after the New York statute. It prohibits fictitious trading of all kinds that comes under the head of bucket-shopping, and provides severe penalties for its violation. If it is violated by a corporation, it is to be fined up to $5,000. If it is violated by an individual, he is to be fined up to $1,000 or imprisonment for a maximum of five years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Representative John Zelch of Cottage Grove, in a bill introduced yesterday afternoon, provides that county boards may grant franchises to street railway companies outside of cities and villages. This is designed to facilitate interurban lines.

Mr. Zelch also offered a bill appropriating $12,000 in state aid to county agricultural societies.

Other house bills yesterday afternoon were as follows: Dalzell, legalizing village and township bonds in aid of drainage; Spooner, requiring railroads to transport live stock at least fifteen miles an hour, except in certain cases; Bjorge, requiring foreign corporations to make annual reports and pay license fees as described in The Herald last Saturday; Brady, prohibiting street railways from crowding cars, as described in The Herald yesterday; Jfl T. Johnson, increasing jurors' fees from $2 to $3 per day.

Considerable interest is being taken in the smaller communities of the state in the bill by Representative L. C. Spooner of Morris, providing for pension funds for firemen in communities of less than 50,000 inhabitants, to be raised by taxation. Cities of more than 50,000 now have such pension funds. The measure applies to all communities that have regularly organized fire departments, and the tax proposed is one-tenth of a mill.

Many of the older residents of Duluth will remember Sampson Dower, father of Representative William Dower of Wadena. The family lived in Duluth in the early '70s, and the elder Dower did much important contracting work in the days of Duluth's first boom. The family numbered thirteen, and its members still have many friends in Duluth.

The elder Dower, who is still living with his son at Wadena, was the contractor who graded Mesaba avenue. He also did the extensive rock cut that was necessary to put Lake avenue up the hill from Superior street and he did work on the dyke in the bay and upon the berakwater that used to stand on the lake shore to protect the outside harbor before the Duluth canal was put through.

DEEP SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup.

(Cut This Out.)

From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and toned up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

HASKELL CAUSES ARREST OF AGENT OF W. R. HEARST

Oklahoma Governor Declares Money is Being Offered for Manufacturing False Statements Against Him.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 19.—On a warrant sworn out by Governor Haskell, charging conspiracy to defame the governor, Scott MacReynolds, attorney and special agent for William R. Hearst, was arrested last night. Armed with a search warrant, also sworn to by Governor Haskell MacReyonlds' rooms, in the Ione hotel, were searched by Sheriff Mahoney and Orville T. Smith, private attorney for the governor, and a large amount of data and papers seized, pertaining to the $600,000 libel suit instituted by Haskell against Hearst.

MacReynolds immediately demanded of the county court, through his counsel, John H. Burford, the whereabouts of his papers. They were found in the private office of the governor and taken over by Sheriff Mahoney at the court's orders.

MacReynolds had collected a vast amount of data, all secured in confidence. He declares Governor Haskell's purpose in obtaining his arrest, and the seizure of his papers, was to obtain possession of this information, to ascertain its importance, and to learn from whom he had obtained it. Governor Haskell said:

"I have sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Mr. S. MacReynolds, said to be from Brooklyn, representing Mr. Hearst. MacReynolds has been in the state almost constantly for nearly three months, at times assisted by one or two other men from the East, and by a certain person from Ohio, and three or four persons from our own state.

"I paid no attention to them until recently, when I learned that they were disappointed in not finding anything truthful to use against me, whereupon they became apparently desperate and began offering large sums of money to persons to aid in manufacturing false statements. In several instances, I am reliably advised, they have used the expression, 'we have the money and are willing to give it to you if you will help us.'

"It is not Hearst alone, but there are other parties in the conspiracy, and with the main purpose of injuring me, they combined their efforts. I have nothing further to add, except that the arrest of Mr. MacReynolds is only the beginning, and other conspirators will have the same opportunity to square themselves with a jury of honest people."

MARINE MEN DISCUSS THE INSURANCE RATES.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—Dissatisfied with insurance rates charged by companies doing a marine business, a number of owners of vessels on the Great Lakes met here yesterday and discussed the organization of a Vessel Owners' Insurance company. No steps toward this organization were taken, as a number of additional vesselmen are expected for the annual meeting tomorrow.

The idea is to take over part of the lake marine insurance and discover whether rates charged by the underwriters are higher than necessary. Harvy D. Goulder of Cleveland outlined the proposed association to the vesselmen.

MESSINA IS IN FLAMES

It Is Feared That Persons Still Alive Are Being Burned.

Fire Spreads Among the Quake Ruins Despite the Soldiery.

Messina, Jan. 19.—Fire broke out today among the ruins of the earthquake-wrecked city. The remains of the Pennessi palace fell and added to the conflagration.

The flames are spreading in spite of the work of the soliders to control them. The odor of burning flesh is mingled with the smoke, and it is feared persons still alive are being consumed.

The flames had their center in the Pennessi palace, but spread over the ruins of the city hall and the Bank of Italy.

The alarm was sounded on bugles, while the warships in the harbor blew their foghorns and soldiers and sailors were hurried to the scene.

The duke of Genoa made an heroic rescue of a demented woman who insisted upon forcing her way into a burning pile of ruins to save her husband whom she declared was being burned alive.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Duluth society will be much interested in the re-announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Shirley of Kentucky to Thomas Shevlin of Minneapolis. Miss Shirley is a niece of Mrs. Whitney Wall of this city and visited in Duluth a few summers ago. It was shortly after leaving here that her engagement to Mr. Shevlin was first announced, and was later broken. It was rumored later that she was to marry the Marquis de Mores, but the latest announcements are she will be married to her former and present fiance, very soon. Miss Shirley is one of the belles and great beauties of the South, and her social career has been most interesting since her debut.

Mr. Shevlin, who won fame on the Yale football eleven, is prominent in Twin City society.

"WORDS OF CHRIST."

Oratorio is Well Sung at Cathedral Auditorium.

Cathedral auditorium was filled last evening with an audience who listened to a most interesting presentation of the oratorio, "The Last Words of Christ," by Dubois, the first time that the work has been presented in Duluth. The choir of the Cathedral, assisted by Flaaten's orchestra with Miss Schultz, soprano, George L. Tyler, tenor, and George Suffel, baritone, sang the oratorio. The music is interesting and in the entire work there was a sympathy between the musicians, that gave to the numbers, the deep religious feeling characteristic of it from the introduction to the triumphiant "Te Deum" that follows the last word of the tragedy. The music is colorful and the work of the choir was marked especially for the lines of shading and fine feeling displayed. The chorus was well balanced and great credit is due every member. The directors were J. W. Lantry and J. W. Haben.

Every phase that fell to the tenor lot was beautifully sung by Mr. Tyrole and in the Sixth Word, with Mr. Tyler and chorus, was the climax of exquisite feeling and musical artistry. Mr. Suffel's baritone voice appeared to advantage in the solemn and tender passages and he was well received. Miss Schultz sang the few numbers that are awarded the soprano, pleasingly.

Flaaten's orchestra played the accompaniment in a manner to make the oratorio an harmonious whole, and Miss Katherine Mackey was at the piano.

Those who appeared in the chorus are: Sopranos—Misses Foltz, Malloy, Weber, Quigley, Sullivan, Casey, H. Fitzgerald, L. Fitzgerald, Farrell, A. Fitzgerald, Martell, Mr. Ball and Mrs. Kreimer; altos—Misses Pearson, Farrell, Lynot, Haley, Martel, Maloney, Paul, Limehan and Kreimer; tenors—Messrs. Haben, Paul, Murray, Walsh, Bissonnette, Haley, Foran and Kreimer; bassos—Messrs. Lantry, McCaul, Kelly, Forrestal, Golz, Grams, Pulski, Ignislak, Kreimer and Beck.

Before the singing of the oratorio there was an overture played by the orchestra and cornet solo by Charles Helmer, which received an encore. Miss Clara Maloy and choir sang "Inflamatus," by Rossini and Mrs. Leo Ball sang.

WHEN TEETH COME.

Substantial Items Should Be Added to Diet.

When the first teeth appear it is time to add something more substantial to the diet. Many physicians condemn baby foods without reservation, but in this I cannot concur. Wisely employed, they are often of great value, but it is not wise to use them unless absolutely necessary, and then only in selected instances. I often, but not always, add them cautiously to the milk, then, beginning with very little milk then, if all goes well, gradually increase the proportion. Such foods had best not be used save in such conjunction with milk. In selecting a food it is well to remember that the advice of your doctor is far more valuable than that of your neighbor, for babies differ, says the Delineator for February.

By the time a baby is a year old its diet should begin to include scraped meat and fruit juices and the whites of eggs Begin with a wine-glass of chicken broth or bouillion, fed from a spoon, and as these things are increased, gradually decrease the amount of bottle food. Soop after it turns its first year the child should learn to drink from a small cup. After that its meals may be reduced to five a day, with an occasional drink of orange juice and plenty of water.

The first meal had better have modified milk as its chief constituent, with half as much infant food or strained oatmeal added. The second meal, in the middle of the morning, may be a repetition of the first. Early in the afternoon a gill of chicken broth or half as much beef juice, may be given, and this may be varied every few days, with the white of an egg boiled, say, for one minute. The two remaining meals had better have milk as their mainstay. After a month or so of such diet, if the baby is in good health, its mid-morning meal may begin to include dry toast, zwelback, thin oatmeal and other cereals, and its afternoon dinner may include a whole egg, soft-boiled or poached, and a teaspoonful of finely chopped raw beef. Fruits should be given freely but it is always best to have them well cooked.

NOTED HOSTESS.

Miss Cannon, a Woman of Tact and Charm.

Miss Helen Cannon, daughter of the speaker of the house of representatives, or "Uncle Joe" Cannon as he is familiarly termed, is the only unmarried woman of the sextette of ladies who are the leaders of the social swim. If preference went strictly according to power and not according to a fixed system of rank, Miss Cannon would rank second to Mrs. Roosevelt. Place is determined according to the rules and the woman kin of the autocrat of the house come after the wife of the presiding officer of the senate, says the National Women's Daily.

Miss Cannon is one of the noted hostesses of Washington. Asked "What she was fondest of, and what she was proudest of," to both questions she made the same answer: "Of being Joe Cannon's daughter." Miss Cannon, being college-bred, favors higher education for women, although, she says, the natural woman appeals to her first of all. She is adept at witty sayings and tells a story with as much vim as her father, and her stock of anecdotes is inexhaustible.

It has been asserted that Miss Cannon is a shrewd politician and that her advice to her father is frequently invaluable, although she herself disclaims such an accomplishment, and avers that she "does not know a bill from a box of blacking." But if she does not know politics and its mechanics, she knows politicians, and her intuition never fails. It is reliably stated that many a man highly recommended has failed with the speaker for no other reason than that Miss Cannon conceived an aversion to him or did not think him trustworthy.

Until the selection of Mr. Cannon to rule "the lower house," few people knew that he possessed an unmarried daughter. After leaving Wellesley, Miss Cannon spent several years studying music and the languages in Paris, Stuttgart and Dresden, and she made only fleeting visits to Washington. Miss Cannon holds the record in the high official set for pedestrianism. She has a pedometer and every day, no matter how the weather may be behaving, she does her six miles. When she is in good trim and has the leisure she can do her ten miles in less than three hours. She walks in the morning, and walks just for the love of it. After the love of her father, Miss Cannon's most striking characteristic is her affection for the Illinois city of her birth, Danville.

DON'T WORRY.

Remove the Cause of Slight Irritations.

This is a nervous age. All that most of us can do is to keep a sharp lookout that life does not give us unnecessary pricks. There are so many big things to fret us that the little frets should be eliminated so far as possible, says an exchange.

We should not allow ourselves to be made irritable and have our nerves set on edge by things or persons which could be "cut out" by a little effort or courage.

A woman once had a maid who almost drove her frantic by a squeaky voice. The girl was a good one and there was so little fault to be found with her in other respects that the mistress took herself to task for her foolishness and allowed her nerve to be rasped to breaking for two years before she gained courage to rid herself of the girl.

Though she was for two months without a maid, and later had a succession of inefficient ones, the woman's health steadily improved because she no longer had that persistent irritation a dozen times a day.

Too often we blame ourselves for being finicky and will not give in to minor annoyances, though they are doing us real harm.

Do not think that little frets do not count. They often work more harm than a serious shock. We can more easily bear the sudden sharp blow that we fancy a "crusher" than constant pin pricks. Against the blow we gather all our courage and endurance, while the pinpricks neglected until we find it has poisoned our lives.

We think it silly to mind such a trifle. Then, because of our supposed silliness, we allow ourselves to be annoyed until our nerves and temper both suffer.

If anything or any one annoys, get rid of it as soon as possible. Sometimes, unfortunately, we are tied to our tormentor. Then all that can be done is to fight for the mastery of our unruly nerves. But when the offender is something that can be dispensed with, don't hesitate, though you are called a "crank."

What would we think of a jeweler who would allow an acid slowly to eat away a rare bit of gold, though he would be horrified at the idea of an immersion in that acid? No wiser is the woman who does not take the trouble to stop small frets.

If a banging window at night gets on your nerves, instead of reproving yourself for being queer, get up and close it. A night of nerve jars for you, trifling though it may seem, is like the drop of acid in its damage.

If a person frets you, it is not necessary to be rude to her, but you can avoid her. There are enough agreeable people in the world to make it folly to go with those who fret us.

If a servant annoys you, get rid of her though she be a paragon. Better do your own work than run the risk of getting an irritable temper.

Why live in a neighborhood that is distasteful or noisy? Moving may be costly, but it is cheaper in the end than constant fret. Better sacrifice your household goods than be unhappy among them.

Do not read a book that irritates you. There is plenty of printers' ink in the world, so why be annoyed just because your habit is to finish what is begun.

Do not get into the habit of letting yourself be bored, still less fretted. It is not worth while. There are enough things to be endured; there are more than need be. You are foolish to make a martyr of yourself by letting them get on your nerves.

YOUR Kind of Oysters.

"First catch your rabbit" is the way an old English recipe begins.

The modern version, applied to oysters, is "First buy 'Sealshipt.'"

"Sealshipt" Oysters have that distinctive, salt, oyster flavor. The reason is they are packed in galvanized steel containers, sealed, airtight, with ice around the containers, but not in the oysters. No water is used. "Sealshipt" Oysters cannot bloat nor collect dirt, nor germs.

"Sealshipt" Oysters are guaranteed. The White Porcelain Case bearing the Blue "Sealshipt" Trade-Mark, from which you buy "Sealshipt" Oysters, is your protection. You can depend on their wholesomeness, purity, freshness. You can be just as particular about your oysters as about any other food—"Sealshipt" Oysters are for particular people.

We sell "Sealshipt" only—wouldn't sell any other kind.

the EVENING STORY

LUNDQUIST

By Norman H. Cromwell.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

It was evening on the Dakota prairie. Before the door of his sod shanty a young man whose flaxen hair proclaimed his Scandinavian lineage stood, engaged in the engrossing duty of feeding his shepherd dog. As he tossed the crumbs the dog would leap nimbly upward and catch them neatly as they descended.

"Ah, Jim," he ejaculated, presently, "a week—maybe two weeks and she ban here!"

He gazed straight at the dying sun and murmured the word "Hilda," in a subdued voice. Then he walked to a bench beside the door and sat down, folding his strong young arms across his breast, while the dog crept up and buried his nose in his master's lap.

He had been a year of reverses with Lundquist. He had labored hard—no man could put more honest toil into the struggle with a pernicious soil than he—and it seemed now as if all was for naught. Beginning with a wet, disheartening spring, the season had crept on, piling up against him its mute but potent protests in a manner that had discouraged many a less hardy man. His best horse, becoming entangled in the only wire fence within twenty miles, had been sacrificed to the casualty list of a frontiersman's life. By mortgaging his crop he had secured another.

He was now facing his annual interest payment, while the storekeeper in the town a dozen miles away was growing suspicious and was demanding payment of an open account. His crops—only puny stacks of discolored wheat straw standing limply awaiting the threshing.

But Lundquist was forgetting all this as he sat on the bench before his abode. Hilda was coming to him. Hilda, from far-off Norway. Six years it had been since he had gazed into her eyes—six years since he had stolen aside in the crush at the embarking and kissed her many times on her willing lips. The thought of it brought a smile to Lundquist's sun-tanned visage. The dog saw it and wagged his tail in recognition of his master's mood.

Two years ago she would have come, but he set his teeth firmly and sent her that letter which had wrung his heart. "Wait!" he had told her. Wait till Fortune smile more brightly on these bleak Dakota prairies! It was a bitter thing to do, but Lundquist saw no other course.

Only last year she was prevented from coming by the sickness of her mother. Nothing, not even poor crops, now stood in the way of her coming, and she was now in mid-ocean on the steamer that was bearing her westward—to Carl.

In a little box under his bunk he had every letter that Hilda had written him. They were good reading during the long winter's evenings.

The steamer agent had said that she should reach Quebec on the 14th. It was now the 9th.

On the 16th Lundquist went to town. He walked up and down the single street, keeping close watch on the depot until the afternoon train had passed. He rode the twelve miles home in moody silence.

The following day he went to town again and in the evening, when he went back toward home, his face was haggard and wan from his day's vigil. He was getting worried. What could be keeping Hilda? Had something gone wrong? Lundquist slept little that night.

Old Jim, for the first time in months, barked piteously and his master starting guiltily, made haste to throw some bread to the animal.

"Pore Jim!" said he, "Ay fo get yo', eh?"

Lundquist essayed a laugh, but it died away hollowly.

The next day he had stalked by the postoffice five times in sulky silence when he heard some one call his name. He paused and entered. Banks, the postmaster, had a letter in his hand.

"Letter for you, Carl!" he said. "Came this morning!"

Lundquist took it in his hand and edged away to a corner of the little office. It was a queer letter—all in print, like a newspaper. Lundquist bent over it and wrinkled his brow.

"Read it for you?" suggested the postmaster, expectantly.

"Ja. Yo read hem," assented Lundquist, perplexedly.

The letter was a cruel stab to the eager listener. Hilda was detained in Quebec. The medical authorities had examined her and found her suffering with an affliction of the eyes that would prohibit her entry unless speedily cured. To do this a sufficient amount of money must be advanced by Lundquist to insure payment of the medical expense incident to the treatment.

The postmaster, hearing a suspicious sound, paused in his translation and glanced up. The listener was staring at him wide-eyed, his whole soul pouring out through his blue orbs. It confused him and he crumbled the paper nervously. Lundquist brought himself together with a jerk.

"How much money hem say?"

"A hundred dollars!" was the postmaster's response.

"Von hundred dollars," repeated the stricken youth, "Von hundred—"

He reached out and took the sheet from Bank's fingers and placed it in his pocket. Then he went out, old Jim close at his heels, with his tail down dejectedly.

An hour later the two emerged from the door of the bank. Aimlessly they strolled along the dismal street until they came to where the team was tied. A mile out on the open prairie the youth turned in his seat and shook his clenched fist at the receding town. Once he glanced upward—then settled firmly in a straight stare ahead, and so remained till the cabin was reached.

That night he did not go to bed. He sat and walked and babbled to the dog till daybreak. In the morning he eyed the rising sun with bloodshot eyes. His body quivered with the protests of abused nerves and his cheeks were sunken from lack of nourishment.

"Von hunderd dollars!" he said, bitterly.

That day he visited the bank three different times. The last time he stood in the doorway and told the banker a few of the hot things that rankled in his brain. Old Jim stood aside and snarled.

He visited the store and asked for food. When the storekeeper suggested pay, he cursed beneath his breath and left the place. He went to the postoffice with a letter he had written to Hilda—a letter filled with scalding tears and heart burnings. The postmaster spoke to him, asking if he was sending the money on to the girl. Lundquist clenched his teeth tightly rushed out to conceal the tears that stole unrepressed down his cheeks.

Two days later a letter came. It was cold and formal. Hilda had returned to Norway. Lundquist stumbled awkwardly when Banks read the letter and thrust his elbow through a pane of glass. Banks, glancing up, made light of the accident.

"Don't worry about that, Carl!" he remarked; "I'll fix that."

"Ay get yo glass!" said Lundquist, hoarsely, as he went out.

At the hardware store he brought forth his paltry store of silver—four dollars in all. The glass took one of these. Inside the case something caught his eye—something shiny and cold. He inquired its price.

"Two-fifty," said the man, "and it's a bargain."

Lundquist slid the money hesitatingly across the glass counter and took the object gingerly in his hand. Flushed and trembling, he started for the door.

"Wait! You want—you'll need some of these!" called the proprietor, as he slid out some little boxes.

"Ja! Von box!" said Lundquist.

It was late that night when the two reached the lone cabin on the prairie. The dog sat on the floor before his master and licked his lips expectantly, but his master heeded him not—he was reading, reading, reading Hilda's letters.

Two weeks later the newspaper at the county seat printed the following:

"A party of sportsmen made a gruesome find in a sod shanty twelve miles north of E— last week. Attracted by the mournful howling of a shepherd dog, they drew up and entered. The body of a young Scandinavian lay upon the earth floor with a bullet wound in his forehead. Numerous letters scattered about create the impression that he committed the deed in a fit of homesickness or despondency. The dog refused to leave the spot, although wasted to a skeleton by hunger and exposure."

ONCE PROSPEROUS TOWN IS NOW DEAD.

Mason City, Iowa, Jan. 19.—After nearly a half century the onee prosperous town of Mona, Iowa, which is just over the state line between Minnesota and Iowa and a mile south of Lyle, passed out of existence when its postoffice was removed. The town, years ago, was the terminus of the Illinois Central railroad, and was thriving and busy. A short time later, the Milwaukee road built north of the place and started the town of Lyle. It was followed later by the Great Western, which entered Lyle, and the growth of Mona was checked.

EFFORTS TO LOCATE MORTON UNAVAILING.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Police Chief Koehler, who has been trying to locate Charles Morton, former president of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Baseball league, who mysteriously disappeared a week ago, says he has learned that Morton left Cleveland at 12:30 p. m. last Tuesday. At Crestline, Ohio, Morton left the train, saying to an acquaintance who saw him that he was going to Fort Wayne and from there to Chicago to visit his brother, H. U. Morton. Whether Morton reached Fort Wayne has not yet been ascertained, but he did not reach his brother's home in Chicago.

ROOSEVELT ASKS CONGRESS TO AUTHORIZE A SPECIAL ABRAHAM LINCOLN HOLIDAY

Washington, Jan. 19.—The president has sent to congress a special message recommending the passage of a law authorizing him to issue a proclamation setting apart Feb. 12, 1909, as a special holiday in recognition of the centennial anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The message follows:

"I have received from a committee of the Grand Army of the Republic, with the approval of its commander-in-chief, a communication reading in part as follows:

"'Pursuant to the recommendation of the committee authorized by the forty-first national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, and appointed to take into consideration the fitting celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of President Lincoln, which has made a report to the forty-second national encampment that was unanimously adopted, the undersigned having been appointed a committee to prepare a proclamation for the occasion, met in New York city Oct. 19, 1908, and submits the following as the result of its deliberations:

"'1—That the commander-in-chief be requested to invite the president of the United States, governors of states and mayors of cities to participate with the Grand Army of the Republic in public recognition of the centennial anniversary of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, Feb. 12, 1909, and by proclamation as far as practicable, recommend that the day be observed as a special holiday.'

"I regard the proposal as eminently proper. It will be from every standpoint desirable to observe this hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln as a special holiday. I recommend that congress pass a law authorizing me to issue a proclamation setting apart this day as a special holiday."

PETITION ASKS THAT A CATHOLIC CHURCH SHALL BE DECLARED BANKRUPT

P. J. KIERAN SURRENDERS, GIVES BOND

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 19.—Petitions have been filed in the United States district court asking that the church of the Holy Name of Mary, at Donora, Pa., be adjudged bankrupt. The action is said to be unprecedented in bankruptcy proceedings and is an outgrowth of the financial dealings of P. J. Kieran, with Catholic church institutions. The petitioners who represent claims of $9,000, are from Pittsburg, Chicago and Toronto, Can. They base their hope of recovery on the claim that a church is not a corporation and can be thrown into involuntary bankruptcy and on the further claim that judgments for $17,000 against the church expired today unsatisfied.

P. J. Kieran, ex-president of the Fidelity Funding company of New York, whose whereabouts have been unknown to the house for several months, came to Pittsburg yesterday, surrounded by the authorities, gave bond in two cases pending against him here, and left almost immediately for New York to fight bankruptcy proceedings against him there.

FUN WITH NEWLYWEDS.

"Ad" Man and Linotype Operator Get All That's Coming.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 19.—When Bradley Donnell, advertising manager of the Eagle-Star, and Miss Mathilda Nitz, linotype operator for the same paper, were married and reached the station they were bombarded with pounds of rice and dozens of old shoes. The showering of gifts became so strenuous that the train officials were obliged to call a halt.

To aid to the discomfort of the newly married couple the flaring hand bills bearing the caption, "Lost—One Ad. Man and One Mergenthaler Operator," and giving a complete description of the bride and groom's characteristics, were scattered through the Twin Cities.

Finally the train pulled out and two weary people began to breathe easier. But the worst awaited them at Neenah, where they left the train. Similar hand bills were scattered all over the platform and when they reached the hotel they found the lobby flooded with Donnell literature and filled with curious spectators.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BIG MEETS DRAW MANY

Tri-State and Other Conventions Are Opened at Fargo N. D.

Good Roads, Prevailing Theme, Discussed by Many Speakers.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Good roads was the dominating sentiment today at the opening of the tenth annual Tri-State Grai nand Stock Growers' convention. There were several other subjets discussed, but the question of better highways was a live subject that was ably handled.

President Worst of the Agricultural college, who is at the head of the tri-state organization, called the convention to order this morning and the address of welcome was delivered by R. C. Lewis. The attendance is large, indicating the meetings are growing in popular favor. After the disposition of the usual formailities, State Engineer Atkinson of Bismarck spoke on "Good Roads.' He was followed by Mrs. Adda F. Howle of Wisconsin on "Farm Homes.'

The first speaker of the afternoon will be George W. Cooley of the bureau of good roads in the department of agriculture at Washington. "The Relation of Humus to Crop Rotation" will be discussed by Dr. Briggs, also of the department of agriculture. Both were sent here by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to represent the department. Mr. Cooley will leave for Bismarck this evening and will address the joint session of the legislature Wednesday. President Worst delivered his annual address, his subject being "The Agricultural Outlook." He was followed by Prof. Arnold, who spoke on "The Land Where the Farmer is King."

Interest In Corn Exhibit.

Much interest is shown in the splendid corn exhibit, which comes from individual farmers and from the school pupils' corn contests in two different counties under the auspices of one of the departments of the Agricultural college.

The shows of the North Dakota Poultry association and the North Dakota Kennel association are in progress with a large number of exhibits of high character.

The annual meeting of the North Dakota Veterinary association is also in progress. The chief event of the forenoon session, after the usual preliminaries, was the address of President Taylor of Hillsboro. Committees appointed last year reported and new members were admitted. There are a number of important papers to be presented this afternoon. Some of the leading speakers will be Doctors Crewe of Devils Lake, Dunham of Fargo, Fisher of Grandin, Taylor of Hillsboro, Van Es of Fargo, Robinson of Cole Harbor, Davidson of Grand Forks and Cliff of Park River. Dr. Van Es of the Agricultural college will give some of the results of his recent experiments with hog cholera.

MUCH PRELIMINARY WORK.

What State Board of Immigration Did in Two Years.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first biennial report of the state board of immigration has been placed in the hands of the legislators. Under the direction of the board $12,500 was expended in 1907, the first year of its existence, and $11,-176.24 was disbursed in 1908.

Of this amount nearly $7,000 was for salaries and about $2,500 for advertising. George Welch, speaking for the board, says much of its time has been given over to preliminary work and the gathering of statistics, but even with this handicap the board has not been without profit to the state.

Through correspondence and visits the department has reached 63,389 persons. Calls by persons from foreign states and countries averaged five a day. There are yet 1,048,114,890 acres of state land in Minnesota, not to speak of 2,100,484 acres of government land subject to homestead entry.

HANGING IN MICHIGAN.

Although State Law Forbids, Uncle Sam May Hang Guilty.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the event of the conviction of John E. Gibson, who is to be tried in the United States district court here in May on the charge of murder, is Michigan to witness a hanging, when the laws of the state prohibit capital punishment?

This is the question that threatens interesting complications. Gibson, who was a corporal at Fort Brady, near the Soo, shot ond killed Private John McManus, Jan. 5. Had the murder occurred in time of war, the man would have been court-martialed and summarily shot, but under the existing conditions the prisoner was handed over to the federal court.

The laws of the United States provide that a person found guilty of the crime with which Gibson is charged shall be hanged, and there is no alternative. On the other hand, the laws of Michigan forbid capital punishment within the borders of the state. It is the first time that a murder case has come before the United States court in this district in the thirty-two years since it has been established.

TRAGEDY AT AUSTIN.

Two Girls Are Struck by Train; One Dying.

Austin, Minn., Jan. 19.—Mamie Kelley, 17 years old, and Lizzie O'Leary, 14 years old, were struck by a Chicago Great Western passenger train, southbound, at the railroad crossing on Oak street. Miss O'Leary died soon after being taken to a hospital. There is some hopes for the Kelley girl. Both had left their homes to go to the hospital to see Miss Kelley's father, who is a patient there.

CITY ALLEGES FRAUD.

Old East Grand Forks Paving Suit on Again.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Jan. 19.—The rather famous case of William Peet of St. Paul vs. the city of East Grand Forks was taken up in district court before Judge Watts. The plaintiff seeks to recover $11,701 on a paving contract which the city had with P. H. Thornton of Minneapolis, with interest from Nov. 8, 1902, together with the costs of a former trial.

The engineer's estimate of the amount due Thornton had been approved by the city council, but no warrant was ever issued in payment, an injunction being sworn out. The city has resisted payment on the ground that the estimate was secured through fraud, conspiracy and abuse of official trust.

POWER PLANT STARTS UP.

New St. Cloud Enterprise Has Begun Operations.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wheels of the new station of the Union Power company began to revolve yesterday and, with the exception of a few minor details, all will be in readiness for the harnessing of the powers which the new plant will generate.

The water was turned into the penstocks on Dec. 31, but owing to a few slight changes which had to be made, was shut off again. For the first twenty-four hours the wheels will simply be tested with no load attached, but Tuesday the current will be harnessed and turned on. Altogether 4,500 hydraulic horsepower will be generated.

The superstructure has not been quite completed ,though it is sufficient for the present needs.

Some sort of an idea may be gained of the size of the new plant and the other interests which A. G. Whitney, president of the Union Power company, holds in this city when it is taken into consideration that the sum of $60,000 was paid this year to the employes in the erection of the plant and the various branches of the Public Service company.

PINE CITY BOAT WORKS.

New Industry to be Established in That Town.

Pine City, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. F. A. Ingleston, proprietor of the Beulah Boat works of Beulah, Mich., arrived here last week to prepare for the establishment of a boat building works for Pine City.

He was accompanied by his son, who has but recently severed his connection with the St. Paul Hoisting & Derrick company, in which capacity he has been employed in installing machinery in Central and South America. The latter has a family and it is the wish of Capt. Ingleston and also of his son to make Pine City their home in the future. They consider this place a better location for a boat factory than Beulah, and on that account have disposed of their works there to locate here.

The old Glasgow warehouse will be used temporarily at least for the factory, and the growth of the factory will depend entirely upon the orders received, and as it is their intention to work on an extensive scale it is but natural to believe that the concern will ultimately become a big factor to local general commercial interests.

Aside from the factory, Capt. Ingleston and son will conduct a boat livery.

ESTATE TO FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCITEY.

Owatonna, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Dean, an old resident who died on Tuesday, Jan. 12, left all his property to the Protestant Episcopal Foreign Missionary society, according to the terms of his will, which was filed in the probate court Friday. His property is estimated to amount to perhaps $20,000, of which $10,000 is personal property. L. L. Bennett is named as the sole executor.

DEBATERS TO CONTEST.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo will entertain the intercollegiate debaters Feb. 13. This year the event is to be held under the auspices of the Agricultural college. The contest is of more than ordinary interest, for besides selecting the best debator of the state, the meeting sends the first and second choice to the interstate contest with South Dakota. These have been won by the southern state in most cases an dthis year the North Dakotans hope to make a better showing.

Omaha Must Pay Fine.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notice has been received by United States District Attorney C. C. Houpt that the United States circuit court of appeals, in session at St. Louis, had sustained the action of the United States district court in convicting the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad on the charge of rebating, the fine being fixed at $22,000. The rebates in this case were paid to a Minneapolis firm on shipments of grain.

MASONIC GRAND LODGE IN ST. PAUL WEDNESDAY.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifty-sixth annual session of the Minnesota grand lodge of Masons will be held Wednesday and Thursday at the Masonic temple. This will probably be the last meeting of the grand lodge in the old temple. About 500 delegates will be present.

SOUTHWESTERN MEDICAL SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING.

Pipestone, Minn., Jan. 19.—The twenty-first annual meeting of the Southwestern Minnesota Medical society was held here. The following officers were elected: President, Dr. A. H. Brown, Pipestone; vice president, Dr. A. D. Williams, Wilmar; secretary and treasurer, Dr. Emil King, Fulda; delegates to state convention, Dr. W. D. Beadle, Windom; alternate, Dr. F. R. Weiser, Windom; censor, Dr. A. D. Spalding, Luverne. Slayton was the place chosen for the next meeting, which will be held in July. There were thirty physicians in attendance.

SEARCHING FOR COPPER.

Hancock, Mich., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Explorations are being conducted near Salo for copper by a number of Hancock parties. Some fine specimens of copper have already been found in the pit, which is about sixty feet deep. Options on a large tract of land in the vicinity of Salo have been secured by those doing the exploring and the work will be continued until such time as it is found whether or not there is copper in sufficient quantity to warrant going further.

Illegal Hunter Is Fined.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 19.—E. Balentine, county attorney of Wilkin county, paid a fine of $25 and costs for hunting outside his county limits without a license. The complaint was preferred by Deputy Game Warden Jones of this city, and Mr. Balentine pleaded guilty.

Berwick, N. D.—Judge A. G. Burr has issued a writ of mandamus to the sheriff of McHenry county, D. A. Kremer, requiring the sheriff to issue a sheriff's deed to the Minneapolis Threshing Machine company or to show cause on Jan. 23 why he should not do so.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Manitowoc—Fire, which is presumed to have started on the second floor of the Dempsey block, one of the landmarks of the city, shortly after midnight Saturday, gutted the building and caused a loss of more than $20,000. Six firemen were overcome by smoke.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bedridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BOXES THREE HARD ROUNDS

Ex-Champion Jeffries Has Lost Nothing With the Years.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Jim Jeffries for the first time in four years sparred three one-minute rounds yesterday. He boxed with Sam Berger before a great crowd of critical sports at a local theater, while thousands outside tried vainly to get in.

Both men had poor wind, but Jeff showed such speed, such accuracy in delivering blows, and such quickness on his feet that the general opinion was he could easily get into condition to fight Johnson for the heavyweight championship. Jeff weighs nearly 260 pounds and has a big belt of surplus avoirdupois around the waist.

"Jeffries is a wonderful man," said Berger. "I don't believe there ever was another fighter like him. For a man as big as he is I never saw so much speed. He needs to work off some fat, but that is a question of time. He certainly has his punch and is quick on his feet. The old dash is there and he showed improvement in the third round over his work in the first. For a man to do as he did today, after four years without a glove on, is marvelous."

BASKETBALL AT FLOODWOOD

Y. M. C. A. Team Will Play at That Village Friday.

Friday night at Floodwood, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team will try conclusions with the team representing that place.

This is the third scheduled game of the season and as the record is clean so far, the boys will make a determined effort to keep it so, by bringing back to Duluth the heavy end of the score.

"The Big Floodwood Five," is what they call their team, have defeated almost every team in Northern Minnesota for the past few years.

The Duluth team has been putting in some hard practice the last week, and they have developed the greatest speed of the season. Speed is what counts in a basketball game and their admirers claim they now have that and to spare.

Capt. Fenton is confident of defeating the Floodwood boys by a decisive score.

NEW LEAGUE IN WORKING ORDER

Amateur Association Will Pull Off First Hockey Game Friday.

All ready for business is the Duluth Amateur Hockey league.

The schedule has now been completed and the first game will be played Friday evening at the Central ice rink on Third street near Tenth avenue west. The Northern Juniors and the Bryant Alumni will be the contesting teams.

The rink is being put in first-class shape, and provision is being made for spectators. There will be skating for the spectators both before and after the game.

The meeting of the captains which had been set for Wednesday evening has been postponed and will take place Thursday evening at the store of the Northern Hardware company.

Each team entered in the league has its followers, the players are all full of enthusiasm, and the success of the venture seems assured.

The schedule as arranged and given out Monday follows:

Friday, Jan. 22—Northern Juniors vs. Bryant Alumni.
Monday, Jan. 25—Adams Alumni vs. Fairmounts.
Wednesday, Jan. 27—Bryant Alumni vs. Lester Park.
Friday, Jan. 29—Adams Alumni vs. Northern Juniors.
Monday, Feb. 1—Lester Park vs. Adams Alumni.
Wednesday, Feb. 3.—Fairmounts vs. Northern Juniors.
Friday, Feb. 5—Bryant Alumni vs. Adams Alumni.
Monday, Feb. 8—Fairmounts vs. Bryant Alumni.
Wednesday, Feb. 10—Lester Park vs. Northern Juniors.
Friday, Feb. 12—Fairmounts vs. Lester Park.

BOXERS READY FOR THEIR MILL

Both Whitehead and Billy Heller In Best of Condition.

What will probably prove to be the greatest glove contest ever seen in the state of Minnesota is scheduled to take place on the range next Thursday night, when Walter Whitehead of Duluth, heavyweight champion of the Northwest, will enter into a 20-round mix with "Billy" Heller, the "Chicago stockyards champion." The bout will be governred by straight Marquis of Queenbury rules, one arm free, protect yourself at all times. Fifty per cent of the gross receipts of the house will go to the fighters, and it will be divided 65 per cent to the winner and 35 per cent to the loser.

It is eshtimated now that no less than 350 Duluth fans, admirers of Whitehead, will journey to the range next Thursday to see the local boy work. They all think well of his chances, and this means that some coin will be laid on the result. They give Heller credit for being a tough boy, but they do not think that it will be possible for him to put Whitehead on "queer street" before the expiration of twenty sessions.

Heller is a German, 21 years old, who has a most enviable record. Out of twenty-three fights, he has scored twenty-one knockouts, lost once on a decision, and the other bout resulted in a draw. For the past three months he has been receiving instructions from Tommy Ryan, retired middleweight champion of the world, and it is expected by his Chicago friends that he will march right into the first division before the end of the year. Heller will enter the arena weighing close to 175 pounds, while Whitehead will strip at 168.

It being impossible to secure the record of Heller from any of the various year books published throughout the country, The Herald has looded the boy up through various Chicago sport writers and, for the first time publishes in full the battles which he has made. They are as follows:

FOOTBALL DATES ARE ARRANGED

Chicago Will Meet Minnesota in Minneapolis Oct. 30.

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—Minnesota will play the University of Chicago on Northrop field Oct. 30, and will play the University of Wisconsin at Madison either Nov. 6 or Nov. 13. The date finally chosen will probably be the latter. Dr. H. L. Williams, Minnesota's football coach, has just returned from a conference at Chicago with Coach Stagg of the Maroons, and Dr. Hutchins, the Badger coach. The dates and places for the two games were decided at that time.

In the 1907 season the Wisconsin game was played at Madison and the Chicago contest in Minneapolis, the arrangement being reversed during the season just passed. Although this system of exchanges gives each university in the group of three a home game during the season with one of the others, it means that Minnesota may havo to go through the same process as two years ago, as regards the financial problem. At that time the Wisconsin contest netted the Gophers about $1,500—a sum far below the expenses of the trip. This is due to the fact that Madison is a poor town for football. The Minnesota management will probably make up for the loss as previously, with heavy receipts at the Chicago contest.

FREDDIE WELSH OUT AFTER "BAT"

English Lightweight Boxer Will Claim Champion Nelson's Title.

Los Angeles, Jan. 19.—Freddie Welsh has thrown a bombshell into the lightweight division. In his determination to plant the British flag at the head of the 133-pound class, the little Englishfan last night challenged Battling Nelson for a championship battle, offering the Dane a side bet of $5,000. Unless Nelson takes heed of the challenge inside of the next thirty days, Welsh states that he will claim the world's lightweight championship and defend the title at 133 pounds ringside against all comers. The British champion posted a check for $1,000 as a deposit to bind the match the minute that Nelson shows a disposition to talk fight.

Welsh evidently had been contemplating this move for many days as he has prepared a written agreement that is a gem so far as paving the way to the jumping of a world's championship claim is concerned.

In the document the little foreigner says:

"All the sporting world knows that Battling Nelson has practically retired. He wants to do anything else now but fight. The public will stand for a champion remaining idle just so long and no longer. Nelson must fight again soon or come out and honestly declare that he has gone into retirement.

"It is admitted by all the Los Angeles experts that Packy McFarland was not at his best last Friday night when he made 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. If Packy still maintains that he can make the legitimate lightweight limit—133 pounds ringside—then my $5,000 side bet goes for him.

"As for Dick Hyland, here is a proposition that he should jump at if he believed that he has a chance with me: I will bet him $1,000 to $5,000 on the general result and will take him on before the Pacific Athletic club in this city within ten days after my meeting with George Memsic."

It seems highly probable that Welsh will be a very busy young man for the next few days to come.

'SURE I WAS ROBB,' SAYS CAPRON

Wore His Hair Pompadour So as Not to be Recognized.

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—When shown a telegram from Memphis yesterday explaining that he was not the much-touted "Robb," George Capron, the Minnesota star, offered to prove to the Southern association magnates that they were all wrong. The report from Memphis is to the effect that photographs of Capron and of "Robb" have been compared and that there is no doubt but that Capron and "Robb" are two different persons.

"I'll show these people that they are all wrong," said Capron today, "and when I tell them my history they will know that I am the same player grabbed by McGraw. Just to satisfy everyone that I played under the name of Robb, I'll tell you when and where I broke into the Southern association and Cotton States leagues. Walter Wilmot, the old manager of the Minneapolis club, sent me to Manager Babb of the Memphis team early last spring, but I arrived at Memphis after Babb had completed his lineup. A few days after arriving in the South Babb sent me to the Newark, N. J., team, and when I reached the Eastern city the baseball writers got my name mixed calling me Rapp instead of Robb. I remained in Newark only a short time, going back to Memphis, as Manager Babb and the Newark team had some misunderstanding about the deal. I arrived back in Memphis on April 27 and was immediately sent to Meridian, Miss. I played my first game with the Meridian team on April 28, covering the left field position. We were playing the Gulfort team and Johnny Lively, later drafted by the Cleveland team, pitched for the visitors. I played on the Meridian team until Aug. 15, when I jumped out of the city and back to Minneapolis. I left four days before the season closed as I was afraid of being found out by the University of Minnesota officials.

As far as comparing the pictures is concerned," continued Capron, "there is nothing to it. I went down into that country and played under a fake name and as far as I know I was never photographed. I wore my hair cut short and pompadoured purposely as a disguise. I am not worrying over the argument among the Southerners and am only waiting to see where I must play this year."

LOSES ANOTHER MATCH.

Yusiff Mahmout Fails to Throw Jen Reimer in Forty-Five Minutes.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 19.—In a terrific test of strength, Yusiff Mahmout last night failed to throw Jess Reimer of Des Moines twice in the stipulated time of forty-five minutes. No fall was secured and the Turk lost the match as a result.

Mahmout though he succeeded in getting dangerous holds at will and handling Reimer almost as he pleased, could not pin down the Des Moines man's shoulders.

Dick Fleming of the Chicago Athletic club, was selected referee after "Farmer" Burns and others had been rejected.

A JOB FOR ANSON.

Murphy Suggests That He be Given Charge of Umpires.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—A proposition to connect "Capt.," Adrian C. Anson, the old-time baseball player, with the National league again will be made at the spring meeting of the league here next month, according to President Mudrphy of the Chicago club. "We ought to appoint Anson supervisor of umpires," said Mr. Murphy yesterday. "He would give valuable assistance in that capacity. He gave up the best part of his life to the interest of baseball. It would seem only right that we should have him back with us again."

GESSLER WILL CAPTAIN.

Boston Right Fielder Will Have Charge of Team.

Boston, Jan. 19.—"Doc" Gessler, right fielder, will this year captain the Boston American baseball team, according to an announcement made last night by Manager Fred Lake. It was also given out that "Jake" Stahl would remain with the Boston team.

President Dovey of the Boston National team announced the release of the following men: Jack Hannifan, utility player, secured from the New Yorw National club last year, sold outright to the Philadelphia team; Pitcher Essick of Kansas City, to the Providence, R. I., team.

Maroons Organize.

The Maroons have organized for hockey. They will use the rink at Twenty-ninth avenue west and challenge any amateur team in the city to games. Contests may be arranged by calling Al Swanstrom, Zenith telephone 2257-A.

Will Use Two Umpires.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Both Johnson and Pulliam have agreed upon the use of the double umpire system this season as being an institution which the patrons of the game approved.

St. Thomas Defeats Ripon.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—St. Thomas college defeated Ripon college at basketball last night, 51 to 19.

A Religious Author's Statement.

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

North Dakota Supreme Court to Decide Adjutant General Dispute.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 19.—A harmonious solution of the difficulties over the office of adjutatnt general in this state was arranged yesterday between Gen. Poole, late adjutant general, and Adjt. Gen. Peake, present incumbent. All proceedings in the district court have been dropped and the militia guard withdrawn. Gen. Poole has secured from the supreme court a writ of quo warranto directed to Gen. Peake, and the case will be heard on its merits on Jan. 27, when arguments for and against the constitutionality of the tenure of office act, as it applies to this office, will be made and a speedy determination of the case reached. If the law is declared unconstitutional, Poole wins.

NEW LAND FRAUDS, SOME IN MINNESOTA, REPORTED BY THE SPECIAL AGENTS

Washington, Jan. 19.—Information of a startling character of alleged wholesale and astounding frauds upon the public lands has come into the possession of Secretary of the Interior Garfield through special agents in the field. The allegation is made that approximately $110,000,000 worth of lands in states principally west of the Mississippi river have been fraudulently acquired within the past two years by corporations and individuals.

With a view of recovering these lands, Secretary Garfield has sent letters to Chairmen Hale and Tawney of the senate and house appropriations committees, asking for an additional appropriation of $500,000, which, if granted, with that already asked for, will give the department $1,000,000 for the purpose. The specific purpose of the appropriation requested is for preventing "depredations upon public timber, protecting public lands, examining swamp lands, etc."

It is stated that there is reasonable prospect of recovering much of this alleged fraudulently acquired land if the appropriation is promptly made. It also is pointed out that while $1,000,000 may seem large, it is not 1 per cent of the commercial value of the land which the government may hope to recover. Secretary Garfield also submits a statement to H. H. Schwartz, chief of the field service, showing over 32,000 distinct cases of alleged land frauds demanding further investigation. The number of such cases awaiting investigation by states now pending include the following:

Oregon, 1,462; Montana, 3,605; Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, 5,894.

A summary of most of the larger cases affected by charges of fraud or illegality, now pending, are submitted, but the details of identification and the names of parties are omitted, because, it is stated, this would embarrass further inquiry into such cases.

The additional appropriation also is required, the secretary says, on account of the increased demands on the field service of the land office, due to the transferring to that division of much work which has been done in the past by the secret service and the special service of the department of justice.

PEOPLE'S LOBBY AT SALEM

sistance of President-elect Taft and Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, has, it is said, been solicited. Various members of the United States senate have been called on, but have declined to ask Oregon legislators to violate the pledge.

A people's lobby assembled here today from every section of the state, and the component parts of this lobby are determined to see that the pledged members abide by their obligations to vote for Chamberlain.

Another Term For Gore.

Gurthrie, Okla., Jan. 19.—The house and senate today voted separately for United States senator. Both houses are overwhelmingly Democratic and United States Senator Thomas P. Gore, Democrat, received the straight party vote. He will be re-elected tomorrow by the legislature in one joint session. The Republican minority vote was cast for Denys T. Flynn of Oklahoma City, formerly delegate in congress for the territory of Oklahoma.

Hughes to the Senate.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 19.—This morning the Colorado house and senate elected on separate ballots, Charles J. Hughes, Jr., to the United States senate. Tomorrow at noon the two houses will meet in joint session and complete the election.

Mormon Senator Again.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 19.—Without a dissenting vote the forty-three Republican members of the legislature present at the senatorial caucus last night nominated Reed Smoot for re-election as United States senator from Utah. The name of ex-Governor Heber M. Wells was mentioned, but was not placed before the caucus.

Root Is The Choice.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Republican members of the legislature at noon today recorded their choice of secretary of state, Elihu Root for United States senator to succeed Thomas C. Senator Sageng, Populist, put into the senate this morning a bill submitting to the people a constitutional amendment allowing women to vote. If the legislature should pass the bill, which it probably will not do, the people would vote upon it at the election of 1910.

The senate had a hot debate this morning over Senator Sageng's proposed rule requiring all committees to report bills back within twenty days, except where the senate gives them further time. The rules committee reported against the rule, recommending it for indefinite postponement.

Senator Sageng said the rule was needed because, without it, it is possible to throttle bills in committees. Senator Seward, for the rules committee, eloquently said it was not needed, because the senate is made up of gentlemen and isn't in the habit of doing such things. Besides, a majority of the house can call a bill out of committee at any time.

The rule was defeated 45 to 6.

Senator Hall, as a substitute for the proposed amendments for the anti-pass law letting firemen, policemen, etc., ride free on street cars, if they can get the companies to allow it, offered a bill allowing cities to pay transportation for city officials, including firemen and policemen and covering railroads as well as street cars.

Representative Adams of Fergus Falls got through the house a resolution providing for a committee of five to investigate current reports that certain school book publishers are using improper methods to advance the sale of the goods, involving increases in the cost of education and affecting the morals of the schools.

Representative Sawyer offered a resolution giving a vote of thanks to J. A. Patton of Chicago for boosting the price of wheat and thereby profiting Northwest farmers. Amid laughter, Representative Nolan put it over to tomorrow by giving notice of debate.

Representative Conley proposes an appropriation of $5,000 now, and $25,000 a year, to aid the state board of public health in carrying on an educational campaign against tuberculosis, in a bill introduced by him this morning.

The following other bills came in: Representative Ole Peterson, providing that all road taxes must be paid in cash and ont worked out; Representatives Zelch and Anderson, providing for taxing interurban and suburban railways by the gross earnings system, the tax to be apportioned among the communities concerned, just as other taxes are apportioned; Representative Melby, providing for a new sub-experiment station at Marshall for which $10,000 is appropriated; Senator Calhoun, allowing councils to prohibit street meetings, except with the permission of the mayor or the chief of police; Senator Wilson, providing for a pension fund for teachers in cities of over 50,000, partly to be provided by the teachers themselves and partly by taxation, the annual tax to be limited to a tenth of a mill; Senator Pauly, prohibiting anybody from making false statements or reports to police officers; Senator Clague, forbidding saloon keepers to let minors enter their places of business; Senator Wilson, appropriating $10,000 to put a statue of Alexander Ramsey into Statuary hall at the national capitol; Senator H. E. Hanson, providing that 8 per cent of liquor license fees shall go to the county.

ON THE IRON RANGES

FEW FIRES ARE VIRGINIA'S LOT

Annual Report of Fire Chief Thayer Makes Good Showing.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Virginia has an efficient fire department and is well protected in that respect, is shown by the annual report of Fire Chief A. F. Thayer, which indicates a record second to no city of its size in the United States.

From the time Chief Thayer took charge of the department in March, 1908, there has been very few calls for the department.

The chief in his annual report to the council shows the following for last year's record: Ten chimney fires; four over-heated stoves; two fires resulting from children playing with matches; one fire, cause of which is unknown; one fire caused from gasoline explosions; one fire caused from defective wiring; one fire caused from explosions of kerosene stove; one fire caused from alcohol lamp; from gasoline explosions three were serious and one fatal.

The department has traveled twenty-six and one-quarter miles; worked at fire twenty-four and one-half hours, laid 7,050 feet of hose, used seventy-five gallons of chemicals and made a total of twenty-five runs with no false alarms. The loss on buildings amounted to $1,920.10, loss on furniture, $549, making a total loss of $2,469.10, all covered by insurance, except $900.

The chief recommends an increase of pay for the firemen, stating that the men are now working for the smallest wages of any city of its size in the country. He also recommends the putting in of a direct fire alarm in the school buildings, and the purchase of 1,000 additional feet of hose. He also suggests the putting in of stone cribs for dock purposes for the fire engine to draw water from the lake, and states that this could we done this winter at a nominal cost to the city.

The department has recently added a new combination chemical hose sleigh and the city has ordered a first size Metropolitan steam fire engine, which is expected to arrive about the 15th of next month. Two additional men will be added to the department on Feb. 1, which will make a total of nine regulars and three volunteers.

The volunteers are Ever Hawkinson and James Lavick, with George Holcomb, electrician, who are paid for services accomplished.

The members of the department are A. F. Thayer, chief; James Stickney, assistant chief; Louis Masson, second assistant chief; Henry Ole, driver of hose; Edward Larson, driver of truck; Walter Sy, Frank Goering and Fred Anderson, pipemen. Frank Grace, driver of hose, resigned Saturday and was succeeded by Edward Larson, the latter taking the position as driver of truck and Henry Ole going from driver of truck to that of hose. Thirty-one fire alarm boxed are now distributed about the city, and another one will soon be added at the Shaw location just east of the Missabe tracks. An addition to the fire hall is being planned for the early spring in order to accommodate the new steam fire engine and other equipment of the department.

ALREADY BEARING FRUIT.

Advice Given at Tuberculosis Discussion Being Heeded.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee appointed after the anti-tuberculosis mass meetings, have started to learn how many cases of tuberculosis there are in low nand also in what condition the afflicted are. They have already found two or three cases. The committee will meet in a short time and plan for a gathering of representatives from all the range towns interested in the work of stamping out tuberculosis. The plan is to have in each city a committee on relief and care and that these committees should meet twice a year in Duluth to discuss the work and make further plans. The interest in anti-tuberculosis work has not abated with the leaving of the exhibit.

The school authorities have taken kindly to the advice given by Dr. Boyer of Duluth, they have improved drinking cups, and more sanitary sweeping as the doctor suggested.

Christopher Easton, director of the exhibit, and assistant left yesterday afternoon with the exhibit for Ely, where the exhibit opens up tomorrow. It is possible that Dr. Moore and Dr. Harwood of the local hospitals will speak at the Ely meetings.

HAD TO WALK HOME.

Two Virginians' Rig Stolen at Eveleth While Calling.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jack Andmore and Tommy Arnsten, two well-known young men, drove to Eveleth Sunday night to make a call. They tied the horse to a hitching post in front of the house while making their visit. When ready to return they found that the horse and rig were gone, and telephoned Mark Eddy, of whom they had engaged the rig, to keep a look out for it, as they had learned that a couple of men had been seen driving the rig towards Virginia. The boys immediately set out on foor for home, and when they arrived here, found the horse comfortably lodged in its own stall in the Eddy barn. After receiving the telephone message, Mr. Eddy was on the lookout for the rig, and when it was being driven down Chestnut street he hailed the occupants, who, upon being discovered, jumped out of the cutter and made good their escape. Jack and Tom are still on the lookout for the boys who stole their rig, and if they discover their identity, say there will be something doing.

VIRGINIA NEWS NOTES.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert Garvey returned yesterday from a visit with his family at Ashland, Wis. Last Friday night, Mr. Garvey's son, Allen, while engaged in playing basketball, received a bad fall which resulted in the breaking of his collar bone. Although the accident is not at all serious the boy will be laid up for several weeks.

Mrs. Oscar Graham and children left Saturday for Manila, Iowa, to make an extended visit with her parents.

M. J. Doyle, president of the Eveleth city council and William Nellen, chief of the fire department were here yesterday inspecting the fire hall and department.

CHANGE MISSABE TRACKS.

Mining Operations Around Hibbing Will Necessitate It.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The changing of mining operations at the Buffalo and Susquehanna mines, west of Hibbing, from underground to open pit mining, will necessitate some changes in the Missabe railroad tracks, which at present cross the mines.

As a result the road has started building a new line into Hibbing tapping the Coleraine division about eighteen miles from that place. This means that trains running into Hibbing, following their present course as far as Alborn, will switch there onto the Coleraine division, pass over those tracks until they reach a point south of Hibbing and then come in on the new division. The present course extends north from Alborn to Wolf and then due west to Hibbing. The change will necessitate the building of some twenty miles of trackage. The work will be crowded through as fas as possible. It is thought that trains will be running over the new course by next fall or early winter.

ANNEXATION IS AGAIN PUT OVER

Gilbert Council Holds Off About Taking in Sparta Addition.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Gilbert council meeting last night, the question again came up of annexing the new Sparta addition.

This matter was brought up at the previous meeting but nothing was decided upon. P. E. Dowling of Eveleth was present last night and spoke in favor of annexing the addition as he said one government would be better than two in such a small place. Ex-Alderman Sax of Eveleth, was also present and opposed the annexing of the addition. Both took up much time with their arguments. Many people from Sparta were present, as well as others from Eveleth, who have property in Gilbert.

The council again decided to lay the question on the table until they could investigate a little more. They hope to decide the question at thir next meeting.

RESULTED IN A DRAW.

Eveleth Boxing Bout Ended Without Decision.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 10-round boxing match last night at Vail hall between Barney Cinnamon of Milwaukee and Billy Trenholm of Gilbert resulted in a draw. Both were in good condition, but there was too much clinching. On account of a slippery footing Trenholm fell several times, but was up right away. Cinnamon had somewhat of an advantage in reach and landed more than his opponent. The bout was very fast and enjoyed by the sports present.

Nick Constantine of Eveleth and Brownlee of Superior went four rounds to a draw. This was purely a boxing exhibition for points, and some fast boxing was the result. Two other preliminaries of three rounds each were put on to entertain the crowd before the main exhibition.

BIWABIK MAN DIES WHILE VISITING AT LAKE LINDEN.

Lake Linden, Mich., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While visiting here at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. G. Mogk, John MacKenzie of Biwabik, Minn. became ill and died Saturday afternoon. He arrived in the Copper country about two weeks ago and had been in ill health ever since. Mr. MacKenzie was a native of Canada and was born at Kincardine. He was 46 years old and was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of Eveleth, Minn. He is survived by his parents and a number of brothers and sisters.

ROAD WORK DELAYED.

Virginians Waiting to Hear From the Missabe Railroad.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Those interested and the committees from the Commercial club who have put forth their best endeavors to make the temporary road to Gilbert a success, are now in a quandry as to whether their efforts will turn out successful or whether the trouble they have gone to has been for naught. The city and the citizens have expended about $600 in building this road and the combination is now blocked in their efforts by the officials of the Missabe & Northern railway. The road to Gilbert has been completed with the exception of a crossing over the Duluth & Missabe road. The city clerk was instructed to write the officials in regard to establishing a crossing over its road and the first answer from the officials was to the effect that it had referred the matter to the engineering department. Nothing has been done in regard to the crossing. Parties going to and from Gilbert are using the road, but it has not been opened officially by the city, because the road has not recognized the point designated for the crossing and until it does the point where the crossing ought to be is still considered a dangerous portion of the road to travel over. It is understood that the railway company contemplate the building of a viaduct over this portion of the track, which has been designated as a crossing by the city. The viaduct will probably not be built until spring and this long delay will practically put the highway out of commission as the road is only a temporary winter road and will not be used in summer as a route between this city and Gilbert.

B. Stickney, the former case coming from the United States circuit court for the Northern district of California and the others from the United States court for the district of Minnesota. The first case involves the right of the commission to reduce the rate on green fir lumber from Oregon points to San Francisco, and the other the right of the company to prescribe a charge of $1 per car as a maximum rate to be made for the delivery of livestock in the Union stock yards at Chicago. The motion in each case was concurred in by the opposing counsel, and the cases probably will be advanced on the docket to permit the court to hear them during the present term.

PAPER MILLS COMPANY FORMED IN WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee, Jan. 19.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Wausau, Wis., says: The Marathon Paper Mills company is in process of formation here, with a capital stock of $750,000, and will build paper mills at Rothschild, near here, where a site for a dam has been secured, and will employ 350 men. Work will begin at once, and it is expected the plant will be finished and in operation by May, 1910. The capital interested is entirely local, and the men interested have 500,000 feet of standing timber, spruce and hemlock adjoining this vicinity. Neal Brown, Walter Alexander, Alexander Stewart, Mathie Bros. and others are interested.

THE TALLEST ACTRESS.

Tit-Bits: This distinction belongs to Miss Irene Smith, who plays La Bebe Bax, in the new Drury Lane drama. She stands 6 feet 1½ inches in her stockings.

It seems somewhat incongruous that she should wear high heels, her hair brushed high over a pad and a high hat in order to give a greater impression of height. That is, however, what she does, so as to realize the description of being 6 feet 4 inches in height, in accordance with the design of the authors.

SHERIFF IS CRITICISED

Oklahoma Judge Says He Should Have Kept Documents.

Rebukes Officer for Action in Arrest Haskell Ordered.

Guthrie, Ok., Jan. 19.—It developed today that the sheriff who last night seized all the papers found in Mr. MacReynold's room, secured not only the evidence in Governor Haskell's case against W. R. Hearst, but also the private papers of MacReynolds, including letters from his wife, his bank book and receipts, which were taken from his pockets.

All these papers were taken to the office of the governor. Today Judge Slang rebuked the sheriff for having permitted the papers seized to get out of his possession.

Judge J. H. Burford, who appeared as counsel for MacReynolds, contended today that the seizure of the papers was in direct violation of the state constitution. The papers are now in the possession of the sheriff. MacReynolds, who has been released from custody, said today:

"The papers seized were copies of evidence to be used in the case. In all probability we will institute suit for damages against the sheriff and his bondsmen for damages."

FEDERATION OF CLUBS OF COUNTY

Business Men of Duluth and Range Will Get Together.

Preparations are being made for the meeting of delegates from the various commercial and farmers' clubs of St. Louis county, to be held at the Commercial club Friday evening.

There will be four delegates from each club, and a special invitation has been extended to the mayor of each town and village in the county to be present at the Friday evening meeting. At this meeting, it is the intention to form a federation of the Commercial clubs of St. Louis county, for the purpose of working in unity in the various projects that have the progress of the county as their basis.

Secretary H. V. Eva of the Commercial club had already received favorable responses from many of the delegates and a large attendance is assured.

At the present time, according to Mr. Eva, many of the clubs are working upon the same lines for the advancement of the interests of this county, yet there have been conflicts. With the formation of the federation of clubs, it is thought that the work may be systematized and in this way much better work will be accomplished.

The meeting will be called at 6:30 Friday evening. Many of the prominent business men of the range will be present, as well as some of the influential members of the farmers' organizations, which have done so much to advance the interests of the northern part of the state.

TRYING HARD TO BLOCK A STRIKE

Spokane Companies Oppose Proposed Walkout of Canadian Miners.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 19.—The reason for the probable coal miners' strike is the expiration March 31, of the two-year agreement signed by the miners on May 5, 1907.

The men refuse to continue longer under terms of that agreement and have asked for a rate of increase which the companies involved feel that they cannot pay under existing contracts. Many companies have heavy contracts on hand in which they would lose under the proposed increase.

The men are standing firm and though no formal notification has yet been issued, as demanded under the industrial disputes investigation act, or the Lemieux, there is at present no hope of a settlement in sight.

In the event of a conflict the domestic fuel supply would not suffer to any great extent as the chief trouble will be with the railroads and the smelters. The Spokane companies interested are making every effort to block the strike and to get in touch with new supplies, but so far have not been able to do anything with the men.

The output of the mines involved is 10,000 tons daily.

CHAMBERLAIN IS MADE SENATOR

Oregon Legislature, Republican, Elects Democratic Governor.

Salem, Or., Jan. 19.—The legislature today elected Governor George Chamberlain, a Democrat, to the United States senate, despite the fact that a majority of the legislators is Republican.

This action is due to the fact that the legislators had pledged themselves to abide by the popular choice for senator, as expressed at the polls.

MINER SERIOUSLY HURT.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Rauha, a miner employed at the Mary Charlotte property, was caught by falling ground and sustained serious internal injuries.

Long after the death of the older George Crossmith, the British income tax commission sent to the son, the well known actor, a notice assessing the income of the deceased at $10,000. Mr. Crossmith returned the document to the proper quarter, with the following note written across it: "I am glad to learn my father is doing so well in the next world; $10,00 is a great deal more than he ever made in this. Kindly forward this notice to his new address, and remember me affectionately to him."

VESSELS WITH ROYAL NAMES.

Tit-Bits: One of the very strongest and most ineffaceable of all superstitions in the royal navy—a superstition almost as strong today as ever it was—is that vessels bearing the name of royal personages are doomed to ill luck, and strange as it may seem there is an undeniable historical basis for this feeling.

Some of the most terrible disasters ever known in connection with our navy have concerned war vessels with royal names. Two vessels called the Royal James came to disastrous ends. One of them exploded, and some 800 officers and seamen perished; the other ship so named was actually carried out of the mouth of the Thames by the Dutch under circumstances disgraceful to those in charge of the craft.

Then there is the forever memorable disaster to the Royal George, that turned over and sank in sight of crowds at Spithead, over 1,000 souls, among whom were 300 women, being sacrificed. And second only to this hideous disaster is that which afterward befell the Royal Charlotte, which was consumed by fire off Leghorn, over 800 of the very flower of our navy perishing with her.

When in 1893 the Victoria, a new vessel and the very triumph of modern invention, was rammed and sank in sight of the whole fleet there was not a sailor, however matter of fact he might be, who did not remember the dire fate of a royalty named craft. Three years later a schooner named the Royalist foundered in a gale off Holyhead, while in 1891 a British bark, the Queen was sunk and her captain and six men drowned.

JAPANESE CADETS.

"In the Japaneso military school," writes Gen. Kuropatkin in McClure's, "where I saw a Spartan system of education, the exercises of the cadets with pikes, rifles and broad swords were not approached by anything of the kind that I had witnessed in Europe—it was fighting of the fiercest character.

"At the end of the struggle there was a hand to hand combat, which lasted until the victors stood triumphant over the bodies of the vanquished and tore off their masks.

"In these exercises, which were were very severe, the cadets struck struck one another fiercely and with wild cries; but the moment a prearranged signal was given, or the fight came to an end, the combatants drew themselves up in a line and their faces assumed an expression of wooden composure.

"In all the public schools prominence was given to military exercises, and the schools took part in them with enthusiasm. Even in their walks they practiced running, flanking and sudden, unexpected attacks.

"The history of Japan was everywhere made a means of strengthening the pupils' patriotism and their belief in Japan's invincibility. Particular stress was laid upon the country's successful wars, the heroes of them were extolled, and the children were taught that none of Japan's military enterprises had failed."

THE MARKET IS BUOYANT

Wheat is Fractionally Higher at the Close in America.

Flax Goes Off and Is Lower in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 19.—Bradstreet's report showed a decrease of something like 2,883,000 bu., in the world's visible supply of wheat and this, with higher cables, caused firmness in all the American markets today. Closing prices were fractionally higher than yesterday.

The volume of trading was not enormous, but a steady demand kept prices buoyant.

Liverpool closed ⅜d to ⅝d higher, Antwerp unchanged, Budapest ¼c higher, and Berlin ½c higher.

The May option closed ¼c higher in Duluth, ½c higher in Chicago and Winnipeg, ¼@⅝c higher in Minneapolis and St. Louis, ⅝c higher in New York and ⅜@½c higher in Kansas City. The July option closed ¾c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, ¼@⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅝c up in New York, ⅜@½c higher in St. Louis, ½c higher in Kansas City and ⅜c up in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and ⅝d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼@⅜c higher in spl. May in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—The market at the start was firm and ⅛d to ¼d higher. The strength in America yesterday, and the scarcity and firmness of La Plata offerings offset the effect of London offering wheat for sale in this market. During the morning the market was well supported and values gained an additional ⅛d to ¼d. Shorts were nervous and offerings light. The advance in spot and the active demand for same, together with unfavorable reports from India, caused the late firmness. At mid-day the market was ⅜d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the opening. Later there was a sharp advance, prices gaining ½d. There was an improved demand for spot and American offerings were lighter."

Car receipts at Duluth were 38 against 134 last year, and at Minneapolis 111 against 366 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 149 against 500 last year. Chicago received 13 against 58 last year.

In Duluth, May wheat opened ¼c higher, at $1.08¾, advanced to $1.08⅝ and closed at $1.08¼, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed ¼c higher than yesterday at $1.08½.

Durum was ½c higher and cash spring wheat at the May price for No. 1 Northern.

Flax sold off. May flax opened at $1.58, sold off to $1.57½ and closed there, a loss of ½c from yesterday. July flax sold off from $1.57⅞ to $1.57½ and closed there, a loss of ½c from yesterday. October flax sold off to $1.39 and closed there, a loss of 1c from yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Firm Cables and Small Receipts Create Strong Conditions.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 19.—Firm cables, small receipts in the Northwest and a continued brisk demand for cash wheat formed a combination which created a strong market for wheat here today, and enabled the bull leaders to advance prices more than ½c during early trading. Offerings in the pit were light. Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth today were 149 cars compared with 500 cars the corresponding day a year ago. At the start prices were up ⅛c to ½c. May opening at $1.06¾ to $1.07. Later May sold at $1.07¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 152 cars against 212 cars last week and 558 cars a year ago.

The high point for May was reached at $1.07⅞@½c. The market lost some of its strength late in the day owing to profit taking, but the close was firm with May up ½c at $1.07.

Local shorts and a leading elevator interest were active bidders for corn, which caused considerable strength in that market. Initial quotations showed gains of ⅛c to ⅜c, with May opening at 61⅝c to 61¾c. For a time prices held within the opening range. Local receipts were 526 cars, with 2 of contract grade.

Trading was quiet during the final hour and the market closed steady with May ⅝c higher at 61½c.

The feature of trade in oats was an active demand for the September delivery by leading commission houses. As a result of this demand the market in general was firm. May opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher at 51½@51⅝c to 51⅝@51¾c, and sold at 51¾. Local receipts were 185 cars.

Trade in provisions was active, local packers and longs being free sellers. This selling caused moderate weakness early in the day, with prices at the start unchanged to 7½c lower.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.07; July, 97⅝@¾c; September, 94⅝@¾c. Corn—January, 57¾c; May, 61½c; July, 61¾@⅞c; September, 62c. Oats—May, 51⅝@¾c; July, 46¼c; September, 29½c. Pork—January, $17.00; May, $17.07½@17.10; July, $17.15. Lard—anuary, $9.67½@9.70; July, $9.05. Rye—cash, 76½c; May, 77½@78c. Barley—cash, 60@67c. Timothy—March, $4.00. Clover—March, $9.40. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Plenty of Bull News—Market Firm Until Just Before Close.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 19.—Minneapolis got only 111 cars of wheat today against 366 a year ago, which made the opening firm. Duluth had 38 compared with 134 cars; Winnipeg, 136 against 130. Local stocks decreased 175,000 bus for three days, and as cables were firm and the visible supply decreased 1,750,000 bus, there was plenty of bull news. The market remained firm to just before the close, when it fell back, losing most of the easy gain. May opened $1.08⅝@1.08½; high, $1.08⅝; low, $1.08⅛; close, $1.08¼@1.08⅜. July opened $1.08⅜@1.08½; high, $1.08⅞@1.09; low, $1.08⅜@1.08½; close, $1.08⅝@1.08⅝. Cash demand was good. No. 1 northern sold at 1@1¼c over May and No. 2 northern brought ½@¾c under. Close: No. 1 northern, spot $1.09⅜@1.09⅝, to arrive $1.09⅝; No. 2 northern, spot $1.07⅛@1.07⅜, to arrive $1.07⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.04⅛@1.06⅛; No. 3 yellow corn, 55¾@56¾c; No. 3 white oats, 48⅜@48⅞c; No. 2 rye, 69¾@71¾c.

Barley, receipts, 36 cars, against 91; shipments, 46. A sharp falling off from yesterday's liberal receipts made prices firm and medium grades were ½@1c higher. Close, 56½@59c.

Flax receipts, 12 cars, against 63; shipments, 2. Light receipts made the demand active. Much more could have been sold at the current prices. Close, $1.57¾.

Millstuffs, shipments, 1,260 tons. Millers quote it firm at $19.25@19.50 for bulk bran.

Light receipts reflect the return of dullness. Local mills find it quiet. Country mills report a lack of shipping directions and that buyers seem disposed to pay carrying charges on old purchases rather than take the delivery of a large quantity of flour. Shipments, 22,718 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.25@5.45; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.00.

M. L. Jenks, D. T. Helm and Julius H. Barnes have been elected directors. The other directors hold over.

The following committees will serve during the ensuing year:

Appeals—Thomas Gibson, F. E. Lindahl and H. S. Newell.

Inspection—J. F. McCarthy, A. M. Prince, J. T. Pugh, H. A. Starkey and C. F. Halley.

COLONY WITHOUT CRIME.

Westminster Gazette: St. Helena, our little Napoleonic colony in mid-Atlantic, is a model community. Its governor, Col. Gallwey, is also its judge, but in the latter capacity he has little or nothing to do. He holds court at stated times, but the only business is the presentation of white gloves.

Nevertheless, St. Helena has an "inspector of police," and as the withdrawal of the garrison, hitherto the chief consumer of local products, has adversely affected the finances, the St. Helena Guardian urges the abolition of this "unnecessary official, who has practically nothing to do." His salary should go to a "much wanted assistant surgeon." There is only one surgeon in St. Helena, and if he became incapacitated the little community on the lonely Napoleonic rock would be in a parlous state.

The women of Mexico have organized a mothers' congress, which will hold its first meeting in December. The president is Signora Luz Gonzales Cosio de Lopez, and the object is to aid all mothers who need protection, advice or assistance.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Opened Irregular, But Slightly Higher and Closed Firm.

Fluctuations Were Narrow and Little Interest in the Trading.

New York, Jan. 19.—The course of prices was irregular in the opening of the stock market today, but the more representative stocks were advanced. Declines were light. Wisconsin Central preferred advanced ¾ and American Smelting declined as much.

Buying orders were concentrated in the soft coal and Gould groups, but the general market showed some strength and rose to a parity with yesterday's closing. Top prices were, however, not maintained, realizing reducing the slight rise in the standard stocks.

Scarcely any interest was manifested in the recognized leaders of the stock market during the second hour's trading. The fluctuations were confined to extremely narrow fractions aside from a handful of usually inactive stocks, whose course had little effect on the general sentiment. Bonds were steady.

Interest in the market waned steadily, so that for minutes at a time there were no transactions recorded.

The market closed firm. Interborough-Metropolitan followed the preferred with a decline of a point and Third Avenue lost ⅛. National Biscuit lost 1 and United States Rubber 1½. A sluggish hardening movement then developed. Southern Pacific rose 1, Amalgamated Copper 1¼, Manhattan and United States Reduction preferred and Norfolk & Western 3⅝.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Closing prices are bid.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 19.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5@7 points with the active months selling about 5 to 7 points under last night's close during the early session. Cables were better than due and there seemed to be nothing of a depressing character in the general news but bull support was less aggressive, local professionals seemed to be operating for a reaction and while prices rallied 2 or 3 points from the lowest during the middle of the morning the undertone was nervous.

Spot market closed quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 9.70; middling gulf, 9.95; no sales. TEXAS KIND OF FROGS.

Des Moines Register and Leader: "It does not seem possible nor do the people of Iowa believe me when I tell them that there are frogs in Texas as large as hens," said George I. Huffman. "Everybody knows Horace A. Brown, formerly of Iowa. It was on his farm last Sunday that I saw this sight for myself. In his front yard he has a regular frog pond, and instead of killing chickens for dinner, as we do in this country, he goes out and kills frogs for the legs. Two frogs will serve six people.

"When he wants frogs he goes out to the pond after night with a lantern and spears down a chicken. On night I went with him, and by taking a stick we would rouse them out, and they were every bit as big as chickens. Frogs cost their owners nothing and there is nothing but profit for the raisers of these frogs."

JANUARY 19th, 1909.

Calumet & Sonora never looked better. You can buy this one and feel safe. Some of you have been looking for lower prices in this issue, but you will be much more liable to see the shares selling at $40.00 shortly. How can a stock like this one keep down to a level where it does not belong. Fifty dollars a share is cheap enough for Calumet & Sonora shares, for the property is at least 800 times as big as some of the new ones that are now before the public. Sell your Calumet & Sonora if you do not believe we are giving you the right information regarding the mine. This proposition is one of the cleanest in the country, and we can not too strongly advise our best friends to take on the stock. Only about 47,000 shares issued and one of the richest and biggest mines in Old Mexico.

Butte-Montana has at last been heard from. They are going to reorganize and give one $10 share for every ten of the others. The company will sink the shaft to the 2,000-foot level, and boys, as far as this one is concerned, it is an absolute sure thing. They now have the ore on different levels and are shippers, but very soon things will go along in a big way. Henry Pittsburg capitalists are now going after the mining end strong, and we look for the Butte-Montana to be a big competitor of the Butte-Ballaklava mine. It sold today at 52 to 54 cents—buy it.

Shattuck seems to be getting to the front again. Here is one of my favorites and you can not go wrong for a minute on such a stock as this. We have always known what a wonderful property this one is, and can not too strongly advise the purchase at $22-50.

Copper Queen is very active at 1⅝. It should do better; the mill is about to start and we will then get big news from the mine.

Give us your business, we will give you service.

GROWING A FOREST.

Millions of Young Trees for Waste Adirondack Land.

When you see 10,000 white pines growing in a space twelve feet by four you have reason to hope that the depleted evergreen forests of this country may yet be renewed. You are still more hopeful when you learn that the state of New York is able to furnish young pines at $3.75 a thousand without losing money and that the percentage of loss from the seed to the well grown tree is very small, says the New York Sun.

It is statistics of this kind that one gathers at the state forestry department's nursery lying within sight of the railway station called Saranac Inn, about two miles from Saranac lake. At this nursery and others near by under the care of the same forestry station evergreens are grown by the million upon the thin sandy soil of the Adirondacks enriched for the seedlings by the application of swamp muck, barnyard manure and wood ashes.

Here grow white pine, red pine, Scotch pine, bull pine from the Black Hills of Dakota, Norway spruce, native spruce, tamarack, all in large quantities, and a few others in experimental numbers. Each specimen, set at the Cornell school of forestry, has general charge of the work on the ground, and at the busiest season of the year there are about 120 persons employed at the station and in its work far or near.

During the first three weeks of September the evergreen seed crop is harvested. The cones are gathered by men who climb the trees for the purpose. Most of the cones come from the Lake Champlain region, and the native Adirondack cones are little used because conditions in the region are not favorable to the development of evergreen fruit.

The cones fetch from 25 cents to $1 a bushel, according to quality and season. If picked too early the seeds are apt to be immature; if gathered too late, the cones may have opened up and shed some of their seeds. Last year almost exactly 1,500 bushels of cones yielded nearly 1,450 pounds of seed, but a pound to the bushel is a high average, and there are years when it requires nearly three bushels of cones to yield a pound of seed.

If the seeds are not too fat, a pound will yield about 10,000 seeds, so that last year's crop must have been somewhere near 14,500,000 seeds. Foreign seeds are bought at about $1.25 a pound, mostly in Scotland and Norway.

When the cones reach the station they are placed in a house that has a roof but no sides, and upon shelf-like slatted platforms just far enough one above another to permit of the comfortable handling of the crop. Here the cones dry for about two weeks.

As they begin to open they are taken out a few at a time, subjected to heat and regularly threshed with a flail such as was used two generations ago to thresh wheat. Doubtless the thing could be done cheaper with a special machine for the purpose, were it not that the use of the flail enables the station to keep its regular employes busy at a time when they would otherwise be idle.

When threshed out the seeds are passed through screens so that their wings may be taken off. The seeds are then fanned with an ordinary agricultural fan run by hand. When thus thoroughly cleansed they are put up in tins so that they shall be protected alike from moisture and evaporation, and stored in an unheated room for the winter.

In the spring the seeds are sown broadcast by hand in enriched beds, enclosed in wooden frames. Germination takes place at somewhat irregular intervals, often in two weeks, and the tiny seedling come up

DEFEAT THREATENS THE PROPOSED STATE BUREAU OF LANDS AND MINERALS

Spirit of Partisanship Working Against Interests of State.

Some Republican Members Actuated by Petty Political Motives.

Lively Discussion of the Changes Desired in Anti-Pass Law.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The creation of a new bureau or a new state officer to control and minerals, which was recommended by Governor Johnson in his message to the legislature, and by State Auditor Iverson in his annual report, is threatened with defeat by the new spirit of partisanship which some of the Republican members are trying to introduce into the legislative sessions for almost the first time.

To cover up this move, partisan Republican newspapers are themselves raising the cry of "politics" with reference to the attempt now being made by Senator Works of Mankato to secure action on the part of the legislature to carry out the plan of conserving the state's natural resources.

As a matter of fact, Governor Johnson's recommendation of a new state department was made in obvious good faith. It was followed up by a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Works, providing for the appointment of a committee of three members from each house to discuss the matter and to frame a bill carry-

WOULD RESTRICT SUNDAY LAWS

Hebrews in Convention Debate on Sabbath Day Enactments.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 20.—Conservatism marked the second day's proceedings of the twenty-first council of the Union of American Hebrew congregations here. The consideration of the many civic and religious problems confronting the Hebrews in America occupied all of today's session. Some of the more vital questions considered were "what can be done to prevent the enactment of Sunday laws in so far as such laws are detrimental to those who observe the seventh day of the week as their Sabbath?" and "What can be done to prevent sectarian teaching and practices in our public schools."

Jacob Schiff of New York and sev- National Jewish organizations will speak on "Israel's Work in America" tonight.

FEEL EXPLOSION THIRTY MILES

Twelve Men Injured in Accident at Dupont Plant.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 20.—An explosion in the mixing building of the Dupont powder plant at Gibbstown, N. J., twenty miles south of Philadelphia, today, injured twelve men and destroyed several small corrugated iron buildings. The explosion was felt for thirty miles.

The most seriously injured is Joel Bates, an employe, who was removed to a hospital. Just before the explosion occurred Bates went into the mixing room, and discovering something wrong, fled and gave warning to other employes. The men started to run, but the explosion occurred before they could get away.

LAYBOURN CHAIRMAN

St. Louis County Delegation is Organized for the Session.

Municipal Ownership Bill Not Meeting With Much Favor.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county delegation organized for the session this noon with a full attendance, Senator Laybourn being made chairman and Representative Grant, secretary, both unanimously. City Attorney Wilson and Aldermen Getchell, Shartell and McKnight came before the delegation to back up the municipal ownership bill indorsed by the council. It was asserted that the so-called Mueller law of two years ago is ineffective and unconstitutional, and that the council thought there ought to be some way of enabling Duluth to build an electric light plant, not that it was expected that one would be built, but that it helped in getting favorable rates from the private company. The proposed bill is broad and drastic, and would arouse antagonism from many quar-

HEAVY LOSS DUE TO CLOUDBURST

Philippine Fields Ruined and Roads Made Impassable.

Manila, Jan. 20.—A great cloudburst over Mount Banahai last night, seriously damaging the surrounding country. No reports of loss of life have been received. Telegrams received here describe the downpour as a "giant explosion of water. The governor of the province reports by telegraph that a large area of cultivated fields was ruined, highways rendered impassable and many bridges destroyed.

TURKEY TAKES STEPS TO END THE BOYCOTT.

Constantinople, Jan. 20.—The government has issued instructions to the customs authorities to take measures to suppress the boycott on Austrian and Belgian goods. This step is taken, according to the wording of the order, because "Austria is on the point of settling her dispute with Turkey, and a decision has been reached to establish an agreement with Bulgaria."

CORPSE IS EXHUMED

Prosecution Has Body of Carmack Taken From Grave.

Springs Surprise at Opening of Trial of Coopers.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 20.—With the stage set for the Cooper murder trial, the witnesses present and the prospective jurors summoned, it became known this morning that the state had prepared a surprise for the defense by having the body of Carmack exhumed and a autopsy held.

After the murder, and in the excitement attendant upon the crime the state neglected to order a post mortem. It is essential in the trial that the direction from which the b ullets came be determined.

The state's theory is that Carmack, with his hat raised to greet a lady, was shot from behind. The defense asserts that he fired the first shot. It seems, however, that, some time between the date of the killing and the present time, the state, secretly and at night, exhumed the body of the slain editor and caused a careful post mortem to be preformed. The course of the bullets thus was determined and the state claims to have proof that the bullet which killed Carmack entered his neck from behind.

This, however, does not entirely disprove the theory of the defense. Even the defense does not claim that Col. Cooper fired the shots. It maintains that young Cooper, believing his father's life was in danger, fired upon Carmack to protect his sire, and it is not contended that young Cooper stood anywhere, but behind.

The work of completing the new court room for the opening of the trial was rushed all day yesterday, and was carried far into the night, and as a result the big new temple of justice was ready for the opening of court today.

The courtroom was crowded ten

IS CALM UPON THE SCAFFOLD

George Johnson Hanged for Murdering Canadian Woman.

Kenora, Ont., Jan. 20.—George F. Johnson was hanged today for the murder of Mrs. Ella Ackerman on July 28.

The crime was particularly brutal. Johnson was boarding in the home of A. J. Humphries, a fellow-worker in the Canadian Pacific railroad shops here. He was asked to discontinue boarding there and became angered at the request. He went down town and got drunk. Returning home, with a boilermaker's hammer, he quarreled with the children, and then attacked the inmates of the house, including Mrs. Humphries, Mrs. Ackerman and their children with the hammer.

Mrs. Ackerman died of her wounds, but the others recovered. Before execution, Johnson repented tearfully for his crime and went calmly to the scaffold.

SAYS SOUTH MUST DEAL WITH NEGROES

JAMES B. FRAZIER,
Tennessee Senator, Who, Speaking Today in Congress, Declared He Cannot See a Solution to the Race Problem.

NEGRO RULE IMPOSSIBLE

Senator Frazier Declares It Would be Ignorance Enthroned.

Upholds Roosevelt for Discharging Colored Soldiers.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator Frazier of Tennessee today spoke on the Brownsville affair and opposed the passage of any of the bills for the reenlistment of the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment who were discharged without honor. Frazier's remarks were of special interest, as he was a member of the committee on military affairs which investigated the Brownsville incident, his views being those of a Southerner, who has intimate knowledge of the negro race.

"Whenever," declared Frazier, "any question arises affecting the negro, there are certain people, including the negro himself, who seem to think that he should be dealt with in an exceptional and unequal way; that he is to be treated as the ward of the nation, and must be the constant object of its care and solicitude. No greater wrong can be done the negro and no greater injury can be inflicted upon the country as a whole, than to impress upon the negro such false and erroneous teachings."

Analyzing the testimony taken in the various investigations, Frazier

JEROME TO HELP CASE

Believed He Will Aid in Suit Against the World.

Activities Resumed at Both New York and Washington.

New York, Jan. 20.—The question whether employes of the New York World shall be compelled to testify before a federal grand jury in the Panama canal libel case without being informed in the subpoenas as to the nature of the case, the name of the complainant or defendant, was decided by Judge Ward of the United States circuit court today.

Assistant District Attorney Stimson has disclosed that the Press Publishing company, which controls the World, is the real defendant. Thus far the complainant has been described only as the "United States," and Stimson says he is not at liberty to disclose the name of any individual complainant. Unless Attorney General Bonaparte makes the disclosure, the name of the complainant may not be made known through the New York proceedings.

Curiosity as to whether District Attorney Jerome of New York county is to take a hand, is aroused by a conference between Jerome and Stimson, in which the Panama canal libel case was discussed.

REGGIO IS STILL BEING SHAKEN

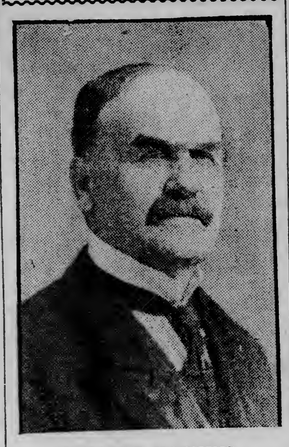

Earthquakes Continue in Stricken City at Short Intervals.

Reggio, Jan. 20.—Several additional earthquake shocks at short intervals were felt here today.

Messina Still Smoking.

Massina, Jan. 20.—The area swept yesterday by fire which broke out among the ruins left by the earthquake, is still smoking today. All night long a close watch was maintained, and the working of the pumps was continued for fear the flames might break out again. A cordon of troops is still maintained about the burned district to be ready in case of emergency.

HOT FIGHT OVER HIS SENATE JOB

SENATOR HOPKINS.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20.—Three ballots were taken in the hall of representatives, beginning at noon, and neither was decisive in electing a United States senator. Senator Hopkins received eighty-nine votes on the first ballot, and Lawrence Stringer seventy-six; Speaker Shurtleff was given twelve; Foss, 4, and Mason five.

On the second ballot the senate gave the votes as on the first. The second ballot in the house showed little change.

On the third ballot five votes were cast for Frank O. Lowden, four coming from the Hopkins column and one from Msaon's list. The result showed little change.

TO DEVELOP MINERALS

Congressman Martin of South Dakota Introduces a Bill.

Denby's Anti-Opium Measure is Favorably Acted On.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Representative Martin of South Dakota, thinks the government should make experiments in the various states in which there are known to be deposits of precious metals, after the order of the agricultural experiment stations and has has introduced a bill to this end. The object is to encourage the development of the mineral resources.

The bill introduced by Representative Denby of Michigan by which it is proposed to prohibit the importation of opium into the United States except for medicinal purposes under regulations prescribed by the secretary of agriculture, has been favorably acted upon by the house committee on foreign affairs.

Senator Burkett has presented an amendment to Senator Hopkins' bill changing the personnel of the consular examining board. One effect of the Hopkins bill would be shut out from appointment in the consular service, except through another examination, persons who passed their examination before the old board and are now awaiting appointment. Senator Burkett's amendment provides that persons who are now elegible for appointment shall not be required to take a second examination.

TWENTY-THREE PERISH IN FLAMES THAT DESTROY A CRIB IN LAKE MICHIGAN

Forty-Seven Rescued and Taken Into Chicago by Tug.

Powder Explodes While Men Are Sleeping in Bunks.

Rush Outside, Are Surrounded by Cakes of Ice.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 20.—Twenty-three men lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the intermediate crib, one and a half miles from shore in Lake Michigan, today.

Forty-seven injured were rescued by the tug Morford and brought into the city.

The fire lacked none of the elements of a melodrama. Sixty men, twenty of them at work in the tunnel under the crib, a few moving about the structure and others asleep in their bunks, were suddenly confronted by death by an explosion of a powder magazine which immediately wrapped the wooden structure in flames. Those who were not killed or injured by the first fiery blasts rushed out of doors to find no means of escape. On every side were the waters of Lake Michigan, its surface almost covered by great cakes of broken ice. A mile and a half distant near the shore at Seventy-third street, lay their only hope, the tug Morford. It could be dimly seen through the haze of fog and smoke. On the shore a dim black line indicated the gathering of crowds attracted by the flames. At the shore office the last word received from the crib was tragic in its completeness.

> "The crib is on fire. For God's sake send help at once or we will be burned alive. The tug—"

Then the telephone wire broke and the men on shore heard no more.

Capt. Edward Johnson of the tug had already hoisted anchor and the little craft was backing the ice. The firemen in the hold worked desperately getting up a full head of steam. From the deck of the boat the crib could be dimly seen. Black spots appeared and then disappeared into the waters below. Some of the imprisoned men were seeking to escape by swimming. Some of them were seen to cling to cakes of ice for a time and then disappear. The crib was a temporary structure erected in the construction of a new three-mile tunnel into the lake for the ultimate purpose of adding to Chicago's water supply. The first section of the tunnel is

FIREMEN ESCAPE, SLIDING ON HOSE

Toledo's Greatest Fire in Years Causes $500,000 Loss.

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 20.—Several fire engine and hose companies are still fighting the flames at the scene of Toledo's greatest fire in years, which started last night in the Brown, Eager & Hull book company building at 409-411 Summit street.

Two large business blocks were destroyed and others damaged. The loss is estimated at more than $500,000, about half insured. The principal losers are Brown, Eager & Hull company, $150,000; J. L. Hudson & Co., dry goods, $115,000; Mrs. Mars Nearing, owner of buildings, $100,000.

Capt. Fred Myers and four firemen were caught by flames on the roof of the Hudson building. They escaped by sliding down an extra line of hose attached to the cornice.

NEW MISSOURI GOVERNOR ARGUES AGAINST RAILROADS IN COURT

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 20.—Final arguments in the cases of the eighteen Missouri railways contesting the state 2-cent passenger and maximum freight rate acts on the ground that they are confiscatory, were begun in federal court here today before Judge Smith McPherson.

Frank Hagerman, who opened the arguments for the railroads, declared that three companies have shown an actual loss in carrying passengers at 2 cents, while the returns from the other railways show profits of only 2½ to 5 per cent. Sanford B. Ladd of Kansas City, who followed Mr. Hagerman, opening for the state, asserted that one road, the Burlington, whose official asserted it had lost $630,000 in its state freight business in 1904, had, as a matter of fact, shown a profit of about $850,000. Governor Herbert S. Hadley, who had been active in these proceedings while the attorney general, will make the principal argument for the state.

The case has attracted wide attention. For many months experts for both sides gathered testimony to uphold their contentions, and a mass of figures was presented during November and December last. The status of the case is this:

The railroads some time ago obtained an injunction, restraining the state officials from enforcing the freight law, which reduced existing freight rates about 25 per cent. The railroads demurred to the 2-cent law, but agreed to give it a trial, and it has been in force since June, 1907. The present hearing is intended to be a final disposition so far as the United States district court is concerned, of the question of both the freight and passenger rates in Missouri.

Judge McPherson has promised a decision early in February.

GREAT LAKES VESSELMEN MAY ENFORCE OPEN SHOP PRINCIPLES

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—Vesselmen from all over the Great Lakes to the number of about 100 were present today when the annual meeting of the Lake Carriers' association was called to order. One of the most important matters to come before the convention is the welfare plan made public by the executive committee several weeks ago, which embodies the enforcement of the "open shop" principle on the ships controlled in the association. The annual reports of President Livingstone and the other officers of the association occupied the opening session.

The Lumber Carriers' association of the Great Lakes has indorsed the movement for improving the navigation facilities of Chicago river and the building of a 200-foot drawbridge at Chicago.

Davidson of Toledo succeeds A. W. Comstock of Detroit on the loading committee, and the new members on the unloading committee are Mr. Ludington, Detroit; J. B. Davidson, Toledo; H. R. PREDICTS 18 CENT COPPER

Joseph Hodgson of Houghton, one of the best informed men on the copper situation in the country, who is at the Spalding today, expresses the opinion that copper will advance to 18 cents within a very short time. Mr. Hodgson bases his opinion upon his belief that there is very little metal in the hands of the consumers at the present time.

"It has been reported from unofficial sources," said Mr. Hodgson, "that there is about 400,000,000 pounds of coper in the hands of consumers at the present time. It is my belief, from what I have been able to gather, that there is not over 150,000,000 pounds in the hands of the American consumers today.

"I am inclined to believe that there is more reserve metal in the hands of the German consumers than there is in the hands of the English manufacturers. However, I do not think that the reserve held by either the German or English consumers will affect the advance of the price of the metal."

Mr. Hodgson says the western copper situation is very promising. They are opening up the Arizona mines in good shape, and Mr. Hodgson believes that there is a very bright future for some of the Utah properties.

As for conditions in the Copper country, Mr. Hodgson says they are taking out more copper at the present time than they were at this time a year ago. The demand for copper is good, and there is every indication, in the opinion of Mr. Hodgson, that the price will advance, and advance very quickly.

The interest of West Duluth curlers is centered on the second series of games to be played on Western Curling club ice tonight.

The skips of the rinks to come from Superior are: Swan, Heimbaugh and Knowles. They will be met by the rinks skipped by McDonald, Ittis and Hoag.

Last night Scott's rink defeated Donald's by a score of 17 to 2, and McDonald's men were victors in a close game of 12 to 11 with Martin's four. The games weer played in the Commercial series.

WEST END

SCHOOL NEEDS MORE ROOM

The Twentieth Century club's sewing school for girls in the West end has been growing so rapidly that the members of the committee having the work in charge have decided that larger quarters for the school are needed, and are looking about the western section of town in the hope of finding them.

At present the school sessions are held in the vestry rooms of St. Luke's Episcopal church, but these quarters are proving too small now, so successful has the institution become.

The experiment of holding a sewing class for the older girls on some evening during the week may be tried, if more suitable rooms than those in the church are not to be had. The club carries on the library and free reading room feature in the vestry rooms two evenings a week, but another night may be secured for the overflow class.

If the club does move the sewing school into another place, the chances are that other courses of study, notably domestic science, will be added.

Vacant buildings are few in the West end right now.

Will Have to Move.

The advent of the Soo Line to Duluth, by way of Rice's Point, will necessitate the removal of about forty families from that narrow strip of land in the western part of the city.

This should cause a very keen demand for homes in the West end proper, as the people living on Rice's Point want to live there, owing to the fact that their work is near there, as a rule.

Winter Sports.

Winter sports are having a great vogue among the young people of the West end, and it is said that the managers of the rolier skating rinks, moving picture shows and other places where the youths were ont to spend their money, are not at all contented.

The rink cleared by the Adams school alumni on the bay at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west, is well patronized every evening and many folks are practicing skiing, although there is hardly enough snow for that sport.

West End Shortrails.

The young people of Zion Norwegian Lutheran church will give a musical and literary program Friday evening in the church parlors.

The Bema club held a meeting last evening in Dr. Oredson's office. Five-minute speeches were made by the members.

Dr. Claude M. Haney has gone to St. Paul, where his marriage takes place Thursday to Miss Elsie Foulke of that city. After a short wedding trip Dr. Haney and his bride will be at home in the West end.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church will unite with the St. Agues Guild in holding a social in the vestry rooms Thursday evening. The function will be given to promote sociability among the members of the parish.

The West End Republican club will meet tomorrow evening in President Jesen's office, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

Capt. Johns was in charge, as he has been all summer. He had in tow one of the north shore gasoline fishing smacks.

The tug Constitution, which is at the present time out after a load of fish, is not expected in port before Thursday afternoon. A large crowd watched the little tug Hall come in through the piers yesterday, and many people believed she was the Constitution.

The ice opposite the ship canal has shifted and navigation was again open yesterday.

Constipation Caused By Indigestion

Is Cured by Helping the Stomach Do Its Work As It Should.

All forms of constipation, bowel or intestinal trouble owe most of their origin to the improper digestion of food. The bowels measure 30 feet. The inside walls or surfaces are wound tightly about with millions of nerves. These nerves give life and control millions of little mouths or suckers which are supposed to take nourishment from the food as it leaves the stomach and passes along this 30-foot human canal.

When indigestion, dyspepsia or stomach trouble occurs, the food being undigested, passes over these millions of mouths, it is a fermented decaying mass and holds no nourishment as it should.

The little mouths suck it up, impart these impurities to the blood, impregnate the little nerves with poison and so the work of constipation and bowel trouble begins.

A natural juice or secretion belongs normally in the little cells and glands along the mucous membrane of the 30-foot canal or bowel. When indigestion occurs this juice is lacking and so the mass of waste matter cannot pass along as it should and is piled up and caked in the bowel thus bringing pain and misery.

After a while the nerves and nerve centers which give vigor and life to the bowel become paralyzed, thus forever prohibiting the bowel from performing its natural duties.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, when taken after meals, digests the food properly even though the stomach is sick and it passes to the bowels nourishment and juices, which help the intestines not only to do their work at once, but builds them up, restores vitality to the nerves, brings new secretion to the glands and cells, helps bowel action and enriches the blood.

The stomach is the cause. Common sense and science are one on this point. You see it yourself. One little grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will perfectly digest 3,000 grains of food. The assimilation of a meal by one of these tablets is an easy matter and it keeps the stomach clean and sweet so that in a brief time this organ is restored.

Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

JURIES GET TWO CASES

After the dismissal of the allegation of malpractice by Judge Dibell in the case of Christ Christopherson vs. Dr. Charles B. Lenont in district court yesterday afternoon, the case proceeded on the allegation of breach of contract. The case went to the jury shortly before noon today.

The only question remaining for the jury was whether Dr. Lenont was justified in refusing to perform an operation for Christopherson in December, 1904, after Christopherson had broken an appointment for the same operation seven months before, and had consulted a Duluth physician.

Christopherson was employed in a sawmill by C. R. Ash. Dr. Lenont and Mr. Ash had a contract under which the men in Mr. Ash's employ paid $1 a month for medical services and Dr. Lenont was required to give them such services. Christopherson was injured Feb. 18, 1904, having both bones in his arm broken above the wrist. He went to Dr. Lenont for treatment and after several months the bones had not knit. Dr. Lenont decided that an operation was necessary. He made an appointment with Christopherson for May 10, 1904, but Christopherson did not appear.

The man returned to Dr. Lenont in December of the same year and asked that the operation be performed. Dr. Lenont refused to have anything to do with him, and Christopherson had the operation performed by a Duluth surgeon.

The plaintiff contends that Dr. Lenont was not justified in refusing to perform the operation and should pay for the treatment Mr. Christopherson received at Duluth. Dr. Lenont claims that Christopherson's breaking of the appointment for the operation and the failure to take treatment for seven months was justification for refusing to perform the operation later. The suit is for $932.50.

The suit of G. G. Chamberlain vs. A. M. Balfany went to the jury this morning. The trial was on for several days and was an involved affair. Chamberlain sued for $900, claimed to be due him from Balfany, for whom he worked as a traveling salesman. Balfany put in a counter claim for $230, claiming that Chamberlain had failed to turn in that amount in collections above his salary. The system under which Chamberlain was working and the involved nature of the reports and books complicated the issues, which went to the jury.

The case of Charles Ellison vs. John J. Frey and the Toledo Film Exchange company, the latter as intervenor, which was called before Judge Ensign in district court this morning, is in the nature of a battle royal, each of the three parties fighting against the other two. The foundation for the suit consists of three reels of moving picture films worth about $500.

Frey loaned Ellison $15 and Ellison put up the moving picture films as security for the return of the money. He paid Frey $5 and later another man, supposedly on an order from Ellison, paid the other $10 and Frey delivered the films to him. It developed that he wasn't an agent of Ellison and Frey recovered the films. Then Ellison sued for their value. The Toledo Film Exchange company stepped in and claimed the films, asserting that they were the real owners and the films were only loaned to Ellison, who conducts a moving picture theater in West Duluth. The jury will decide the ownership of the films.

OWES STATE NEARLY $7,000

The state auditor is again calling upon Duluth for the money it owes the state for the inebriate fund, provided for by the last legislature.

A bill was passed providing for the building of a state home for inebriates, and the money for building the institution and maintaining it was to be procured by every city, town and village in Minnesota contributing 2 per cent of its liquor license money.

The state auditor has several times asked Duluth to send forward her share of the fund, but no attention has been paid these requests. Finally, the state auditor wrote to Mayor Haven direct, hinting that if the matter were not settled right away it would be put in the hands of the attorney general. Mayor Haven ordered that the money be paid over.

Last year a small town in Southern Minnesota tried to dodge payment, and the case was taken into court, where the state won out. The 2 per cent of liquor license money is supposed to be sent forward as fast as received. As Duluth has contributed nothing thus far, it now owes the fund between $6,000 and $7,000, which it will have to pay.

MANY RUMORS ARE IN THE AIR

There is an air of speculation in Duluth railroad circles. The dispatches and the local rumors, regarding the change of ownership of railroads, the rumored extensions, and the reported big deals, one of which involves the transfer of an entire railroad property to another strong corporation, have caused much speculation among the railroad officials of this city.

It may be said that it is generally believed here that the Canadian Pacific has secured control of the Wisconsin Central, and that the Soo will extend to Thief River Falls, thus giving Duluth another direct connection with Winnipeg.

One railroad official stated this morning that he had this "doped out" for some time. However, he kept the idea carefully to himself. Another prominent Duluth official, when asked for an opinion today, upon the probability of the Minneapolis story being true, stated that, in his opinion, the extension would be made, as it was logical in the face of the competition among the Western roads for a Duluth outlet.

Here in Duluth, the Eastern story crediting the sale of the Northern Pacific to the Northwestern company, is not generally believed among railroad men.

In the first place, it is pointed out that James J. Hill, in his past record of railroad construction, has never evinced the slightest disposition to let go of any property he had acquired. Railroad men say Mr. Hill never acquires any property which he has not thoroughly investigated from every possible standpoint, and which has not infinite possibilities for profit-making.

What is believed here, is that there has been a traffic arrangement entered into between the Northern Pacific and the Northwestern railroad, whereby the two roads will operate through coast service together.

The popular salutation in local railroad circles, is, "Good morning. Are you working for a new corporation today?"

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION

IS ELECTED TO SENATE

M. N. Johnson to Represent North Dakota in Upper House.

In Congress Four Terms on Ways and Means Committee.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature, in joint session at noon today, declared M. N. Johnson elected to the United States senate. Mr. Johnson is a native of Wisconsin, having been born in Racine county in that state in 1850. His parents removed from Wisconsin the year of his birth and settled on a farm near Decorah, in Winneshiek county, Iowa, where their son spent his boyhood days working on a farm and attending the public school of the neighborhood. He prepared for college at the Upper Iowa university at Fayette, and entered the State University of Iowa, graduating in 1875. He then took up the study of law in the same institution and graduated from the law department in 1876. While he was still pursuing his studies, and for the purpose of obtaining funds to complete his university course, he accepted the position of instructor in the California military academy at Oakland, Cal., where he remained for a period of two years. For a time he was a teacher of German in a German Lutheran church school in San Francisco. Following his work in teaching, he took up the practice of law in Decorah, Iowa, continuing his work six years.

It was in 1882 that Mr. Johnson decided to cast his lot with the people of North Dakota, and that year he settled on government land at Petersburg, Nelson county, where he still resides. Ever since taking up his residence in this state he has lived upon and personally operated his farm, which consists of two sections. He also owns and operates a grain elevator at Petersburg. In 1886 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Nelson county, being reelected two years later. He retired from the practice of law several years ago.

M. N. JOHNSON,
North Dakota's New Senator.

Political Career.

The election of Mr. Johnson to the United States senate today is the crowning victory of years of work in the political field in North Dakota, as well as in other states. Since 1876, when he was elected a Republican presidential elector from his district in Iowa, he has been actively engaged in politics. He was elected to the house of representatives of the Iowa assembly and served one term; and subsequently he was elected to the state senate and served through two sessions of that body.

In the making of the early history of the state of North Dakota, Mr. Johnson took a prominent part. He was a member of the constitutional convention for this state and as chairman of the committee on corporations, drew up that portion of the state constitutions relating to corporations. The first Republican state convention was held in Fargo in 1889, and Mr. Johnson was its chairman. It was in this convention that John Miller was nominated for governor. At that time Mr. Johnson was a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and had become known as an able and fearless advocate of clean politics and good government.

Elected to Congress.

When the first legislature of the new state of North Dakota met in 1889 Mr. Johnson was a candidate for United States senator, but in joint convention was defeated. In 1890 he was nominated by the Republican state convention for member of congress from this state and was subsequently elected, being re-elected in 1892, 1894 and 1896. In 1899 he was again a candidate for the United States senate, but was defeated. During his time of service in congress, this state had only one congressman.

In 1890 Mr. Johnson took a prominent part in the fight against the Louisiana lottery bill, being named by the people of Nelson county to come to Bismarck for the purpose of working against the proposed measure.

When the Republicans gained control of congress again in 1895, Mr. Johnson was placed on the important ways and means committee, on which he served for a period of four years. He took part in the work of framing the Dingley tariff bill, and the result of his work on this was to give him a wonderful amount of information on the tariff question, which will serve him well as a member of the senate with the question again in the public eye.

Indorsed at the Primaries.

The election of Mr. Johnson today comes as a result of the splendid indorsement given him by the people of North Dakota in the primary elections of 1908. In the first of these with four candidates in the field he stood second, while in the second election he was first.

Though since the election the pledge taken by the members of the legislature to the effect that they would support their party's nominee for senator has been declared unconstitutional and not legally binding upon the members elected, the fact that Mr. Johnson was today named shows that the legislators did not consider their pledge lightly, and by so doing they have carried out the expressed wish of the people of the state.

A concurrent resolution proposed by Senator George E. Duis of Grand Forks provides for an amendment to the constitution of the state that would give to the legislature the power of establishing a terminal grain elevator at the Head of the Lakes. The establishment of such an elevator has long been discussed in North Dakota, principally by the farmers in their organizations, but as yet nothing had been proposed in the way of state action. The resolution proposed must first be passed by the present assembly, referred to the succeeding assembly and by it referred to the people for a vote before it would become effective.

The appropriation bill for the state school for the deaf and dumb, located at Devils Lake, was introduced in the senate by Mr. Baker and provides for $41,000 for the institution. The growing needs of the institution have made the addition of new accommodations imperative.

The school of forestry, which is the newest of the state educational institutions and which is located at Bottineau, asks for an appropriation of $20,000. This sum is wanted for the improvement of the grounds and the completion of the only building the school has.

The repeal of the so-called spotter reward law is the object of the measure introduced by Senator Macdonald of Emmons. The spotter law, which provides for rewards for the arrest and conviction of violators of the prohibition law, has been a source of a great deal of trouble in the past two years. In the last legislative assembly there was passed a temperance commissioner bill, which repealed the spotter law, but the commissioner law was later declared unconstitutional. The question then arose as to whether the repeal of the spotter law would stand and suit has since been brought against the state to enforce collections of rewards claimed under the measure. The bill introduced is for the purpose of making sure that the bill is taken off the statutes.

The McArthur bill providing for an act to regulate the sale of liquors would make it unlawful for any druggist to sell liquor to any person, except on the prescription of a physician and for medicinal purposes. There would be but one sale and one delivery on a prescription. The physician who should write out a prescription of this nature, knowing the person for whom he was writing it was not in the need of liquor for medicinal purposes, would be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not less than $200, nor more than $800. The prescriptions so filled would be filed with the county judge and there retained for two years, open to inspection. In case it was believed that a physician was using his prescription powers for the purpose of supplying parties with liquor who used is as a beverage and was not acting in good faith, a petition signed by ten residents filed with the district judge would make it obligatory upon the judge to issue an order directing the physician to show cause why he is not acting in good faith, and if it is found that he is not so doing, to enjoin him from issuing prescriptions for intoxicating liquors.

A bill will shortly be introduced providing for a change in the salaries of the state officials, gives the governor an annual salary of $5,000, the railway commissioners $2,400 and the other state officials $4,000.

for the past two days has enveloped the secret examination before the federal grand jury would seem to have been limited by the issuance of a subpoena in which, for the first time, the names of both the complainant and defendant are made public.

This document, made out against "John Doe," was served upon William J. Dempsey, head of the mailing department of the New York World, and commands his appearance before the federal grand jury to testify "In the matter of the United States against the Press Publishing company," which company publishes the World.

It is generally believed that the action of the federal authorities in thus coming out in the open as complainants against the World, will result in the abandonment of the proceedings begun by J. Angus Shaw, secretary of the Press Publishing company, and four other employes of the World, to have the subpoenas served upon them quashed on the ground that omission of the names of both complainant and defendant rendered them invalid, or else in the issuance of new subpoenas naming complainant and accusing.

More Washington Witnesses.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Probing further into the alleged libelous articles in the New York World and the Indianapolis News against Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and Willard Nelson Cromwell, the federal grand jury today heard a number of out-of-town witnesses. These included Joseph Barry, township assessor; Albert Sahm, county auditor, and Charles Clarke, a member of the cashier's staff of the News, all of Indianapolis.

The usual crowds assembled in the vicinity of the grand jury room in order to obtain a view of the leading figures in the now famous inquisition.

said there is no question as to the guilt of the soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment. He justified the president in his discharge of the entire body of troops because of the impossibility of fixing the guilt upon particular soldiers.

Speaking of the treatment of the negro by the people of the South, Mr. Frazier said:

"I would not be entirely frank if I did not say that upon certain phases of the race question, I, in common with the rest of the South have stood and I believe will ever stand, firm and unalterable. First never again will the negro race be allowed to politically dominate and control a sovereign state of this union. To do so would be to enthrone ignorance and give it domination over intelligence and to bring back the rapine and utter recklessness and debauchery of the Reconstruction era. Second: The social barrier which separates the races will never be allowed to be lowered. To do so would destroy the purity and integrity of the white race, and shock the sensibilities and outrage the moral sense of the caucasian race the world over. For forty years in patience and kindness, the people of the South have wrestled with this problem," he said in conclusion.

"It is still unsolved. What the end will be only God in His infinite wisdom can see. Shall it be, that the black race be deported? If feasible, it would remove the last remaining barrier to complete the unity of the American people.

"Shall it be a race war, bloody, fierce, exterminating—a war for the survival of the fittest? God forbid. Shall it be amalgamation and the unspeakable horror of a corrupted and inferior race? To allow it would be to destroy that civilization which is at once our strength and pride. Shall it be that the two races will dwell together and yet apart, in peace and harmony? To do so, without the one race dominating and ruling the other, would be to belie the universal verdict of racial history.

"I do not know. But one thing I do know, that the solution of this problem rests primarily in the hands of the Southern white man and the Southern black man, and calls for the wisest counsel and broadest conservatism of both. I know that it can never be solved by a man far removed from its fatal touch, and whose minds are not filled with the appalling sense of the deep racial difficulties with which it is hedged about."

minutes after the doors were thrown open. Quite a number of women were present and for these, Judge Hart ordered places made inside the bar.

The prisoners were escorted into the room after the preliminaries. Col. Cooper and his son entered, and arm in arm, while Mr. Sharpe followed them. The latter's wife and father greeted him affectionately. Mrs. Lucius Barch, daughter of Col. Cooper, met her father and brother with a cheerful smile, and, seating herself between them, conversed animatedly with them. Young Cooper was fashionably attired and seemed in splendid spirits. His father was very quiet and shows the effects of confinement.

The legal talent in the case is imposing and the attorneys were grouped around two long tables. For the state were Attorney General Jeff McCann, Capt. G. I. Fitzhugh of Memphis, Gen. J. B. Garner of Lawrenceburg and Gen. Matt Whittaker of Winchester. For the defense were Judge J. M. Anderson, Gen. W. H. Washington, Gen. M. H. Meeks, Judge Ed. Baxter, Charles N. Burch, James A. Ryan and Albert Ewing.

Before the panel was called both sides asked time to confer, which was granted. The defense has seventy-two peremptory challenges, twenty-four for each defendant, and the state eighteen challenges, or six for each defendant. Judge Hunt ordered 500 men summoned for jury service, and says he will order the next panel to consist of 1,000. There are 4,000 qualified names in the jury wheel.

Should these be exhausted without the selection of a jury the case will not go to trial at all.

being dug from the shore at Seventy-third street.

The crib marked the beginning of the second section extending further into the lake. It was used as the headquarters for supplies and men of the second section. The wooden material used in the crib made it an easy prey of the fire. Powder and dynamite used in blasting were both stored there.

Ordinarily from sixty to seventy-five men were employed. They worked in shifts of eight hours each, eating on the premises and sleeping in the bunks with which the place was provided. A suspended tramway connected the crib with the shore. Immense buckets, suspended from heavy wire cable and worked by machinery, carried supplies to the place.

When the fire was first discovered an attempt was made by a few daring ones to reach the crib in the buckets, but failed.

When Capt. Johnson, after what seemed to him an interminable trip, reached his goal, a fearful scene greeted his eyes. Frantic victims of the fire, their hair singed off and their skins blackened, were struggling in the water and ice. Some of them fought against their rescuers, only to sink unconscious on the deck when forced aboard the tug. When everybody in sight had been taken aboard, a second muffled explosion was heard, probably marking the snuffing out of more lives in the tunnel under the crib.

"When I neared the crib," said Capt. Johnson, "I saw a number of men, their clothing ablaze, run out of the blazing structure and jump into the lake. Others rapidly twisted ropes about anything they could find and jumped into the water. Others used boxes and pieces of timber, as life preservers.

"When we got within fifty feet of the crib I slowed down the engines and began throwing out ropes and life belts to the men in the water. Some of the men fought us and others were so cold and stiff from their icy baths that we had to reach over and drag them in. They were taken to the boiler room, where they were kept as warm as possible. Meanwhile we kept drifting closer to the crib, where a dozen or more men, huddled together on a far section of the pilings which had not been reached by the flames, were crying for assistance. When we bumped against the ruined structure some of the men jumped aboard, but others were so unnerved that we had to climb out and drag them aboard. Still others crawled from different parts of the crib with their clothing ablaze. One of these we were compelled to throw into the lake in order to extinguish the fire on his clothing. We tied a rope around him and dipped him in the water and then pulled him back aboard the tug. It was while we were doing this that the second explosion occurred and I backed the tug away. We could see no more injured and departed for the shore."

Falls From Bridge: Hurt.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Nagle, 22 years old, fell from the top of the partly constructed St. Paul railway bridge Monday afternoon, crashing through the thin ice, and was rescued from drowning by fellow-workmen. His skull is fractured and he lies in a precarious condition at the Menominee River hospital.

LYCEUM—"The Three Twins."

"The Three Twins."

Another large house greeted "The Three Twins" last evening, and the engagement of five nights and a matinee promises to be a very successful one from the standpoint of the box office.

The only matinee of the engagement is being given this afternoon. Those who have seen the performance are its best advertisers, and the attendance should increase until Friday night, when the engagement comes to a close. The experiment of a week's engagement, or what practically amounts to that, will be watched with interest, not only by Duluthians, but by theatrical managers of similar attractions.

"Little Johnny Jones."

"Little Johnny Jones" comes to the Lyceum next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. George M. Cohan has succeeded in evolving a musical comedy with a real plot, and there is just enough love interest in "Little Johnny Jones" to keep the folks who lean towards the sentimental side of life, in a delightfully preoccupied condition.

Song hits galore are found in "Little Johnny Jones," and starting situations, a chorus which is never idle, and through it all stalks "The Unknown," who says everybody in the world has got a mean disposition. This unique character must be seen to be appreciated. It is a classic in so far as musical comedy is concerned.

"The Land of Nod."

"The Land of Nod," a rattling good musical comedy extravaganza, will be presented at the Lyceum on Saturday matinee and night. This production was seen here last season, and it made a hit. It is a spectacular show as to scenery, costumes, electrical and other "effects," and it possesses a charm of comedy and music altogether delightful and amusing. It is funny and the music is all of the kind which keeps the feet moving and is hummed and whistled for a long time after it is heard. In the man, the same company which appeared last season returns at this time. Among the favorites in the cast who will be seen are Miss Grace Drew and Knox Wilson, who played "The Jack of Hearts" and "April Fool," respectively. The same fine chorus of good looking girls and capable vocalists has been retained all of which insures a thoroughly enjoyable performance.

Any Woman Can Be Attractive

Personal charm isn't always to be found in women of regular and classic features. The secret lies in perfect health, which means perfect regularity of all bodily functions.

Here is a simple prescription which restores health and youthful vitality to nervous, weak, and prematurely old women: Alpen Seal, 2 ounces; Fluid Extract Black Haw, 1 ounce; Pure Water, 5 ounces. Any good druggist will supply you at trifling cost. Take a teaspoonful before meals and at bedtime for a few days before, during and after each monthly period, and you will get wonderful results.

The above prescription, which is endorsed by an eminent physician, regulates the flow, soothes the nerves, stops pain, cures cramps and headaches, and clears and beautifies the complexion. It is an absolutely effective, commonsense, home remedy for all monthly difficulties, which, if neglected, make life a burden to women and rob them of the attractions which are their natural right.

READS PROTEST FROM MITCHELL

Miners' Secretary Has Letter Bearing on Jail Sentence.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 20.—The report of Secretary W. D. Ryan of the United Mine Workers, submitted today at the twentieth annual convention, begins by congratulating the organization and its joint agreements with the operators of coal mines in practically all the districts, carrying no decrease in wages or tightening of the conditions of labor, despite the industrial depression.

The membership of the organization increased from 54,700 in December, 1898, to 294,746 in December, 1908. The secretary called attention to the large decrease in the funds of the organization. April 1, 1908, it had on hand $931,996 and Dec. 1, $595,739.37.

Secretary Ryan protested against the electioneering methods, which, he said, were adopted in the last campaign within the organization. "Officers and candidates," he said, "can certainly use their time and talent to better effect by devising ways and means to build up the organization, rather than descending to the level of ward politicians by securing the assistance of questionable newspapers in laying bare each others faults."

Mr. Ryan recommended that the Buck Stove & Range company be taken off the unfair list and that "the individual members should be permitted to use their own judgment." In this connection he said that ex-President John Mitchell had been sentenced to jail by Judge Wright for an act committed while Mr. Mitchell was presiding at the last convention of the organization and that the present convention should thoroughly consider the case. He read a letter from Mr. Mitchell, in which he said the resolution passed by the convention, which had brought upon him his jail sentence, had been passed without his knowledge and without his participation and he felt therefore that a great injustice had been done to him.

VIRGINIA TO GO AHEAD WITH PARK

Council Decides to Acquire Needed Property by Legal Methods.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night passed a resolution to condemn lots 4 to 29 inclusive, in block 45, for park purposes. A committee composed of Edward C. A. Johnson, Alex Reid, E. M. Tredway, William Rooney and J. A. Kennedy was appointed to appraise the property. The acquisitions of these lots has been a bone of contention between the park board and the property owners for some time. Several weeks ago a similar resolution passed the council, but the mayor vetoed it. It is now generally believed that Mayor Hawkinson will not object to the acquiring of the lots by the park board. The land in question lies in front of the Roosevelt high school.

J. A. Kimball, roadmaster for the Missabe railroad, appeared before the council and announced that he had received instructions to proceed with the erection of the crossing over the road's tracks at the Gilbert crossing. He said he put a gang of men on the job at once and reported that the crossing had been completed that afternoon.

President Osborn of the council in Duluth Monday, when he and Vice President W. A. McGonagle had a consultation anent the matter. It is just possible that President Osborn's talk with McGonagle helped the matter along.

Architect S. H. Radcliffe of Duluth came here yesterday to look over the city hall and jail, with the object of suggesting plans for remodeling the buildings. After the council had adjourned, the committee on public property escorted Mr. Radcliffe over the premises. Radcliffe was the architect who constructed the original buildings. He will return to Duluth today and make drawings along the lines of the proposed additions.

An ordinance pertaining to the inspection of milk and cattle had its first reading before the council last night. If it passes, it carries a proviso for the appointment of a meat and milk inspector.

Several liquor licenses were granted, namely, to David Jamme, M. Steinberg and Joseph Spritzer. A transfer of the liquor license of Stephen Kelsler to R. J. Thorp was also granted.

The clerk of the municipal court made her report for the week ending Jan. 16. The court had collected $64.50 in fines for that week.

HIGHER TAXES NOT RELISHED

Citizens of Eveleth Protests to Council Against Additional Burdens.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tax question was thoroughly discussed last night at the council meeting. The tax rate for the local property owners has been raised from about 5 per cent to almost 8 per cent. A large number of the property owners were present. The reason the rate is higher is that when the local board of equalization was figuring on the annual levy they figured that the Spruce mine would be valued at about $2,000,000 and made the levy accordingly.

Instead the state board of equalization did not raise the local valuation placed on the mine which was $1,400,000, with the expectation that the valuation would be raised by the state board as in former years. This year the state board did not raise the valuations as expected so the property owners will have to pay the difference. A motion was made and carried for the appointment of a committee consisting of President of the Council Doyle, Mayor Smith and one to be appointed by the president of the council to investigate and report the exact cause of the raised taxes. Remarks were made by P. E. Dowling, Solomon Sax, Deputy Coronor J. J. Gleason, ex-Alderman Murray, M. Nathanson and many others. Almost all had some kicks to make. The matter of proper taxation of the Spruce mine was also brought into the discussion.

The Virginia Brewing company was granted permission to build a small building in the rear of one of their buildings on Grant avenue. The liquor licenses were granted.

A petition signed by most of the merchants in town asked the council not to grant a license to R. Mantel to conduct an auction sale. City Attorney Boyle reported he had interviewed Manager Irwin of the Eveleth Electric company and that the latter said he would see that no one would have to pay any more than the contract price. The city clerk reported disbursements last year of $59,827.67 and receipts $113,502.96. The report of City Treasurer W. J. Davey for the year ending Dec. 31, 1908, showed orders unpaid, $29,811.41; orders registered from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1908, $13.75; total orders paid during 1908, $32,407.87.

Eveleth Business Changes.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matt Anderson has bought the jewelry store owned by Perry & Mattson. Mr. Mattson has gone West to look up a location, while Mr. Perry is undecided about the future. J. A. Hanson and John Halden, the former of Two Harbors, have purchased Gust Johnson's confectionery store. A report that Isidore Shanedling, the local manager of Shanedling Bros.' store, had bought the interests of his brothers, Morris and Julius Shanedling of Virginia, is unfounded. Such a deal was in progress, but fell through.

Delegations were present from Hibbing, Coleraine, Grand Rapids, Cloquet and from two Duluth lodges. There are 2,000 members of the lodge in this district. G. F. Peterson of Hibbing was the first president of the organization.

IS GIVEN FINE TOKEN.

Veteran Hibbing Flagman Given Fine Watch by Children.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. McCormack, the veteran flagman of the Third avenue crossing of the Missabe tracks, who volunteered his services to protect the children from danger, thereby winning the good wishes of every one, has departed for Seattle, where he will locate, taking along a handsome gold watch, chain and fob costing $140, the gift of the children of Hibbing as a slight return for his kindness in their behalf.

The gift was presented to him for the children by Supt. Young of the city schools. The captain was much pleased with his gift. Mayor Wierick, P. H. Nelson and F. A. Wildes selected the present. The captain stated that it was the first watch he had ever owned.

Capt. McCormack's place at the crossing has been taken by Daniel Manning, formerly in charge of the Second avenue crossing.

GILBERT IS DIVIDED.

Question of Annexing Sparta Addition Vexed One.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many property owners at Gilbert are said to favor having Sparta annexed, as they say two governments right next to each other will be no good. They believe that with Sparta out in the cold, the Sparta residents will be at "outs" with the Gilbert people, and will do their trading in other surrounding towns, as Eveleth and Virginia. Stores will no doubt be put up in Gilbert this year which will have full lines of all goods, so that would be unnecessary if the Sparta people would be under the same government as Gilbert.

The argument broughtgy those unfavorable to annexation is, that if Sparta is annexed without any mines, it will raise the taxes somewhat. The Sparta people are bringing over $25,000, which will be spent through the Steel corporations for improvements. The Steel corporation will also furnish the Sparta addition with water.

The council put off action Monday until they could hear about the suit now pending in the supreme court, whereby some parties are trying to have the Gilbert charter revoked, alleging illegal voting in of the town. The case will come up on Friday of this week.

It is claimed the mine owners are back of the move to annul the charter, as mines are included in the platting of the town. If the charter is revoked, then other towns having mines within their limits are also liable to have their charters revoked.

VIRGINIA EAGLES SOAR.

Birds Have Lively Time at Lodge Meeting.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eagles flew high Monday night. They soared above everything else in sight and finally lighted in the aerie in North Poie hall. They held a kangaroo court during the session, but the less said about that the better. It would be more congenial to say a few words about the banquet that followed, but even this was sub rosa. It is enough to say that every Eagle was on his perch and made the most of the occasion. Three veteran birds had charge of the gathering and they were called O. E. Thayer, J. A. Kennedy and D. W. Elmquist. Perhaps these were only nicknames, but they made a good job of their tasks. Then some alleged officers of the flock were installed. They were: President O. E. Bickford; vice president, N. C. Beaudette; secretary; W. R. Byrne; treasurer, J. A. Kennedy; guard, Charles Winchester; trustees, A. F. Thayer, C. C. Butler and James Lavioiette.

POULTRYMEN ELECT.

Lake County Poultry Association Chooses Officers.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to the Herald.)—The Lake County Poultry association last night elected officers as follows: President, G. W. Small; vice president, J. J. Croke; secretary-treasurer, D. W. Owens; executive committee, R. J. Tubman, W. R. Coleman, Thomas Owens, George Mumford, L. D. Rose.

The dates for the next show were fixed for Dec. 15, 16 and 17. Much interest is shown in fancy poultry raising in Lake county and many breeders own high scoring birds. Quite a number of the Lake county breeders will exhibit at the Duluth show, which opens Feb. 8.

FROZEN ON THE TRACKS.

Terrible Plight of Nashwauk Carpenter Near Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Abraham Hovals, a carpenter living at Nashwauk, aged about 35, unmarried, was found lying on the Great Northern tracks here yesterday, with his hands and feet so badly frozen that amputation will probably be necessary to save his life. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Duluth for treatment. Luckily, no train had passed his way during the night, or he certainly would have perished.

ROAD MOVES ITS OFFICES.

Headquarters of Rainy Lake Road Is in Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad has transferred its main offices from Duluth to Virginia. The officers arrived in this city Monday morning, but kept their identity from the public. But they are here to stay. Among the officers of the road now in this city are: Julius Sobotta, general auditor for the road; Walter Ward, general bookkeeper; B. H. Doughty, general freight and ticket accountant; Charles W. Nelson, stenographer, and H. A. Ebmer, clerk. Others will follow.

The people of Virginia regard this change as of the most importance to local commercial interests.

MINING COMPANY GIVES LAND FOR DAIRY FARM.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Charles B. Lenont is in receipt of a letter from J. U. Sebenius of Duluth, in which Mr. Sebenius says the Oliver Mining company will donate part of its land here for a pure dairy farm. The Virginia Commercial club recently suggested that such a farm should be established. About 160 acres will be required to operate the institution. The large death rate of children on the range, supposed to be due to impure milk and impure dairy products, led the mining company's officials to make the generous offer.

SMALL PROCTOR FIRE IS SOON EXTINGUISHED.

Proctor, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—An alarm of fire was turned in Monday night at 7 o'clock from the F. G. Suggs meat market, where the wood worker around the generator of the lighting system had become ignited. Luckily, the blaze was extinguished before the department arrived on the scene.

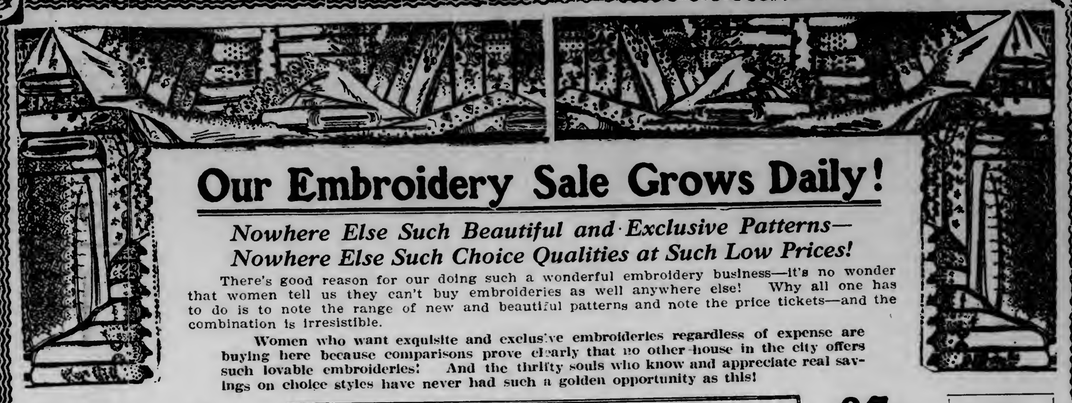

The third annual ball of Proctor lodge of the International Association of Machinists will be held at the village hall tonight. Blewett's orchestra will furnish the music.

HER MOTHER-IN-LAW

Proved a Wise, Good Friend.

A young woman out in Ia. found a wise, good friend in her mother-in-law, Jokes notwithstanding. She writes:

"It is two years since we began using Postum in our house. I was greatly troubled with my stomach, complexion was blothey and yellow. After meals I often suffered sharp pains and would have to lie down. My mother often told me it was the coffee I drank at meals. But when I'd quit coffee I'd have a severe headache.

"While visiting my mother-in-law I remarked that she always made such good coffee, and asked her to tell me how. She laughed and told me it was easy to make good 'coffee' when you use Postum.

"I began to use Postum as soon as I got home, and now we have the same good 'coffee' (Postum) every day, and I have no more trouble. Indigestion is a thing of the past, and my complexion has cleared up beautifully.

"My grandmother suffered a great deal with her stomach. Her doctor told her to leave off coffee. She then took tea, but that was just as bad.

"She finally was induced to try Postum, which she has used for over a year. She traveled during the winter over the greater part of Iowa, visiting, something she had not been able to do for years. She says she owes her present good health to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

PATENTS MAY BE ISSUED TO MINNESOTA SWAMP LANDS CLAIMED BY THE CHIPPEWAS

Washington, Jan. 20.—In passing final judgment in the case of the Chippewa Indians against Secretary of the Interior Garfield, in an endeavor to restrain him from issuing patents to swamp lands to Minnesota valued at over $2,000,000, Chief Justice Van Orsdal, of the District of Columbia court of appeals, rendered a sweeping decision which will probably settle forever all attempts to again bring this case into court.

He concludes: "Many reasons are apparent why this case, as presented, is not within the jurisdiction of the courts of this district. The primary purpose of this suit is to prevent the United States from carrying out an agreement entered into between it and the state of Minnesota.

"Here jurisdiction falls at three points. It is a suit against the United States, and in absence of express authority from congress, the courts have no jurisdiction.

"Second, Minnesota, in any action affecting the title to lands in question, is an indispensable party, and this action must fail for defect of partits defendant.

"Third, the bill could not be so amended as to make Minnesota a party defendant, for that would be a suit by a citizen against a sovereign which is forbidden by the eleventh amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Hence, there is no possible avenue open through which the complainant upon this record can secure the relief sought.

"We must consider the treaty of 1855 as a mere valid cession of lands in question to the United States. They at once became a part of the government domain, over which congress has exclusive control. By the swamp land act of 1860, the lands were granted to the state of Minnesota. No subsequent treaty or negotiation between the United States and Indians tending to rescinding treaty of 1855, without the consent of the state, could in any way affect the state in the enjoyment of its rights."

NO EVIDENCE OF MALPRACTICE

Court Dismisses the Suit Against Dr. Lenont of Virginia.

The malpractice allegation in the suit of Christ Christopherson against Dr. Charles B. Lenont, which was taken up for trial in district court yesterday, was dismissed by Judge Dibell late yesterday afternoon. The court held that there was no evidence to show malpractice.

Christopherson sued for $932.50, claiming that Dr. Lenont had improperly set his arm and it was necessary for him to come to Duluth for treatment. He also claimed that after several months Dr. Lenont refused to have anything more to do with him, despite a contract with C. B. Ash, under which the physician was to treat patients among Mr. Ash's employes. The physician claimed that the man did not follow instructions or keep appointments

TAFT ON MATRIMONY, BEFORE SCHOOL GIRLS

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 20.—Taft speaking before what he termed "a bouquet of bright and charming faces," the students of Tubman high school for girls, said his point of view had changed on woman suffrage since, when 16, he ardently advocated that doctrine in his graduation paper because of the admiration he had for the intelligence of the girl members of his class. He remarked in passing the subject for a discussion of matrimony, that he didn't see the slightest interest in the faces of his hearers in what he was discussing.

Matrimony, as he had said at Athens last week, was not the only future to which a young woman should look and no unsatisfactory acceptance should be made of marriage proposals simply to avoid being an old maid. The great success of many unmarried women of his acquaintance justified this assertion.

"But of course, in the South you are not troubled as they are in Massachusetts," he continued, "where there are so many women that there is no possibility that they can all marry and it is a real serious problem as to what shall be done with the unmarried women. Here I know that the situation is different."

"But my dear young ladies," the speaker remarked, while he allowed full scope to the Taft smile, "I did not come here to make a prepared address. I came here trusting to the inspiration of the moment for what your bright eyes and pretty faces and your charming presence might bring out of me. I trust I am not too old yet to yield to the charm of beauty and that, too, which even a Northern man may be awakened to. I know there is a theory that we are all cold in the North, but I assure you it is not true. I remember while once in Nashville, of making inquiries regarding a great many families there, and I found that immediately after the war there were a great many Northern officers who exercised admirable taste, and who found young ladies of beauty and charm, formerly on the other side, who were willing or who at least were induced whether willing or not, to become the wives of Northern men, so that it might not be the worst lot should your fate ever carry you north of the Mason and Dixon line, for we know a good thing when we see it."

ing out in some workable form the recommendations of the governor and the state auditor.

There was no politics in this. If the legislature had adopted the resolution and the committee had been formed, three of its members would have been appointed by Speaker Rockne of the house, who is a Republican, and three by Lieutenant Governor Eberhart, who is also Republican. According to a custom based on old-time courtesy, the Democrats would have had representation on the committee, but there would probably have been but two Democrats as against four Republicans.

Such a committee would have devised a bill without a thought of politics, working singlemindedly for the best good of the state of Minnesota. The opposition to the resolution from a fear that Governor Johnson would gain additional prestige from the creation of such a bureau as he proposed. The same opposition will be exerted against the bill introduced by Senator Works, providing for a bureau of three members to be appointed by the governor, to take over the state's land department, including the branches relating to forestry and mines. If this measure is considered on its merits, it or something like it will go through. If it is considered on a basis strictly partisan, it will fail; for its author is a Democrat.

It is something new to find partisan politics creeping into the deliberations of the Minnesota legislature, but having crept in, it is not surprising to find it working to the prejudice of the state's interests

The question before the legislature is not whether this party or that party shall have credit or lose credit; neither is it whether this man or that man shall have the privilege of appointing men to fill a certain office or offices It is simply a question of whether the state shall take steps adequately to conserve its remaining natural wealth, or whether it will go on, as it has gone on in the past, letting its resources go to waste for lack of proper facilities to care for them.

It really makes no essential difference whether the bill providing for this needed care of the state's natural wealth comes from a Democrat or a Republican. It makes no difference whether the places are filled by appointment or by election. If the Republican objection to giving Governor Johnson a new place to fill is insurmountable, it is a simple matter to prepare a bill providing for a single commissioner to have charge of this work, and making the office elective instead of appointive.

There is no more politics connected with Governor Johnson's attempt to bring about greater care of the state's resources than there is in any other recommendation in his message. It was his duty to place before the legislature such suggestions as occurred to him looking to the welfare of the state and its people. He made some suggestions, including this one about a state bureau of natural resources. The first attempt to carry the idea out into practice is met by Republican opposition. If it persists, but conclusion can be drawn; that opposition is more concerned with undermining the popularity of Governor Johnson than it is with the welfare of Minnesota. But that is a characteristic of partisan politics carried out to its logical ends.

The house railroad committee had a merry time of it yesterday afternoon hearing various interests criticise the present anti-pass law. Why—pertinently, at least—asked for the repeal of the law and the restoration of the good old days of special privileges in the transportation of persons and messages for certain classes. But it was made quite clear that the anti-pass law covered certain things that were not contemplated by the legislature, and that there is need that it be amended.

For instance, there are railroad officers and attorneys in this state who are giving a part of their time to public service without pay. They are members of school boards, members of honorary state boards of various kinds, or notaries public. Under the anti-pass law they cannot ride free over their own roads because they hold these public offices. They have to choose between giving up their passes, to which they are fully entitled as railroad employes, and giving up their public positions. There are men of talent and experience and capacity in the railroad business, men who are good citizens and who take a vital interest in public affairs. These men cannot accept unpaid public positions, under the law as it stands, without obligating themselves to pay railroad fares whenever they travel, even on their own lines.

What the anti-pass law was designed to attack, of course, was the acceptance of passes by public officials who are in a position where, if the generosity of the railroads affected their judgment, they would have a chance to give favors in return at the expense of the public. It was intended that railroads should be kept out of politics so far as possible, and therefore they were to be forbidden to give passes to delegates to conventions, to political workers, and to candidates for and incumbents of public offices like members of the legislature, judges, governors, sheriffs, etc.

But the railroad attorney serving on a school board is not likely to betray the public interests for the sake of a free pass; he gets his pass anyway. The railroad surgeon, who becomes a member of a state board in charge of some educational or charitable institution, where he serves without pay because he is esteemed by the appointive power as a good citizen, is very unlikely to betray the state's interests to the railroad for the sake of a free pass; he gets his pass anyway, too. A notary public is not in a position to betray the people's interests to a railroad, either; yet if a railroad attorney happens to be a notary public, he can't ride free on his own railroad.

Neither are there great potentialities of corruption if the law permits a policeman in uniform to ride free on a street car, or a fireman, or a health officer, or a member of a salvage corps or a United States mail carrier. Yet the law bars all these, and even if the street railway wishes to let a policeman make a quick jump from one part of his beat to another to stop a riot, it can't do it under the law.

All these and other reasons were heard by the railroad committee yesterday afternoon, and there is little doubt that some changes will be made in the law. What the anti-pass bill was aimed at is perfectly clear. That it has gone too far, so far that in some instances it works injuriously to the public interests, is also perfectly clear. The legislature not being nearly so unreasonable as some people fancy, there seems to be no reason why there should be any trouble about agreeing upon the proper change. It will not let down the bars to paid public officers. For instance, a St. Paul alderman told the committee in all seriousness that aldermen ought to have street railway passes. He might as well have saved his breath. The anti-pass law has come to stay, for some time at least, and the loopholes in it are not going to be wide. There is no need, however, of the state's becoming so virtuous and upright that it leans backward, and that is what it is doing with the present anti-pass law.

The committee will decide later upon what action to take.

The house elections committee will have no trouble about election contests this year. When it met yesterday afternoon to take up the contests against Representative Lobeck, Prohibitionist, and Representative Carley, Democrat, it was notified that the contests had been dropped, it being clear that both these members have a clear, though small, majority.

P. H. McGarry of Walker, whom many St. Louis county folks will remember as a long-time resident of the Mesaba range, has taken to the legislative game like a duck to water, and his campaign for a new normal school at Cass Lake is to be admired. Yesterday he was showing about the house two great, handsome photographs of Star Island, the beautiful park in Cass lake, as pictures of the "site of the new Cass Lake normal school."

The house committee on normal schools will hear tomorrow evening those who are come to present the needs of a new school in Northern Minnesota. The question of location is properly to be left until a later time for a decision.

Attorney General Simpson has decided that no change will be needed to make the bill asserting the state's claim to the minerals underlying meandered lakes and rivers constitutional, but the committee is now considering two other points. One was raised by Representative Austin of Chisholm, who wants the bill to make it perfectly clear that if the state gains title to these lakebed mines and issues leases upon them, no drainage of lakes shall be permitted that will work damage to riparian owners. He has in mind Longyear lake, which is supposed to cover a good deal of iron ore. If it were drained the village of Chisholm would be bereft of its water supply, and it would also lose the $100,000 filtration plant it has put in. This will no doubt be cared for by the committee.

Another matter about which the members of the committee asked the attorney general and the state auditor was whether applications made to the state upon lakebed deposits still hold good. Some were made before the law was passed two years ago repealing the mineral lease law, and the applicants have tried to keep them alive. The attorney general and state auditor were asked to look into this, and see if these leases could be issued if the state asserted its claim to the lakebed minerals.

The legislature yesterday afternoon, in informal session presided over by Representative A. K. Ware of Northfield, heard an interesting talk by Dr. Milo Roy Maltbie, a member of the public service commission of Greater New York, on the regulation of public utilities. The address was heard with especial interest, because it is altogether probable that before the session is over Minnesota will enact a public utilities law in some form or other.

Dr. Maltbie showed that public regulation of public service corporations is needed because there is, as a rule, no effective competition in these enterprises. If a man thinks his grocer or butcher or shoemaker isn't doing quite the right thing, he can change to some other grocer or butcher or shoemaker. But he can't do that with the street railway line, the gas company or the electric light company. He either has to grin and bear it, or stir up his legislature to provide public regulation that will insure good service and fair charges. That is what Governor Hughes did in New York, and the result there was the two public service commissions, one for Greater New York and one for the rest of the state. They seek to regulate prices, methods and service in the interests of the public, without dealing unjustly with the stockholders of the public service corporation.

The house tax committee met yesterday afternoon and authorized the chairman to send copies of all pending tax bills to the tax commission for its consideration. It was also decided to invite the tax commission to furnish such suggestions and information as it could to help the committee perform its work properly and effectively.

As to the idea of dividing the committee into special sub-committees for various purposes, it was decided that it would be just as well to let the committee be appointed by the chairman whenever the need of them appeared.

When consideration of the Bjorge tonnage tax bill is reached there will be public hearings, at which all sides of the question will have an opportunity to be heard.

PROHIBITION BILL MEETS WITH VETO

Tennessee Governor Rejects Measure—Anti-Liquor Act Passes.

Nashville, Jan. 20.—Governor Patterson yesterday afternoon filed a veto of the state-wide prohibition bill which last week was passed. The governor's action followed adjournment of the senate, after it had passed on third reading the bill prohibiting the manufacture in Tennessee of intoxicating liquors. Consequently the veto was read to the senate this morning.

The bill prohibiting the manufacture of liquor was amended so as to become effective Jan. 1, 1910. With the two laws on the statute books, property worth millions will be made practically worthless; vast revenues to the state and to certain counties and cities will be cut off. Nashville, Memphis and Chattanooga are the only cities that would be affected by the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor, as local option laws are already in effect practically throughout the state.

In his veto message Governor Patterson charges that such legislation is against the Democratic platform and the doctrine of self-government; that it sets aside the recorded will of the people; that experience has taught that no arbitrary prohibition law was ever obeyed, and that its enactment brings no settlement of the question; that it destroys property, reduces state revenues, increases taxation, takes money from the people to send it elsewhere, foments discord, impairs the dignity of the commonwealth, fosters hypocrisy and invites evasion and deceit in the people.

Fifty Cents a Month

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort. Babies that are given

BROADEN WORK OF FREE BUREAU

Supt. Levy Wants to Do Work of "Brain Brokers."

Minnesota's system of state free employment bureaus has attracted country-wide attention and has even been considered by New York as a model to follow, in establishing free labor agencies of its own.

Lewis Levy, superintendent of the Minneseta state free employment bureaus, who is in the city to inspect the local bureau, states that Secretary Edward T. Devine of the New York Charities and Corrections came to Minneapolis this winter especially to study the methods employed by this state in conducting its free agencies, with the idea of putting the same methods into effect in New York city. That city had a system of bureaus several years ago, but according to Mr. Levy, it did not prove satisfactory and the bureaus gradually passed out of existence, except free agencies for women.

Mr. Levy said that Mr. Devine complimented Minnesota very highly upon the work of its labor bureaus and the way they are conducted. Mr. Devine also visited the Associated Charities of the Twin Cities and the labor commissioner in St. Paul in regard to free employment agency work.

"Boston has probably the most efficient labor bureaus in the country," said Mr. Levy, "but why shouldn't they be? They have an annual appropriation of $25,000 and they are situated in one of the greatest industrial centers of the country. We get but $10,000 in Minnesota to work with, and from this we have to pay seven salaries, and the rent, heat, and lighting for the Duluth office. We first started with an appropriation of $1,700. Then we had only one office. Today we have three, of which the Duluth office is the newest, and already the Duluth branch is doing a larger business than that at St. Paul.

"We hope to broaden the work of our offices soon, and are even now working towards that end," remarked Mr. Levy. "What we hope to do is to handle positions of a higher standard than manual labor, such as bookkeeping, positions for school teachers, stenographers, and all work demanding good salaries. What we want to do is to crowd out these brain merchants who charge as high as $5 to give a man or woman a place where he or she can earn a salary by brain work. I have put the proposition up to Commissioner W. E. McEwen and he approves of it. James Walsh has placed some young men in this city where they are today earning good salaries, and in the Twin Cities we are doing the same thing right along, but what we want to do is to make it a regular thing."

Mr. Levy said that when the new courthouse is finished that he hopes to be able to get an office for the free agency in the building. The bureau is a public institution and he can see no reason why it should not have public offices. In Minneapolis the office is in the city hall and courthouse building, and in St. Paul it is in the old capitol building.

SHOULD WOMEN VOTE?

A Woman's Reasons in Favor of Granting Them the Franchise.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The question has often come before the public, will home—women's kingdom—suffer in her eager effort to save her country? This leads us to another question. Is it love of home or love of country that leads the average women to desire the right of franchise? Is it not rather love for both and a desire to serve both, and are not the two interests closely entertained? There are comparatively few men who serve in public offices, and many of these public official duties are not as arduous or restrictive as are the duties of many vocations in which women serve in order to earn their daily bread. The woman who can go to the polls and cast her ballot against the saloon, finds is a far simpler and more pleasant task and one requiring much less time than the arduous task of ministering in her own home or in some other home or in some slum abode, called a home, even for a day, to some degenerate victim of the saloon.

It is safe to say that the number of people who believe that women should have not only the right to earn their own living but also should be granted equal political and civic right with men is fast increasing. The report issued by the census bureau emphasizes the fact that there are about 5,000,000 women wage earners in the United States. Out of the 312 I will name five of the largest classification. About one-fourth of the entire number are the household helpers erroneously called servants. If they were always named and rightly classed and treated there would not be so much trouble as there is in securing competent and desirable household helpers. The next largest number employed are the dressmakers. Then comes the teachers, the laundresses and farmers. The majority of these women wage earners are equally competent with the men. Many are owners of property and business that requires the greatest business capacity to carry through, and so it seems no more than fair that the women who desire the ballot should be granted it.

There is a notable array of men and women who believe in women's suffrage because they think it is right, and that it would have a purifying influence upon society. If church membership is a symbol of righteousness and goodness it would be helpful to civic life to give that section of the church which comprises two-thirds of its membership an opportunity to express itself on all points of great general interest. If criminal statistics have any significance, it would be well to give that sex, which constitutes less than one-twentieth of the prisoners, an opportunity to vote on questions relating to governmental affairs. From this viewpoint women's ballots should be welcomed by all who desire to have purer manners and better laws, and it should be feared by none except by evil doers.

I know there are many good women who do not desire the ballot, who do not wish to have it thrust upon them, but they can use it or not, and many men do not trouble to use it. Is it not more unjust to deprive of the ballot those women who do want it, than to give it to women who do not want it, but who can refrain from using it if they so desire? But I am sure that, when the women desire the ballot in earnest, the men will give it to them. In Finland the men honor the women so highly that not only have the women the ballot, but also elect them members of parliament, of which at the present time there are twenty-four, who were elected without a struggle, the men not raising the slightest objection. The scheme has worked out splendidly. It has been found that the women confine their remarks, as well as their real interest, to domestic questions affecting household, hygiene, harmony and economy. I believe that the same tendency will be realized here, for the direction of self-interest can no more be changed than the spots on the leopard. SUFFRAGE.

Have You Any Money to Throw At the Birds?

Are you willing to pay $50, later, for Furniture and Housefurnishings that you can buy now for $25 to $40? Are you willing to expend $100 by and by for the identical goods that you can buy now at from $50 to $75?

If you have laid away, or expect to appropriate $500 with which to buy Furniture and Housefurnishings in the spring, or at some time during the next twelve months, are you willing to let slip by this golden opportunity—this one chance of the entire year—to get $700 to $1,000 worth of goods for your $500?

If you are thus willing to dally with opportunity until she is beyond your grasp, then you might just as well "throw your money at the birds."

But, if you appreciate a "Good Thing" when it's offered to you, if you would take gold dollars that are thrust into your face—if you believe in the old maxim, "a dollar saved is a dollar earned"—if you would answer the opening interrogation to this ad. with an emphatic—

NO---Then Buy Furniture NOW

This is the third week of the "Big Sale"—next week will be the fourth and last week of the GREATEST JANUARY CLEARANCE AND HALF PRICE SALE in Furniture and Housefurnishings that Duluth has ever seen.

Only NINE more shopping days in which to take advantage of the exceptional opportunity now offered you—will you grasp it? Or, would you rather throw your money at the birds?

While hundreds have already availed themselves of the oportunity of supplying their needs in Furniture, Stoves and Housefurnishings for the next year or more to come, at money-saving prices, there are hundreds of good bargains left.

It takes more than a few weeks heavy buying to deplete our mammoth stock—besides we have new goods arriving all the time, and remember PRACTICALLY EVERYTHING IN THE HOUSE IS SUBJECT TO SOME DISCOUNT at this time.

Are You Skeptical?

We don't wonder that those who have not investigated, are skeptical as to the genuiness of our unprecedented reductions—they look too good to be true.

Then, too, so many people have gotten into the habit now-a-days of making a "Big Holler" about little or nothing, that it is really a difficult matter for the public to discriminate between the "Holler," that rings true and the ones that do not.

But isn't the proposition worth investigating? Isn't a saving of from 10 to 50 cents on the dollar on things that you will have to have within the next few months worth looking into?

Our cut price sales are of the "Show Me" kind—they will stand investigation—come in and let us "SHOW YOU"—if you then are not satisfied that the cut prices are bona-fide and genuine, we will not ask you to buy.

Drop in anyway—we'll appreciate the call.

This Is How We Do It

We have already explained our unique position in regard to this January Clearance and Half-Price Sale.

We looked forward to this sale months ago when the money stringency in the East was in the acute stage—when some of the largest and most reputable manufacturers were forced to let go of their holdings at fearful sacrifices in order to realize upon them.

We had the money at the time when "Money Talked" loudest.

We had faith that conditions would right themselves before the time for this "Big Sale" rolled around—we figured that the people of Duluth would be in a position to appreciate the splendid values that we were securing for them.

And, the way our goods have been moving out since this sale has been on, proves that we figured pretty nearly right.

Note the Extraordinary Price Reductions

It is only possible in any of our ads. to quote a few representative prices; and it is very possible that the articles of which you are in need aren't quoted at all.

But this fact doesn't imply that we haven't got just what you want, nor that it isn't selling at discount prices. On the contrary there are very few things in housefurnishings that we do not carry, and practically EVERYTHING on all of our six floors IS NOW SELLING AT DISCOUNT PRICES. Come in and let us "Show You."

STATE WIDE ACTION.

"The esteemed legislature will do well to shy at the proposition to appropriate $100,000 for advertising the state. Of what value, for instance, is it to the southern two-thirds of the state to expend $100,000, or any other sum, in advertising the north third? The railroads would be the main beneficiaries seconded by the land companies and the jobbing and manufacturing houses of the Twin Cities. The Northwest, including Northern Minnesota, has been exploited by the railroads and land speculators to the detriment of the rural sections of Minnesota and states to the south and east of us. Alluring descriptions—mostly bogus—have drawn thrifty young life and energy from the older sections until there has been an actual decrease in population in old agricultural sections. The truth is the entire Northwest has been over developed in the interest of railroad speculation and watered stock, at the expense of the older agricultural areas. If the railroads, the land companies and the Twin City jobbers and manufacturers wish Northern Minnesota exploited let them capitalize the scheme and do the job right. They have no right to ask the state to finance the project."

The above from the Cannon Falls Beacon, one of the fairest and most thoughtful of the Southern Minnesota journals, is commended to the careful consideration of the press of the northern part of the state. It shows, most clearly, to what extent sectionalism has its grip upon Minnesota.

The resources of Minnesota, which should be a matter of state-wide pride are instead a source of sectional jealousy, and policies of state, which should make for the state's betterment, have come to be a thing for unseemly squabbling between northern and southern sections, with the result that Minnesota is not getting ahead as fast as it ought.

When such papers as the Cannon Falls Beacon will talk as the Beacon talks in the paragraph quoted above, it is time to realize that something is wrong, to enquire what it is and to seek for a remedy. Natural conditions are partly to blame for the sectionalism that exists in Minnesota. It is a state of varied resources. The iron mining country of the ranges is utterly different from the wheat fields of the Red river valley while the great timber belts of the central section have little that is common to either and life in the extreme southern part of the state goes on under conditions still more radically different. Southern Minnesota is strictly an agricultural section and as such has been developed these many years. Northern Minnesota, on the contrary, is an agricultural, mineral and manufacturing region, and even its agricultural conditions are utterly different from those which prevail in the southern third of the state. But we of the north have been much to blame in that we have been too abusive of the south for not immediately consenting to all our demands. We have failed to take into consideration that Southern Minnesota cannot understand at once the needs of a country so different from itself. We have berated Southern Minnesota for this lack of understanding. It is our own fault. Instead of demanding, and insisting that our demands should be complied with forthwith, we should have instituted a campaign of education. There was bitter opposition to the policy of drainage in Southern Minnesota at first, but when that section of the state was made to see that drainage was a state wide measure, that the state would reap immense profits in money from drainage, opposition to the policy practically ceased.

It is up to the press of Northern Minnesota to study the needs of the northern two-thirds of the state from the standpoint of the southern one-third and to begin a campaign of reason and education. The people of Southern Minnesota are a reasonable people. They can be made to see things provided we do not try to cram them down their throats.

What the Cannon Falls Beacon says, as quoted above, shows how widespread is the misinformation and the lack of information concerning the resources of the state. The newspapers of the section of the state most vitally interested in state development should begin at once an earnest campaign of education. There is no other single thing which will make so powerfully for the development of the state as that.

THE UNDERPAID MINISTRY.

There has been some agitation throughout the county for the repeal of various state laws which forbid the issuance of passes so far as the law applies to ministers of the gospel. The reasons advanced for this action are that ministers of the gospel are engaged in labors of charity from which all mankind benefit and that they are grossly underpaid for that service.

It is safe to predict that such exceptions will not be made. Such exceptions are based upon a reasoning that is fundamentally false from an economic standpoint. No matter what may be the character of the service rendered by the clergy to mankind, the compelling of one class of people to pay for that service cannot be justified. It is no more right for the state to take the property of the railroads to pay the preacher than for it to take the property of the washwoman for that purpose. And even if the railroads are not compelled, but only permitted to grant passes to the clergy, it is morally wrong for public opinion to press for the concession, and it is a great error for the ministry to accept, as a class, such charity.

Every man is worthy of his hire, the preacher along with the rest of us. No man, and no class of men, ought to be degraded by being singled out as a special object of charity. Are we not right in getting away, as we are getting away, from the day in which the minister's pay was eked out by means of the donation social? It used to be that the preacher took it for granted that his calling made him the object of charity on the part of every one else, and he accepted as his due gifts of money, clothing and food which any other self-respecting man would have felt disgraced to have offered him. The minister's railroad pass is one of the survivals of that day and is just as objectionable as a method of payment as an order on the baker for a pie every other day, or a due bill on the tailor for a pair of trousers every quarter.

It is perfectly true, everybody knows it, that the ministry is wretchedly underpaid. The thing is a disgrace to the Christian church, but the preacher, being the leader of the flock, is more to blame for it than any one else. So long as he was content to accept, his people were willing to give. If he gave no evidence of being insulted by charity, his people, more concerned about their own personal affairs than about the preacher's, could hardly be expected to think that they were insulting him. The world does not often have more respect for a man than he has for himself, and there was a time when the ministry had very little respect for itself in this matter.

It will be a great many years before the ministry is adequately compensated; probably that time will never come in this world. But the more we get rid of gratuities, the more closely will we approach it. The preacher ought to be paid his wages instead of being compelled to beg for them, but so long as he does beg for them, he will not be paid them.

A STARTLING THEORY.

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any state, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

This is the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, an amendment which has absolutely failed of its purpose, but which has been productive of untold misery, oppression and uprighteousness and which has endangered for forty years, and still endangers, our free institutions.

An "era of good feeling" is apparently begun in the South. Much is being said and done to allay the bitterness of feeling that has existed in the past. The South is disposed to receive the advances of the North more graciously; the North is disposed to grant the South the same freedom of thought and action it reserves for itself. The time grows riper for the obliteration of sectional lines. If the North can now acknowledge the injustice and iniquity of its attempt to weld into one two antipodal races of men; if the North will now take such action as will forever make it impossible for it again to attempt to make the negro race the equal of the Aryan race; if the North will do this, the great problem of the South will be far toward solution, and sectionalism will confine itself to the rivalry of who best can serve the state.

The way for the North best to do this is to get rid of the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution. The amendment is not anywhere observed. The South refuses to accept the spirit of it. The North now admits that its enforcement is a racial impossibility. Yet so averse is every one to tampering with the Constitution that it can probably never be repealed; rather, the people are content to let it remain a dead letter. Could it be forever wiped out, however, it would make all the difference in the world in the feeling of the Southern people toward the North.

M. F. Morris, formerly an associate justice of the court of appeals in the District of Columbia, writing in the North American Review, points out a way in which the fifteenth amendment can be blotted out of the Constitution so completely that it can never by any possibility again be made a portion of that document. His proposal is new and startling. It is nothing less than the vigorous assertion that the fifteenth amendment is not now, and never has been, and never can be a part of the Constitution. The learned judge points out that the Constitution may be amended, but that it cannot be added to, and he declares, and offers much weighty evidence in proof, that the fifteenth amendment is not an amendment at all but an addition to the Constitution. Now no addition can be made to the Constitution except by the consent of every state. Such consent was never obtained for the "fifteenth amendment." Five of the states of the Union—Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee and Oregon—rejected the fifteenth amendment when it was proposed, and have never accepted it. If the amendment is new matter, that is, an addition, instead of an amendment, it is not a part of the Constitution.

This question has never been passed upon by the supreme court. The state of Oregon, the most northern of the states which rejected the amendment, might bring legal proceedings which would raise the question of the validity of the amendment. If the views of Judge Morris are correct, a service of inestimable benefit would thereby be rendered to the nation.

A RIGHTEOUS ELECTION.

The election yesterday in Oregon of Governor George Chamberlain to the United States senate is of peculiar interest to all lovers of good government.

The new senator from Oregon is a Democrat while the legislature which elected him is Republican. For the first time in the history of the nation a state legislature controlled by one party has, without a party bolt, chosen a United States senator from the opposite party. This is owing to the Oregon primary law, which provides for the nomination of party candidates for the United States senate at a primary election and then for a second primary election at which the people of the state instruct the members of the legislature which party candidate they want elected. At the election last November the people of Oregon chose a legislature which is Republican, but at the same time preferred the Democratic candidate for senator, Governor Chamberlain, to his Republican opponent.

Every possible party pressure was brought upon the Republican members of the legislature to be false to their oath and to elect a Republican instead of Governor Chamberlain. It was urged that the Oregon law of popular choice thwarts the purpose of the Constitution and that it was therefor the duty of the members of the legislaure to exercise their own individual judgment. These arguments, together with pressure from high sources, failed and the members of the legislature remained true to their pledges.

The election of Governor Chamberlain will be especially pleasing to the progressives of the country. He is a man of ability with progressive views that especially fit him for public service at this time when progressives are so urgently needed.

The task of reading partizanship into every bit of statesmanship does not seem to be conducive to good nature.

The digging of the Panama canal should be taken out of the hands of the executive branch of the government and given to the house of representatives, which has the president completely outclassed in the matter of making the dirt fly.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The city charter of Virginia will probably be greatly amended, or there will be a new city charter, the change to take place at the coming city election of Virginia," said C. E. Clark of Virginia at the St. Louis last night.

"The present city charter is entirely inadequate to provide for many things that are necessary for the municipal improvement of Virginia. I know of no other city upon the range that is going ahead more rapidly than Virginia, and the business men up there feel that the present city charter is an instrument that covered the needs of the city when it was a small town, but is entirely too primitive to cover the needs of the present thriving little city.

"In the past the citizens of all the range towns, according to my observation, have paid vastly more attention to business than they have to the needs of the towns. But most of the range towns are growing so rapidly at the present time, that it is really up to the business men to begin to see how they can improve the towns of the range.

"This work would be in line with the endeavor to get settlers for the northern part of the state. At the present time the towns are growing faster than the country districts. It is up to the citizens of these range towns to improve their municipal governments and to improve their physical appearance. The people upon the range are the most public-spirited citizens that I have ever seen. It is simply that business has engaged all of their attention. I think that Virginia is going to act as a leader in a movement that will gradually result in the beautifying and the improving of the conditions of all of the range towns. It is only natural that this condition should come about."

N. P. Mowatt of Houghton, prominent, and unlike the prophet, not without honor in his own country, and Nels Flodin, of the Marquette Iron works, were seated in the Spalding cafe Mandoy evening, togeher with two business men very well known in Duluth.

Various subjects had been discussed—the president's last message, Signor Ferrirlo's opinion of this country, the Yama, Yama dances, etc. Finally it was decided to cap the evening with a cocktail and then retire.

The four gentlemen ordered cocktails. After a short time the waiter informed them that it was after hours and that it would be impossible to fill their order. The gentlemen sent for Edwin H. Lee, who informed them he would do what he could for them.

Presently the waiter returned with four drinks. The gentlemen, with solemn mien that marks the breaking up of a jovial and entertaining crowd, drank the cocktails, though, to tell the truth, they did taste peculiar.

Later the four gentlemen discovered that the "cocktail" was made of hunyaddi water.

J. A. Edmondson, a prominent insurance man, who is at the Spalding hotel, pays a glowing compliment to the efficiency of the Minnesota state insurance department and to the zeal of Governor Johnson, in his efforts to bring the insurance laws of the state up to that standard that will thoroughly protect the policyholders of the various insurance companies. The insurance statutes will not permit any company to do business in Minnesota that does not conform to the requirements of the stringent Minnesota laws.

"Minnesota has some of the best insurance laws of any of the states," said Mr. Edmondson yesterday. "It is impossible for any company to do business in Minnesota at the present time that is not thoroughly honest in its methods. The laws of the state thoroughly protect the policyholders of all the companies doing business in the state.

"The insurance department is conducted upon a high plane of efficiency, and, as I say, there are some very excellent insurance laws upon the statute books of this state. There is no state that has more stringent laws than Minnesota.

"At the present time the various states have laws upon the subject of insurance that have placed business upon the best basis that it has ever been on in this country. The insurance laws of the various states, like the laws of Minnesota, by their exactions, compel the companies to conduct business upon an honest and efficient plane. Minnesota has been one of the leaders in this movement for better insurance laws."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dalrymple of Ottawa Can., were at the Spalding yesterday upon their way to Cuba. Mr. Dalrymple stated that at the present time there was nothing of great moment before the Canadian people, though the question of reciprocity with the United States is beginning to engross the attention of some of the members of parliament.

"The initiative must come from this side of the boundary," said Mr. Dalrymple. "You remember that Canada once took the initiative in proposing reciprocity, and that the United States was inclined to look with disfavor upon the proposition. In things like that Canada is like a bashful maiden. I don't think that there will be any reversion to reciprocity unless the American statesmen should think that it will be a good thing for the interests of this country. Personally, I am of the opinion that some agreement could be reached."

THE WEATHER.

The January thaw continued this morning. Yesterday the weather was almost springlike, and those who were not familiar with Duluth winters might have been tempted to believe that spring was really coming.

The weatherman predicts fair and mild weather for tonight, with slightly lower temperatures Thursday. The lowest temperature recorded in Duluth yesterday was 22 degs. above zero.

A year ago today the weather was warm and springlike.

The sun rose this morning at 7:46, and will set this afternoon at 4:53, making nine hours and seven minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"An area of high pressure is approaching this morning over California. The Northwestern disturbance has advanced its center to Saskatchewan, while the lake region low pressure area has disappeared over the North Atlantic coast. The movement of these two areas of low pressure is attended by warmer weather in their respective districts, that in New England states being much warmer. The Eastern high pressure has decreased somewhat in intensity since Tuesday, and is now central over the Upper Ohio valley and southeastern states. The temperatures over the entire country have remained nearly stationery since Tuesday morning, except over the extreme Northwestern and Northeastern districts. During the past twenty-four hours rain has fallen over the entire district west of the Rocky mountains, and rain or snow over the New England states and the Northwest."

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Chicago News: Pearl—Dora Sugarleigh looks so sad of late.

Ruby—Yes, the poor girl has lost an arm!

"What! Lost an arm?"

"Yes. Tom has stopped calling."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "What are you going to give up for the New Year?"

"Not much. I gave up about all I had for Christmas."

New York Sun: Stella—When will she come out in society?

Bella—As soon as her parents break in.

Life: Wiggles—I hear Bjenks has been very ill. Is he out of danger yet?

Waggles—Well, he's convalescent, but he won't be out of danger until that pretty nurse who has been taking care of him has gone away.

Cleveland Leader: The Man—Well, it's just this way. If I buy you a new winter coat I'll have to wear my old one another season.

The Wife—You, sweet, generous thing, you.

Kansas City Journal: Bilkins—You don't mean to say that the farmer showed the chauffeur how to make the automobile go?

Wilkins—Sure thing! He hooked a mule to it and hauled it to town.

Puck: "Won't you take my seat?" said the man in the street car as he lifted his hat to the pretty girl.

"No, thank you," she replied, "I've been skating all the afternoon and I'm tired of sitting down."

Louisville Courier-Journal: His Sarcasm—"The audience is throwing vegetables," complained the star of the "Siberia" company.

"Nothing but vegetables?" retorted the caustic manager. "Go out in front and tell them that the dogs have also got to eat."

Judge: New Year's Day (on way through deep snow to the station)—First Commuter—Made your New Year's resolution, Brown?

Second Commuter—Naw; what's the use? Made it three years in succession and I'm livin' here yet.

Puck: "Plunkville has sixty-eight houses now, I hear."

"Yes, sir. The Plunkville Plain Dealer justifiably alludes to Plunkville as the Chicago of Piffle county, sir."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Ah," complained the visiting nobleman, "but you have no privileged classes in this country."

"We haven't, eh?" replied the prominent citizen. "You ought to be out some night when a gang of college boys are on a tear."

Chicago Daily News: Hubby was evidently worried and wifey was trying to cheer him up. "Cheer up, John, and don't worry," she said. "It doesn't do any good to borrow trouble."

"Borrow trouble," echoed her husband. "Great Caesar's ghost! I ain't borrowing trouble; I've got it to lend."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

LeSueur News: Governor Johnson said some pleasant things of Northern Minnesota in his message, and it was all true and deserved. Any praise he gives to any part of Minnesota is earned praise.

Anoka Free Press: The primary law is receiving its customary attention, some wanting it repealed; others, amended; others again, left alone. When all has been said the fact remans that it is a farce and a humbug, not to say an outrage upon an intelligent public, calculated to distranchise the minority party by depriving it of a voice in the selection of candidates whenever said minority party is too weak to make it worth while to name a ticket of its own.

Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal: In his message to the legislature, Governor Johnson mentioned Two Harbors twice. And still we are not unduly puffed up. It's nice to be recognized just the same.

Foley Independent: The most violent opponent of Governor Johnson must admit that his third message to the legislature was chock full of good suggestions, and if that body will but follow out the program which he suggested, they will have a good winter's work ahead of them and will go down in history as the "best ever."

Ortonville Herald-Star: The Fairmont Sentinel wants to know if the state has had a governor of late years who could "do such things." It has, and more. Didn't Governor Van Sant go down to Chicago and poke a real live prince in the ribs?

Hutchinson Leader: Men of all parties are surprised at Governor Johnson's message. No such paper was ever read to a legislature of the state of Minnesota. The governor's wide grasp of the questions confronting the lawmaking body, his perfect familiarity with every detail of the state's business and the needs of every section show that he knows the state better than nay other man in it. It is the longest message, 30,000 words, that ever came from a Minnesota governor, but it's good reading every word of it.

Eveleth News: An amendment to the mine inspector law is needed in order to place the results of this official's activities in the hands of the miners and laborers. The annual report of the inspector is printed biennially in the report of the state labor commissioner, and no other publication is provided for by law. It should be in pamphlet form and struck off by the thousands.

Waverly Star: Governor Johnson's message was an able one. It expressed the ideas of a great man in a style unsurpassed. We believe the legislature will work in harmony with the executive to bring about good laws and needed reforms.

New Ulm Review: Governor Johnson's suggestion for a change in the present method of assessing the taxable property of the state will surely meet with the approval of everyone who is not endeavoring to dodge his fair share of taxes.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The part of Christmas that a man enjoys is when it's all over.

The Lord made man only strong enough to carry woman as his shield.

No girl ever goes to Europe without expecting a romance with a prince.

What makes a woman so happy over Christmas is it isn't another birthday.

The surer men are that woman is only a toy the surer she is to play with them.

Teddy Bear and Billy 'Possum.

Baltimore Sun: There is a well-defined rumor which comes from Georgia that "Billy 'Possum" will shortly rout "Teddy Bears" from the nurseries of the land. The faunal naturalist who now occupies the White House has been loaded for bear continually. He has sought bruin in the Rocky mountains among the crags and peaks. He has sought him in the canebrakes and swamps of Louisiana until Br'er Bear has become the best known and most highly esteemed of animals. And now his popularity is threatened. Br'er 'Possum is poking his nose into the limelight.

Mr. Taft told a committee from Atlanta who came to invite him to dinner that he would accept, and that he wanted 'possum on the bill of fare. Instantly Georgia was alive with 'possums. The dinner will come to pass in a few days, and every mighty hunter in the Cracker State has his offering.

The fact has been established that the 'possum is a royal favorite. The explanation of Uncle Remus why the 'possum grins is well remembered. Br'er 'Possum encountered Mr. Dog at an inopportune moment and to prevent Mr. Dog from putting him to death he pretended that he was already dead. He played 'possum in short. But Mr. Dog, knowing the guile of Br'er 'Possum, stuck his inquisitive nose into Br'er 'Possum's ribs and tickled him so that he almost lost the use of his limbs from laughter. The 'possum has been grinning ever since, until now he has an additional cause for hilarity, namely, his selection as the royal favorite. This substitution of Billy 'Possum for Teddy Bear suggests the old French salutation. "The king is dead, long live the king!"

It Pays to Advertise.

When the dimpled baby's hungry, what does the baby do?
It doesn't lie serenely and merely sweetly coo;
The hungry baby bellows with all its little might,
Till some one gives it something to curb its appetite;
The infant with the bottle which stills
its fretful cries,
A lesson plainly teaches—it pays to advertise.
The lamb lost on the hillside when darkness closes 'round,
Stands not in silence, trembling and waiting to be found;
Its plaintive bleating echoes across the
vales and meads,
Until the shepherd hears it, and hearing, kindly heeds,
And when its fears are ended, as on his breast it lies,
The lamb has made this patent: It pays to advertise.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

AS TO LOBBYING.

Saginaw (Mich.) Evening News: Measures appearing stringent upon the face have been introduced in both the house and senate to suppress and regulate lobbying at the state capitol. Whether either is effective can only be determined by giving it a fair trial. Lobbying will be found to be a difficult practice to control, no matter how strong the legislation against it may be, though, of course, the extent to which it is controlled will depend principally upon the vigilance of the authorities and their willingness to enforce the law.

The bills introduced in the lesislature provide in substance that every person employed for compensation as counsel or agent for any person, firm, corporation or association to promote or oppose, directly or indirectly, the passage of bills, or promote or oppose executive approval, shall, each year the legislature is in session, file in the secretary of state's office a statement as to who is his employer and a description of the legislation that he is working for or against. The secretary of state is required to keep a docket of this information open for public inspection. When the employment of a lobbyist ceases the fact is to be entered upon the docket. All employers of lobbyists are required, within two months of the final adjournment of the legislature, to file with the secretary of state an itemized statement, certified under oath, of all money paid or promised, the amount and name of the payee. It is declared to be unlawful for any person employed as counsel or agent to attempt to influence legislation except by appearing before regular committees, by newspaper publication, public addresses, written and printed statements and arguments by briefs submitted openly to the legislators. Violations of the proposed law are to be punished by a fine of $1,000 or one year in prison, while offending corporations may be fined $1,000.

This legislation, if enacted, would seem to accomplish two things: The lobbyist must sail under his true colors or he must stop doing business. Of course, this would not stop lobbying. Men can always be found who are ready to undertake such employment, even if they have to be tagged. But it would, if enforced, exterminate the disreputable, sneaking, unscrupulous lobbyist who barters for votes and stoops to any practice to obtain results. His room would be well known to make it possible for him to secure registered employment by responsible interests. The more dignified, professional lobbyist will probably hang on, but when he is seen talking with a legislator the public will know his business as well as the lawmaker. In the last analysis it is up to self-respecting, honorable legislators to repel the advances of lobbyists and decline to be compromised by their association, but the proposed law will strengthen the weak and roughen the path of the sleek.

Partisanship in the South.

Nashville Banner: It is true that the country benefits by having two political parties so strongly opposed that neither is secure in its control of the government. It is also true that any sectional feature of national politics is baneful, and whether or not it be Mr. Taft's purpose to break the Solid South, it will be a better day for the South and for the Union, politically andotherwise, when politics here ceases to be one-sided. This is said with a full knowledge of the peculiar conditions that have made the South give unchanging allegiance to the Democratic party, and with an earnest appreciation of the motive behind it. Still, the cramped influence of such a condition is stifling to the best thought of the South, and restrains liberty of action as well as of thought. With the protection that the suffrage laws in most of the Southern States now afford against the rule of ignorance, it is well to consider if Southern voters must continue to suppress their individual opinions on questions of both local and national importance in order to conform to old regulations that have ceased to have a reason for their continued existence.

DANGER ON ALL SIDES

Five Hundred Killed by New York Cars Last Year.

Fifty-Five Thousand Casualties by Street and Railroad Cars.

New York, Jan. 20.—That death and danger lurk at every turn of street traffic on this congested island is being impressed on all New Yorkers today in the form of official accident reports for the old year, which have just been made public. With some 500 victims killed outright among the 55,000 casualties set down to street and railroad cars alone in Greater New York for one year, the careless crowd of Gotham is being confronted in a practical way with its most pressing problem of the new year. When each day brings more than one death and broken limb, each two days a fractured skull and each week a leg or arm to be amputated in the whirl about the tracks of this town, the added hazards of breakneck driving, rush hour riots and theater jams are making the list of the city's slain and maimed mount up into the hundreds each day. One man in twenty is due to fall before the highway juggernaut in the new year, the figures show, unless speedy steps are taken to succor the helpless wayfarers at the crossings.

Tax Tricks.

Though hundreds of the wealthiest men of town have just been shown to be conspicuous through their absence on the published tax rolls, crowds of beleaguered millionaires are today thronging the city offices in their annual attempt to belittle the value of the trifling tracts of real estate which they have been discovered to own. Last year over $1,000,000,000 in personal tax assessments were vigorously sworn off in one month by these thrifty citizens, and this year their anxiety for tax immunity on tangible holdings is even greater. As a moral measure of the citizenship of New York this annual tax list shrinkage is of much more value than as any real index to property possession. Though the indications today point to a dwarfed increase over last year in taxable property, observers are counting the process more of a moral than a physical valuation. The pitch to which a lean year my work up the wealthy to swear off taxes is well known in this town, where the spectacle is one of its most shameful of the year.

Lobby Loungers.

In the height of the cold wave from the west a pitiless crusade against "chair warmers" has been undertaken today by the management of one of the older hotels here. By placard, suggestion and even by force, whole detachments of the professional lobby loungers are being sent into the cold outer world for no other reason than that they cumber the places intended for the paying guess of the establishment. While this movement is being viewed with alarm by the army of genteel indigents, whose principal daily function is to protect lobby settees from the cold, the general travelling and paying public is palling it with joy.

Bull's Bravery.

That a wrangle of doctors should have obscured the splendid spectacle of Dr. Bull's fight for life even for a day is being sadly regretted among the family and friends of the heroic surgeon today. Now that the red tape of professional etiquette has been adjusted, however, the public continues to watch with unflagging interest the most remarkable exhibition of personal and professional pluck. Months ago the newspapers set a "death watch" over the distinguished patient whom the very science he excelled in had given up. Each night reporters have waited hour after hour for the last news from the sick room, and the Bull "obit," ready set, has stood at hand to be slid into the presses at a second's notice. Each day New Yorkers have scanned their papers for the unwelcome news, and each day a few lines of type have recorded only a daily bulletin of unchanged condition. After such a brave struggle the final news will strike the public all the harder, if it comes at all.

Taxicab Tricks.

With two ordinances introduced before the aldermen today calling for a square deal from the treacherous taxicab, the people of Gotham have at last tackled one of the worst public pests that has descended upon Manhattan Island in years. To risk life and limb in these noisy, malodorous conveyances New Yorkers have long objected to paying the face value of their erratic clock dials. Slippery asphalt utilized by equally slippery chauffeurs has been found to accomplish marvels in miles of recorded but untraveled distance. Other tricks of the taxi trade are to be searched out for the victims of their remarkable revolutions, if nine-tenths of the population can have their will upon this unpopular system of rapid transit.

SUIT MAY STOP TRIP TO AFRICA

Libel Action Likely to Keep Roosevelt at Home.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A story is afloat in the capital that President Roosevelt is on the eve of abandoning or at least postponing indefinitely his African hunting trip.

This report is apparently well founded. At different times within the last week the president remarked to two New York politicians, one of them a member of congress, that he feared he would not be able to carry out his plans to go to Africa.

The chief reason is the proceeding which has been started to punish Joseph Pulitzer of the New York World for alleged criminal libel in connection with the Panama canal scandal. Mr. Roosevelt has determined to have punishment meted out to those who started the scandal. If there is any provision of law making that possible. He is more highly wrought up over the Panama affair and Mr. Pulitzer's connection with it than any other incident of his administration. He has given his personal attention to every detail of the case since the stories were first printed in the Indianapolis News and the New York World. He feels that, out of office neither his successor or anyone else in the new administration will have the same personal interest in the affair that he himself has; that if he leaves the country at this critical time the suit may languish.

If the African trip proves incompatible with the successful prosecution of Joseph Pulitzer or anyone else who may be found to have participated in the spread of the libel, the African trip will be abandoned.

In the meanwhile the activity on the part of the administration officials in the case continues unabated. The same strict secrecy is also maintained as to what is going on and under what law the action is to be prosecuted.

DRUNKEN FARMER FREEZES.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 20.—Chris Carlson, a farmer residing four miles from New Munich, was so badly frozen a few nights ago that he may die. Both feet, both hands and both ears were badly nipped by the cold. Carlson had been to town during the day and became intoxicated. He started out for his home shortly after dark and after going a few miles fell asleep and rolled out onto the ground. Here he lay until 2 o'clock the next morning before he was discovered.

Carlson's team arrived home without the driver shortly after 10 o'clock. The family became alarmed, and one of his sons immediately set out in search of the missing father. He drove all the way to town, missing the unfortunate man. On his return, however, he found the intoxicated man along the roadside.

Carlson's case is very serious and his recovery is doubtful. His feet and ears were badly frozen. It is believed that amputation will be necessary to save his life.

SERVICE IS DISCUSSED

Few People Attend Meeting With Street Railway Officials.

More Cars on West Fourth Street Means Curtailment Elsewhere.

Hillside residents did not turn out in very large numbers to the meeting at the city hall last evening, called for a consideration of the request of people in the district that a 10-minute street car service be established on the West Fourth street line.

The matter was discussed, after which it was referred to the council committee on railroads, the members of which were present. Members of the committee will consider the different facts brought forth, and will make a report to the council at its regular meeting next Monday evening.

Aldermen Trevillion, Mueller and Sharte! were on hand. Manager Herbert Warren and Supt. D. C. Moore represented the street railway people. Among the speakers from the Fourth street neighborhood were Ernest Jefferson, who presided; Barney Forsel, Ernest Peters, Charles Hector, J. G. Rakowsky, Frank Bennett, W. L. Seaton and Tom Madden.

The West Fourth street residents who attended the meeting had expected that there would be 100 or more at the meeting, and they were much disappointed at the slim attendance.

The discussion seemed to develop the fact that each citizen present had some individual grievance about the car service in general, and there was, consequently, a great deal of desultory talk about matters that were hardly in keeping with the purpose of the meeting. Mr. Warren assured the speakers, however, that the matters of which they complain would be taken up by the company and remedied, if possible.

Mr. Hector complained about the difficulty of transferring at Third avenue west and he wanted the cars to stop on the steep grade of Third avenue west after making the turn from Superior street. Mr. Warren explained that it would be impracticable to stop the cars on the grade.

E. R. Jefferson, the chairman, complained of the overcrowding of cars, particularly the smaller cars, and of the difficulty sometimes in getting the attention of the conductor when the passenger wished to get off the car.

Another speaker complained of the eight-minute layover of the West Fourth street cars at Fifth avenue west, claiming that the layover is too long.

W. L. Seaton thought it might be unreasonable to demand a 10-minute schedule of the company and suggested that the cars, instead of laying over so long at Fifth avenue west, make an extra trip as far as Sixth avenue east, between the regular trips.

A number of those present seemed for a time to be in favor of abandoning the car service on Fourth street entirely and this trend of the discussion evidently pleased the street railway officials very much.

After all the citizens had spoken that cared to, Manager Warren, for the street railway company, explained at some length the company's position in the matter and the existing conditions.

Mr Warren stated that the West Fourth street line was built sixteen years ago and was operated for many years on a 30-minute schedule; that it then enjoyed much more patronage than at the present time, or since more frequent service has been given.

According to Mr. Warren, two attempts were made three or four years ago to maintain a 10-minute schedule on that line, the effort being kept up each time for about three months, without any material increase in patronage.

Mr. Warren said that the West Fourth street line doubles back on another line, that on Second street, which has frequent service, and that nowhere are the tracks more than two blocks apart. He argued that very few people, starting to go down town from the vicinity of Third avenue west and Fourth street, care to waste ten minutes in riding twenty blocks in a car and arrive at a point only two blocks distant from the starting point, to which they could have walked in two minutes.

It was stated by Mr. Warren that there are only about half as many people carried on the down-bound trips as on the up-bound trips, the average number of passengers on the down-bound trips being two or three, as compared with an average of four or five on the up-bound trips. The averages, he stated, were taken from the trip sheets of the conductors, covering an extended period.

Mr. Warren argued that there has been no growth in traffic on the West Fourth street line since it was built, sixteen years ago, and that a doubling of the service would simply mean twice the number of cars to carry the same limited number of passengers now using the cars. This, he claimed, would result in many of the down-bound cars running empty.

The main point of Mr. Warren's argument was that the operation of the West Fourth street line has been a great burden to the street railway company and that, necessarily, the company must make up for it by reducing expenses elsewhere, which means the curtailment of service on other lines, where the traffic is much heavier.

The annual loss to the company on its West Fourth street line was estimated by Mr. Warren at from $15,000 to $25,000. He pointed out that if the service is doubled, as demanded, the expense of operation will be doubled and the loss will be multiplied several times. The only way the company could make up the loss would be to withold service from other portions of the city where there is greater need of more frequent service. A move along that line, it was argued would probably cause much dissatisfaction and much protesting from the people who have to use the cars.

Mr. Warren stated that a few years ago the company and the city had some differences because the company objected to giving the same car service on the Woodland line beyond Hunter's Park that it gave between the downtown district and Hunter's Park, also on account of the company's objections to making some extensions that did not promise to be self sustaining. The company finally gave in to the city, although it considered the arrangement rather unfair to the other portions of the system. Mr. Warren thinks that the company has gone about far enough in the matter of concessions.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So, I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor-failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellowman to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man, anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what, I believe, is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so, cure himself at home quietly and quickly. HIGH PRAISE FOR U. S. FLEET

French Naval Experts Compare It With Their Own.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The excellent condition of the American fleet of battleships now in the Mediterranean sea, its general fitness and fine appearance, the trim costumes of the men and their good behavior, the dignified and easy bearing of the officers during the ceremonies which have been arranged in connection with their presence, all these continue to win golden opinions from French naval experts. These critics seize upon the occasion to point a moral in comparing the general excellence marking the American fleet with the disorganization prevailing within the French navy and the almost hopeless situation in which it has been placed by a number of years of careless administration.

Discussing the matter the Petit Parisien calls attention to the fact that the marvelous trip of the American vessels must have cost about $50,000,000, but that the American nation has secured with the money the respect and wholesome appreciation of its navy from all the world. Moreover, the new French minister of marine, Alfred Picard, confessed on Saturday that he needed more than three times this amount of money to put the French navy on as good footing as it was on several years ago.

Nothing could tell more eloquently than this the different feelings which the French and American people regard their navies. The Americans are prouud of their great national possession and the French are ignorant in this respect and indifferent to the meaning of this great arm of defense. This state of thinks must continue, say the serious but discouraged critics, so long as confessed Socialists like Pelletan, or civilians untrained in naval affairs, are put at the head of the marine department.

Inactive during long periods in one harbor or another of France are a score of French vessels which have suffered more from wear and tear or direct and intentional injury through native enemies than the whole of the United States fleet in the most difficult voyage ever undertaken by any navy in the world's history.

"By all means," conclude the experts, "let Picard have his 800,000,000 francs ($160,000,000) and see what he can do with them."

Overfatness Condemned.

Fat, or even fattish, women readers who want to be in the mode this year must understand that the demand is for lines, not curves, and govern themselves accordingly.

That means OFF with the fat. It has become a duty. Many are trying exercise or dieting; but it is certain they will find these methods too slow and unreliable. The cheapest and safest way to get in form for the Directoire mode is by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Any druggist (or the Marmola company, Detroit, Mich.) will give you a large-sized case of these elegant little fat reducers, containing a good, generous supply, for seventy-five cents, and even this quantity should be enough to make a decided impression on your excess fat. Many have lost as much as a pound a day.

These Marmola Prescription Tablets may be used with impunity and likewise perfect confidence, for, being made strictly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, they are, of course, quite harmless. They are rather beneficial than otherwise, in fact, never disturbing the stomach or causing a wrinkling of flesh.

LEWIS DEFIES ALL CRITICISM

Miners' President Brings Charges Against Illinois District Officers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 20.—At the twentieth annual convention of the United Mine Workers today, President T. L. Lewis introduced his report by reviewing the results of the special session of the representatives of the organization in Indianapolis, last March, which resulted in the adoption of the policy that the various districts separately or in groups should endeavor to agree with the operators on contracts for one year and at no reduction of wages. The interstate joint agreement had not been re-established.

Mr. Lewis then recounted that on March 30, he asked the district organization of the central competitive field to join in an effort to establish an interstate wage contract by calling a joint convention of miners and operators; that his proposition was not approved by the Pittsburg district, then in convention, but that at length in April, a miners' conference was held in Indianapolis, which resulted in appointing a joint conference to be held in Toledo.

"The Illinois district officers refused to vote for or against an interstate joint convention," said Mr. Lewis, "giving as a reason that the Illinois operators were not present. I have a right to believe that the action of the Illinois district officers encouraged the Illinois operators to remain away from the Toledo joint convention."

At the Toledo convention it was proposed that a two-year contract, on the basis of the then prevailing wage scale, should be submitted to referendum vote of the miners. The outcome, by a great majority, was the acceptance by the miners of the convention's recommendation, and the joint agreement was re-established in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Lewis' closing sentence was:

"In view of the many misleading reports circulated during the past year with reference to my official work, you will pardon me for calling your attention to the fact that my official acts are subject to the most rigid investigation, and I challenge anyone to prove that any official or personal act of mine has brought discredit to the United Mine Workers' organization."

Valuable Recipe When Afflicted With Rheumatism or Backache, Also Splendid Tonic.

At the first sign of rheumatism pains or backachhe, or a feeling of being generally run down and weakened, the following simple prescription should be used:

"One ounce compound syrup Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint high grade whiskey. Mix them and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time. The bottle must be well shaken each time."

Any druggist will supply these ingredients.

This will eradicate the acid poisons from the blood and build up the system to its normal healthfulness. The splendid effects will become manifest after the first few doses, but it should be continued until the person has fully regained health. The worst cases of rheumatism are bound to yield to this treatment.

FIVE PASS EXAMINATION.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.—Postmaster Erickson has received notice from the postoffice department that five applicants passed out of the nine who took the examination for clerk and carrier in this city Dec. 15. The successful ones are: Paul E. Shannon, Sanford E. Hurlocker, George T. Ellitson, Nellie Erickson and Albert Foster.

Postmaster Erickson, according to his custom of remitting money in the postal fund to the government twice a month, sent in $437 yesterday.

The $437 was in excess of $400 paid to employes of the local office for salaries during the first half of the month. The total of $837 represents the money taken in at the local office from the sale of stamps and stamped envelopes and box rents during the first fifteen days in January.

RUNAWAY YOUTHS SOON TIRE OF THEIR EXPERIENCE

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brooding over fancied wrongs, Russell Brice, Albert Mc-Rae and two other youths, all sons of prominent local residents, crept into a box car Sunday evening and were taken to Fond du Lac, Wis. The boys wandered about the city until morning, when they were arrested and readily disclosed their identity to the police. They all returned home yesterday, none the worse for their adventure.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"I saw your friend, Mrs. Brown of Eveleth on the street today for a minute. She was just in town for the day so I didn't have time to hear very much how things were going," said the young man who remembers to tell the little things that make life interesting.

"How is she?" asked Mrs. Brown's friends and the young man's wife.

"Well she's not so very well," said the young man. "That is she's feeling pretty good now but she just had an operation and only got out of the hospital a few days ago.

"Well indeed," said his wife.

"Yes," said the young man. "She didn't have very long to tell me about it, but it seems this is the second one. She was at the hospital one time last spring. She's gotten the habit she says and that whenever she doesn't feel very good, kind of tired, you know, she just goes to the hospital. She had Dr. Smith. She's quite crazy about him. She thinks he's perfectly lovely or at least that's what she says. Of course I couldn't find out much about her because I only saw her for a second."

"Well," said his wife, "I'm glad she's better.

"She's thinking of going out West," said the man. She's going to take her husband with her and they're going to start next week, and are going to California for six weeks. They're going out by the southern route and come back the northern way and some friends of theirs from the range are going to meet them on the way back. I think she said their names were Stevens and if Mr. Stevens can't go, there's a possibility that he can't, Mrs. Stevens will anyway."

"Well that's awfully nice," said his wife.

"Yes it is," said the young man. "Of course I don't know much about it because I only saw her for a second, but they're going to visit all of the cities on the way and she thinks it will be just fine."

"I wonder if they're going to close their house," said his wife.

"No, they're not," said the young man. "They've fixed their house all over since you saw her. They moved it back ten feet on the lot and put a stone foundation under it, and a hot water plant and electric light. It was a cottage before you know and now it's a three-story house. There are five bedrooms on the second floor and on the top floor there's a big room, heat and light and a fireplace and everything. It makes it awfully nice, Mrs. Brown said. Of course she didn't have time to tell me much about it, but seemed quite pleased."

"Who's she going to leave in charge," asked the young man's wife.

"I'm just getting to that," said the young man. "Mrs. Smith's sister Annie's oldest daughter, Mary is living with her now, and she will stay. Mary's an awfully nice girl. Mrs. Smith said, but not very strong. Rather delicate you know, but they're awfully glad to have her with them. It makes it nice for them and for Mrs. Smith's sister Annie's oldest daughter, Mary, too."

"I'm sure it does" said the young man's wife glancing uneasily at the narrator of the interesting details.

"Of course, she didn't have time to tell me much about it," said the young man, "because I only saw her for a second. But it seems that two years ago her sister Annie was sick and they went to her home in Maine and just brought Mary back with them. It makes it nice for them to be able to go away and not worry about things. They have hardwood floors all through the house and five bedrooms on the second floor. One wouldn't recognize the cottage that they began with, Mrs. Brown said.

"She was just down for a little shopping," continued the young man. She said there were always a host of little things that had to be attended to before one took a trip like that and she got a pony skin coat just two weeks ago, she it was a fifty-two-inch length and just completely covered her up and it had begun to wear already and she said she was going to the store and raise Ned. That's what she said," said the young man. "She thought it was perfectly awful to pay so much for a coat and then have it wear out so quickly. She was awfully mad about it, she said."

"I wonder where she got it," asked the man's wife.

"She didn't have time to tell me," said the man, "because I only saw her for a second, you know. But she was certainly awfully mad about the coat. She said it would have been ever so much better to put the money into furs that would last a long time, but she was going to do her best to make them do something about it. She wanted me to give you her love. She was awfully sorry she didn't have time to come and see you to tell you the news, but she was in town for such a short time and she knew you'd understand just how it is when one has so much to do and all ——"

"How much time did you spend with Mrs. Brown?" asked the man's wife.

"Well, I don't think it could have been more than just a second or two," said the man. "I met her in the elevator of the building and she got off at the seventh floor. She said she had to go to the dentist's because ——"

"That'll be about all for you," said the man's wife. "Women may talk fast, but you can't make me believe—by the way, did you get those theater tickets you promised to?"

"Yes; I did," said the man. "Mrs. Brown reminded me of it because she said ——"

"Well, we'll have to hurry to get ready," said the man's wife, interrupting him without any compunctions whatever.

LOVING CUP.

The Ladies' Union Presents Token to Mrs. T. J. Davis.

At the annual meeting of the Pilgrim Congregational church, which was held last evening, an especially delightful feature was the presentation of a silver cup to Mrs. T. J. Davis, the retiring president of the Ladies' union of the church. The cup is inscribed "Presented to Mrs. T. J. Davis in loving appreciation by the Ladies' Union of the Pilgrim Congregational church." During the last year the union, under the presidency of Mrs. Davis, has accomplished great things, and the cup was given her in appreciation of her services.

WOMEN'S MEETING.

Nursery Provided for Children at Bethel.

Dr. Guelick, for eighteen years a missionary in Japan, will be the speaker tomorrow afternoon at the women's meeting, which will be held at the Lake Avenue Bethel. The meeting will be at 2:30 o'clock, and any woman interested is invited to attend.

Arrangements have been made for a nursery for the children who attend the meetings and become wearied at the entertainment which interests their mothers, and tomorrow those mothers who wish to do so, may leave their little ones in charge of nurses who will amuse and watch them during the hour. The little babies, who would perhaps be shy in strangers' hands, may remain with their mothers. This arrangement will make it possible for many of the mothers to attend the meeting, who would otherwise feel it necessary to remain at home with the children who are under the school age.

There will be vocal numbers by Miss Ferguson.

Shakespeare Class.

The Morning Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the clubroom of the library. "Hamlet" will be studied with Miss Margaret McGiffert as leader. What Retail Markets Offer.

Strawberries, 60 cents a box.
Spanish onions, 10 cents a pound.
Rhubarb, 2 bunches for 25 cents.
Rabbits, 15 and 20 cents each.
A whole little pig, $3.50 each.
Ox tails, 8 cents each.
Pigs' feet, snouts and tails.

The strawberries are in. They bear a ripe and hectic appearance that pale February's berries are not wont to have, and at the merely nominal price which the market man names in an off hand way, there has as yet been no very great rush for berries.

Rabbit seems to be the particular delicacy of the moment. And there are plenty of the little white fluffy dead things at any market you may wish to patronize. People who eat rabbits say they are very good, made into stew or roasted.

PESTHOUSE IS REOPENED

The first case of smallpox to develop in Duluth since early in December was brought to the attention of the health department today. Wilhelmina Clark, a domestic, 17 years of age, became afflicted with the disease, and was taken from her home in the West end to the pest house. Aside from the attendants, she is the sole occupant.

The need of medical inspection in schools was demonstrated last night by the death of Ira Mahoney, 4-year-old son of A. J. Mahoney of Smithville. He died of diphtheria, and the fact that he had the disease was not known until yesterday, when a doctor was called for the first time. The child had been attending school regularly, and the other children were of course exposed.

School was closed this morning to allow the health authorities a chance to fumigate the building.

NO PROMISE IS MADE AS TO DILWORTH TRAIN.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific officials gave the special committee of railway men no promise of a resumption of the shop train between Fargo and Dilworth for the accommodation of the employes who want to continue their residence here. The Commercial club will renew its effort to have the train operated till an interurban line can be constructed.

HAD TO WALK

Couldn't leave best girl; missed last car; had to walk home to Woodlawn. Lots of people will have to walk by and by, when they ought to be riding in automobiles. Just because they did not get an orange or grape fruit grove on the Isle of Pines while they were so cheap. Just think of it, lands only $40 an acre.

BANANAS CHEAPEST IN LAST TEN YEARS.

ANGRY AT ROOSEVELT

California Lawmakers Resent Interference in Anti-Jap Legislation.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 20.—The efforts of President Roosevelt to block anti-Japanese measures have not been received with much favor by the legislators. Grove L. Johnson, who introduced the measure preventing aliens from acting as directors of corporations, is defiant, and asserts that he will do all he can to push the anti-Japanese measures.

Senator Sanford, the leader of the Democratic caucus, resents the interference. He asserts that California is capable of taking care of her own affairs, and will not submit to dictation.

Assemblyman Drew, who introduced the measure forbidding foreigners to hold property, is more conciliatory, but declares he has received hundreds of communications advising him to stand by his bill.

From Governor Gillette's attitude, it is believed that no anti-Japanese bill will escape his veto.

LAYBOURN CHAIRMAN

tors, so the delegation is not yet decided whether it would be good policy, in view of Duluth's delicate situation, to introduce it. The sentiment was strongly against it, in fact, and it may be that the city authorities will try to think up some way of providing a bill that will apply to Duluth alone.

Both branches of the Minnesota legislature had short sessions this morning, and both were as dull as any held thus far. Practically nothing was done outside the introduction of a grist of bills of more or less importance. Representative O. B. Nelson offered a bill providing that, except in cities of the first class, 20 per cent of the liquor license fees shall be turned into the county road fund instead of letting the municipality get all of it.

Representative Conley introduced a bill requiring the state board of health to examine plans for and to inspect all waterworks and sewage systems, with a view to protecting the waters of the state from pollution.

Two attempts to fix the anti-pass law were made in bills introduced this morning. Representative Sawyer excepts from its provisions all railroad employes who hold non-salaried public positions. Senator Moonan would exempt all railroad employes unless they are members of political committees.

Representative Christensen of St. Paul put in a bill placing electric railways under the control of the railroad and warehouse commission. A fight over this measure two years ago defeated it.

Representative Robertson of Argyle asks the legislature, in a bill introduced this morning, to put a new normal school at Warren, Marshall county, thus adding a fifth to the communities seeking this school.

Senator Altman offered a bill repealing the law providing for a state farm for inebriates to be built by a 2 per cent tax on liquor lincense fees and returning the money already collected, about $6,000, to the communities from which it came.

Briggs provides for a return to the convention system of nominating all public officers, in a bill offered this morning. He would have the delegates to county conventions elected at a primary election under the Australian ballot system, and the county conventions would nominate county officers and select delegates to state, congressional and judicial conventions.

Senator Alderman contemplates the improvement of the saloon business in two bills introduced this morning. One provides that no licenses shall be issued except to men of good character, and the other that there shall be no more than one saloon to each 500 of the population of any community.

Senator Briggs would encourage banks to hold large surpluses, and in a bill introduced today, he attempts this by exempting from taxation the surplus up to the amount of the capital stock.

Rockne appointed the following committee to investigate the packing houses of the state to see if they have anything to do with a trust: Representatives Bendixen, Melby, Stuart, Carley and Andrew Davis.

The following bills were introduced: Representative Matteson, requiring county superintendents to make quarterly statements to county boards; Representative Gates, prohibiting the adulteration and misbranding of drugs; Representative Christensen, providing that the board of control shall be non-partisan, and that not more than two of its three members shall be of the same party; Representative Mork, prohibiting the adulteration of seeds and livestock foods; Representative Rowe, providing $25 reward for the apprehension of chicken thieves; Senator Elwell, appropriating $1,359,900 for the state university; Senator Moonan, making railroads liable for damages caused by sparks from locomotives and allowing them to insure themselves against loss this way.

THE CHAFING DISH EXPLODED

Miss Bessie Clifford, whose clever dancing in the "Three Twins" has created so much comment, was painfully burned Monday night at an after-theater party in the Spalding cafe, by the explosion of a chafing dish.

Had it not been for Manager Marshall's prompt action, the little dancer would probably have been seriously burned. As it was, the flaming oil from the lamp was thrown over her arms, throat and breast, inflicting ugly burns.

None of those who witnessed the play last evening guessed the pain which the dance caused Miss Clifford, as the burns on her arms and neck were far from healed.

WILL BUILD A NEW BREWERY

A new brewing company to construct a $500,000 plant is being organized to operate in Southern Minnesota, by J. B. Dunphy and associates of this city. Mr. Dunphy is a stockholder in the People's Brewing company of Duluth, having been one of the principal promoters, and the former secretary of the concern. The men who are associated with him in the new enterprise were interested with him in the promotion and establishment of the big local plant.

The People's Brewing company is now working at its full capacity and its business has far exceeded the expectations of its promoters.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the company will enlarge its plant to a considerable extent to take care of the increasing demand for its product.

Mr. Dunphy is promoting the new enterprise in the southern part of the state with the good will and support of the men here, who, with him, were instrumental in establishing the local plant. The success of the new enterprise seems assured.

THE CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR HEEDS ROOSEVELT, ANTI-JAP LEGISLATION IS HALTED

Sacramento Cal., Jan. 20.—According to a statement by Governor Gillett, there will be no legislation against the Japanese at this session of the legislature. The governor says:

"After conferring with the leading members of each of the branches of the legislature last night, I am convinced that no legislation directed against the Japanese will be enacted. I am satisfied that the whole of California and particularly the members of our legislature appreciate the efforts being made by the federal government and representatives of Japan to stem immigration to this country of Japanese laborers, skilled and unskilled.

"There can be no doubt that the Japanese government is acting absolutely in good faith in its endeavor to prevent its people emigrating to our country, and, in my judgment, it will be a serious mistake while they are so doing, to enact any laws directed against the Japanese people.

"This question is one in which the federal government is particularly interested and its wishes should be carefully considered, and will be I am sure, by the people of this state."

President Roosevelt's letter to Governor Gillett follows:

"My Dear Governor: I am greatly concerned over the anti-Japanese bills which are, apparently, going through, or are on their way through the California legislature. They are in every sense most unfortunate. At last we have in first class working order the arrangements which we succeeded in getting through two years ago. The Japanese government is obviously acting in entire good faith. During the six months ending Oct. 31 last, the total number of Japanese who have come to the mainland of the United States has been 2,074 and the total number who have left has been 3,181. In other words, the whole subject nominally desired by those who wish to prevent the incoming of Japanese laborers has been achieved.

"More Japanese are leaving the country than are coming in and by the present indications in a very few years the number of Japanese here will be no greater than the number of Americans in Japan; that is, the movement will be as normal in one case as in the other, which is just what we desire. There is, therefore, no shadow of excuse for action which will simply produce great irritation and may result in upsetting the present agreement and throwing open the whole situation again.

"These agitators have themselves to thank if trouble comes from what they do, if there is a fresh influx of Japanese here. They hamper the national government in what it has now so efficiently accomplished—the agreement by peaceful means and through the friendly initiative of the Japanese government, to keep Japanese immigrants out of the United States, save as Americans themselves visit Japan. Is it not possible to get the legislature to realize the great unwisdom from the standpoint of the country at large, and above all from the standpoint of California, of what is being done?"

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

We want to show you in this short, but honest and reasonable talk, how and why S. S. S. cures Old Sores. We do not claim that S. S. S. works wonders, but we do know it will cure sores and ulcers, and its record of forty years past abundantly justifies this confidence.

Any old sore shows an unhealthy and impure condition of the blood. It is a diseased condition of the flesh at that particular spot, caused and kept inflamed and irritated by a continual discharge into it of unhealthy matter from the circulation. In various ways the blood becomes contaminated and polluted. A long spell of fever, or other sickness, breeds disease germs in the system; the failure of nature's eliminative members to remove the waste and refuse matters of the body, the excessive use of minerals in certain diseases, infected wounds, bites and stings of insects, etc., all contaminate the blood with morbid matter and germs which sooner or later manifest their presence by a sore or ulcer which refuses to heal under the ordinary treatment of local applications.

External treatment can never cure a chronic sore or ulcer, because it does not reach the blood. The place will remain open as long as it is used as a drainage for the impurity which is in the blood, and in addition to the worry and anxiety caused by an old sore, there is always danger of its becoming cancerous, if a cure is not effected. Purify the blood, and nourish the flesh with a rich, healthy circulation, and then the place will heal of its own accord.

S. S. S. cures old sores by removing the causes which produce them. It goes down into the circulation, drives out all impurities and poisons, and by nourishing the flesh with rich, pure blood causes the place to heal naturally and permanently. S. S. S. does not make a surface cure, but, being the greatest of all blood purifiers, it begins at the bottom and by rebuilding broken down tissue, and supplying healthful, healing qualities to the circulation, causes the place to fill in with firm, healthy flesh, while it steadily but surely removes the cause and effects a permanent cure. The sore cannot remain when the blood is pure, and S. S. S. will thoroughly purify the blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

BAD SORE FROM AN OLD WOUND.

I want to recommend S. S. S. to any who are in need of a blood purifier, and especially as a remedy for sores and obstinate ulcers. In 1877 I had my leg badly cut on the sharp edge of a barrel and having on a blue woolen stocking, the place was badly poisoned from the dye. A great sore formed and for years no one knows what I suffered with the place. I tried, it seemed to me, everything I had ever heard of but I got no relief and I thought I would have to go through life with an angry, discharging sore on my leg. At last I began the use of S. S. S., and it was but a short time until I saw that the place was improving. I continued it until it removed all the poison from my blood and made a complete and permanent cure of the sore.
250 Navy St., Brooklyn, N. Y. JNO. ELLIS.

A CANCEROUS ULCER.

I had a large sore or ulcer on my face and nothing I tried would benefit me. It began with shooting pains and soon the itching was terrible. At first it discharged a watery fluid which soon changed to one of thicker composition and the pain became very severe. It was nearly as large as a dollar and terribly inflamed in all the surrounding parts. It had been there so long and growing worse all the time, I became very much discouraged and alarmed. At last I began the use of S. S. S. At first the ulcer seemed to get worse, but I soon found that the poison was being removed from the blood and I continued to take S. S. S. It was not long before I noted a decided improvement and I kept up the use of the medicine until I was entirely cured of this cancerous ulcer. This has been some time ago and there is no sign of a return of the trouble.
Gary, Fla. MRS. W. A. WRIGHT.

POISONED FROM INSECT BITE.

Wilmington, N. C.
From the bite of an insect I was poisoned and had a dreadful sore on my ankle and took different treatments with no benefit. I was induced to try S. S. S., and after a few bottles it cleared my system and cleansed my blood and cured the sore. My mother took it for rheumatism, with success. I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. where a blood purifier is needed.

Whitehead's Manager Says Negro Can Whip Any White Man.

Local admirers of Walter Whitehead, the champion heavyweight boxer of the Northwest, received a jolt yesterday when reports were circulated to the effect that the range fans had a "ringer, that they were going to pit against the Duluth boy next Thursday night. The circulation of the story gave an impetus to the Heller side of the betting, some money being placed at 2 to 1 against the negro.

When seen this morning, Whitehead's manager said that he did not care what boxer the range fans had so long as he was white. "There are only two boxers in the world that we draw the line on, said the negro's manager; "One is Jack Johnson, the present heavyweight champion of the world and the other is Sam Langford. I figure that we stand to get at least an even break with all the others, and feel sure that Whitehead can beat the majority of them. No matter what fighter the range fans may have secured, he will have to show top-notch form or he will not last long with my man. Whitehead was never in the condition that he is now and he is prepared to make the fight of his life. The boy is doing twelve miles on the road every day, shows good class in his boxing, and can punch the bag till it sings without showing any signs of fatigue. He has a reach of 76 inches, which, I think, is the greatest of any living fighter. He is rangey and strong and can take any amount of punishment without showing distress.

"Whitehead is a trifle defective on boxing and this is the only point that we will concede Heller. However, if Heller should show too much class as a boxer, Whitehead will immediately assume the Battling Nelson tactics and rough it. We are going to win this fight and we have four ways in which to do it."

Arrangements for a special train, to be run from Duluth to the range next Thursday evening, are being perfected and it is certain that a record-breaking crowd will be in attendance.

While Whitehead has been fighting since 1903 most of his good battles have been fought in the past two years. His record since 1904, to date, follows:

BRITONS LIKE FRANK GOTCH

American Thinks Too Fast for Men Like Hackenschmidt.

Frank Gotch has impressed his prowess on at least one man over in England, doncherknow. This is the only man he has yet persuaded to meet him in that land of loud smiles—George Dinnie, the crack wrestler of Sheffield. Gotch recently wrestled Dinnie before a house jammed to its capacity, throwing him first in one minute and fifty seconds, second in fifty minutes, making the two falls in less than three minutes. Dinnie once stayed with Hackenschmidt for ten minutes and Zbysco for sixteen.

Emil Klank, Gotch's actor partner, has sent to a friend in this city a copy of the Sheffield Evening Mail containing an interesting interview with Dinnie, showing that the Englishman regards Gotch as the greatest of wrestlers and incomparably superior to the "Russian Lion." The Briton even says the toe hold is "quite fair."

Here's the Mail's story, quoting Dinnie:

"Gotch," he exclaimed, "is the most wonderful of all the great wrestlers I have met. Hackenschmidt altogether takes a back seat.

"Gotch worked with his brain as well as with his body, in a way Hackenschmidt never did and never could do," said Dinnie. "He is strong, and moves like lightning. A man stands no chance against him. He is a master of ring craft. I have never met or read of a man like him. There is not an ounce of science in the ring that he does not know about. He uses pure brainy science. In every movement there is something in the background. "The people who were shouting," says Dinnie, "did not know what they were yelling for.

"He wrestles fair and in a legitimate way. It is a new style and we know nothing about it here. Yet there is nothing about 'wrestling' he doesn't know, and he always keeps within the rules.

"Gotch is a straight, gentlemanly fellow and I don't think he would do anything outside the rules.

"If he were beaten he would accept his defeat like a Britisher. He would not shake hands and then go away and say things about his opponent. If all Hackenschmidt now says is true, why did he shake hands with Gotch in a friendly way after the contest? Why did he not leave the ring disgusted? Gotch is not only a straight man, but he is a gentleman.

"But when he goes in the ring," added Dinnie, "he means to win, and he follows you like a lion. I have never experienced anything like the bouts I had at the Sheffield Empire with him.

"There is something about every touch he gives you.

"He wears you down. His brain works with a wonderful rapidity. Hackenschmidt takes a long time to think, and then those opposing him get away. The people then say, 'Oh! Hack might have had him that time if he liked.' But really he could not.

"I could last another eight minutes with Hack anytime. When I wrestled him I had only been four days out of bed.

"The American's thoughts are like lightning. He follows things up, one after another, with extraordinary rapidity. If your brain does not work nearly as quickly you are done for. This is apart from the fact that he is a well trained man of colossal strength."

Dinnie went on: "We do not understand his style of muscular development. His muscles are not contracted in certain parts; he is full of muscle."

Toe Hold Quite Fair.

Dinnie said he had no objections to the toe hold. It was a terrible thing, but was not what the name suggested. The whole foot was seized and not just the toe.

He could express nothing but admiration of the American's wonderful knowledge of the catch-as-catch-can wrestling and Gotch used the toe hold because he knew that it was within the rules and that he could win by it. Gotch went into the ring to win.

"The people at the Empire," he continued, "saw I was on the ropes during the first few seconds. It was just a bit of ring craft on his part. He made me lose my balance in a second. He was on me like a lion and carried me to the middle of the ring. I was hurting him very much when I was struggling, although he was smiling at the time. Gotch has been a boxer, and he first learned ring craft from using the gloves.

"Now it bubbles out of him.

"Hackenschmidt is seriously handicapped in this respect. He is a very strong man, and can wrestle, as we have had wrestling presented to us. He came along, and on one could beat him. The Russian became our ideal; we have made a tin god of him, and we cannot understand his being defeated. But against his strength the American uses this ring craft and his brain. This cyclone style is new to 'Hack,' and he will not pick it up. 'Hack' was two stones heavier than Gotch when they met. But the American went him down until their strength was equal, an dthen he vigorously attacked. You can even see it on the film. 'Hack' is not a brave wrestler, and he cannot accept defeat. The Russian could not reasonably complain of the toe hold; it was within the rules.

"The Russian is a crafty wrestler, but the American is full of brain. I have never known a more persevering or speedy wrestler. He reminds me of Jack Carkeek, the father of modern wrestling."

"Is Gotch a vicious wrestler?"

"Oh, no. That is a wrong impression one may get of the man from his style. I have wrestled him, and ought to know more about it than the people shouting in the gods. He is not a vicious wrestler. You could not get him vexed. He is not such a cruel wrestler as Marrail. You know his styles, and you must know that he means business.

"I slapped him on the shoulder after the match because I knew he was a great man, who had fairly beaten me. I felt very sorry when the crowd yelled, for Sheffield, after all, has a big reputation as a sporting city.

"Gotch said to me: 'You are not sore about the hold?' I said: 'No, of course not; you have beaten me fair and square, and in quick time. You can do it; I shall not grumble.'"

ANOTHER LEAGUE IDEA.

J. M. Lamb is Working to Keep Duluth in the Northern.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 20.—Duluth, La Crosse, Eau Claire, Superior and Winnipeg will form a Northern Baseball league of 1909, if present plans of officials are carried out. For several months past it looked as though Duluth would be dropped and an all-Canadian league formed, but since the Wisconsin State league has decided to let out La Crosse and Eau Claire, it leaves room for a good league, especially with a short line between Winnipeg and Duluth. J. M. Lamb, general manager of the league, is now completing arrangements for an organization meeting, which will likely be held early in February.

Edinburgh, Jan. 20.—The ice falling yesterday, the Canadian curlers who arrived here Sunday were given a motor drive through the "Walter Scott country." The Canadians have been extensively entertained since they reached Scotland.

SUPERIOR MEN WILL ATTEND

Bowlers Will be Represented at the State Tournament.

Milwaukee, Jan. 20.—Superior will be represented, for the first time at the annual state tournament of the Wisconsin Bowling association at Terry's alleys, from Jan. 23 to Jan 30, according to information received by Secretary Frank Woodbury from H. A. Swanson, secretary of the Superior Bowling league. In a letter to Mr. Woodbury yesterday, Mr. Swanson said that one team is certain to come here, and there is good prospect of another squad being organized. The presence of the Superior pin men will add fresh interest to the big series because it will be their initial appearance, and because of the further fact that there is said to be many star bowlers in the northern city. Both Mr. Woodbury and President John Korener are elated at the entry of the Superior knights as it shows that the coming event is attracting more interest throughout the state than at any time in the history of the Wisconsin organization. There is every reason to believe that by the time the entries close on Jan. 16 with Mr. Woodbury that 125 five-man teams will be in line.

National Secretary A. L. Langtry of the American Bowling congress, in a letter to John McBride yesterday, said that it is a certainty now that Milwaukee will be selected for the 1910 tournament of the American Bowling congress. The knowledge that the Auditorium can be secured has simplified everything, according to Mr. Langtry. President R. C. Wirth of the Milwaukee Bowling association is daily expecting word from Mr. Langtry regarding future plans of the local organization in respect to presenting a bid for the bi gseries during the Pittsburg contests.

Clayton Garnett has been selected as umpire.

MARKET IS STRONGER

Flax Slumps More Than Two Points During the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 20.—Wheat was firm during the first part of the session in the American markets today, sold off during the latter part and then rallied sufficiently to show fractional gains over yesterday everywhere on this side of the Atlantic.

Cables were irregular, and there was little news to affect the market. The demand, however, was firm during most of the session. Selling took the bulls off their feet a bit during the last hour, but the losses were fully recovered before the close.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d lower, Berlin 1c higher, Buapesth ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged to ⅝c higher.

The May option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅜@⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅜@⅝c higher in Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York, ⅛@⅜c higher in St. Louis, ½@⅝c higher in Kansas City and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅛@¼c higher in Minneapolis, ¼c higher in New York and Winnipeg, ¼@⅜c higher in St. Louis and ⅜c higher in Kansas City.

May corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and unchanged to d½c higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛c higher in Chicago.

Bradstreet cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The strength in America yesterday, together with scarcer and dearer first hand La Plata offerings, caused covering among shorts against yesterday's spot sales, which resulted in a steady opening here, with values ½d higher. During the morning support subsided, and with a disappointing demand for both cargoes and parcels, values eased, losing ¾d to ½d. At Mid-day, the undertone was easier, with values ½d to ¾d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the start. Lower January advanced ⅜d due to shorts covering, owing to the higher American offerings. March was dull after the opening, and unchanged."

Car receipts at Duluth were 23 against 64 last year, and at Minneapolis 121 against 277 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 144 against 341 last year. Chicago received 3 against 12 last year. Winnipeg received 17 against 189 last year.

In Duluth, May wheat opened unchanged at $1.08¾, advanced to $1.08½, declined to $1.07⅞, rallied to $1.08⅜ and closed there, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed ⅛c higher than yesterday at $1.08⅝ bid.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Light Northwestern Receipts Offset Effect of Lower Cables.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 20.—Extremely light receipts in the Northwest offset the effect of lower cables and caused moderate strength in the wheat market here today. Arrivals today at Minneapolis and Duluth were only 144 cars compared with 341 cars the corresponding day a year ago. Several prominent commission houses were the leading buyers. The market was barely steady at the start with prices a shade higher to ⅛c lower. May opened at $1.06⅞ to $1.07 and soon advanced to $1.07⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 147 cars against 157 cars last week and 383 cars a year ago.

The market was nervous during the last half of the day, especially for the May delivery, which fluctuated over a 1c range. The high point for May was reached at $1.07⅞. The market closed strong with May up ¾@⅞c at $1.07¾@1.07⅞.

Despite the fact that local receipts of corn were much larger than had been estimated, the market was firm early in the session owing to an active demand by local shorts. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 61½ to 61⅝@⅞c and advanced to 61⅞c. Local receipts were 370 cars with six of contract grade.

A firm tone prevailed the greater part of the day and the market closed with prices at the top. May being up ⅝c at 62⅝c.

Oats were quiet and steady, the firmness of wheat and corn being the chief factor. May opened a shade higher at 51⅜c and sold at 51⅝c. Local receipts were 105 cars.

Provisions opened easy owing to liberal receipts of live hogs, but rallied a trifle on buying by some of yesterday's sellers. Prices at the start were 2½@5c higher to 5@7½c lower.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.07¾@⅞; July, 98¼@¼c; September, 95⅛@¼c. Corn—January, 57⅞c; May, 61⅞c; July, 62½c; September, 61¼c. Oats—May, 51⅜@⅞c; July, 46¼@¾c; September, 39⅝c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Decrease in Elevator Stocks Noted—Foreign Tone is Draggy.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 20.—With a decrease of 200,000 bushels in local elevator stocks for four days, receipts here of only 121 cars against 277, Duluth getting 23 against 64, and Winnipeg 17 against 189, the spring wheat supply situation seemed much firmer today. But the foreign tone was draggy and although Liverpool was firmer at first, dullness in cargoes turned it easier and prices came ⅛d lower. The market was dull and active by turns, but it carried a firm undertone throughout. Chicago May sold within 1 cent of Minneapolis, May sold down under $1.08, but just before the close rallied to $1.08⅝. May opened $1.08½; high, $1.08⅝@¾; low, $1.07⅞@1.08; close, $1.08⅝. July opened $1.08½; high, $1.08⅞; low, $1.08⅛; close, $1.08¾. Cash demand was good at 1¼@1⅝c over May for No. 1 northern and about ¾c under for No. 2. Millers got fairly well, although they would not bid up for it. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.10@1.10⅝; to arrive $1.09⅞@1.10⅜. No. 2 northern spot, $1.08⅛@1.08⅝; to arrive, $1.08⅛@1.08⅜. No. 3 wheat, $1.04⅜@1.06¾. No. 3 yellow corn, 55¾@56¾c. No. 3 white oats, 48⅝@48⅝c. No. 2 rye, 69¾@71¾c.

Barley—Receipts, 44 cars against 63; shipments, 50. The market started off well with quotations a half cent higher, but buyers held back, and it became dull. The close was firm at 56½@59½c.

Flax—Receipts, 34 cars against 47; shipments, 2. No. 1 seed held at ½c over Duluth May, but the sagging market at the Head of the Lakes made prices lower. Close, $1.55¼.

Millstuffs — Shipments, 1,010 tons. Millers quote bulk bran at $19.00@19.50.

Flour—Trade is dull. Shipments picked up a little and there were more orders in for the shipment of old lots, but new business was moderate. Shipments, 38,231 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.25@5.45; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.05.

SUPERIOR NEWS

KRAMER A DRUNKARD

Attorney H. W. Dietrich, appearing for Matt Kramer, charged with the murder of Erick Young, during the closing hours of the court's session yesterday afternoon, endeavored to bring out that his client was a hard drinker, and was usually in a state of intoxication, yet was always peaceable, and never looked for trouble.

In bringing out this evidence the defense wished to show that Kramer had not deliberately murdered Young or mutilated the body, either before or after the shooting, as was testified to by witnesses for the state.

Chief of Police McKinnon stated on the stand that Kramer had admitted to him that he had killed Young accidentally. Other witnesses who claimed acquaintance with Kramer testified that he had never been a vicious person, and though he drank a great deal, was a drunkard of peaceful nature, who would not commit murder in cold blood.

This morning Kramer took the stand himself, testifying that the shooting of Young had been purely accidental. He claimed that on July 3 he and Young went to Foxboro, where they bought a jug of whisky. On the way home they had several drinks. After supper Kramer took his rifle and said he was going out to try to get a deer. He claims that Young did not accompany him, but remained in the shack. While returning to the shack, Kramer heard what he thought to be the snort of a deer, and later a moving in the bushes, and shot at the sound, killing his partner. He was afraid to tell anyone of what had happened, so he buried the body and kept the secret to himself. When Johnson came to visit him and stated that he had seen a grave near the shack and accused Kramer of killing Young, Kramer denied it. He later decided he better move the body and did so.

The rest of this afternoon will be given over to cross-examination, and Kramer will probably be the last on the witness stand.

Alderman Resigns.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Superior city council held last evening, Alderman W. H. Thorn of the Tenth ward tendered his resignation, and upon the recommendation of Mayor Crumpton, Stephen Gill, a foreman at Pittsburg dock No. 5, was named to fill the vacancy. Mr. Thorn, owing to his change of residence to St. Paul, has found it impossible to hold his position in the city council.

Railroad Bonds Sold.

Berlin, Jan. 20.—The Deutsche bank has sold $4,000,000 worth of bonds of Western Maryland railroad to a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., the New York bankers.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Fell Into Neglect After the First Hour.

Gains Made, But Close Was Heavy and Very Dull.

New York, Jan. 20.—Opening prices of stocks were higher, but the gains were small with a few exceptions. New York Central and American Cotton Oil rose 1 and Kansas City Southern, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie, Wisconsin Central and People's Gas large fractions. Amalgamated Copper fell ⅜. The dealings were in moderate volume.

Fractional additions were made to the opening gains in the active stocks, and there was a good inquiry for Norfolk & Western and other minor stocks that have been conspicuous recently in the dealings. Bull operators had difficulty in holding the market on the advance. There was a new outbreak of weakness in Interborough-Metropolitan preferred which lowered it 2 points and affected the other tractions. Amalgamated Copper also acted as a clog on the market, fresh liquidating depressing it a point.

The market fell into neglect, as has become usual after the first hour. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred recovered its loss and Norfolk & Western reacted 1. Erie first preferred rose 1⅝. Westinghouse Electric 2, Western Union 1¾ and Cheasapeake & Ohio 1. Chicago Great Western, the preferred "B," Wisconsin Central preferred and National Biscuit declined 1. Bonds were irregular.

Traction stocks were the most actively dealt, the support around midday for Interborough-Metropolitan raising it nearly a point above yesterday's final figures, and the 4½ per cent bonds 1¾. Northern Pacific, Third Avenue and Colorado & Southern preferred also advanced 1, and Philadelphia Transit 1¼. Chicago Great Western preferred "A" rose 3 points, in contrast to the weakness of others.

The market closed heavy and very dull. Amalgamated Copper fell to 1⅛ below last night, and Brooklyn Rapid Transit and New Haven a point. A rally succeeded, but did not go far.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

FORT WILLIAM MAY COME HERE

The fast Fort William hockey team may play a game in Duluth with the Zenith team of this city if the present plans of the managers are carried out.

The Canadians will be in the city about the middle of February on their way to the Copper country, where they have a number of games arranged. Their manager wants very much to arrange a contest with a Duluth team, and a proposition will be submitted for his consideration today.

The bringing of a number of the fastest teams in the Northwest to Duluth rests on whether or not the public shows interest in the games of the Amateur league sufficiently to turn out to the contests.

The Central rink has been put in shape for hockey, a comfortable place for spectators has been provided, and the lighting system has been improved, so that the Duluth boys now have a fair place in which to play the game.

The victory over the fast Minneapolis All-Star team the early part of last week has encouraged the locals greatly, and they are anxious to try conclusions with other fast teams.

BASKETBALL AT FLOODWOOD

Friday night at Floodwood, the Y. M. C. A. team will meet a tough proposition in the basketball line. The "Big Floodwood" five will be the opposing five, and if the Centrals get away with the game, they will have reason to consider themselves in the race for the championship of the state.

Already this year this team has defeated the Cloquet bunch 61 to 11, Grand Rapids, 49 to 8, and Deer River, 49 to 9. All these towns boasted of their fast team, but the scores show how much chance they stood against Floodwood.

The Duluth boys are confident that they will make good and bring back to the Zenith City the big end of what will in all probability be a close score.

The teams will line up as follows:

Floodwood.		Y. M. C. A.
Al Corey	c.	R. Perry
J. Cranebrook	r.g.	R. McLean
H. E. Butler	l.g.	L. Thompson
J. Brandmer	r.f.	Ray Fenton

The Bonds' record was 2,927.

WIFE WAITS FOR KAUNA

Man Awaiting Deportation Was Sought by His Family.

Woman Has Probably Learned of His Plight by This Time.

While Richard Kauna was occupying a cell in the county jail, awaiting the action of the government on the question of his deportation on account of insanity, his wife at Vermilion Bay, Ont., was making frantic efforts to locate him.

Judge Middlecoff of the probate court received several letters from her just before Christmas. All were written in German and were signed "Mrs. Coyne." Judge Middlecoff had no cognizance of Kauna being in the county jail and there was nothing to connect him with the letters, until the notice of the man's confinement in The Herald last evening aroused the judge's suspicions. An investigation showed that Kauna is the man, for whom the inquiries had been made.

Mrs. Kauna has evidently received news of her husband's plight by this time, for he has had a letter from her since Christmas and has written several to her. Little can be learned from the man himself. He insists of talking on the subject of his confinement and beyond saying that he has received a letter from his wife and has written to her, he is mum on the subject.

Mrs. Kauna's letters to Judge Middlecoff were in plaintive vein. She begged the judge to find her husband and send him home. She said she had heard of him last at Proctor, had heard he had money coming there, but couldn't locate him. After vain efforts to locate the man, Judge Middlecoff notified the woman of the futility of the search. He hasn't heard anything from her since. Kauna's own statements seem to indicate that she has gotten into communication with him in some manner. Her failure to write the name as it is spelled here, probably was responsible for the original difficulty.

Kauna was in an insane asylum in Toronto and last summer, after being discharged, instead of returning to Vermilion Bay, where he had left his family, he crossed into the United States from Sarnia. He has been in the county jail since Nov. 9, awaiting the action of the immigration authorities.

"BILLY" SUNDAY SLINGS SLANG

He is Prepared to Meet Old Mephisto in the Ring.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 20.—"Say for me that I've signed articles to meet Old Mephisto, the terror universal, in Jim Jeffries' fight pavilion at Los Angeles early in February, following my Spokane engagement. Big Jim'll be in my corner at least long enough to introduce me. Will I win! Surest thing. Take it from me that I've got the swellest punch. The rules are to my liking; made 'em myself between rounds in this town."

Rev. William A. Sunday, ex-ballplayer, gave out the foregoing at the close of a sermon in the Tabernacle here, where he is speaking to from 5,000 to 8,000 persons daily at a series of revival meetings to close Jan. 25.

"I look forward with interest to the meeting with the old boy on the Pacific coast," he added, "and what I'll do to him with the upper cuts and jabs, short arm jolts, swings and hooks that I'm now bringing to a point of perfection in my daily training, will make Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight champion, feel he overlooked some important wrinkles in the fight game.

"Several big cities on Puget Sound and the coast, including Seattle, Portland, Tacoma and San Francisco, and others in the interior, want me to take falls out of their Nicks, but I don't see how I can accommodate the bunch until I return from a visit home some time later in the spring or next fall."

Sunday's evangelistic methods are bizarre in the extreme and his expressions in rounding up a bunch of slang in the warfare upon vice and evil would make seasoned stage drivers look to their laurels, but his work here has been productive of much good, and members of the Spokane Ministerial association say that any compensation he asks at the close of his meeting will be given in a voluntary spirit.

JEALOUSLY LEADS TO DOUBLE CRIME

Bently Objected to Attention Neighbor Paid His Wife.

Rolla, N. D., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Details of the murder and suicide by Henry H. Bently, a farmer residing twenty miles west of St. John, bring to light one of the most tragic events that has occurred in this state in years. Jealousy was the main motive of the crime, according to the decision of the coroner's jury.

The affair was the culmination of a quarrel following a card game which Mrs. Bently enjoyed with a neighbor, a male visitor, Sunday afternoon. When the man had gone, Bently claimed that his wife permitted him to show his affection for her, and according to the 9-year-old daughter, the father even stated that the neighbor had made love to her mother. This accusation Mrs. Bently denied.

Mrs. Bently refused to retire with her husband Sunday night, and instead sought sleep on two chairs. The house being a 10 by 12 claim shack, there was only two beds in the room, the family living in the one room. Mr. Bently went to his room and secured a razor, which he placed in his pocket. Returning, he told Mrs. Bently that he would see to it that she would go to bed. Again Mrs. Bently refused, whereupon Bently drew the razor, shashed her across the throat, and she died instantly.

Then he cut his own throat, but was able to go to the cistern and throw his weapon away. Returning, he laid across the bed and died before aid could reach him, about four hours later.

The little 9-year-old daughter ran to the nearest neighbor, about 300 rods from the Bently shack, and when the neighbors arrived they found the young children close to their mother's side, where she lay on the floor in a pool of blood. The little ones were begging that their mother would speak to them.

SUICIDE WAS CONSIDERATE.

Leaves Note Apologizing for Letting Blood in Room.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Johnson is the name on the register of the Chicago house of a strange ma nwho was found dead in a room of the brick annex of that hotel Tuesday morning. He was lying in a pool of blood that flowed from a bullet wound directly back of the right ear. A 38 caliber revolver was found clutched in his right hand, that was crossed over the left in front of him.

His head lay in a wardrobe with cloth curtains. He was fully dressed except as to hat and overcoat and had evidently been dead a dozen hours or more. His body was found by the hotel chambermaid when she went to clean the room. The door was not locked and the key was on the outside. A new overcoat with a trade mark of the "Columbia," of La Crosse, Wis., was on the inside of the collar. This coat was hung on a hook at the end of the wardrobe. His overshoes were placed beside the wardrobe. On the table was a note, written in pencil on a sheet of paper and left open, with the inscription:

"M. M.—Ask the proprietor to forgive me."

Monday morning he was at the hotel for breakfast about 8 o'clock. The proprietor did not see him arise after. In his pocket was found a picture postal card addressed to Mr. Henry Olson, Institute Place, Chicago, Ill., Box 142.

CHEAP LABOR AS MENACE TO RACE

Ross of Wisconsin Says It Imperils the Future.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 20.—At the foundation day exercises of Indiana university today, Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin made the principal address. He said in part:

"Business men are coming to dominate the country. No party can win without their favor. They finance philanthropy, constitute the pillars of the church and support colleges.

"Business is allowed to drive ahead with less regard to life and limb than in other advanced countries. Annually our railroads kill in round numbers 10,000 and hurt 100,000. We are assured that half of these losses are preventable. Ours is the only important country that has not accelerated the adoption of safety devices by guaranteeing to working men compensation for accidents.

The sources of our emigration have changed from Northwestern to Southeastern Europe, and we are being diluted with multitudes that lack both the mental capacity and the force of character that are the birthright of native Americans. Who wants these hordes? Not labor, whom it displaces; not the farmers; not the clerical and professional classes. It is business, the wine owner, the mill owner, the contractor, the railway people, the steamship companies—that block restrictions, and so mars a race future for the sake of cheap labor or a full steerage.

The counter forces to commercialism lie in the common sense and conscience of a non-commercial public. The movement against the sacrifice of public health, safety, or truth in the name of business, is gathering headway, and will ultimately prevail.

ADMITS FORGERY.

Larimore, N. D., Jan. 20.—Joseph Edwin Boyer was arrested here charged with forging three checks in Devils Lake. Chief Fadden was telephoned a description of the man and soon had him spotted.

On the way to jail the prisoner jumped out of his overcoat and made a run for liberty, but was stopped by Fadden, who fired at him.

Boyer says he was in partnership with a man in St. Paul and was waiting for money. He has confessed to forging three checks, using fictitious names.

LAKE AND COOK COUNTIES TO GET A HOUSE MEMBER IF NO REAPPORTIONMENT

Bill to Extend Primary Election System to the Senators.

Committee Decides for New Northern Minnesota Normal School.

Accounts of the State Fair Are to be Investigated..

From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Louis county delegation this morning introduced in the house a bill changing the Fifty-first legislative district so as to give Lake and Cook counties one of the two house members. This is in case the general reapportionment bill fails.

Representative Wohlhurter introduced a bill extending the primary election system to cover United States senators but not state officers.

Representative Greene of St. Paul proposes to let the three large cities of the state have prize fights if they wish, under restrictions, in a bill put in this morning, allowing the three cities to permit boxing contests, providing they are not for more than six rounds, that the gloves are at least six ounces in size, and that no decision is made

FAVORS POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

Meyer Addresses Board of Trade in Washington.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Declaring in favor of postal savings bank, Postmaster General George Von L. Meyer, delivered an interesting address today to the national board of trade, now in session in this city.

At the banquet held last night by the board, Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon, the presiding officers in the two houses of congress, discussed the tariff, both advocating a careful revision of the country's revenue laws.

"A tariff which is revised without a thorough consideration of the industrial interests of America is doomed to disastrous defeat," said Mr. Fairbanks. "I have no ungenerous thoughts toward our commercial competitor beyond the seas, but I believe in the good wholesome doctrine that 'charity begins at home.'"

Asserting his confidence in the principles of the Republican party, Speaker Cannon declared that "if we can succeed, each watching the other, in revising our revenue laws, according to the best principles we shall succeed in substantially establishing the same policy that has made the Republican party solid."

"Some people say the party will go out of power as the consequence of this revision," he continued, "If so, be it. If you make it in accordance with American policies, then we will go out of power, rather than make it contrary to American principles and stay in power."

Banquet for Wainwright.

Marseilles, Jan. 21.—The prefect of the department of Bauches du Rhone will give a banquet Saturday night in honor of Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright, commander of the second division of the Atlantic fleet, and other officers of the American battleships.

AIDS IN THE SUIT AGAINST THE WORLD

WILLIAM TRAVERS JEROME.

New York, Jan. 21.—Speculation as to what action the district attorney of the county of New York will take in connection with the libel proceedings instituted by the federal authorities against the New York World, is in no way lessened by the admission by that official that he has decided to present the matter to a special grand jury. Mr. Jerome was in conference with Supreme Court Justice Dowling, at whose order the special grand jury was empaneled, but neither would throw any light upon the nature of the action contemplated.

BURNING OF SLASHINGS

By the Lumbermen Will be Required by New Law.

Various Bills Approved by the St. Louis County Delegation.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bill requiring lumbermen to burn slashings will probably be passed by the legislature. So much was developed at the joint meeting of the committees on forestry from both houses, held yesterday afternoon, to consider the measure proposed by the state forestry commission, designed to protect the forests from fire.

There was little evidence of opposition from the lumbering interests, and most of the testimony produced at the hearing was in favor of the bill.

William O'Neill of Cass Lake, superintendent of logging on the Indian reservations, told how the federal government works it. When timber is sold to lumbermen they are required to burn all slashings—tops, branches, etc.—so that no inflammable material is left to feed the ever-present forest fires.

Capt. O'Neill, who investigated the Chisholm fires in behalf of the gov-

Missoula, Mont., Jan. 21.—The flood conditions west of here are growing worse and all Northern Pacific eastbound through trains are stalled on the western division. SENATORS WILL IGNORE CLIQUES

Committee to Recommend Samuel Donnelly for Public Printer.

Washington, Jan. 21.—In an investigation of objections filed with the senate against the confirmation of Samuel B. Donnelly as public printer, the members of the senate committee on printing have discovered what appears to be a revival of the old "whaneta" and "kickapoo" cliques within the ranks of the labor unions at the great printing establishment. Members of the senate committee have determined not to take cognizance of the operations of these cliques, and, ignoring their activities, have decided to again report the Donnelly nomination to the senate, with the recommendation that it be confirmed.

HALF BREEDS ACCUSED OF INTRODUCING LIQUOR.

DEATHS MAY REACH 100

Horror of Chicago Crib Fire Grows With Details.

Unrecognizable Bodies of Victims May be Buried Together.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.—President Joseph D. Andrea, president of the Sewer and Tunnel Miners' association, expressed the fear today that the death list, resulting from yesterday's crib fire, may reach 100. "I am told," he said, "that there were about 175 men working at the crib when the fire started. If this proves true, the number of dead will easily reach 100.

Many of the men who are missing are undoubtedly at the bottom of the lake, and their bodies will probably never be recovered.

A meeting of South Chicago undertakers was held today, and it was agreed to hold a single funeral for all the victims and to bury them in one big lot, with a single monument recounting the nature of their fate. A meeting of friends and relatives of the victims was held this afternoon. Next

HOPKINS IS STILL IN LEAD

His Forces Agree to Stand Pat in the Voting.

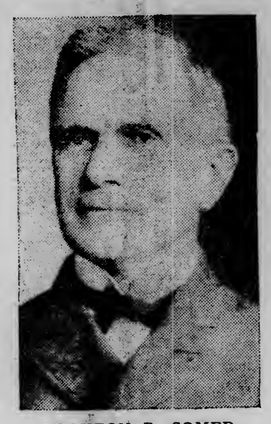

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 21.—With no certainty concerning the deadlock on the election of a United States senator, members of the general assembly prepared to go into the second day of the grilling joint ballots' session at noon today.

Five indecisive ballots were taken yesterday, and may be followed by fifty more before the order comes in the confusion. It was expected today that new candidates would be presented in the joint ballots, and Congressman W. A. Rodenberg of East St. Louis, it was declared, would make a good showing. The Hopkins men, cheered by their caucuses and an agreement to "stick," went to the fray apparently with their minds made up to play a waiting game, and ready to take advantage of any opening found. Short sessions of the two houses were arranged to precede the balloting at noon.

The sixth ballot for senator began at 11:14 a. m. It resulted in the house: Hopkins, 54; Foss, 13; Stringer, 63; Shurtleff, 12; Mason, 4; McKinley, 1; Lowden, 1. The seventh ballot was the same. The eighth ballot showed no change in the senate, the vote being the same as the sixth and seventh: Hopkins, 33; Foss, 3; Stringer, 13; Shurtleff, 1.

On the eighth ballot the house vote was: Hopkins, 41; Foss, 12; Stringer, 63; Shurtleff, 13; Mason, 4; McKinley, 1; Lowden, 1. On this ballot the total vote of the joint session was: Hopkins, 87; Foss, 15; Stringer, 76; Shurtleff, 14; Mason, 4; McKinley, 1; Lowden, 1.

HUNT FOR BOY, VAIN

North Dakota Parents, Grief Stricken, Search Twin Cities.

Last Seen of the Lad Was Just Before Christmas.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—With her health shattered and her mind almost bereft of reason from four weeks of constant brooding over the possible fate of her son, a lad of 15, who has vanished from his home at Grand Forks, N. D., Mrs. M. J. Stanchfield, wife of a wealthy clothier of that city, came to St. Paul with her husband, to enlist the aid of the police in unraveling the mystery.

Torn by doubts as to whether the boy has been murdered, kidnaped or was frozen to death in the northern wilds, the woman is on the verge of collapse. The boy's father has searched this city twenty-four hours in a vain effort to find some trace of the boy, and the fear that the boy has been foully dealt with grows. Today the unhappy couple are in Minneapolis.

Three days before Christmas Donald Stanchfield left his father's home to spend a few days with a friend living at Arvilla, N. D. The boy's parents had planned to go to Chicago over the holidays, and it was with their approval that the young man decided to spend the time during which they

RAILROAD WAR IS HOT

Grand Trunk Reported to be After the Great Western.

To Counteract Purchase of Wisconsin Central by Canadian Pacific.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Report has it that the Grand Trunk interests are now after the Chicago Great Western, to counteract the purchase of the Wisconsin Central by the Canadian Pacific. These two great Canadian systems are in hot competition for business and are also engaged in a campaign of territorial invasion that is brooking no obstacles. The Canadian Pacific already has its own tracks entirely across the Dominion between the two oceans and the Grand Trunk, with the assistance of the Canadian government, the latter building one-half the line, is pushing its road rapidly to the Pacific coast.

The Grand Trunk has had the advantage over the Canadian Pacific in that it owns a line in Chicago. The Grand Trunk comes into this city from the East and this gives it all connections in that direction. The Canadian Pacific will now reach Chicago from the West. As it is expected, the Canadian Great Northwest will have to colonize in hopes of securing future business, and the Grand Trunk to induce homeseekers from the Middle

New York, Jan. 21.—Newman Erb was today elected president of the Wisconsin Central railway, at a meeting of the directors held here following yesterday's transfer of the road's control to interests said to be affilliated with the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railroad. Mr. Erb was also chosen chairman of the Wisconsin Central board of directors, succeeding in both offices W. A. Bradford, whose resignation as president and chairman of the board, with the resignations of George J. Gould, F. L. Chadbourne, George W. Webster, F. M. Gates and George A. Fernald as directors, were reported at the opening of today's meeting. The vacancies on the board were filled by the election of Mr. Erb, F. H. Prince, W. M. Walden, E. N. Foss, Le Roy Baldwin, W. G. Woolman and C. G. Simpson.

He is strong enough to walk about and is growing stronger every day.

EARTHQUAKE DESTROYS SIX HUNDRED HOUSES; VOLCANO CAUSES HAVOC

Eruption of Lagnas Mountain, Tayabas Province, Philippines, Continue.

Constantinople, Jan. 21.—An official dispatch reports that more than 600 houses were destroyed by the earthquake yesterday at Phocaea, near Smyrna. The shocks continued and the people are seeking refuge in the mountains. The minister of the interior has been asked to render assistance to the sufferers.

Great Damage Done.

Manila, Jan. 21.—A dispatch from Lucena in the Tayabas province, confirms reports of a volcanic disturbance there and states that great damage was done by inundation due to the letting loose of the waters of a mountain lake.

The disturbances in Lagnas volcano continue.

Italian Relief Work.

Rome, Jan. 21.—Italy is confronted with a grave problem, the caring for the 200,000 persons made homeless by the earthquake of last month in Sicily and Calabria. At present it is estimated it is costing $100,000 a day to meet the simplest necessities of the poor.

Furthermore, the bestowal of charity is having an ill effect upon the lower classes, and many disorders are reported to have resulted. It is strongly urged here that public works be speedily inaugurated to offer employment for those who can labor, and that the bestowal of charity be restricted to those who are sick or helpless.

TERMINAL ELEVATOR

Report of Legislative Committee Filed With Governor Burke.

Offer Received of Site in Duluth at Reasonable Figures.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of the legislative committee appointed two years ago for the purpose of investigating the terminal grain elevator proposition has been made to Governor Burke. There is very little that is new in the report, federal inspection of grain being recommended, while the present system of discriminating against durum wheat is condemned. In North Dakota it is recommended that districts be created, each to be visited regularly by experts with authority to examine books and papers of elevators and discover methods of buying and docking grain and fixing of prices. Supervision of state elevators should be placed in the hands of railroad commissioners, with a graduated license tax to pay costs. A legal form of storage is

TO REPORT IN STORY'S FAVOR

Committee Finds That Vote Was Not Returned Correctly.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The elections committee of the house opened the ballot box from the Twenty-sixth district and found the vote had been returned incorrectly at the election. The committee will make a report favorable to seating John Story as against Col. W. P. Tuttle, but the matter will be thrown on the floor of the house with the submitting of all the evidence and arguments by attorneys.

CHILD LABOR BUREAU DESIRED

Committee Will Try to Induce Action by Congress.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Physical and social evils growing out of the employment of children as wage earners were set for discussion when the fifth annual conference of the national child labor committee opened today. One aim of the session is to induce congress to create a child labor bureau, which shall remedy evils. Among the speakers are Isaac L. Seligman of New York and Allan G. Hall of Nashville.

INDICTMENT FOR LIBEL IS LIKELY

This Result Forecasted From Washington End of Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Although the grand jury was not in session today, owing to some business in court requiring the attention of District Attorney Baker, his assistants as well as the department of justice officials were active in preparing for the examination of other witnesses tomorrow in the Panama libel suit.

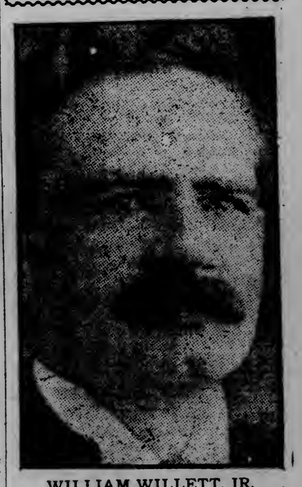

It is now hinted that the discovery yesterday that the Indianapolis News is not a corporation, but a private partnership, puts a different phase upon the inquiry affecting that publication, and this is borne out by the fact that although books and papers were called for, they were not presented to the grand jury.

The impression remains strong that an indictment will be returned from this jurisdiction. Vice President Fairbanks owns the Indianapolis News.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 21.—The house has passed the state-wide prohibition measure over the governor's veto, 61 to 36. The members denounced the governor in their speeches in bitter terms.

CHILDREN AS WITNESSES

Tell How Their Playmate Was Injured by Dynamite Cap.

Three-Cornered Battle Over Moving Picture Film, Nearly Ended.

Judge Dibell's court resembled a juvenile court or a kindergarten this morning. Anna Rober, aged 8 years, is suing the Oliver Iron Mining company for $15,000 for injuries to her hand. Some of Annie's witnesses were children. The defense had one child as a witness. All were under 10 years old, but they were good witnesses. They told their stories in clear voice, without hesitation, and the case practically rests on their testimony.

The case was submitted before noon, and the arguments will be made this afternoon, when the case will go to the jury. The plaintiff claims that the carelessness of employes of the company at a warehouse and powderhouse at the Monroe location at Chisholm had resulted in several children getting possession of dynamite caps.

The accident out of which the suit grows occured Sept. 16, 1905. It is claimed that one of the boys gave Anna a cap and it exploded. Part of the thumb and of the first two fingers of the left hand were blown off, and the child was permanently maimed. The defendant company claims that there was no negligence on the part of the employes.

The three cornered case of Charles Ellison vs. J. J. Frey, defendant, and the Toledo Film Exchange company, intervenor, which was called before Judge Ensign in district court yesterday afternoon, will probably be concluded this afternoon. The Toledo Film Exchange company has practically won its suit, as the plaintiff claims that the films exhibited in court are not the films deposited with Mr. Frey in security for a $15 loan. Frey claims they are the same films. At any rate, the Toledo company seems to have established a pretty firm claim to them.

H. H. Phelps' motion for a dismissal of the action for conversion against Mr. Frey, was argued shortly before the noon adjournment. The plaintiff claims that Mr. Frey converted the films deposited with him and seeks to recover $500, at which they were valued.

SURVIVOR TELLS OF FIRE IN CRIB

Put Face in Crevice—In Hospital, Next He Knew.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.—Nathan Daltz, the last workman to be rescued from the ruins of yesterday's crib fire in which many lives were lost, today told a thrilling story of his experiences. Daltz was entombed eight hours and was unconscious when taken from the wreckage.

"I went to the crib and started to work at 7 yesterday morning," said he. "My partner and I were about to go down in the shaft when I noticed smoke coming up from the floor. I think it was then a little after 8 o'clock. I was not surprised at the smoke, because I knew there was a blast down in the tunnel every morning about that time. There were about twelve men standing around and I remarked 'Look at this smoke coming up. One of the fellows said: 'Well, I'm going to smoke my pipe and make some more smoke,' in a joking way and we all laughed and thought no more about it. My partner and I then got into the bucket and were lowered into the pit.

"We had been down in the tunnel only a short time when I felt an awful heat on my face and hands. The bucket in which we had been lowered had been pulled up. I remarked to my partner that we must find out what was wrong. We stood there waiting for the bucket to come down again, but it didn't come. Instead, the tunnel was filling with smoke and the air was getting thick and heavy. Finally, it got so bad that we could hardly breathe and our eyes began to smart and run water.

"Finally, my partner put his hand on my shoulder and said: 'Nathan, surely something has happened up in the crib. This is awful, and I can't stand it much longer.' Then I felt his body quiver, and he fell to the ground. I was in awful pain myself, but I chaffed his hands and face for a few moments, but there was no response. He died there, but I didn't know it until this morning.

"When I left him I felt along the wall of the tunnel and found a crevice. Into this I put my face. It was cool and it seemed to me I stood there for two hours. That's the last I remember. The next thing I knew I was here in the hospital."

CHARLES L. TUTT IS DEAD; HEART FAILURE.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 21.—Charles L. Tutt, a millionaire mining man and smelter magnate of this city, is dead in New York city, according to a private message received this morning. Death was the result of heart trouble. Mr. Tutt was a heavy owner in the United States Smelting & Refining company and was interested in the Utah Copper company.

MRS. WRIGHT ARRAIGNED; HER TRIAL NEXT WEEK.

Devils Lake, N. D., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Mary Wright, charged with murdering her foster daughter, Beulah Cox, aged 17, on a farm near Derrick, N. D., was arraigned in the district court yesterday and pleaded not guilty. Her trial will begin next week. The defense will seek to establish that the girl died of heart disease, to which, it is alleged, she was subject, rather than being suffocated, as claimed.

Bohemian Catholics Meet.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 21.—Spirited discussion of the question of assessments took up the day at the biennial convention of the Bohemian Catholic workmen today. Secretary Moudry's report shows that the organization spreads over fifteen states, has 111 branches and 3,730 members. There was received during the year 1908 for the mortuary fund $27,310.43.

REPORT OF THE BOARD

Extension of Sanitary Sewer System Feature of Year's Work.

Concrete Bridges Replacing Wooden Structures--Street Cleaning.

Secretary Murchison has completed the twenty-second annual report of the board of public works. It is exhaustive, dealing in detail with all the work done during the year. It shows that during 1908, $96,777.87 was expended from the board of works fund, and $72,168.15 from other funds.

The feature of the year's work was the rapid extension of sanitary sewers. This has been most noticeable in the central hillside district, where the recent extension of the gas and water mains has been closely followed by the construction of sewers. The work was not confined to this district, however, and the extensions have been called for at intervals from Sixtieth avenue west to Sixtieth avenue east.

"The failure of the city to adopt at the outside a method of assessment which would be applicable by law to the various conditions and situations to be met with in different parts of the city," says the report, "has resulted in litigation which appears to be endless in its grounds for procedure. Through the honest efforts of the board to observe the instructions and decisions of the courts upon the various questions brought before them, it happens that the method of assessment employed in one year differs materially from that used in another. A perplexing situation was met with in assessing for the sanitary main trunk sewer in Forty-ninth avenue west, built under the charter amendment which permits the city, without petition of the property owners, to construct the sewer and assess the cost upon the property specially benefited. The amendment provides, however, that the sewer built in this way must be solely for outlet purposes, and that no other than outlet benefits can be included in the assessment.

"It was found impracticable on account of the platting to build the Forty-ninth avenue sewer in such a manner as not to afford facilities for direct connections by a large number of lots. The cost of the sewer was not increased in any way by this fact, nor could the city assess these direct benefits upon the property for which they were available. It was held by the court that these benefits, estimated at $2,800, could not be included in the general assessment for the sewer, and must be borne by the city.

A Warning.

"There is danger that in the present haste to extend the system, precautions may be overlooked and construction permitted which will be the source of trouble in the future. The Heeing & Rosewater plans, upon which the present system is based, designed that no sewage should be emptied into the harbor, between Rice's Point and Minnesota Points.

Proceedings are in progress at present, however, looking to the construction of an outlet sanitary sewer in Eleventh avenue west, having its outlet at the dock line. It would seem desirable to avoid this, but there are no definite plans in existence for another outlet, and a large section tributary to the proposed main is clamoring for a sewerage system. The plans for Lakeside, Woodland and West Duluth are as yet incomplete, not to mention Duluth Heights and Proctor, which should be taken into consideration in designing the general system. In the line of public improvement, there is no more important problem at present requiring solution than the question of sewerage, and in our opinion not a section of sewer main should be laid until its place in the system is shown by the established plans."

Concrete Bridges.

The report remarks upon the fact that a very good beginning was made in 1908 in the work of replacing wooden culverts and bridges with concrete structures. For some years the city has balked at maintaining all of the very large number of wooden bridges throughout the city, and some of them have been partially or entirely closed to traffic. The advantages of concrete construction have been urged from time to time, but this is the first year that specific appropriations for such work have been made. The sum of $20,000 was appropriated in 1908. The report states that this cannot fail to prove a first-class investment, and says that if a like amount could be allowed annually in the future, it will not be long before one of the most expeneive items in the maintenance list will be permanently removed.

A statement of Duluth's street improvements at the present time, including the 1908 work, is as follows: Miles graded streets, 113; miles gravel streets, 57.03; miles macadam streets, 29.60; miles cedar block, 10; miles sandstone block pavemnt, 2.6; miles vitrified brick, 1.47; miles sheet asphalt, 1.45; miles tar macadm, 8; miles creosote, .71 miles storm sewers, 18.18; miles sanitary sewers, 71.44. Number groups incandescent lamps, 354; arc lights, 428. The daily volume of sewage amounts to 700,000 gallons.

Street Cleanig.

Special efforts were made by the board during the year to keep the streets clean and two $1,000 street flushing machines were purchased for that purpose. The total area swept by hand during the year was 36,772,080 square yards; by machine, 5,653,082; and by flushing, 5,101,358.

The street cleaning equipment consists of fifteen patrol carts with hand brooms and scrapers; three machine sweepers; two flushing machines, two dump wagons, eight horses, and twenty-seven men.

During the season the quantity of street sweeping amounted to 7,548 cubic yards. This was dumped into the bay on the east side of South Fifth avenue west, or into the lake at Buchanan street.

The total expense of street cleaning during the year was $15,906.17, and in street cleaning during the year 3,617,000 gallons of water were used.

The report states that progress is being made in eliminating telegraph and telephone poles and overhead wires, but this progress is not as rapid as could be desired. The Duluth Telephone company has extended its underground mains along First alley from Third to Eighth avenue east, thence in Eighth avenue east to Second alley, easterly on First street to Third alley, and in Ninth avenue east from First street to London road. It also has removed its poles and lines from Second street between Second and Fifth avenues west, from Third street between First and Fourth avenues west, and from First avenue west between First and Fourth streets.

The North American Telegraph company has established underground conduits in Railroad street from Sixth avenue west to Eighth avenue west, thence in Fifteenth avenue west to Railroad alley to Eighteenth avenue west.

The report states that it is very desirable that the ordinance prohibiting overhead wires be amended to include all the streets and alleys in the vicinity of the new courthouse.

The board, during the year, paid from the revolving fund on account of grading and sewerage contracts let, $137,368.14, the estimated amount remaining unpaid being $23,840.40.

The total payments from the revolving fund to date amount to $1,258,203.15, and the obligations of the fund at the close of the year amounted to $30,573.42.

Following is a list of the improvements all of the preliminaries for which were made early in the year, which were deferred until 1909 at the request of the property owners affected by the assessments:

Garfield avenue sewer, from Ash to Ole avenues, $9,400.

Paving Fourth street, from Mesabe to Sixth avenue east, $58,953.

Paving Twentieth avenue east, from Superior to Fourth streets, $20,454.

Paving Second alley, from Lake to Fourth avenue west, $8,029.

Total, $96,831.

Nine contracts were let during the year for grading and paving, the total cost amounting to $78,227.35, all of which are practically completed.

Sixty-seven sewer contracts were let, at a total cost of $76,657.51. Twenty-two miscellaneous contracts were let, including street cleaning, sidewalks, etc., at a cost of $81,966.50.

The total number of all kinds of contracts let during 1908 exceeded that of any other year since the organization of the board.

The assessments levied to complete contracts ordered in 1908 for grading, paving, etc., amounted to $108,877.45, and for similar improvements carried over from the preceding year, $3,077.26.

Sewer assessments for work in 1908 amounted to $44,807.31, and for sewers continued from 1907 amounted to $8,319.55.

At the close of the year a number of assessments remain to be levied, due to the fact that contracts were let way into December. No assessments were levied for sidewalks during 1908, the first returns from the city engineer's office being turned to the board the last day of the year. Sidewalk assessments in 1908 for walks built the previous year amounted to $46,719.46.

Contracts continued amounted to $237,051, and assessments to $220,812.35.

The total expenditures on account of street, sewer and sidewalk repair work were: Labor, $39,172; material, $11,212.18, making a total of $50,384.28.

Expenditures from funds other than public works fund during the year were as follows: City lighting $28,846.17; New Duluth lighting, $2,607.86; Welsbach gas, $2,916.50; assessment expenses, $801.07; advertising, $2,085.10; circulating petitions, $327.50; polling $28.63; drinking fountains, $1,419.61; market house and armory, $1,366.73; pounds for horses dogs and cattle, $180; street sprinkling, $14,472.37; sidewalk corners, etc., $664.35; lighting government piers, $310.25; aerial bridge, $8,299.39; removing rock on West Superior street, $1,000.43; Duluth Heights firehall, $72.79; public library, $1,759.74; West end police station, $75.96; repairing street intersection at Fourth avenue west and Second street, $55.33; street flushers, $2,000; Lakeside town hall, $215.87; St. Croix avenue sea wall, $998.07; cleaning and repairing sewer connections, 210 West Second street, $96.35; filling culverts on Grand avenue, $230.25; Ammity creek bridge, $150; city hall, $58.83, a total of $72,168.15.

Leaves for New York.

Fred Engels of the Engels Art store left for New York city today, where he has been called to view a collection of rare paintings by celebrated foreign artists, including many by J. H. Jurres, the famous Dutch artist. Most of the paintings are on exhibit in this country for the first time. The exhibit will be made in the Kranshaar galleries, which are the most exclusive in New York. An exhibit of this sort is regarded as an important event by the art dealers of the country, and it is considered by them a great privilege to be invited to see the paintings and have the opportunity to make first selections. Mr. Engels expects to secure a portion of the exhibit, and the art lovers of Duluth and vicinity are looking forward to a rare treat in case he is successful in his visit. The Engels Art store is fast becoming the leading art store of the Northwest, and compares most favorably with the exclusive establishments of that sort in Chicago.

GIRL FORGER SENTENCED.

Ada, Minn., Jan. 21.—Maria Paulson, 16 years old, forged the name of a farmer, Ole Hesjedahl, to a check on a Fertile bank; also indorsed the name of John Hesjedahl as payee, signed her name to it and drew $33 from a Gary bank. She was arrested by the sheriff and taken before Judge Grindeland, where she confessed. She was sentenced to an indefinite term at the state training school.

A. C. PARSONS,
Candidate For Alderman, Fifth Ward.

To the Voters of the Fifth Ward:

I am a candidate for the position of alderman of the Fifth ward of the city of Duluth, on the Republican ticket. I have been a resident of Duluth for twenty years and of the Fourth precinct of the Fifth ward for fifteen years. I am a taxpayer and interested in the ward.

An alderman should be vigilant and faithful, quick to perceive and prompt to act. He should advocate and be himself a representative of good citizenship. He should not be the partisan of any special interest, nor the tool of any class or clique. While he should faithfully represent the interests of his ward, he should also study and vote for such measures and such policies as will advance the welfare of greater Duluth—the Zenith City—now rapidly forging to the front in commerce and manufactures.

While I believe that the rights of capital should be cordially respected and guarded, I also believe that labor should receive its just reward and be equally protected and respected. Men should be measured by their manhood rather than by their money. The rights of the workingman are just as sacred as those of the millionaire. None so wise or wealthy as to be entitled to a monopoly of privileges and possessions, whether under the forms of law or contrary to law. None so weak or ignorant as not to be entitled to a square deal.

These are my sentiments. If you approve of them, I solicit your support in the coming election for the position of alderman of the Fifth ward of the city of Duluth.

Don't fail to register Saturday Last day of registration. Very truly yours,
A. C. PARSONS.

JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

Peter Solerich Caught in Cogs of Wheels of Justice.

Wouldn't Let Boy Come to Duluth as a Witness.

It doesn't do to monkey with the buzz-saw of the law. Peter Solerich of Chisholm tried to clog the wheels of justice. He was caught in the cogs, and now has ten days in the county jail to think it over. Likewise, he will dig up $25, or take twenty days more to meditate upon the majesty and power of the law.

According to the evidence introduced, when Solerich was arraigned before Judge Dibell on a charge of contempt, at noon today, Pete is a boarder with a Mrs. Kostelic at Chisholm. He is also Mrs. Kostelic's husband-to-be. He works in the mine sometimes, remains at home to run the boarding house when he is so inclined, and is a sort of dominant spirit around the place.

Johnnie Kostelic, a boy 9 years old, was the innocent cause of it all. He was subpoenaed to appear as a witness for the defense in the case of Anna Rober vs. the Oliver Iron Mining company, which was called before Judge Dibell yesterday. Johnnie was to be conducted to Duluth, with several other boys yesterday morning, but when the man, who was to take in charge, called at the house, Solerich demurred. He wouldn't let Johnnie go. G. F. Olson, who called for the boy, said on the stand that he offered to pay Solerich's fare, if the man wanted to accompany the child. That wouldn't do either. Solerich said all the sheriffs and deputies in St Louis county couldn't take the boy to Duluth.

When the case was called yesterday afternoon, Johnnie wasn't on hand. The circumstances were related to the court and a bench warrant was issued for Johnnie and Solerich. One lone deputy sheriff was sufficient to enforce it and the two appeared in court this morning. Solerich was very much put out.

Solerich didn't give a very lucid explanation of his refusal to allow the boy to come to Duluth. He said the boy's mother was afraid he would be injured by a street car, a wagon or something. He appeared to be able to understand the nature of the subpoena, so the court held him in contempt and ordered him held in the county jail until Saturday noon. In addition he was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and to be held in jail until the fine be paid, not exceeding twenty days. Johnnie will go back to Chisholm in company with the other boys, who testified at the trial, all in charge of an officer, to see that they arrive safely.

FORMER RACE SECRETARY DENIES EMBEZZLING CHARGE

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 21.—L. S. Champine, former secretary of the Ward County Fair association, who was arrested a few days ago, after coming voluntarily from his home in Minneapolis, on a charge of embezzling $4,500 belonging to the association, has made the following statement:

"There is nothing to the charge that has been preferred against me. I am willing to have the fullest investigation made. I owe the racing association nothing. As soon as I heard that the officials wanted me I came voluntarily from Minneapolis. I am perfectly willing to have the court go into this matter in detail, and if it should develop that I owe, anything I will pay it."

A change of venue was taken from the court of Judge Lynch to that of Judge Murray, and the case was continued to Feb. 15.

The inmates ran to a house at some distance, clad only in their night garments. Incendiarism is suspected.

INSPECTING THE TUNNEL

C. N. Kalk, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Central railroad, is in Duluth today inspecting the work upon the tunnel with Resident Engineer Reed, and states that, besides the completion of all of but 296 feet of the heading of the tunnel, over half of the bench of the tunnel has been completed.

The heading is the upper part of the tunnel, the space beneath the curve of the arch, the bench being the rest of the space, or the lower part of the tunnel.

Just when the tunnel will be completed, Mr. Kalk or any other engineer of the road cannot estimate. It will depend, according to Mr. Kalk, largely upon the material encountered in the digging of the remainder of the tube. He says, however, that a great deal more than half of the entire work upon the tunnel has been completed, and that the work upon the subway entrance to the city should be completed well within a year from this time.

At the present time the Wisconsin Central has more than 500 men employed upon the tunnel and track construction work upon this side of the bay. The tracks are completed to within half a mile of the Grassy Point bridge. This means that with the exception of the gap, the tracks are completed from Superior to the western portal of the tunnel opening.

Plans for the Wisconsin Central depot in Duluth are in the possession of the construction department of the road and are being considered by the officials. These plans, however, are liable to revision. Just what kind of a depot will be constructed in this city, cannot be stated definitely at this time according to Engineer Kalk. The reason for this is that the officials of the road have not reached an agreement upon the plans as yet, according to the statement of Mr. Kalk. However, Duluth is assured of a modern and fine depot, the reason for the delay in the announcement of the plans being the desire to give this city one of the most modern depots in the country.

Orders New Cars.

The Wisconsin Central railroad has placed an order for 2,650 cars in anticipation of the increased business of the road and also due on account of the increase in the mileage of the road.

Some of the cars have been delivered to the road and are in use at the present time.

Colonist Rates.

Spring colonist rates are announced by the Great Northern railroad today. These rates show a $5 reduction from the rates in force last year. The rates apply from Duluth territory as far as Weed, Cal. They include all Pacific coast points and liberal stopover privileges are allowed. The one way rate has been fixed at $25. The rates will go into effect in March or early April.

One of Wisconsin's Mothers

Who Always Keeps Pe-ru-na in the House.

Mrs. Alvina Plamann.

"I am now able to do my housework again, and have a good appetite. I have used thirteen bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin. My husband and children are also in good health. We always keep Peruna in the house. I thank you a thousand times for your advice."—Mrs. Alvina Plamann, 1914 Walnut St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

IF any one really wanted to find out whether or not Peruna is good for the baby who would he naturally ask? Some one who never used Peruna? Some one who is prejudiced against Peruna? Some one actuated by selfish motives who is opposing Peruna for the sake of the notoriety?

Would any sane person who really wanted to know about Peruna ask any of these people? Of course not.

Who would they ask? They would ask mothers who have raised babies and used Peruna for their babies without number. They would ask the parents who love their families, and know more about Peruna than all the professional writers in the world.

Above we give the portrait and testimonial of one of the mothers who has used Peruna, and who has raised healthy and happy babies. We have many more such mothers in every state in the Union. These mothers give their testimonials entirely unsolicited, without pay or expectation of pay. Their only desire is to point out to other mothers a useful and reliable family medicine.

N. D. FAIRBANKS IS CHAMPION WOLF HUNTER OF THE COUNTY

N. D. Fairbanks, who receives his mail at Goodland, Itasca county, is the champion wolf hunter of St. Louis county for the year 1908. He was the champion in 1907, and for several years past has been bringing wolf pelts into the county auditor's office with great regularity. Other wolf hunters have good runs of luck and draw heavy bounty from the county for their prowess with the gun and trap, but Fairbanks always comes out on top.

During the year just closed Fairbanks drew $250 from the county, the bounty on eighteen wolves. During the year 1907 he was but one wolf short of that figure, getting $255 for seventeen wolves. Though he gets his mail at Goodland, Fairbanks lives on the St. Louis county side of the county line, a short distance from Floodwood lake. Goodland is the nearest postoffice to his claim.

St. Louis county paid bounty on 277 full-grown wolves and 11 cubs during the year just closed. The total amount paid out was $4,199, against $2,758 during the year 1907. The increase is a considerable one, indicating that there have been more hunters and they have had better success during the past year.

Several hunters are especially successful in killing the pests and their names appear often in the list of recipients of bounty. John Kangas, Mat Rautia, William Burnside and John Burnside were all quite successful during the past year. Rautia did one good stroke of business in June, when he came upon six cub wolves together and did away with them. He received but $4 bounty on each, but his act was probably just as beneficial as if they had been full grown.

But one woman bagged a wolf during the year. Mrs. Lizzie Brown was the fortunate Diana and she received her bounty, Jan. 17.

BIG JOB ON HIS HANDS

B. G. Segog Has Long Search for a Mysterious Drummer.

His Chance Remark Is Delaying Settlement of Estate.

For nearly a year, B. G. Segog, administrator of the estate of Thomas Scrivens, has been searching all over the country for a traveling salesman, name unknown, address unknown, usual place of residence Chicago—and Chicago is an awfully big town.

This salesman, once upon a time, told somebody or other that Thomas Scrivens has a daughter living in some place in Iowa. Thomas Scrivens died Feb. 21 of last year. A woman, claiming to be his wife, put in a claim for his estate, amounting in all to about $5,000. She lives at Fall River, Miss., and claims to have become separated from her husband some twenty years ago.

Mr. Segog wasn't satisfied with her claim, so he secured a stay of the closing of the estate from the probate court. Then he began a search for the daughter. The search is indirectly for the daughter, but directly it is for the one man who is known to know, or think he knows something of the missing relative of the old man.

The widow and her attorneys are insistent. In her deposition, Mrs. Scrivens alleges that the only daughter she and Mr. Scrivens had, died in New Bedford, Mass., years and years ago. Mr. Segog isn't satisfied with her proofs and he wants an investigation. He succeeded in securing another stay of sixty days from the probate court yesterday over the objections of Mrs. Scriven's attorneys.

Mr. Segog wants to investigate the marriage record. He wants to examine everything that may support or dispute Mrs. Scrivens' claims. Most of all, he wants to find the daughter.

Mrs. Scrivens and her attorneys are very much put out. They claim Mr. Segog is not an interested party, and hasn't any right to delay the closing up of the estate so long. But Mr. Segog wants to be sure of his ground before he turns the estate over to the woman, and he has secured the support of the court this far. Mrs. Scrivens has succeeded in gaining one point thus far. She secured an order of maintenance from the court, aggregating $500, to be paid in monthly installments of $50 each. She has that, at least, and she thinks she will get the whole estate when the proper time comes.

Came Near Choking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

FOUND FROZEN STIFF.

North Dakota Farmhand's Body is Located in Snowbank.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of William Camm of Des Lacs, who was lost in the storm of Dec. 30, was found yesterday a mile and a half east of the farm of Thomas Whitty, on which Camm was working. He was embedded in snow up to his shoulders and was frozen stiff.

Camm was doing chores for Thomas Whitty while the latter was visiting at Crary, N. D. Whitty's farm is about six miles south of Des Lacs. It is thought that some of Whitty's stock got loose, and that Camm started on horseback after them. The horse returned with a bridle on the next day, but nothing was heard from Camm. The neighbors started searching parties, who continued the search until last evening when Camm's body was found a mile and a half east of the house.

Camm's overcoat, under coat and underwear were open in front. It is thought that when he began to freeze he became feverish and tore open his clothing.

RAILROADS

COOK BACK FROM EAST

Held Consultation With Canadian Northern Officials in Toronto.

Denies Report That Canadian Northern Will Use Northeastern.

Wirt H. Cook, president of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, the property of the Canadian Northern Railroad company, returned today from a business trip to Canada and the southern part of the United States.

While upon his trip, Mr. Cook visited the Toronto office of the Canadian Northern railroad and held a conference with the controlling officials of that road, William McKenzie and Donald Mann, president and first vice president respectively of the Canadian Northern railroad.

If any developments resulted from this conference, Mr. Cook did not divulge them in his conversation today. He stated that no new developments had grown out of his visit to Toronto, and, that as far as he knew, there was nothing new to give out at this time.

Mr. Cook was asked regarding the sory, which comes from Cloquet, to the effect that the Canadian Northern, instead of taking the direct course from Virginia to Duluth Heights, will come into Duluth by an easier grade by using the Duluth & Northeastern to Cloquet, and the old Duluth & Winnipeg from Cloquet to Duluth.

There is nothing in it," said Mr. Cook. "That story is all bosh. There is nothing to it."

The story came from a very good source, and stated that the arrangements for this approach to Duluth were all but completed at the present time.

President Cook stated that the annual meeting of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad would be held the third of next month. The directors of the road that is now the property of the Canadian Northern will be represented at the meeting, according to the statement of Mr. Cook, but Mr. Cook said that he did not know that the Toronto directors of the Canadian Northern railroad would be represented at the meeting.

"It will be a formal business meeting, and nothing outside of the business affairs of the road will be transacted," said Mr. Cook.

Several lumbermen who are close to the lumber interests of the amalgamated Virginia & Rainy Lumber company, are in Duluth today. From a good source comes the report that the construction of the Canadian Northern extension to Duluth will be begun this year, but no official confirmation of the various rumors in regard to the contemplated action of the Canadian Northern officials will be given out at the office of the Rainy Lake road at this time.

HILL IS NOT WORRIED.

Does Not Care If Canadian Pacific Has Secured Wisconsin Central.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—In referring to the rumored Wisconsin Central purchase, giving the Soo line entrance to Chicago and forming a strong competitor for his own lines, James J. Hill said:

"What do I care if the Canadian Pacific has purchased the Wisconsin Central? I don't know anything about it, and from a business point of view it is a matter of supreme indifference to me. It is not that the deal would injure the coast roads. Is that so? Do you believe it? Don't you realize that the Canadian line is now tapping just the territory it is supposed to be seeking? Hasn't it got the use of all other railroads? What good would it do to buy a line of its own?"

Well-Kept Hands and Nails.

Well-cared-for hands are marks of good breeding—of refined mind and that cleanliness, which is akin to godliness. As far as the shape of your hands is concerned nature is responsible, but for their culture the owner alone can be held accountable. People of refinement and good breeding also agree that for a table beverage golden grain belt beer is without an equal. It is brewed from the best of nature's products and its daily use will remove indigestion, strengthen the weak and overworked. EXAMINATIONS ARE BEING HELD

High School Students Are Taking First Semester Test.

The halls of the high school present a busy scene today.

The examinations held at the end of each semester are under way.

Everywhere there is an air of hustle. The halls are full of hurrying youngsters, and the cloak rooms, with its convenient corners, shelter many a young man getting a last look at "solid" or "trig."

There are a few who have stood over 90 per cent in their studies so far this year that are exempt from examinations, and they are today and tomorrow enjoying a breathing spell in their school life, for they are allowed these two days to spend as they like.

The date of the Duluth-Pine City debate has been postponed from Feb. 5 to Feb. 17, on account of the fact that the regular meeting of the board of education is held on the night of Feb. 5.

SCHOOLS IN THE WOODS

Sunday School Union Workers Are Doing an Energetic Work.

Two of Them Are in Duluth Planning Further Campaign.

Far from the gleam of the electric lights and the whirr of the trolley cars, the American Sunday School association is establishing Sabbath schools, and no less than twelve have been launched in the woods of Northern Minnesota during the last year.

Two of the prominent state workers in this cause are in Duluth today on business connected with the association. They are John O. Ferris of Minneapolis, state representative of the American Sunday school union, and George W. Andrick, general missionary of the organization, whose headquarters are also at Minneapolis.

Under their direction, the union's work of establishing Sunday schools in the woods, and in keeping them up and flourishing after they have been given a start, is systematically carried on.

Communities, which by reason of their remoteness, are still somewhat primitive, have been given Sunday schools, where their children are taught the lessons of the Bible.

Of the twelve schools which have been started during the last year in this part of the state, nine are entirely new ones, and others are old ones revived. In these schools are twenty-five teachers, and the total enrollment is something more than 214 pupils.

Every day of the year the Sunday School union's missionaries are working, in their respective fields, starting up new schools here, securing recruits for established ones there, and making house to house and settlement to settlement visitations in the sparsely settled districts, in the interest of their project.

In this district more than 1,000 homes have been so visited during the last twelve months.

Including Messrs. Ferris and Andrick, who are here today, there are fourteen Sunday schol union workers in Minnesota, and in the spring three more will be added to the corps. The field missionaries are: L. W. Bates of Virginia, A. D. Maes of Lakeland, Horace J. Snyder of St. Charles, Samule Hedegaard of Crookston, E. F. Olander of Bemidji, G. F. Morton of Winebago, M. J. Aschim of Worthington, W. J. Smith of Brainerd, G. N. McCombs of Hewitt, George B. Caley of Marshall, Cyrus Sullivan of Owatonna, and M. B. Lewis of Red Wing.

The American Sunday School union is an interdenominational, evangelical, home missionary society, with Northwestern headquarters in Chicago, in charge of Rev. George P. Williams, D.D.

This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may, as a rule, be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. A Paradox.

A weeping Christian Scientist is one of the distinguishing characteristics of "The Three Twins" company, and this young woman, who believes in the surrounding of the All Good and who knows that nothing but happiness and joy awaits her in life, makes a tearful entrance and gushes tears of happiness and tears of misery during the entire performance. She is Della Nevin and plays the part of the weeping widow.

MISS DELLA NEVIN.

She is a living example of how far one can successfully portray emotions that one never entertains personally, for out of the character of her role in "The Three Twins," Miss Nevin is the cheeriest person alive, and absolutely believes it wrong to bow in sorrow before any of the "bludgeonings of chance." She is a perpetual mine of sunshine to the folks who are in daily contact with her.

PLENTY OF IT.

Fresh Air in Winter Will Save Doctors' Fees.

To hear and heed the call of the outdoors in winter is to insure oneself better health, better looks and a calmer spirit. The reason that there are so many breakdowns in the cold months is that people are afraid of fresh air, says an exchange.

To pamper oneself in a hot house is a fatal mistake, particularly for a child or for the man or woman of advancing years who has need of all the oxygen he can get.

Much fresh air is needed by everyone to keep the blood pure, the lungs expanded and the tissues healthy. If you have trained yourself to the belief that a draft means certain cold and an opened window is a precursor of pneumonia, train yourself out of it.

Gradually accustom yourself to having air in your room both day and night. At first use screens, so that the air does not blow directly on you; later they can be gradually dispensed with. Also lessen day by day the general temperature of the house.

On woman who had always lived in an overheated house became convinced of its injurious effects. She purchased a thermometer for each room, and as soon as it registered 70, opened a window or checked the steam.

If you would be well and feel well heed the call of outdoors winter as well as summer and let it into your homes, not in stingy portions, but frequently and abundantly.

Open your windows for your health's sake. What matter if it means a bigger coal bill; better that than big fees to the doctor.

DON'T TALK.

The Wise Learn When to Refrain.

If a man happens to pass through the kitchen during the beefsteak ordeal, let him tread lightly and with his tongue held well between his teeth, and let the wise refrain from—remarks, advises the Philadelphia Inquirer. Many unkind words, in fact, many divorces, find their beginnings in just such lowly sources.

And—think of it—why not. There she is, the bride. Steaming over a hot stove, her front hair in strings, her shirtwaist flecked with flying fat, and her fingers blistered. The hot blood is almost bursting through her face and she feels the perspiration streaming down her spine.

Then something he says irritates her. Can anyone blame her for wanting to ease her mind by having a quarrel?

So with a man when he is shaving. He has all he can do to keep from cutting his throat. Shaving is an interesting operation; any woman can understand that if she is observing. It takes the man's whole attention. He does not like to discuss the theater nor the grocer's bills.

Then, too, if the razor should slip! It is vastly safer for the wife to refrain from asking questions. If she values his happiness and hers she will maintain a dignified, sympathetic silence until he is shaved, washed, dressed and—has had time to heal.

Learn not to talk at certain times. Just keep still, everybody, when things seem to be going wrong. If there is anything that must be said, say it afterward, when the house is cool and calm and quiet.

the EVENING STORY

JOSHUA WHEELER'S FLIRTATION

By L. O. Hume.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

There is no more lonely experience than being among strangers in a large city, upon a holiday; so thought Lydia Hargrave, as she started out for the matinee one Thanksgiving afternoon, in a brave effort to enjoy the day, in spite of her lonely condition. Lydia belonged to an old cultivated family of Hartford, but, like so many of our old Eastern families, the strength of the Hargraves had been given to the accumulation of culture rather than the accumulation of dollars, and so Lydia found upon the completion of her four years in college that she must give up her mind to the practical things of life.

Lydia accepted a position in a young ladies' seminary at Virginia, where she "gave satisfaction" for six years. At the end of that time her energetic Yankee nature demanded a change; and so the following year found her entering upon new duties in a young ladies' school in Buffalo. Lydia had been away from Hartford over ten years, and had changed during that time from a happy, care-free girl to a well-poised, self-sufficient woman.

Mr. Joshua Wheeler, middle-aged, well-to-do and a merchant of Hartford, found himself held in Buffalo over this same Thanksgiving day. And he, too, found little satisfaction in trying to view happiness through other men's eyes. He did not know that Lydia was in Buffalo—indeed, he had not seen nor thought of her since she was a child—and so, as a well dressed, attractive young woman walked rapidly down Genesee street toward the hotel, and beamed pointedly upon him, he did not know that she had ever seen her before, but he was lonely and she looked attractive and encouraging. As she came nearer she smiled, hesitated as if to stop, said: "How—do—you—do?" and sped on.

Mr. Wheeler was an eminently respectable man, a member of the Presbyterian church, and devoted to his family, but he was lonely, and Lydia certainly had been encouraging.

Lydia, as she turned down Genesee street, headed for the Star theater, was delighted to see some one from her old home, and approached Mr. Wheeler with happy confidence. As she came near enough to speak to him, she saw plainly that he did not recognize her. She hesitated, thinking to force his recognition, when to her chagrin she realized that she had attracted the attention of a number of other men who were lounging about the hotel entrance, and so, filled with embarrassment and indignation against Mr. Wheeler for not knowing her, she hurried on. She had not gone far, when she heard rapid footsteps behind her, and turning immediately, discovered Mr. Wheeler. In his most suave manner Mr. Wheeler raised his hat and inquired if she was going to the matinee.

"Yes," said Lydia, tentatively.

"May I join you?" murmured Mr. Wheeler.

"I should be most pleased to have you," she replied, flushing to the roots of her hair.

Lydia had been rowing her own boat for over six years and had learned to steer.

Mr. Wheeler secured their seats and they were comfortably settled with some minutes to chat before the curtain went up. Lydia could not feel certain that Mr. Wheeler did not know her, and in order to test the point, said:

"Now you must tell me who you are."

Mr. Wheeler hesitated, then with emphasis that was slightly overdone said:

"Calhoun—Calhoun; I haven't a card with me, but I'm Calhoun—William Calhoun."

Then she knew.

"And where are you from, Mr. Calhoun?" sweetly murmured Lydia.

"I'm from New York."

"New York city?"

"Yes, from the" metropolis. And now you must tell me your name."

Lydia could not think of any high-sounding, romantic name, so she chokingly murmured: "Jones, Mary Jones."

"O, come now, your name isn't Jones; tell me what it really is."

Lydia was in to win.

"But it is Jones, and it is unkind of you to doubt it. It is bad enough to have to go through life with such a plebian name without having people make personal remarks about it."

Here the curtain went up and their conversation was interrupted. Just before the last act her escort said:

"You will dine with me, won't you?"

"No, I can't. It would make it too late when I reached home."

"Oh, no, it wouldn't. I'll get a carriage and take you home."

"No, it would take too long."

"Well, surely, then you'll have a cup of coffee with me. You won't let our friendship end here like this?"

"Yes, I can have a cup of coffee with you."

After the performance Mr. Calhoun ordered a bountiful luncheon. They chatted along happily through their dainty repast, until Lydia showed symptoms of escape, when Mr. Calhoun said, with an unpleasant emphasis:

"I'm going to take you home."

"No," said Lydia, trying to fence, "it is so far out to my house that you would get lost, and, perhaps, never get back.

"I'm going to take you home. You have led me to believe that I might, and I don't intend to let you go alone."

"But your interpretation is wrong."

"What other interpretation is there?"

"This. I had every right to speak to you—every right to let you go to the matinee with me, for I have enjoyed your acquaintance, and the acquaintance of your wife and daughters, for many years Mr. Joshua Wheeler of Hartford."

Mr. Wheeler slumped.

Lydia donned her wraps, and still smiling broadly, extended her hand.

"I thank you for the jolliest afternoon of my life. Nor will you take me to my car?"

"In heaven's name, who are you?" ejaculated Joshua.

"Mary Jones of Buffalo," smiled Lydia. "Will you take me to my car?"

"I will."

And he did.

As a result of last night's hearing of the case for a new Northern Minnesota normal school, the house normal committee has decided unanimously that the school is needed and this afternoon it will begin to hear the claims of the several communities that are seeking the school.

The house printing committee reported for indefinite postponement the Ware bill requiring publicity of newspaper ownership, and the report was adopted.

The house committee on public health offered a substitute for the two bills introduced, prohibiting newspaper advertisements of medicines for private diseases. The substitute bill includes in the prohibition not only the newspapers, but those who advertise, and also the use of handbills or other advertising methods to celebrate the virtues of the nostrums.

The house printing committee approved the bill providing that copies of legislative journals and printed bills shall be sent to all newspapers that demand them.

The house adopted a resolution by Representative J. T. Johnson of Fergus Falls, calling for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the accounts of the state agricultural society, to see why no detailed financial statement has been made and what the society does with its sales of privileges on the state fair grounds.

Two bills providing for the initiative and the referendum came into the house this morning, one by Representative J. N. Johnson and the other by Representative Labeck.

The senate committee on state prison approved the Sullivan bill, providing for the construction and completion of the state prison buildings, increasing the allowance from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000, and the annual tax levy to that end from $200,000 to $250,000.

The senate judiciary committee offered a bill fixing the dates for general terms of the district court throughout the state. The object is to have the terms fixed by law, instead of being subject to change by the judges.

At the opening of the senate session this morning, Senator Works of Mankato, Democrat, said he understood that a committee had been appointed to say what bills should go through and what should not. He referred to the Republican steering committee, appointed according to custom. He wanted to know whether bills must be submitted to this committee before being presented to the senate, also where the committe meets and whether the minority might not also have such a committee. His sarcastic inquiry elicited no information, but some joking.

Among the bills were these: Senator Cook, prohibiting the driving of hobbled horses in races; Senator Stephens, increasing the railroad and warehouse commissioners' salaries to $5,000; Senator Anderson, giving county 15 per cent of the liquor license money, except in cities of the first class; Representative Krdause, limiting automobiles to eight miles an hour, crossing railroads and public roads; Representative Washburn, providing a state legislative investigation bureau under the state library commission; Representative Washburn, making the city clerk, city attorney and city assessor elective for four-year terms in cities of 50,000; Representative White, providing a limit of one saloon to each 500 people; Representative Goodspeed, putting the Soldiers' home under the board of control; Representative Goodspeed, allowing electric railways to carry freight in cities and villages; Representative Gates, requiring names of ingredients to be printed on patent medicine bottles; Representative Pfaender, allowing cities to regulate against transient merchants; Representative Ferguson, accepting for the state, if university regents approve, 2,200 acres in Fond du Lac reservation for a forest reserve.

EXPOSED TO DIPHTHERIA

Children of Irving School in Danger of Infection.

Fabian Baudin, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Baudin of 31 South Fifty-third avenue west, died suddenly last evening of diphtheria. The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence, with interment at Calvary cemetery.

The boy had been ill since Saturday, but he did not appear seriously ill, and no physician was called until yesterday afternoon, at about 6 o'clock, when the case developed startling symptoms. A physician was then summoned, who immediately pronounced the case diphtheria in a very advanced stage. Anti-toxin was administered, and the doctor was constant in his attendance, but the disease had too firm a hold, and the child died at about 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Baudin had no idea that their boy had diphtheria until the physician pronounced it such. His sickness was apparently of such a mild nature that the mother thought it could be relieved by a few simple home remedies.

Not knowing that their brother had diphtheria, the other children in the family were allowed to attend the Irving high school, where they are students. No quarantine, of course, was placed on the Baudin home, where there are several boarders, and the inmates were allowed to go and come at will.

The school will not be closed unless other cases develop. It is important now to impress upon the parents the great necessity of reporting the first signs of illness, in order to prevent a possible epidemic.

A number of cases of diphtheria have developed in the neighborhood of the Irving school lately, but all of them are reported to be progressing favorably. The little daughter of H. L. Scribner, on Fifty-sixth avenue, was taken with diphtheria last evening, but the child is reported to be doing well.

ENGINEERS ARE RUNNING LINES

Canadian Northern Ore Docks Are Promised for West Duluth.

Each day new rumors hint at the great industrial development ahead of West Duluth in the near future. Railroads are building, and are being planned to pass through that portion of the city; factories are growing, and new ones are expected with the completion of the steel plant, now in the first stages of construction.

A young engineer, who, with a crew, has been running lines in West Duluth for the past two or three weeks, was today questioned concerning what he was doing. He replied that he was working for the Canadian Northern.

The Canadian Northern will build its ore docks at the foot of Forty-third avenue west, and the company is making a preliminary survey, with the idea of having the road enter the city through a break in the hills at the top of Fortieth avenue west.

PLAN FOR MAIN TRUNK SEWER

City Engineer McGilvray is drawing plans for a West Duluth main trunk sewer, to be built next summer. It will consist of two intersecting mains. One will be along Sherburne street from Sixty-third to Fiftieth avenues west, and the other will be along the right of way secured by the city along Keene's creek.

Both will merge at Fifty-third avenue west and Polk street, and will run along Polk to the Northern Pacific tracks, thence along Front street, recently dedicated to the city by the West Duluth Land company to Forty-ninth avenue west, at the bay front. These two mains will make it unnecessary for any more main trunk sewers to be built in West Duluth for many years to come.

Plans are also being arranged for a sanitary main trunk sewer at Fifty-fourth avenue east. This avenue will be paved next summer, and City Engineer McGilvray recommends to the city that the sewer be laid early in the spring, before paving starts, thus saving money and trouble in tearing up the pavement after it has once been laid.

The defendant put in a counter claim for $220, claiming that Mr. Chamberlain converted that amount in collections.

BUCKSHOT FOR BURGLAR

Senator Hudnall Shoots Man Found Entering His Residence.

Early Morning Visitor Failed to Heed Warning to Stop.

As the result of trying to break into the residence of Senator George B. Hudnall at 3 o'clock this morning, Tilko Repa lies at St. Mary's hospital in a precarious condition, with a charge of shot in his face and back, discharged from a weapon in the hand of the senator.

At an early hour this morning Mr. Hudnall was aroused from his slumbers by the maid, who told him that burglars were trying to gain entrance to the house. The senator loaded his gun with buckshot and waited in an opened upper story window.

He observed the man trying to gain entrance through the basement window and asked him what he wanted. He did not answer and the senator not knowing how many of them there might be shot at him twice. One shot took him in the head knocking out a couple of teeth and the other in the back.

At the second shot the man fell to the ground and Mr. Hudnall telephoned for the ambulance.

No information can be secured from the man on account of the fact that he speaks very poor English. While waiting for the hospital wagon, policemen tried to get something out of him, but the best they could get was oaths.

Tilko Repo, it is said, was the same man who had tried earlier in the evening to gain entrance to the residence of Bishop Schinner. Repo lives at 497 Bay street and very little is known of his affairs.

NEW ELEVATOR.

Great Northern Will Construct Mammoth New Storage House.

The Great Northern railway today began the construction of a new 2,000,000 bushel grain elevator, to replace the one burned in 1907.

Schmidt Brothers & Hill have the contract for the excavation, and it is understood that they will construct the elevator itself, which will be either of concrete or steel. It is planned to complete the excavation by the end of next month, so that construction work on the elevator may be started at once, for it is the hope of the company to have it ready for use by Aug. 1, when the shipping season commences.

The new elevator site is just to the east of Great Northern Elevator "S." It will only be a storage elevator and not a handling house. For this reason only conveyance machinery will be installed. It will be built on the tank style, like the big Peavey elevator.

When this elevator is completed, the Great Northern will have the largest elevator storage system in the world, where the grain is handled through one house. The capacity of the system will be 5,600,000 bushels. There is another large system at Port Arthur, Can., but there they have two handling houses.

UP TO DEFENSE.

Must Prove Shooting of Erick Young Was Accidental.

During the arguments of the attorneys in the trial of Matt Kramer this morning an unusual court ruling came up.

The arguments for the state were opened by Assistant District Attorney McKay, District Attorney Foley stating that he would reserve his arguments until Attorney Dietrich of the defense had concluded his. Attorney Dietrich objected to this, stating that his place was last. In regard to his protest, the judge made an unusual ruling, placing the burden of proof on the defense.

The judge ruled, that owing to the fact that Kramer admitted that he had shot Young, and that Young had been found dead, it was up to Kramer to prove the shooting was accidental.

THE LINE IS A LONG ONE

Over Fifty Lodgers Accomodated Nightly in City Hall.

Between fifty and sixty lodgers are accommodated nightly at the city jail. These men present a pathetic sight. Most of them have passed the half century mark. They are members of the down-an-out club. Many of them seem utterly discouraged, and have little or nothing left to live for.

This number is smaller than the number accommodated at the jail last winter, when Duluth's bread line became so famous, but the fifty or sixty are significant of the fact that the supply of labor this winter exceeds the demand.

The men are most of them willing to work, but say they can find nothing to do. They have no place to sleep, practically nothing to eat, and are compelled to apply night after night for lodgings. The faces are not always the same, for some of the unfortunates manage to secure employment, or leave town, and new faces are constantly being added to the line to take the places of the old.

Residents of the East end and along the hillside are complaining that there is an unusually large number of tramps asking for handouts these days. The men have hard luck stories to tell, and their one cry is for food. Some of them are professional tramps, and others are considered really deserving.

Lodging quarters at the city jail are rather small, when it comes to accommodating these outsiders, and there is a plan on foot to house them in the basement of the city hall when the municipal court offices are removed to the new McDonald building, adjoining the police station on the west.

The faces of the men applying nightly for lodgings present an interesting study. Some of them are those of hardened criminals, and others belong to men who have been merely unfortunate, who are honest as the police could ask, but who were careless of money in their youth, and therefore have nothing to fall back on in their old age.

Some young men ask for lodgings. They are down an one merely temporarily, and expect daily to find work. Perhaps some of them spent their last dollar in paying their fare to Duluth, expecting to find employment here, on the reputation of Duluth as being a labor center, only to be disappointed upon their arrival.

A SECOND STANDARD OIL.

President Roosevelt has for a second time, in his veto message to congress last week, called attention to the nation's carelessness in giving away valuable natural rights and privileges.

The veto is of a bill granting certain water rights on the James river in Missouri and the case is identical with that of the Rainy river veto of last April. The matter is one of the highest importance to the people of this country and particularly to the people of Minnesota. No state in the Union has such magnificent water powers as Minnesota and the conservation of these water powers and the holding of them for the benefit of all instead of for the few is of overwhelming importance to us and to our children.

The president points out the fact that almost one-third of the known water powers of the country are now controlled by private interests and that the people of the country have surrendered these valuable rights practically without anything in return. He further points out that the movement to secure control of the water powers of the country is but in its infancy, and if the people of the land do not rouse to an appreciation of the situation, it will ere long be firmly in the grip of a monopoly greater and more cruel in the tribute it can levy upon us than is the Standard Oil.

It would seem as though we had had experience enough in our large cities in giving away valuable franchises, and that we ought to have learned a lesson. Yet we are pursuing the same course with our water powers. Already a large part of them are in the possession of private individuals—a possession which will entail to our sons and our grandsons and their children after them, the same unequal contest with vested interests and the money power which so overshadows all the industrial and political life of our own day. Smarting under our helplessness against the extortions of great trusts and monopolies we are nevertheless carelessly and freely giving away rights which will in time create a monopoly greater and more exacting than any that we suffer from today.

There is need for the people to give heed to this matter; need for them to fix firmly in mind that "the policy pursued in making these grants is unwise in giving away the property of the people in the flowing waters to individuals or organizations practically unknown, and granting in perpetuity those valuable privileges in advance of the formulation of definite plans as to their use." This is the keynote of both the James river veto and the Rainy river veto; it is a text which congress and the people need to take to heart to the end that we may be delivered out of the hand of a monopoly far more oppressive than those whose yoke we now wear and whose burden we bear.

THE LINCOLN CENTENARY.

Are the people of Duluth going to take any more than a passing notice of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln who, equally with Washington, is first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen?

Other cities have already moved in this matter. Lincoln was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, on Feb. 12, 1809, of the most humble parentage and died in the city of Washington April 15, 1865, the first man of the land, if not of the world. Every day since that fatal day, has added to the love which the American people bear him What shall we do about it? Shall we be content with some newspaper mention of this man whom we love, or shall we take time together to honor his memory and to make it more green?

It is proposed, and worthily, that the nation do something at this time to commemorate forever to the eye of flesh the greatness of the martyred president, but it is equally fitting, and perhaps more to be desired, that every city and every hamlet and every man and woman in the land do something on Feb. 12, 1909, in honor of the man who did so much for them. No grander memorial can any man have than the expression of a people's love for him. Let us not hide our love for him in our hearts here in Duluth, but let us rather join together to give free expression to it.

The people of America love to think of the great things that Lincoln did, but they love more to think of the great heart of him. No man, in his day at least, might overmatch him in wisdom of the head, but in the wisdom of the heart he was so far superior to his fellows that where they grouped in darkness he walked in the clearest light serene. When he pardoned the father of little ones, some lad of a brother, or the only son of his mother, the statesmen who did his bidding chafed and fumed for discipline lost, but the bleeding heart of the nation was bound up a little, and Abraham Lincoln had builded far better than his worldly-wise captains knew His deeds of mercy are among the most precious and sacred of the memories of a terrible war. But for them, who knows? The heart of the nation might have broken.

Soon it will be fifty years since that awful war began. In a few days it will be one hundred years since was born the man who through those years of rack and wreck held the nation in the hollow of his hand, to let it go when it was safe again, though sorely wounded. But for him, the nation might have died. Had he but lived, we might have been spared years of sorrow. The South might not have been so sinned against, might not so have suffered. Be that as it may, few men have played the man's part so well since the world began. Through him, this nation, under God, has had a new birth of freedom; through him, this government of the people, by the people, and for the people, has not perished from the earth. The prophecy that he gave us in these grand words has come true, and is daily coming more true, and he it was, largely, that made it to come true.

Remembering these things what shall Duluth do about a proper observance of the Lincoln Centenary?

WHAT THE PRECEDENTS ARE.

It was the intention of the founders of this government to "secure the blessings of liberty" by establishing a co-ordinate form of government, each branch of which should be, as far as possible, independent of each other branch.

To that end they established a legislative department which should have, without interference on the part of the executive or the judiciary, the business of making laws for the people, and they established an executive department which should have without interference from the legislature or the judiciary the business of enforcing the laws. The executive cannot command the legislature as to the making of law and the legislature cannot command the executive as to the enforcing of law.

Those who constitute the different departments of government sometimes forget this very plain and simple fact. The senate of the United States forgot it when it took umbrage at the refusal of President Roosevelt to permit it to interfere with his administration of the attorney general's department. The senate had a right to ask for the information it desired, but it had no right to go over the executive's head to secure it, and it was the undoubted right of the executive to give the information or withhold it as he saw fit.

The prompt and vigorous message of the president to the senate notifying them that the legislature cannot dictate to the executive in the matter of the enforcemen of law, has brought forth from the president's enemies another howl about the encroachment of the executive upon the authority of the legislative branch of the government. The editorial columns of the New York World, the New York Sun, the Indianapolis News and other rabid anti-administration papers reek with insinuations of usurpation of authority on the part of the executive, notable among which is the declaration that no other president ever so ventured to extend his authority over the legislature.

President Roosevelt's rebuke to the senate, however, has a prototype in the stern refusal of George Washington to comply with the demand of the house of representatives in 1796 for certain information. Washington based his refusal on "a just regard to the constitution and to the duty of my offiee." The house indulged itself in wild talk about Washington's usurpation of power but it did not get the information it desired. Another famous case in point was the censure by the senate of President Andrew Jackson for his action with regard to the Bank of the United States in 1833, a censure in which the senate later admitted its error by expunging it from its record.

So intimately related are the branches of our government that these outbursts of jealous care that their powers shall remain inviolate are to be expected. They afford the enemies of public officials a means of attack, but they do no real harm; on the contrary they help to emphasize and distinguish the functions and duties of each branch of the government and to establish more firmly the wise intentions of the government's first builders.

SENATORS-ELECT.

There has been a notable accession by means of this week's elections for United States senators to the ranks of the men in whose ability, integrity and progressiveness the country has confidence.

The election of Root on the Atlantic and of Chamberlain on the Pacific are particularly noteworthy. One is the foremost statesman of the nation, a man of rare brain power, of the most brilliant conceptions, and thoroughly schooled in all the needs of his country. His name in American history promises to be quite as great as that of the giants of the country's earlier statesmanship. The other is a man of ability, imbued with the rising confidence and resistless ambition of the new West. His election, being a Democrat, by a Republican legislature upon the command of the people of his state will make him a marked figure at Washington. Senator Cummins represents the progressive Middle West and adds one more vote and one more eloquent voice and one more stout heart to the people's forces. Would that we had got Folk to sit beside him! Burton will replace the able but noisesome Foraker. His long experience, brilliant abilities and unswerving loyalty to the policies which the country is demanding will make him a tower of strength to the good government party.

The senate will show other new faces, some of whom are not yet well known to the country. The senate will find that it has to work in a different atmosphere, more progressiveness, less hostility to the policies the country is demanding. The net gain to the people in the United States senators-elect is very great.

Tillman must feel pretty bad about that Willett speech.

Try as we may we have not been able to make pulp of the paper trust.

When Taft does not like what congress does he'll sit down on it. That's all.

The year is young yet—time for making new resolutions and mending old ones.

Roosevelt has been suggested for many places and many times consigned to one.

Governor Patterson vetoes the prohibition bill in Tennessee, and Carrie Nation three thouand miles away!

Mr. Taft has taken his stand in Dixie land and he is like to die there if he eats eighteen-pound 'possums every day.

Less than one-third of Duluth's voters are registered. Are the voters indifferent, or are they just playing 'possum?

The president intimates that the water we are not wasting by the removal of the forests we are trying to bottle up in free franchises.

Take them all in all, the senatorial elections of the week are more satisfactory to the country than any which have been held for many years.

In fifty years the manufactured products of Minnesota have increased from $3,000,000 to $350,000,000, and yet we have only "scratched the surface of our resources." Think of that!

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Victor Power of Hibbing, at the St. Louis yesterday, is of the opinion that the plan of advertising the resources of the state is a good one, and points out that the northern part of the state would be the greatest benefactor from such a plan upon the part of the state legislature.

Mr. Power points out that there are many resources in the northern part of the state, other than mining. But to the general public, 100 miles distant from this county, it is not generally known that some of the most fertile lands in the state lie up in this part of the country. Mr. Power suggests that the only way in which the public will ever know that there is valuable farming land in this section of the state is for the state to advertise the fact that it has some very good goods in the northern end of the showcase, that have apparently escaped the attention of those who have been bargain hunting for this very article; farm lands that are fertile and that are not excessive in price.

Further, Mr. Power states that there are men in the northern part of the state who are looking for the time when the mining industry will not be the chief industry of this part of the state. Some men in the northern part of the state are of the opinion that the agricultural movemnnt, which is setting in so strongly at the present time, will result in a great change in this section of the state, and that in a few years people will know the northern section of the state as a great dairy center and wonder why the development had never begun before.

John Dwan of Two Harbors was at the St. Louis hotel yesterday. Mr. Dwan says there is nothing of particular news interest in the northern part of the state at the present time, but that the question of the tonnage tax is a question in which everyone in the mining district of this state is vitally interested, and that the progress of legislation on this line will be a subject of the greatest interest to those who believe that the welfare of the northern counties would be materially affected by such legislation.

Joseph Pietra, at the McKay hotel yesterday, is authority for the statement that many Italians will come to Minnesota during the course of the present year. This is a part of the movement that has already set in from the districts that were destroyed by the earthquake and fire, according to Pietra.

If Pietra's information is correct, many of these immigrants will come to the northern part of the state for settlement. He says that Italians in this country have received letters by the thousand from friends and relatives in Italy, who desire financial aid in many cases, information in other instances, while most of the letters inform the friends and relatives in the United States that the writers are coming to the United States to make a home.

Part of Pietra's statement is borne out by the increased immigration figures. The earthquake which attracted the attention of the entire civilized world has resulted in thousands of the Italians leaving the districts that to them are filled with horror. The port of New York has already begun to show increased figures for immigration, and a majority of the immigrants landing in New York of late have been of Italian nationality.

The fact that there are a great many Italians in the northern part of the state may lead some of the relatives and friends in Italy to decide to come to this state. Pietra says it will, and that the early months of the present year will see hundreds of Italians coming to this section of the state to find new homes.

T. A. Crosby of Chicago was at the Lenox yesterday, and made the statement that the people of Illinois and Iowa were strong for tariff revision. "Western representatives will hear from the people of Illinois and Iowa, should there fail to be some action upon the tariff," said Mr. Crosby. Mr. Crosby is the secretary of the Crosby Furniture Company of Evanston, Ill., and he says that he doesn't see how a judicious reduction of the tariff is going to hurt the manufacturing interests of the country. He says, however, if the tariff isn't revised, the feelings of certain representatives will be hurt by the blunt words of their constituents.

"It has reached a point where the people of the West, that is, a certain proportion of them, are tired of the interests of the East dictating the current of national legislation, and the attempts of predatory incrests to delay and then have a tariff revision that will be vetoed by the president for the reason that it is a political subterfuge, are arousing the ire of the people of the West, and some congressmen may have some very difficult things to explain, unless there is some definite and effective action taken on tariff revision."

THE WEATHER.

This is a typical January thaw. The air is almost springlike again today, and it has been threatening rain for the last twenty-four hours. The thermometer will fall somewhat tonight, but tomorrow will be warm again. The thermometer has not gone below the freezing point for the last twenty-four hours.

A year ago today it was raining.

The sun rose this morning at 7:45 o'clock and will set this afternoon at 4:54, making nine hours and nine minutes of sunlight.

R. E. Clark, acting forecaster, makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the past twenty-four hours rain has fallen over the Pacific coast and rain or snow over the Rocky mountain and plateau states and the upped lake region, due to the easterly movement of the low pressure areas central respectively over British Columbia and Lake Superior. The districts east of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers are still under the influence of the eastern high pressure area, which is now central over the middle Atlantic coast, attended by nearly stationary temperatures. The northwestern disturbance overspreads the greater part of the region west of the Mississippi valley. The temperatures over this region have risen slightly since Wednesday, while those over the lower Mississippi valley are much higher. A small area of high pressure, now central over Manitoba, is attended by colder weather in the upper Rocky mountain and plateau districts."

Discretion.

Chicago Journal in Readings From Tolstoi: A man will shout "Fire!" in a crowded building, and in the crush of the mob tens, hundreds of people are killed. Such is the obvious harm that may be produced by a word. But that harm is just as great when we do not see the people who are ruined by our word.

A wound inflicted by weapons may be cured, but never a wound inflicted by the tongue.

We are all transgressors. He who does not sin in his words is a perfect man who is able to put a restraint upon all his body. Thus do we bridle the mouths of horses in order to make them obey us, and we rule their bodies; thus also ships, however large they may be and however strong the winds that drive them on, are steered by a small helm at the will of the pilot; thus also the tongue, though small, does a great deal. A small fire can burn a great many things; the tongue is also a fire, an embellisher of untruth. Are you wise and rational? Prove it in deed by good behavior with sensible sickness.—"Jacob's Message."

Governor's Motto "Forward."

Pine Poker: In point of length and scope of its subject matter, Governor Johnson's biennial message rivals the annual messages to congress of President Roosevelt. In view of his probable candidacy for the presidency four years hence, the message will doubtless be widely read over the entire country. The fact that it is so comprehensive in dealing with the many public questions of the day will leave the people little for speculation concerning his attitude upon these questions. Through his public utterances and these messages the general public will know just about where the governor stands. The message suggests many commendable reforms in the state government, and while in all probability but few if any will be consummated in the immediate future, Governor Johnson deserves the applause of the people for keeping these suggested reforms in the public eye. Governor Johnson's motto is nothing if not "forward," and it is noteworthy in this connection that he advocates the extension of the direct primary to state officers, rather than its repeal, and a reversion by the state to the old nominating conventions.

Coming Social Event.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Hibbing Tribune: The Duluth Evening Herald asks parents if they know what portion of the daily papers their children are reading. The parent might better concern himself about the character of the newspaper he admits to the home.

Eveleth News: According to the Duluth Herald two large companies, one for the manufacture of locomotives and the other of pressed steel cars, are negotiating for ground near the site of the Minnesota Steel company. Reports of new industries following the establishment of iron manufacture on a large scale will be frequent in the future. It's great for all Northern Minnesota.

Princeton Union: In its "Twenty-five Years Ago" column The Duluth Herald chronicles the dissolution of partnership of the firm of Champagne & Porter. Presumably the result of too much fermentation.

The Virginian: The Commercial club of Duluth has resolved that a branch of the Minnesota Agricultural college be established in St. Louis county. It's dollars to wine that the Commercial club will want the "branch" located in the Zenith City. When it comes to hogging matters, Duluth is always at the trough. Wait and see.

Two Harbors Iron Trade-Journal: The Biwabik Times comes forward with a suggestion that St. Louis county be divided into four counties with county seats at Hibbing, Virginia, Tower or Ely and Duluth. The suggestion is all-together too good to make light of, yet we cannot help wishing the brother had suggested putting the Duluth News-Tribune in a county all by itself.

St. Cloud Times: The announcement made by The Herald last evening that the Hon. J. L. Washburn of this city has decided to accept reappointment as a member of the state normal school board, was received by the people of Duluth with a great deal of satisfaction and will be hailed with applause by those interested in the normal school work in all parts of Minnesota.—Duluth Herald, 15.

The Times cheerfully indorses all that is said above in praise of Mr. Washburn, and in doing so reflects the opinion of all normal school friends in St. Cloud. The reappointment of Mr. Mathie was also a wise one. He is of educational experience, and a strong friend of the schools. Mr. Washburn was anxious that Mr. Mathie should consent to remain on the board.

Wilmar Journal: The Duluth Herald says no one man does it all—not even Roosevelt. Roosevelt, in his latest message to congress, admits this. He says Tawney does something—tells untruths.

Pine River Sentinel: Duluth's house-cleaning has caused some talk, anyway.

Virginia Enterprise: The Biwabik Times wants county division, and wants it so that all will be satisfied. It would give the Vermilion range one county seat, Hibbing one and Virginia another. Such a program would satisfy every one but the Duluth citizen, who realizes that the ranges pay the freight.

The Sun Says "Bosh."

New York Sun: Divers of our esteemed contemporaries are emitting solemn and cynical remarks about the supposed necessity of sending a rich man as ambassador to the court of St. James.

It is early to worry about future appointments, and we shall not take a hand in the popular amusement of making them in advance of Mr. Taft. It is difficult, however, to be patient with the rubbish in regard to the indispensability to the American ambassador in London of wealth and capacity to make a social splurge. Our most admired and most successful ministers to Great Britain have recommended themselves to the British people by their talents, their individual distinction, their good manners, their cultivation, their grace as scholars and orators, not by display. Charles Francis Adams, who had the most difficult position of an American minister of the last century, won the respect of a hostile aristocracy by a coldness greater than its own, though covering an internal fire—"This, my lord, means war"—by constant watchfulness for the interests of his country, by unfailing coolness, tact and discretion. Men like Everett, Bancroft, Motley, Lowell, Bayard, Phelps, Choate, did not owe their social vogue to any passion for splendor, and some of the most popular among them were actually poor.

The United States embassy in London and in all capitals should be housed permanently. Its diplomatic representatives should be paid adequately. This for the sake of the United States. The reputation and the dignity of the ambassador or minister are personal, arise from his own qualities, are not dependent upon expensive show.

The American ambassador in London has a different role in many respects from that of the representatives of other powers. If he has the art, he is a speechmaker, a cornerstone layer. He is before the public more than his colleagues. But he is not required to be a mighty giver of feasts and routs; nor are the British, whatever their faults, apt to be greatly impressed by the magnificence of members of the "middle class."

A Cheerful Liar.

Chattanooga Times: "A sweet potato more than two feet long, but nowhere more than an inch in diameter, is on exhibition in Lamar The man who dug it at first tried to kill it for a snake." That is not from the Houston Post as the admirers of that artistic and brilliant fabricator might imagine, but is from the Kansas City Times, which has come to be something picturesque in the business itself.

"It's true as Gospel. I heard it from Mrs. Jones, and her cook's fellow lives right next door to their washerwoman, so, you see, I got it direct."

Brooklyn Life: First Shopgirl—Miss Blank is going away.

Second Shopgirl—Is she leaving for good?

First Shopgirl—No; for better or worse.

Meggendorfer Blaetter: "Who is that singing so dreadfully out of tune?"

"It is my wife."

"Perhaps the accompanist plays out of tune?"

"She is accompanying herself."

Same Old Tune.

Same as last year,
What a joke!
Holidays have
Might as well make
The same vow
We made last year.
This is how
That same vow ran:
"Next year I Won't be too hard
Up to buy
Nice things for all
Those I love!
From now on each
Week I'll shove
A round plunk or Two away
So, next year on Christmas Day,
I will have a Bunch to spend
For nice things for Every friend!"
We have got that
Vow down pat!
Year before last,
Before that,
Before that, and
That, the vow
Was the same we're Making now;
This time though we'll
See we do!—
Seems to us we
Vowed that, too!
Now don't that just
Beat the deuce!
What's the ever-
Lasting use!

West must get a line to St. Paul or Winnipeg from Chicago.

Great Strategic Position.

The Chicago Great Western offers such a connecting link and it is up to the Grand Trunk owners, assisted by the ever ready colonial government, to buy the old Stickney line. If the Grand Trunk should consummate such a deal, it will, after the completion of its coast road, give it a greater advantage than is enjoyed by any other American line.

In addition to having its tracks directly across the continent paralleling the Canadian Pacific, it would have its own lines from Montreal to Chicago and from this city another route via St. Paul, connecting with the main line again at Winnipeg.

Such a system would occupy the grandest strategy position of any railroad in the world. Considerable of the Chicago Great Western stock is said to be held in London and Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, chairman of the board of directers of the Grand Trunk, who resides in the British metropolis, is now said to be working for the purchase not only of these foreign holdings but enough others to give them complete control under the reorganization.

Another rumor current in railroad circles is that the Canadian Pacific wants the Great Western as well as the Wisconsin Central, being desirous of obtaining the latter's valuable terminal properties. A large portion of the Great Western bonds were sold in Holland and Belgium through President A. B. Stickney. The investors in these countries have also purchased large blocks of bonds and stock of the Canadian Pacific. Many of the holders of securities in the two roads, it is understood, have expressed a desire to see the Canadian Pacific gain control of the Great Western.

Eyes on the Northwestern.

New York, Jan. 21.—A report has been circulated in fairly reliable circles that the Chicago-Northwestern will figure in a comprehensive realignment of railroads, including the New York Central and the Harriman system.

One story is that the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis has contrived to gain control of the Northwestern, but as the former is a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania, it is unlikely that the Vanderbilts and Harrimans, who are deeply interested, would permit such a transaction to go through.

The Chicago & Northwestern is not a decrepit, semi-bankrupt concern; it is a first-class railroad, a generous dividend payer, well managed and its securities have a market value of approximately $200,000,000.

Wisconsin Central's Transfer.

New York, Jan. 21.—Transfer of control of the Wisconsin Central Railway company took place at the Carnegie Trust company. Newman Erk and associates, who sometime ago acquired options on a majority of the company's stock, paid for these securities yesterday. The deal involves between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Directors of the Wisconsin Central road will meet today and at that time several members of the board, including President W. A. Bradford, Jr., will tender their resignations.

It is understood that the Wisconsin Central will hereafter be operated in the interest of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie road, which is controlled by the Canadian Pacific railway.

recommended, showing all details necessary.

With regard to operating a terminal elevator, the board gives the cost of building at $300,000 for a 1,000,000-bushel structure, and $375,000 for a 1,500,000-bushel building. An offer was received from the state auditor of Minnesota for a site in Duluth at reasonable figures. The cost of maintenance is estimated at $3,600 a month.

A bill was introduced in the senate yesterday afternoon by James Kennedy, to locate the state fair at Fargo permanently, with an appropriation of $10,000. For years the state fair has alternated between Grand Forks and Fargo, and a big fight is expected when the bill comes up for its permanent location at Fargo.

The importance of reapportionment of the legislative districts, in such a manner as to give the four new counties that have been organized within the past two years, representation, is being argued about the lobbies by the members of the assembly from the southwestern portion of the state, and the indications are that there will be little trouble in passing a bill amending the present apportionmentt act, so that Bowan, Hettinger, Adams and Dunn counties will be represented in the next legislative assembly. These four counties that have just recently been organized, cover a vast expanse of territory, and the total population is given at about 25,000.

Several plans have been suggested, and one that seems quite feasible provides for the creation of two new senatorial districts, with Adams and Hettinger as the Forty-eighth district and Bowman and Billings as the Forty-ninth. The first named district has a population of 12,000 and the second about 15,000. Dunn county would be attached to the Oliver and Mercer county district, of which Billings is now a part. This plan would add two new members to the senate, making forty-nine, and four new members to the house, making the membership ninety-nine.

In the bill introduced Tuesday appropriating $192,700 for the state penitentiary, Senator Welsh has provided for the erection of a suitable building in which the execution of those sentenced to hand may he carried out. The only execution that has taken place under the new law, which makes it necessary that they take place at the state penitentiary, took place in the warehouse of the twine plant.

The bill doing away with capital punishing, introduced by Senator Welsh of Burleigh county and for the purpose of preventing the execution of two men now in the state penintentiary under death sentences, is creating a great deal of discussion in committee. The judiciary committees of the senate has the bill in charge at present and has so far been unable to reach any agreement.

Commissioner of Agriculture Gilbreath will prepare a North Dakota exhibit for the Yukon exposition in case the bill introduced in the senate by Theodore Koffel is passed. The measure provides for an appropriation of $30,000.

That the present appropriation for the carrying on of the work of the state public health laboratory is too small is the opinion of the officials in charge, after two years of work and with a view to obtaining a more liberal appropriation, a bill asking $6,000 annually for the maintenance of the laboratory, with $2,000 added for the conducting of a sewage purification researches.

Senator Simpson has introduced a bill appropriating $18,000 for the maintenance of the Dickinson substation, and also a bill establishing a new station at Hettinger, in Adams county, making an appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose. The only experimental station on the Missouri slope is at Dickinson, and it is argued that there is a large enough territory to warrant the establishment of a second station in Adams county.

With the introduction by Senator Welo of a concurrent resolution for the establishment of a normal school at Mandan is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Hanley of Morton.

The game law bill that is proposed by the North Dakota Game Protective association will be introduced within a few days by Representative Hale of Grand Forks. The bill would create a state game and fish commission, doing away with the present game wardenships and turning the work of protecting the game and fish over to the commission entirely.

More anti-liquor legislation is quite probable. A. J. Olson of Ransom county has introduced a measure that is rather stringent in its provisions, it prohibiting the publication of liquor advertisements in the newspapers of the state, as well as the circulation of any liquor advertising matter.

The state affairs committee today declined to agree to the house amendments of the resolution for an investigation of the state penitentiary and a committee of conference on the part of the senate consisting of Senators Lamoure, Pierce and Tolcott was named. The house conferees will be named tomorrow and will probably get together on a resolution. The objection to the resolution is to giving the house a majority of the membership.

SENATOR TOM PLATT DISCLAIMS WIFE'S DEBTS.

New York, Jan. 21.—Through his counsel before the appellate division of the supreme court, Senator Thomas C. Platt disclaims responsibility for personal debts contracted by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Janeway Platt, from whom he separated in 1906. He seeks to have reversed a judgment of the lower courts which ordered him to pay to an assignee $2,717 as part of such debts.

BILL PROPOSES BOUNTY ON RATTLESNAKE HEADS.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 21.—Senator Quigley late today introduced a bill placing a bounty of 50 cents on the head of every rattlesnake killed in Iowa. The bill follows the serious illness of ex-Senator Byron Newberry, whose poisoning by the bite of a rattlesnake last summer made it impossible for him to take an active part in last fall's campaign, thus causing his defeat.

THAW SPOILS PARTIES.

Warm Weather Causes West Enders to Give Up Sleighing.

The January thaw is creating havoc with a number of sleigh-ride parties, which were to be given this evening and tomrrow night.

One party of West enders planned to take the drive to New Duluth tonight in a six-horse open sleigh, but they are thinking of changing the outing to a canoe trip now.

Another party was to go up to the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club tomorrow night, but it looks as if a hay rack will have to be substituted for a bob-sled if the trip is made.

West End Wedding.

The marriage of Mrs. Margaret A. Achley and Joseph Peer took place yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the Second Presbyterian church, 129 Piedmont avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. L. McBride. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Peer will be at home in the West end.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: JAN. 24, Acts 3:1-26; The Lame Man Healed.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D.D.

THE CONNECTION.

After the triumphs of the Pentecost, the church seemed to be steadily growing, but a storm was brewing and the healing of this lame man brought it down on their heads, for this miracle exasperated the enemies of the disciples to the point of frenzy. There were many other miracles, but this one is especially recorded, because it is the one that brought on that first great persecution. Perhaps this is about a year after Pentacost

THE LESSON.

I.

The Cure. 1-7.

"Now Peter and John were going up into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. And a certain man that was lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the door of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple; who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked to receive an alms. And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him, with John, said, Look on us. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something from them. But Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazaareth, walk. And he took him by the right hand, and raised him up; and immediately his feet and his ankle-bones received strength."

First—The place of the miracle is important—at the gateway into the court of the temple. The needy knew where to go for sympathy and help and impostors also know. People who worship God in truth will have hearts to love mankind. It was as they were on their way to worship God, at the appointed hour of prayer, the evening sacrifice at the ninth hour—3 o'clock in the afternoon. The disciples were Jews and still practiced such ceremonies and lived in such arrangements as did not conflict with their duty to Christ. They gradually grew away from such things.

Second—The man himself interests us, for he was a beggar and therefore one of a very numerous class; he was totally unable to walk and was born so, therefore incurable by human skill. He was shrewd, for he knew where to go and possibly had quite an insight into character through the face and manner. He hoped only for money, but was ready for something better.

Third—The power that cured him was from Jesus, by the Holy Spirit. Peter said to him, "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." Jesus did it, as Peter afterward said. "The name" was not simply a talisman, but it meant the nature of Jesus. The writer of this books is fulfilling the promise, implied in his preface, to tell what Jesus continued to do, even as in the Gospel of Luke he told "what Jesus began to do." The apostles knew it was His power and were surprised that the excited people should think for a moment that they did it, or should wonder that Jesus did it.

Fourth—Those two apostles through whom Jesus cured him interest us, because they so fully represent Jesus, each an opposite side of Jesus. Peter showed the Christlike action and speech, John the Christlike penetration and sympathy. The two were finely paired for worship and work together. Each supplied a help needed by the other—Peter supplied nervous energy and expression; John gave depth and tenderness and wholesome restraint in their common work. They wanted it known, too, that the Jesus who did this was not only the divine one now sitting on high with all auhority and power in His hands, but the very same one who had lived in the flesh, had been despised and mistreated, had been put to death and had risen again. They spoke the name by which He was scorned—"Nazareth—for they wanted this man and all who heard to know both His humiliation and His honor. Brave, true, loyal Peter and John!

Fifth—Why they cured him is another question to study when there were many other beggars no doubt whom they passed by. Three things are to be said about it—the man, though only expecting money, was a fit subject for a higher blessing and he showed a higher faith that could be utilized; this very man would have an effect on other people that was very much desired, for it was important to stir up the people, even to the point of persecuting the church; most of all, the Holy Spirit must have led them to stop and take a special interest in him. Jesus had His hand on this man for a special purpose, and He prompted the deed.

Sixth—Note how it was done from the human point of view. First, the apostles got him to fix his attention on them. We could get many high blessings if we would take the time and put forth the exertion to fix our thought on God and His message. Next they got his mind turned to a higher blesing and to Jesus. That awakened a new kind of expectation. That was faith. Finally Peter took him by the right hand, not to help Jesus cure him, but to help the man receive the cure. The strong hand of the apostle gave him hope and confidence and courage.

II.

The Man's Gratitude. 8.

"And leaping up, he stood, and began to walk; and he entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God."

He did what he could not do, but did it beeause Jesus commanded it through Peter and gave him help to do it. He showed his joyous gratitude by obedience to the word, for he rose and walked. He showed it by entering into the temple area to join in the worship at the evening prayer. He showed it by informally and vociferously praising God where everybody could hear him. He showed it by clinging to his benefactors in grateful love and with fear of losing them. He was now a genuine disciple of Christ and showed gratitude to Him in every way.

III.

The Marvelous Effects. 9-16.

"And all the people saw him walking and praising God: and they took knowledge of him that it was he that sat for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened to him.

"And as he held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering. And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this man? or why fasten ye your eyes on us, as though by our own power or godliness we have made him to walk? The God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his servant Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied before the face of Pilate, when he had determined to release him. But ye denied the Holy and Righteous One, and asked for a murderer to be granted unto you, and killed the Prince of life; whom God raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses. And by faith in his name hath his name made this man strong, whom ye behold and know; yea, the faith which is through him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you."

1. The Excited People.

Of course it excited the people. A man leaping and shouting would do that. A man suddenly cured of an ordinary disease would excite wonder. A man cured as this man would excite them wildly. They knew it was a miracle, and that startled them. The people gathering in the portico on the eastern wall of the temple area would still further excite each other. It ought to be a matter of course that men will be cured of sin, and it should excite surprise and wonder if they are not, yet every such cure must arouse attention and draw men to Christ.

2. Peter's Powertul Sermon.

The excitement he aroused gave Peter another chance to preach, and he was not slow to accept it. He read the minds of the people, saw their need of instruction and at once began to speak. The address of Peter, there at the gate that led to the court of the women, was as appropriate and powerful as that on the day of Pentecost. It all centered around Jesus. It opened with a statement that they should not be surprised at this. They ought to have been prepared for it, for in this deed God was glorifying His Son. It was their God, the same who was over their fathers. There was no excuse for their ignorance. Being criminally ignorant, they had killed the Son of God.

He charged their guilt home on them in a way to cut them deeply. They had no idea of what a deed they had done. They were worse than heathen, for Pilate would have released him and they would not let him. They were sacrilegious, for it was God's Holy One whom they denied. They were lawless, for they chose a murderer in his place and they killed Jesus. They preferred death, for they killed the prince of life.

3. The Apostles arrested.

We learn further on that this charge brought down on them the officers and the leaders. But the people were deeply impressed and many of them were saved and the word that won them was spoken close upon his rebuke. He had a word of hope for them. The first word of hope was that God had raised him from the dead. That must have relieved them of the fear that they had entirely put him out of the way. The next word of hope was that he and John were witnesses of it, for that would open up the prospect of making reparation for their deed. The next word of hope was that faith in Him might bring them blessings just as it had brought this man. Thus with the wound there was healing and with the conviction there was salvation offered. The sequel shows that many believed.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

"More than one of the temple gates was remarkable for its beauty, but that which transcended all the others was the outer gate on the eastern side, sometimes called 'the Corinthian gate,' also called 'the gate of Nicanor,' from its donor, and was left as it was when all the other gates were altered, on account of a miracle said to have been wrought in its behalf on the sea. When Nicanor was conveying it in two parts from Alexandria to Palestine, a violent storm arose, and to lighten the vessel some of the leaves was thrown overboard. When the ship reached Joppa it was found floating in the water so that Nicanor was able to take the whole of his gift to Jerusalem and set it up in its place. This story is probably, in part at least, unhistorical, but it is not unlikely that it represents a popular belief."

A motherly Christian woman was going through an orphanage where were many little waifs. She noticed one little girl, apparently much discomfited, looking longingly after her. The good woman going over to where the little girl sat, inquired, "My little daughter, is there anything I can do for you?" "Yes, ma'am," said the little one; "would you please, ma'am, let me sit in your lap a little while." It was the mother sympathy she wished. This was more than any gift that could be bestowed upon her. The friendly touch of the hand, which lifts one up, is more than silver and gold for the downcast.

POINTS TO IMPRESS.

1. That we always find some one to help at the house of God.
2. That the cure of the soul is a greater blessing than the health of the body.

An Honest Medicine

A BLESSING TO ANY COMMUNITY

HON. M. H. P. WILLIAMS, JR.

"Whoever relieves aches and pains and cures the sick is a friend to humanity, and an honest medicine deserves praise. As prevention is better than cure, and a cold is the beginning of a great number of diseases, so a good cough remedy is a blessing to any community," says Hon. Mason H. P. Williams, Jr., of Frankfort, Ky., in a letter to the Chamberlain Medicine Company.

Reliable Cough Remedy

He further says: "You have my hearty endorsement in placing before the public an honest cough remedy, one which can safely be used by young and old and can be relied upon to do just what is claimed for it. I wish you abundant success. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has many friends here."

This medicine makes friends wherever it goes, and when once used in a home nothing can be found which will quite take its place.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

The tendency of medical science is towards preventive measures. It is easier to prevent than to cure. This is especially true of pulmonary diseases. Pneumonia, bronchitis, chronic catarrh and consumption are all diseases that have their beginning in a cold, and which in most cases could have been cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of colds, and all danger from these diseases may be avoided if it is properly used.

The above endorsement of this remedy is only one out of many thousands of similar letters received by the manufacturers of this remedy. All over the country in every home where it has been used it has proved itself to be a blessing.

It is as good for a child as an adult, as it contains absolutely nothing injurious, and for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, it has no equal. Price 25 cents, large size 50 cents.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gilson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds both for children and adults, of any I have ever used." IRON DEPRESSED BY TARIFF VIEW

Expectation of Revision Has Dulling Effect on Trade.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 21.—The Iron Trade Review today says: The expectation of tariff revision, and uncertainty as to the attitude of many state legislatures concerning the railroads and other corporations, are having a depressing effect on the iron market. The expression of fear of tariff reduction may sometimes be a pretext rather than a real reason, but the effect is nevertheless felt. The demand for lower prices on finished products is frequently based on the anticipation of lower tariff rates, and the ability of consumers to estimate how reductions should be made is in some cases surprising.

Activity in pig iron has been confined almost entirely to cast iron pipe interests. A sale of 20,000 tons of Southern iron has been made to the leading pipe interests, and sales pending, or closed, in the Buffalo district amount to 10,000 tons. Sales of 20,000 tons of basic have been made at Pittsburg. Reports of weakness in the Southern market are apparently due to a few transactions in resale iron, and Southern furnace interests are holding firmly to the $13 price, although generally willing to make that quotation for second quarter.

A contract, which will ultimately involve the substitution of many thousand street car steel wheels for cast iron wheels, has been made by the Chicago City Railway company, with the Carnegie Steel company. The New York Central has ordered 2,000 steel hopper freight cars, of which 1,000 will be built by the Standard Steel Car company, and 1,000 by the American Car & Foundry company. The steel will be furnished by the Carnegie and Jones & Laughlin Steel companies. The same system has ordered 1,000 box cars, with steel underframes. The Pennsylvania system contemplates the purchase of at least 5,000 steel cars, including the inquiry for 2,500 recently sent out. The receivers of the Seaboard Air Line have ordered 700 steel under frame box cars. The Philadelphia Rapid Transit company has authorized the purchase of 10,000 of rails. Sales of spikes and bolts in the Chicago district amount to 30,000 tons.

No very large contracts for structural material are reported, but a considerable number of contracts of moderate size have been awarded, including the following:

The Cohenloft building, New York city, to A. E. Norton & Co., 1,485 tons; the Central City Refrigerating company, Syracuse, N. Y., to the Jones & Laughlin Steel company, 1,200; the Crane warehouse, San Francisco, to Milliken Bros., 600 tons; two schools in Philadelphia, to the McClintock-Marshall Construction company, 800 tons; the Jeffrey Manufacturing company, new building at Columbus, Ohio, to the Interstate Engineering company, 1,500 tons; James B. Clow & Sohs, new plant at Coshockton, Ohio, to the National Iron & Wire company, 800 tons.

There is continued weakness in the coke market for prompt shipment.

STENSLAND'S AFFINITY HAS DISAPPEARED FROM HOME.

Barahoo, Wis., Jan. 21.—On the eve of plans to free Paul O. Stensland, convicted looter of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank, Chicago, Leone Langdon Key, upon whom, it is charged, the forger squandered thousands of dollars, has mysteriously disappeared from her home here. It is believed she has gone to Iowa. After the banker was brought back from Tangier and was sent to the Joliet penitentiary, the woman found a refuge at her father's home at Barahoo.

While the bank failure was being forgotten, the home was quietly sold and Mrs. Key and her family left suddenly.

Mrs. Key is tall and a brunette. She was introduced to Stensland by his daughter, Mrs. Ingra Sandberg, the two women having become friends at the Chicago Musical college.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ANCIENT RITES ARE OBSERVED

Polish Wedding at Virginia Revives Customs of Old Country.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reviving many of the customs of the fatherland, when a couple is married, the wedding here yesterday of two prominent members of th Polish colony was clearly the event of the season.

Alex Fishel, a local grocer, and Miss Anna Friday, were made husband and wife, according to the rites of the Polish Catholic church by Rev. Father Singer. The church was crowded. Miss Frances, sister of the bride was bridesmaid, while the bridegroom was attended by his brother, Frank Fishel. Seven little boys and seven litle girls preceded the couple down the aisle of the church strewing flowers in their path.

Following the ceremony there was a breakfast at the home of the bridegroom's father, a well-to-do citizen at 318 Walnue street, which was not lacking in hospitality and good things. During the feast one of the time-honored customs of Polish weddings was observed. This consisted in the guests throwing pieces of coin at a large plate until the plate was broken, the bride to receive all the money thus thrown, as a wedding gift. Before the piece of crockery was put out of business about $200 in silver and gold had been hurled at it, so that Mrs. Fishel fared handsomely by this old custom.

In the evening there was a dance at the Finnish Socialist hall, which brought a memorable day to a fitting close. The couple received not only the congratulations of a host of friends but many fine presents.

HIBBING TRACK CHANGES.

Expected Great Northen Will Build Spur to Kelly Lake Division.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the Missabe railroad is to change its trackage entering the city, and the Great Northern enters the town over the Missabe tracks, it follows that the Hill system will have to make some changes in its Hibbing connections, as a result of the Missabe change. It is expected the Great Northern will build a spur to connect the Kelly Lake division with the present line of trackage, which extends west of the village. This spur will start from about a mile west of town and extend southward. The Kelly Lake division, on its way from Chisholm passes Hibbing, not more than three quarters of a mile from the present depot, so that the proposed new right-of-way would mean the building of only that amount of new trackage.

Trains over the Great Northern would then come in past Chisholm, and instead of switching onto the Missabe trackage as they do now, would run straight ahead on the Kelly Lake division up the new spur and enter Hibbing from the west.

There is a rumor current also that instead of building any new trackage the company will move its depot from its present site down to the Kelly Lake division.

The viaduct over First avenue will not be built at once. At present the tracks lie some four feet below the surface of the street, thus shutting up the avenue for traffic and causing considerable extra travel and annoyance to teamsters and carriages. Two weeks ago the village council discussed the matter, decided that a viaduct was necessary and left it to Village Attorney Stratton to take the matter up with the railway companies.

OFFICIALS MAKE ANNUAL REPORTS

Eveleth Fire Chief and City Clerk Review Past Year.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of Chief Nelson of the fire department shows that during the year the department responded to twenty-seven calls, twelve of which were false alarms.

The loss from fires was approximately $70,000, the large sum being due to the burning of the high school. There were 6,150 feet of hose laid. The department consists of one hook and ladder truck with two chemicals, new; onehose wagon, two years old; two teams of horses; two sets of harness with hangers; one sleigh, one year old; one exercise wagon, new; one exercise sleigh, four years old; 1,500 feet hose, new; 2,000 feet hose, medium; 500 feet hose, old; one 40-gallon, chemical tank.

There are seven men on the department, and the chief recommends a paid fire department, instead of the volunteer organization as the former would be more capable of controlling fires through systematic training. Those now in the department are: Chief Nelson, Assistant Chief Charles McDonough, James Meehan, driver; H. J. Gebes, driver; H. Clark, William Vanderboom, Hiram Gary, pipemen.

RANGE BURGLARS ARE SENTENCED

Men Who Robbed Store, Change Plea and Learn Fate.

Mike Miller, must serve two years at the reformatory, John Kelly three years at the state penitentiary and Charles Johnson, two years at the same institution.

These men were indicted some time ago by the grand jury on a charge of burglary in the third degree.

At first the men entered pleas of not guilty, but yesterday they were allowed to change them to guilty. They were sentenced at once.

Some time ago the men broke into a hardware store in Hibbing and stole a number of revolvers and a quantity of sporting goods. An hour after the burglary was committed, they were arrested in a room at one of the hotels, and the stolen goods found in their possession.

Kelly told the judge that he had served a sentence of three years at the penitentiary at Stillwater and was released only about two months ago. He said that he had determined to lead a straight life and to this end had taken a claim on the range. Money to live on came very hard, he said, and poverty induced him to commit his latest crime.

Miller, who is but 24 years old was given the reformatory sentence because of his youth and the fact that it was his first offense.

Johnson, who is 34 years old will have to work two years at the state penitentiary.

would be away, at the neighboring town.

Supposing the boy had gone, the parents went to Chicago, spent the week there, and returned home, but the boy was not there. This caused no uneasiness, as they believed that he was with his friend at Arvilla; but when another week passed and he failed to appear, the father decided to send for him. From Arvilla came the answer that he had never been there.

From the moment the boy left his home no one, so far as the father can learn, has set eyes on him.

DEATHS MAY REACH 100

Friday morning a special mass will be read in all South Chicago Catholic churches by order of Archbishop Quigley.

A Ghastly Collection.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.—The morgue where rest the bodies of the victims of yesterday's crib fire disaster today resembles the collection of some terrible Bluebeard. There are seven sacks, each containing an unrecognizable body of some one who met death in the charnel house in the lake. Outside, in the street, there is a quiet, grief-stricken crowd.

"Any news?" is a query always answered in the negative as some wife or mother sought to learn if husband or son had been identified.

Efforts were resumed at daybreak today to ascertain whether any workmen were still living in the shaft beneath the crib a mile and a half out in the lake. Shortly after the fire which burned the temporary crib structure and compelled the workmen, who were not entrapped in the flames, to jump into the lake, it was discovered that the smoke had descended into the shaft and had suffocated several men.

The air pumps were kept working all night in the hope that some men would be found in the shaft still living.

George W. Jackson of the construction company, which built the crib, informed the coroner it would be impossible for several days to give a complete list of the dead. As it will be impossible to identify more than a few of the dead, it is probable that a single funeral will be held for all of them.

The bodies have no human semblance, all look alike, and where possible it is desired to spare friends and relatives the shock of gazing on the awful spectacle.

"There was no hope of knowing father, son or brother," said Coroner Hoffman, as he began the work of securing a jury to visit the scene of the holocaust.

Ericson, a local attorney. The dog discovered the man's predicament and barked until help came.

New York, Jan. 21.—"I must fight for a living for my children and I am ready," said Mrs. William E. Annis at her mother's home in West One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street yesterday.

The boys, Willie and Howard, will need something to start on when they leave school. As yet I have no definite position in view. I play the piano, and though I might be able to get work as an accompanist.

"I want you to believe Billy as I do," she said. "He was not guilty of what they said. Nobody can change my opinion of him; nothing can shake my faith in him. The stories told at the Hains trial were not true. I shall fight for him and stand up for him to last."

HAIRE AND AMO GUILTY

Admit They Operated a Gambling Resort on Second Avenue.

Change Their Plea to Prevent Scandal Being Aired.

Robert H. Haire and Fred P. Amo, who were indicted by the January grand jury on a charge of conducting a gambling place and having gambling devices on their premises, yesterday withdrew the pleas of not guilty they first entered, and entered pleas of guilty.

Both men are out on bonds, and they appeared in court yesterday. After a conference with their attorneys, they had decided that it would be better to plead guilty to the charge against them than stand trial. Judge Ensign deferred sentence until a later day.

The indictment of Haire and Amo came as something of a surprise to those who have been surreptitiously gambling in the face of the disapproval of the city authorities. It was thought would Haire and Amo would stand trial, and the extent to which gambling has been carried on would be disclosed, but the men evidently thought better of it.

Haire and Amo were evidently picked by the graud jury to be held up as examples to those who might figure on breaking the law as they did. Their place was at 15 Second avenue west, where Haire conducted a cigar store. The gambling rooms were in the rear, and poker was the prevailing means of trying to beat the Goddess of Fortune.

Though current reports that gambling was going on around the city were persistent, it was hard to gain evidence against the places. The violations of Haire and Amo were so flagrant, however, that when the grand jury took up their cases, it was comparatively easy to get the evidence necessary to warrant the returning of indictments.

It developed that the place at Second avenue west was a rendezvous for young men, who chose to play with the fire that usually burns. Tales were told of games with bigger stakes than some of the players could stand, and consequent complications. The stories that would have come out had the men come to trial are said to be such that the affair would be considerable of a scandal, and the decision of the men to plead guilty is not surprising in view of the facts.

He saps in his letter: "I did not say that I did not believe the laws of nature had ever been violated. The laws of nature are the laws of God, and I do not believe that He violates His own laws. A miracle is not a violation of a law of nature, but a use of the forces of nature in a large sphere and with a power and comprehension infinitely larger than our own."

IMPORTANT TO DULUTH

City Will Fight Hard for the Public Utilities Bill.

It Opens Up an Easy Road to Municipal Ownership.

Duluth stands ready to fight to the last ditch to get the municipal utilites bill through the legislature, and with that end in view now has three aldermen and the city attorney in St. Paul to use what arguments they can waere they will be likely to do the most good. City officials are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the aldermen's visit, and may decide that is necessary to send down a larger delegation from Duluth.

The general purpose of the bill is to give municipalities full power to acquire, own and operate public utilities and to provide both a definite and a practical method for the exercise of such power. The proposed bill follows in a general way both the provisions and the intent of the so-called Mueller bill, passed in 1907.

It is claimed, however, that a close examination of the Mueller bill, with a view to attempting to acquire and operate a public utility under its provisions, shows that it does not in fact provide a practical method by which the power to acquire and operate such utility can be exercised by the city of Duluth, or by most of the other cities of the state. There is no doubt that the legislature, in passing it, intended not only to grant such power but also to provide a method of procedure in acquiring and operating public utilities, which was both possible and practicable.

It is because of the alleged unintended defects of the Mueller bill and because of the obscurity of some of its provisions, that the other bill was prepared under the direction of the city of Duluth. The changes are such only as are necessary to make it possible for cities to avail themselves of the authority which the Mueller bill purports to grant.

The new bill contains an express provision that it shall supercede the provisions of the home rule charters already adopted. Without such express provision, it is said to be doubtful, under the holdings of the supreme court, if such a bill would be of any value to a city now having a home rule charter.

Under the proposed bill, the proposition of the adoption of the terms of the act and the proposition of issuing bonds for the acquisition or construction of public utility, and the proposition of acquiring and conducting such utility may be voted upon at one and the same election. Under the Mueller bill a separate election is required for each proposition, thus making the proceedings so long, cumbersome and expensive as to be practically prohibitive.

The new bill provides that the amount of indebtedness incurred on bonds or certificates issued for the acquisition, operation or improvement of any public utility shall not be counted as a part of the municipality's indebtedness within the prohibition of the enabling act and the charter adopted thereunder.

If the proposed bill is passed, cities of the state having home rule charters will be given an opportunity to have submitted to a vote of the people upon its merits, the proposition of municipal acquisition of any given public utility, and if the proposition carries, the city will be in a position to acquire and operate such a utility. The proposed bill is so drawn as to reduce to a minimum the opportunity for hostile interests to thwart the will of the people by dilatory suits raising mere technicalities.

LABORERS GIVEN AN AWFUL DEAL

Sick in Railroad Camp Without Aid, Suffering From Cold.

Fort William, Ont., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A weird story of sick men unable to obtain medical attention in the railway camp of the Quebec Construction company, north of Fort William, has been brought to the city by several men who recently visited that district. Among the number is a man giving the name of J. Reid, who is in McKellar hospital with hands and feet frozen.

Reid was found in an isolated and abandoned shack, twelve miles from Ignace and twenty-four miles from Grassie, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, which he had reached after a tramp through the snow of about twenty-five miles. Had he not been found, quite by accident, it is possible that he would have frozen to death.

Before being taken to the hospital he told that five days after he had entered the camp of the Quebec Construction company, where he was engaged as laborer, he started to walk to Ignace, the nearest point on the Canadian Pacific, because he feared that he would either be frozen or taken sick, and be unable to secure medical aid.

Several men, he said, were lying sick in camp. One man, a carpenter, had his feet frozen. Two business men who have just returned from the district state that they heard similar rumors.

Reid wore nothing on his feet but socks and light leather shoes when he left the camp. He had almost given up hope of reaching civilization when he came upon a little cabin that was once known as a halfway station. The only article of furniture in the structure was a small broken stove, the pipe of which was not connected with the chimney. It was not until after he had collected sticks for a fire that he discovered that he was without matches. Had he started a blaze he would soon have been rendered helpless, for both his feet and hands were frozen almost solid, a fact of which he was unaware.

It was shortly afterward that two men in a sleigh came along the trail, which is but seldom traversed. Through curiosity as much as anything else the men entered the shack, and found Reid. After thoroughly rubbing his hands and feet with snow, they took him to Ignace, from where he was brought to the city.

It is probable that his feet will have to be amputated.

INSTALLATION OF MACCABEES

An Exceptionally Fine Program Is Rendered in Connection.

An exceptionally fine program was provided last evening for the entertainment of Duluth tent, No. 1, Knights of the Maccabees, on the occasion of their annual installation of officers, at Maccabee hall, 224 West First street. The program consisted largely of vocal and instrumental selections.

It opened by the Franklin school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Ethelyn Abbot. This was followed by a violin solo by H. Mastue, with piano accompaniment by F. Gilleland. Albert and Neil Laureman made a big hit with their songs, and were recalled again and again. Other numbers weer: Recitation by Miss Mabel Fulton; two vocal numbers by Miss Irene Wardell; piano solo, Miss Alice Olson, and violin solo by Miss Barbara Pecor.

Following the installation ceremonies there was a dance, Flaaten's orchestra furnishing the music. Following is a list of the officers installed:

HAS FAITH IN STATE.

District Judge Williston Rarely Asks for His Salary.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota state treasury is considered a safe place to keep money by Judge W. C. Williston of Red Wing, district judge for the First judicial district.

Judge Williston's salary is $4,200, but he has drawn no money from the state since early in 1905. The state auditor's books show $14,035.06 now to his credit, and it is growing at the rate of $350 a month. The judge is well along in years and in good shape financially, and seems willing to make the state treasury a savings bank, though it pays him no interest.

State officials generally draw their salaries once or twice a month, and there are few exceptions to that rule. One is Judge Buckham of Faribault, who only calls on the treasurer twice a year, receiving $2,100 at each call.

FOUR KILLED, TEN HURT, IN DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 21.—Four men were killed and ten injured, one fatally, when several tons of dynamite in one of the buildings of the Forcite Powder works, at Lake Hopatcong, blew up. The detonation of the huge mass of explosives shook the country for miles around and blew the building containing it to atoms.

THIS IS CERTAIN

The Proof That Duluth Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

J. E. Watte, 918 Tenth Ave., West Duluth, Minn., says: "I have no reason to withdraw anything I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I endorsed them through the local papers several years ago. Prior to using this remedy, I was subject to acute attacks of bachache, so severe at times as to oblige me to stop work. I could not stoop and though I wore plasters and tried various remedies, I did not find much relief. When Doan's Kidney Pills were strongly recommended to me, I procured a box and upon using them, was freed from my trouble. I endorse Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity in return for the benefit I received from them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

You Need Not Diet

When you have Dyspepsia, Indigestion, or any form of Stomach Trouble, take Kodol and you can then eat what you want for Kodol will digest it.

Starvation seems a strange remedy for any disease. Yet, starvation by rigorous diet, was once generally resorted to, in case of indigestion or other stomach trouble. Even yet, it is sometimes tried.

Such a remedy is worse than useless. Every day of life consumes a portion of the tissue of the human body. The food we eat serves to repair this waste, and you can't build up the system by withholding material for the purpose.

If the stomach is in such condition, that it cannot furnish it, the task must be performed without the stomach's assistance. Kodol is the only preparation which accomplishes this. There are others which act on certain kinds of food, but Kodol is the only one, which digests them all, as the stomach digests them.

Man is so constituted that he needs a variety of food; to reduce the variety, always produces bad results.

In ninety-nine cases in a hundred, indigestion is due to lack of some of the elements, which constitute the natural digestive juices, usually to the absence of hydrochloric acid for the stomach.

It is by the action of these juices, that food is reduced to a form in which it can be transformed into living tissue. With any of them lacking, it is easy to see, that the process of digestion cannot be perfectly performed.

With the single exception of Kodol, all preparations for the relief of indigestion, lack certain of these elements. Consequently, they cannot digest all classes of food.

Kodol contains them all. It will digest anything that the healthy stomach can digest. It is Nature's own cure.

Don't resort to stimulating tonics. Such drugs simply urge the already overworked stomach, to renewed exertions.

It is like spurring a tired horse. For a moment he responds. Then outraged Nature, reasserts itself and he falls in a heap. Sedatives are equally ineffective. At first they deaden pain, but afterward comes the reaction, and keener suffering than before.

What the stomach needs, is rest. To obtain it, a substitute must be found for the natural digestive juices. Kodol is the only substitute, which accomplishes Nature's results, by Nature's own methods.

It gives the stomach perfect rest, by digesting what you eat. No dieting is necessary. Eat all the good food you want, build up the system and at the same time, relieve the stomach from all responsibility. The rest will restore it to its natural condition and soon effect a complete cure. This is the only rational and common sense method of aiding Nature.

PROHIBITION LIQUOR AID

President Gilmore Tells Model License League 'Twill Help.

Says Alcohol Interests Are Equally Eager for Reform.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 21.—"The people do not want prohibition, but they want a reform, and when we prove that we, too, want reform, when we gain the confidence of the public, the prohibition wave will recede and the Anti-Saloon league will find its occupation gone." So declared President Gilmore, of the Model License league, in his address at the convention of that organization.

Mr. Gilmore discussed reform movements and the prohibition wave, which he declared to be a protest against things that ought not to be; against conditions that ought not to continue. Mr. Gilmore said he was satisfied that the prohibition movement will ultimately result in good to the liquor trade and to society, but he insisted that it should be carried along in a less radical way, and that the reforms desired should be brought about without such tremendous losses as are being entailed through the passage of prohibitory laws.

Saloon a Convenience.

"The saloon, if properly conducted, is a very good convenience, but the saloon that is run in connection with gambling, and that violates law, and that sells to minors and to men who are intoxicated, is certainly out of touch with civilization; it is an offense to modern thought, and it should be stamped out by a mandatory penalty that is absolutely merciless in its provisions."

Gilmore said if the saloon shall be permanently abolished it will be found necessary to provide a substitute, because the strenuous life, incident to modern civilization, demands a place of relaxation, where friend can meet friend, and where the worries, cares and responsibilities of life may, for the time being, be put aside.

"The Anti-Saloon league," he continued, "is not advocating prohibition, and to one who is familiar with the situation, all of this talk about 'dry territory' is nothing more than an absurdity. There is no 'dry territory' in this country, although there are a number of states and a great many counties, aggregating in area probably one-half of the United States, in which laws have been adopted prohibiting the sale, and in some cases the manufacture of alcoholic beverages. A law merely prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages, however, can not affect the purchase and use of alcoholic berevages any more than a law that might prohibit the sale of cigars would affect the consumption of cigars."

The speaker said that since the passage of prohibition laws in such states as Georgia and Oklahoma, shipments of whisky and of beer to those states have been phenomenally large. This, he attributed to the fact that people who, under a license system, would never keep whisky in their houses, are persuaded to buy at least four bottles through fear that in case of dire need they would not be able to secure it in time.

Alive to Weakness.

The Anti-Saloon league, he said, was fully alive to the weakness of its cause, and that its leaders know that the people of this country do not want prohibition. He added:

"It is our idea that the first conviction of the violation of law on the part of a saloonkeeper or of his employs in the conduct of his business, his license would be suspended for thirty days, and that for the second conviction his license should be cancelled, and he should not again be licensed to retail liquors in the state.

"I am satisfied that the time is coming when the man who becomes intoxicated will be treated as a criminal and will be punished with the utmost severity, and I believe the time is coming when the people of this country will give up and resent what is known as the treating habit, as the people in continental Europe have done."

FREE GOLD ON THE SURFACE.

Sturgeon Lake District Rich in the Yellow Mineral.

Fort William, Ont., Jan. 21.—(Special ot The Herald.)—Some of the richest mining property in Western Ontario is to be found in the Sturgeon lake district, north of Fort William, which is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Transcontinental railways, according to Philip Walsh of Port Arthur, who has just returned from an extended visit in the district. Mr. Walsh states that a number of claims which give promise of becoming "real gold mines," have been gobbled up and will be developed on an expensive scale. Some idea of the richness of the claims may be gleaned from the fact that considerable free gold has been found on the surface.

LAKE CARRIERS ARE FOR THE OPEN SHOP

Sixty Million Dollars Worth of Vessel Tonnage Is Signed in Mutual Insurance Agreement.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 21.—A renewed declaration for the open shop principle in regard to the employment of labor in the ships of the Great Lakes, the announcement that $60,000,000 worth of vessel tonnage out of a total of $100,000,000 on the lakes had signed the mutual insurance agreement issued here, and the disolosing of a movement to make the projected Livingston channel in Detroit river 600 feet wide instead of 300 feet, were features of the session of the annual convention of the Lake Carriers' association.

The reference to a widening of the Livingston channel, which is now under construction, came in incidental remarks of President William Livingston of the Lake Carriers' association, who said that the wider channel would be a necessity in the end, and that it would be more economic to make the change before the channel is finished.

In regard to the open shop, H. Coulby, president and general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company, said that the recently announced welfare or pension plan of the lake carriers had been criticised by the union leaders on the ground that it meant a return to the conditions that existed before the inauguration of labor conferences each spring.

"If the men don't respond, we'll have to go along without them," said Mr. Coulby. "Some of the engineers have signed contracts, some have withdrawn from the M. E. B. A., some have been fined and some suspended. If the M. E. B. A. declares against the open shop, and I know of it, I will declare that there won't be a member of the union on our ships. And if our engineers can't get firemen and cooks, the lake carriers will get them."

On motion of C. W. Elphicke of Chicago, the position of the lake carriers was declared to be identical with that outlined by Coulby. A. A. Wright, president of the Dominion Marine association, declared the Canadian vessel owners are with the lake carriers to a man.

President Livingston, in his annual report, stated that the tonnage enrolled in the Lake Carriers' association comprises 610 vessels with a total of 2,002,235 tons.

A New Cure Found For Consumption

By Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, That Actually Cures Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and All Throat and Lung Troubles.

He Gladly Sends a Trial Package Free By Mail To Prove That Even the Worst Cases of Consumption Can Be Quickly Cured At Home.

Jackson, Mich., Special—A remarkable announcement, based on innumerable authentic proofs, has been made by one of the foremost scientists and physicians in this country, to the effect that consumption and throat and lung troubles may be positively cured in the patient's own home, without change of climate or environment. Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, 183 Hill Bldg., Jackson, Mich., is responsible for the discovery, and true to the physician's ethics, he is not keeping the method of treatment secret but will tell all those who send him their names and address just what to do and how to do it in order to cure themselves at home, and will also send without charge, free of cost, to everyone a trial treatment as test and proof. He says he believes that with this treatment made public and freely distributed, the "white plague" as well as all throat, nose and lung troubles, may in a year or so be entirely rooted out.

Numberless proofs have been gathered which have shown remarkable results. A typical instance is that of Lafayette Elvin of Glasco, Kansas, who had been sent by his physicians to Colorado and New Mexico for a year or two with hopes that he might live. He began to fail fast, coughing constantly, expectorating in large quantities. Pains in breast and shoulder blades tormented him, he grew weak and emaciated, and heart trouble came on. In this condition he submitted to the Hill Rational Treatment, as it is called, treating himself at home, and was pronounced cured in 3 months, hale, hearty and fleshy—a resurrected consumptive.

Everybody who has weak Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes or Catarrh in any form, Chronic Bronchitis, Asthma, Chronic Hacking Cough, Loss of Flesh, Night Sweats, Hemorrhages, Soreness or Pain in the Chest or Under the Shoulder Blades, or any other Deadly Symptom of Consumption, should send for a Free Package of Dr. Hill's New Rational Remedy. This Treatment checks at once further progress of the disease, develops atrophied cell tissues and brings on new resisting power, appetite, flesh and good health. All throat and lung sufferers should send at once for a free package.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

MAY FORM NEW LEAGUE

Amateur Teams May Play Organized Ball This Summer.

Old and New League Will Clash for City Championship.

While the Northern league magnates are wondering what to do, and rumors of a new league in several different forms are floating through the air with no definite lighting place, the amateur ball teams of the city are busy forming plans for next season—plans which, if carried out as now intended, would provide for lovers of amateur ball the best amusement in this line ever enjoyed in the city.

Prominent ball managers will hold a meeting at an early date and talk the matter over. If after this conference they agree that organized city ball would be a go, the work of organizing a city league will be begun at once, so that when the season opens, everything will be in working order.

The teams now interested in the venture are: Oak Halls, Columbias, Hummers, Spaldings, First National bank and Big Duluths. An effort is being made to get two of the wholesale houses to organize teams, and invitations will be sent to them inviting them to send representatives to the meeting.

This will give Duluth two strong amateur ball leagues, and as the plan now stands, the winners of the pennant in each league will get together and play for the city championship.

This, it is expected, would create interest and make the pennant a greater object.

The idea was started by the Oak Hall manager, and every manager to whom he has put it up has become enthusiastic. In the start there was some objection made by two of the managers over the fact that they were in the habit of playing outside teams, and that they couldn't very well drop the towns they had been playing, as they owed the teams some Duluth games.

This has been overcome, however, by arranging to play only two games each Sunday allowing the other teams to play out-of-town dates on one Sunday out of three.

Playing in this way, each team would get a crack at the surrounding town nines and also play league ball.

The idea is being talked over by the members of the various teams, and it is probable that before the season opens the league will be organized.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN IN LIMELIGHT

Old Fighter Offers $75,000 for Jeffries-Johnson Match.

Washington, Jan. 21.—An offer of $75,000 for a match between Jeffries and Johnson has been made by John L. Sullivan, according to a statement made by the former heavyweight champion yesterday. He stated that he represented a number of men who are willing to put up the money for a contest between these two men.

"In the meantime," said Mr. Sullivan, "I am trying to find a good man to take Jeffries' place, in the event that he will not re-enter the ring, and I will find somebody."

He added that the place for the fight has not been decided, but that San Francisco is under consideration.

BANQUET IN SCOTLAND.

Big Affair Given in Honor of the Visiting Curlers.

Edinburgh, Jan. 21.—The Royal Caledonian club gave a banquet of welcome to the Canadian curlers last night. There were 400 guests present, among them being many notables. Lord Strathcona of Mount Royal presided, and referred favorably to the proposal of a temporary interchange between the historic Scottish and Canadian regiments.

Badgers to be Represented.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 21.—The Athletic council of the University of Wisconsin has made arrangements for another trip of the freshmen and 'varsity eights to Poughkeepsie in the spring, to try conclusions with the Eastern educational institutions on the Hudson river. A new shell and oars for the 'varsity crew and two four-oared barges will be provided.

RUNNERS READY FOR LONG RACE

Dorando and Corey in Shape for Their Chicago Event.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The interest in the Durando-Corey Marathon race is at fever heat, and the contest promises to bring thousands from out of town. Durando and Corey are both ready for the starter's pistol and neither can have any excuse to offer regarding his condition. The Italian has been reeling off some remarkably fast miles on the Chicago Athletic association gymnasium track, but while he allows a limited few to see his speed trials he does not want the trainer's figures given out. His brother and trainer, Upplano, firmly expects him to establish a new record for an indoor track.

Corey has been running on the Dexter Park pavilion track, where the race will take place. He says he will be able to follow any pace Dorando may set in the early miles, and relies upon his stamina to finish the stronger. Of Corey's gameness and ability as a distance runner there is no doubt. Corey will run this race as an American citizen, having just taken out his naturalization papers. When he won the J. A. C. Marathon he ran as a representative of the French republic.

William Hale Thompson will be the starter of the race and Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago American League Baseball club, will be the referee. Ben Donnelly, the former Princeton football star, will be clerk of the course.

The big race takes place Friday night.

AMERICAN SKI RECORD BROKEN

Chippewa Falls Rider Clears 125 Feet at Practice.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—In testing the new scaffold yesterday for next Sunday's northwestern ski tournament, Oscar Gunderson broke the American record, 122 feet, by jumping 125 feet.

Jumps ranging from 116 to 124 feet were made by other skiers.

As the feats were not made at a regularly scheduled tournament, the records will not be counted.

Hockey Meeting.

The captains of the different city hockey teams who formed an amateur league some time ago, will meet tonight at the store of the Northern Hardware company, to complete the final arrangements. The first game will be played Friday night at the Central rink, and the contesting teams will be the Bryants and the Northern Juniors.

Schaeffer Gets an Offer.

Frank Schaeffer, the local baseball player, who last year played with the Fitwells, the first part of the season and the White Sox the latter part, has received an offer from one of the Ohio State league teams. He says he would rather play baseball at home.

FORMER MINNESOTANS DINE IN NEW YORK.

New York, Jan. 21.—Congressman Frederick C. Stevens was the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Minnesota society of New York held last night at the Waldorf-Astoria.

After a few jocular remarks concerning the secret service report of President Roosevelt, Congressman Stevens discussed the contemplated repeal of the Sherman act. It was Mr. Stevens' opinion that congress would refuse to repeal the act until such time as it felt assured that the repeal of the law would leave proper protection to the people and that the act, if amended, would be amended in a way such as to assure its enforcement.

Other speakers who addressed the 200 members of the society were C. A. Severance, Timothy E. Byrnes, vice president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, F. H. Ozmun, consul-general at Constantinople and George Brackett.

Frank B. Kellogg, James A. Tawney and Charles A. Towne sent letters of regret.

DR. ROLLER OUTCLASSED.

"Denver" Ed. Martin Has No Trouble in Out-Pointing Him.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 21.—"Denver" Ed. Martin easily outclassed Dr. B. Roller of Seattle in a six-round bout at a Seattle theater last night, before a record-breaking house. The Seattle physician showed a lot of ring craft in his work, which were brought out all the stronger because of the cleverness displayed by the negro, who was in fine shape and showed some of his old-time form.

Roller said before the bout he was going after the heavyweight championship of the world, but if he aspires to that title, he will have to learn a lot about the game. In a preliminary wrestling match, Billy Maynard of St. Paul was defeated by Charley Franklin of Seattle, in two straight falls.

Ice Boat Regatta.

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The greatest iceboat regatta in the history of the Twin Cities will be held on Green Bay, off the shore of Menominee, on the afternoon of Jan. 31. Six silver cups will be offered as prizes, and boats from a dozen nearby cities will compete. It is expected that over 200 yachts will enter in the different classes.

LYCEUM—"The Three Twins."

BROTHER LAID MAINS.

Sam Coombs' Relative Installed First Plant in Duluth.

Sam M. Coombs, manager of "The Three Twins" company, now playing at the Lyceum, is a brother of William Coombs, who laid the first gas mains in Duluth thirty years ago. William Coombs is now living in retirement at Boontown, N.

Sam Coombs, when in Philadelphia recently met Bert Genung, a former Duluth newspaper man, who is now night editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. He says that Charles Abbott, another newspaper man, who formerly worked in this city, is prospering in Pittsburg.

Three Companies Here.

"Little Johnny Jones" met "The Three Twins" in "The Land of Nod" yesterday.

The three musical companies are in Duluth today, and the members of the three companies are exchanging road experiences, since they left dear old New York last fall. The "Little Johnny Jones" company is laying off a few days before opening its Duluth engagement next Monday. "The Land of Nod" company opens here Saturday evening, and, of course, "The Three Twins," the chaps with the silken hirsute adornments upon their chins, have this evening and tomorrow evening in which to enjoy the hospitality of Duluth. The presence of the members of the three musical organizations has lent a spirit of Bohemianism to the cafes and has given a flavor of the broad "A" accent of Broadway to the conversation you hear in the hotels.

Two Years on Road.

"The Three Twins" is a craze. The entire country is demanding it. Everybody wants to see the comedy and hear the catchy music of the piece and the success with which it meeting in Duluth is only what it has received everywhere it has appeared. The demand is such that the managers of the company are going to give the people what they want and the company now appearing at the Lyceum will be on the road for over two years without a vacation.

Arrangements were closed yesterday for the company to play at the Moo theater at Seattle during the exposition in June, July and August of this year. Early in September it will open the new $1,000,000 Columbia theater at Seattle and all of the Pacific coast cities will be played before the company swings East again.

ernment, said that beyond any question the disastrous forest fires that swept over Northern Minnesota in last fall's dry spell were fed by old slashings, left to dry and become tinder in the woods. When the fire got into the reservation timber, where lumbermen had been compelled to cut their slashings, the damage was very slight indeed.

G. E. Marshall, who has charge of the Minnesota national forest reserve, under Chief Forester Pinchot, gave similar testimony. The reserve includes 295,000 acres, and in the five years during which it has been in the hands of the government, he estimates that the loss from forest fires has not exceeded $100. When the government introduced the system of requiring lumbermen to burn their slashings, the lumbermen complained that it would involve great expense to them, but it has not worked out that way.

The pending bill requires lumbermen to pile their slashings when cut during the summer, and to burn them during the winter. From the testimony of the government employes, it was made clear that no settled rule as to this could be devised, and it is likely that the bill will be so amended as to provide for the burning of slashings under the direction of the nearest fire warden.

Representative Bendixen, who introduced a bill prohibiting discrimination in the purchases of grain, said yesterday afternoon that after consulting with members of the house he would offer amendments to his bill that will broaden it to include dairy products, live stock and other agricultural commodities. The object of the measure is to protect producers in the primary markets, and it is especially aimed at operations against the farmers' elevators. In extending its scope it is intended to make it reach the centralized creameries, which are said to use oppressive methods in competing with local creameries, making up their losses in killing this competition by exactions in communities where competition has been destroyed.

The principle is exactly the same as that involved in the law enacted two years ago against the Standard Oil company. The provision is that discriminations against localities, or differences in prices other than freight rates will account for, are to be prohibited and punished.

The house committee on normal schools last evening heard the advocates of the establishment of a new normal school in Northern Minnesota, and the members were evidently much impressed, though no action was taken. It was shown clearly that the three normal schools of Northern Minnesota, while being crowded to their capacity, do not begin to furnish the number of trained teachers needed in the schools of Northern Minnesota. If the committee decides in favor of a new school, the question of location will be settled later, and a pretty contest it will be. While several other communities have entered the game, the real fight is between Cass Lake and Bemidji and both have committees on the ground working actively. Thief River Falls also has lobbyists in action. At present Cass Lake has the advantage, though the other towns are hardly ready to admit it.

The St. Louis county delegation had a harmonious meeting yesterday and got its local matters well advanced in consideration. The full delegation was present, and after the general organization, reported yesterday in The Herald, it was decided to make Representative Congdon chairman of the house delegation.

The chief subject of discussion was the municipal ownership bill, and it was finally decided, as indicated yesterday, that it would be better if the measure took a form that would not stir up so much opposition throughout the state. It was therefore referred back to City Attorney Wilson, with the request that if possible he draw up a measure that will apply to Duluth alone.

The delegation approved the bill allowing the St. Louis commissioners actual traveling expenses while engaged in their official duties, but as the pending bill was rather broad, it was referred to Representative Grant to be redrafted so as to apply to St. Louis county only.

The delegation also approved the bill providing that where banks receiving county funds provide proper surety bonds, the bonds shall be only for the amount of the deposits, instead of for twice the amount, as at present.

The bill making wife-desertion a felony, with proper punishment, instead of misdemeanor with punishment wholly inadequate, was also approved. So was the bill allowing the county treasurer to advertise the last day for taxes, with a proviso that the expense shall be limited to $100 a year.

The county attorney of St. Louis county will be provided with a sort of county detective by a bill which the delegation approved. This officer is to be appointed by the county attorney, is to receive $2,000 a year and actual expenses, and his business is to ferret out evidence of law breaking anywhere in the county.

Those having matters to present to the St. Louis county delegation should take note that the members decided yesterday to hold their meetings every Wednesday during the session after the forenoon meetings of both bodies are concluded. These meetings will be regular, and the fixed meeting day will be the best time to present matters of local interest.

Senator James Johnston of Bertha, Todd county, is seriously ill in a local hospital. He has been sick with pneumonia since the opening of the session, and has lately had a relapse that renders the outcome of his case very doubtful.

The Christenson bill, introduced yesterday, providing for supervision of electric railways by the state railroad and warehouse commission, seeks to divide the responsibility between the state and local officials in a way that will not infringe upon the rights of the cities. Cities will continue to handle franchises and to enforce their provisions, while the railroad and warehouse commission is given authority to pass on needed rules and improvements in the service.

One of the arguments for the county option bill is that while the cities and villages license the saloons, the county pays a large share of the cost of criminal proceedings growing out of them. Pending bills providing that part of the liquor license money shall go to the county may not be associated with this point, but the fact is that if these measures, or any them are enacted, some of the force of one of the main arguments for county option will be destroyed. The latest bill introduced along this line provides that 20 per cent of the liquor license money shall go to the county, to help out the road and bridge fund.

A drastic measure designed to protect the drug-buying public, was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative J. A. Gates of Kenyon. It prohibits the manufacture or sale of drugs that are adulterated or mislabelled, with proper penalties for violation, and puts the enforcement of the provision under the state dairy and food commission. This includes all mixtures intended for the cure or prevention of either man or beast, as well as all antiseptics, disinfectants and cosmetics.

The youthful game of stealing apples and watermelons comes under the ban of a bill introduced yesterday by Representative Rowe of St. Paul, who proposes a fine of $250 or imprisonment for six months for anybody robbing an orchard or a melon patch.

The session is dragging a bit. It was expected last week that by this time of the committees would furnish work for both houses in committee of the whole, but thus far no bills of moment have come out of the committees. However, this is nothing unusual. Bills of moment are not usually pushed out of committee in a minute, nor should they be. Committee work would be a farce if measures came out of it half-digested, and there is still plenty of time for all the imporetnt measures imaginable to be given full consideration, even if the legislature took pity on itself and the state and finished March 1. As to that, however, the chances of a short session are growing worse instead of better. It may be that when the spring forces begin to call humanity back to nature's heart, some attempt will be made to fix a date for adjournment, and if the legislature gets into a long, hard fight on anything important, the full constitutional period is likely to be used, which would bring the end somewhere along about April 20.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ICEMAN HAS SUED MAYOR

East Grand Forks Executive Alleged to Have Destroyed Property.

Removed Cutting Marks Rival Made in Red River Ice.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An action for damages has been brought by George Hiler of this city against Hugh Dunlevy, the mayor, the plaintiff claiming that the defendant put him to great disadvantage by chopping up in small pieces ice which he had marked out on the Red river preparatory to harvesting. Both are ice men of the city, and the case, it is claimed, is the outcome of spite work, as both men have been political rivals at city elections.

Hiler claims that both he and Mayor Dunlevy had marked out certain places on the Red river, and that Dunlevy was the first to get busy and harvest the ice. When Hiler was ready to do his harvesting, he found that the place on the river which he had staked out for himself had been chopped in small pieces, making it of no commercial value. Through investigation, Hiler claims that he learned that Mayor Dunlevy had ordered the work done, and as he supposes it was because of political spite, he has started the damage action.

It is possible the case may be brought before the United States court, as the Red river is not the property of the state. As the Red river is the boundary line between Minnesota and North Dakota, the Hiler ice patch was nearer the Minnesota side while the Dunlevy frozen liquid was nearer the North Dakota banks.

HOMESTEADER IS NEARLY DROWNED

Driving Across Cass Lake, Breaks Through Ice With His Team.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bernt Ronning, a homesteader, living several miles north of Star Island, had a narrow escape from drowning near Star Island yesterday, while driving across the lake to town. The ice was considerably weakened after the recent heavy thaw, and when Ronning, with his heavy team and sled, approached Star Island, it began to snap. He payed little heed to it, and finally wagon, team and driver were precipitated into the cold water. Ronning struggled fiercely, and succeeded in crawling up on the projecting ice to safety. He then endeavored to save the horses, but, single handed, he could do nothing. As quickly as possible he hastened to Cass Lake, a distance of about six miles, gathered up ropes, pullies and several men. Then, summoning a team, he loaded them and drove in haste to where the unfortunate animals had broken through. Upon arriving, the horses were found desperately fighting for their lives, although in an almost exhausted state. The paraphernalia was soon put into action, and after much work the horses were saved.

Fargo, N. "I find," he continued, "the farther west I go the more highly colored are the statements regarding the difference. Congress will seek to maintain an efficient secret service and fully realizes its importance."

Man Who Was Present is Held for the Crime.

Sturgis, S. D., Jan. 21.—Elba Roberts, 19 years old, was shot and killed in the millinery parlors of Mrs. Bertha White, of this city, Monday night. Oscar Jacobs, a new arrival from North Dakota, was the only person in the store with her at the time of the shooting. Jacobs claims that the woman took the gun from his pocket andeshot herself. Jacobs was immediately placed under arrest. Jacobs thought the reason for her alleged deed was that he was about to return to North Dakota. Miss Roberts was the daughter of Henry Roberts of Reed, recently coming here from the eastern part of the state.

A post mortem developed the fact that she was shot through the heart and lungs, the bullet lodging in her spine. The verdict was that the girl was shot and killed by a revolver held in the hands of Oscar Jacobs.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The inquest into the four deaths that occurred in the burning of the Blum building here twelve days ago, has not been resumed, due to the inability of witnesses who were injured in the fire, to appear. Arthur Bolton, who jumped from the third story of the building with the two women that were killed, and, who at first was thought to have been fatally injured, is still at the Calumet & Hecla hospital. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weakness in Liverpool Causes Moderate Decline in Wheat.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 21.—Weakness in the Liverpool market, notwithstanding the advance here yesterday, caused moderate declines in wheat here today. Prices at the start were a shade to ¼@⅜c lower. May opening at $1.07⅝@1.07¾. After touching $1.07⅝, May declined to $1.07½. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 263 cars, against 242 cars last week and 340 cars a year ago.

The market displayed more strength during the last half of the day, owing to attempts of many traders to cover short sales of May. This forced the price of that delivery up to $1.08⅛. The market reacted later on profit taking and closed steady, with May ⅛@⅛c lower at $1.07⅝.

Increased receipts of corn had a weakening influence on the market for that grain. May opened unchanged to a shade lower at 61¾@¾c to 61⅞c, and sold off to 61⅝@⅝c. Local receipts were 302 cars, with 4 of contract grade.

Buying by shorts and bull leaders caused an advance late in the day. May selling up to 62⅝c. The close was firm with May up ⅜c at 62¼@¼c.

Scattered selling of oats resulted in an easy market. May opened a shade lower at 51¾c and sold at 51⅝c. Local receipts were 59 cars.

A decline in live hogs caused weakness in provisions. Prices at the opening were 2½@12½c lower.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Advance in United States Steel Aggressive Up to 54.

A Moderate Sympathetic Response Made by the General Market.

New York, Jan. 21.—In the opening dealings the changes were insignificant and dealings were on a small scale. In the early trading Wisconsin Central declined a point. American Hide & Leather preferred and Distillers Securities were marked 1¾. United States Express broke 5 points.

Demand for the Rock Island stocks became quite active, the preferred rising 2 points. The general list was sluggish. Reading second preferred sold at an advance of 2½. Toledo Railways 2¼ and North American 1¼. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie declined 1. Bonds were firm.

Metal stocks were generally strengthened by an advance of a point in United States Steel, but the rise failed to arouse any demand for the principal railroad stocks. National Enameling improved 1¾, and the preferred 2.

Movements in individual stocks failed to create any response from the balance of the list, which continued almost at a standstill. Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis jumped 3 points and Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting rose 1.

The market closed firm and quiet. The advance in United States Steel was aggressive up to 54, where it was checked by the weight of sales. American Smelting rose 1¾. Union Pacific 1½, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, Erie and the first preferred 1¾ and the second preferred, St. Paul, Allis-Chalmers and Car 1. The general market made a moderate sympathetic response. Long Island declined 1¾ and Mackay companies 3½.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Auction sale was well attended, and a large number of horses of all classes changed hands. Dealers from the Dakotas were able to fill their orders at the lowest prices this market has known in years, and country shippers and buyers lost money on most of their consignments. Well made farm mares suitable for all farm work and breeding purposes had the call.

NEW RUGBY BANK.

Security Bank Opens in Town of Andy Jones' Operations.

Rugby, N. D., Jan. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Due to the disappearance of Andy Jones, former cashier of the First National bank here, which recently closed its doors, some new banks have been started. The Security bank has just opened here for business.

The new bank has been incorporated with O. T. Tofsrud, president; Edward Seel, vice president, and N. J. Romness, cashier. The officers, together with O. B. Bergeson, of St. Paul, and John Kellsvig, county auditor of Pierce county, make up the board of directors. Mr. Bergeson, who is one of the leading stockholders in the new institution, is a well known traveling man.

Do not sell your Butte-Montana stock. Big things are going on that should soon be completed that will make this stock one of the most popular in the Northwest.

Remember, I told you this and can only say that at the present time can not advise you through the public press, but nothing ever looked as good to me. Mr. R. A. Kerr is back from Butte.

Calumet & Sonora is getting harder and harder to buy. Bids are coming from outside points for big blocks, a little under the market, and when the big stocks begin to move, this one should advance fast to $30 a share.

Carman is more than active today and sold up to 2½.

Copper Queen holds strong around 1¾ and should do better.

Shattuck is one of the best purchases on the board and should sell at $30.00 inside of the next sixty days.

Give us your business, we will give you service.
